Robert Leschinske has what gives every indication of being a very valuable mine, in Tule Canyon, Palmetto District. At the store of Mr. A. K. Eugley, at Big Pine, are specimens of ore from the mine that are rich enough in gold to be cut out for jewelry. Reports from reliable sources state that there is a large amount of fine ore in sight in the mine. There is a strong probability that Mr. Leschinske has struck a fortune.

Large quantities of goods and supplies of all kinds are sent out from Big Pine to Palmetto District. Every week Mr. A. K. Eugley sends out two loads of merchandise to the miners. The miners have plenty of money and it is a common practice with them to deposit enough to pay for their goods before they are shipped. This is more like old times than any other place on the Pacific Coast; the miners and the merchant know and trust each other and the confidence on both sides is not misplaced.

The Los Angeles Herald of recent date says that the number of cars loaded with oranges leaving Los Angeles and Pasadena daily to be haulded north to Sacramento, and thence over the Sierras to Omaha, is twenty to twenty-five. Occasionally a special train of twenty to twenty-five cars is sent out. If a railroad were open from Mojave to Owens Valley all this traffic would come this way, thereby saving about two hundred and fifty miles distance and the heavy grade over the Sierras.

The first order sent from Owens Valley to Los Angeles for goods since the present movement was begun was by Thomas & Hill, of Big Pine. They firmly stick to their resolution to support the teams, and will continue to do so while a team stays on the road. A few days ago a team left Big Pine for Mojave to bring up a large load of goods for the firm. Thomas & Hill do a fair, square business; they buy the best goods, sell for a reasonable profit, and are doing all in their power to promote the general welfare of Owens Valley.

The owner of a great deal of land in Owens Valley recently said that he would have been willing to sell some of his property a few months ago but would not sell now, as he believes it will pay him better to keep his land and put more improvements upon it before offering it for sale. Another man said he wanted to put every acre he has got into a good state of cultivation, and then offer it at reasonable prices in small lots to actual settlers.

Improving Vigorously.

Nowhere in Owens Valley is improvement pushed with more vigor than at Big Pine. More than eleven years ago a canal was begun with intent to irrigate a large tract of land. The settlers were poor, but they toiled hard to make their canal and slacked in their efforts only when they discovered that water would not run up hill. This was discouraging, as they had done an immense amount of work and spent a good deal of money trying to secure water for their lands and make homes for their families. All this toil and money were wasted and hearts were made sick by hope deferred through faulty surveys. Recently Mr. Ed. Crocker employed a competent surveyor, Mr. S. P. McKnight, who made a new survey for the canal and now the settlers and Mr. Crocker are working like beavers in the certainty that their labor and patience will be crowned with success in a very short time. All the heavy cutting has been done and what of the canal yet remains to be made can be put through at the rate of a mile each week. Mr. Crocker expects to turn in water about the middle of May, though the canal will not then be completed, but enough will be done to supply water to several farms. This ditch will irrigate several thousand acres of as good land as there is in Owens Valley. None of the settlers own large tracts; the district will be mostly in small farms and will be one of the most attractive in the Valley. The canal will be brought to Fish Spring and will irrigate a tract of excellent orchard and vineyard land. Mr. Crocker has made great improvement upon his place. A new orchard has just been set out west from the hotel; great stretches of picket fence have been built and more is building; long lines of shade trees are set out along the highway; old fences and buildings have been cleared away; new barns and corrals have been built. And Italian gardener is employed and east from the hotel a large and fine garden has been made. Every where about Big Pine the work of improvement is going on. The town is renovated; it no longer has the tumbletown, sleepy, shabby, out-at-elbows look of old times, but is a modern, live, wide-awake place, and is one of the most attractive places in the Valley for new settlers.

A Grand Enterprise.

A few days ago two competent civil engineers called at this office. A talk of considerable length was had on the resources of Owens Valley. Both of these gentlemen fully concurred in the correctness of the following statements: After all the water necessary to irrigate as much land as can be conveniently reached shall be taken from Owens river, there will still be enough to irrigate one hundred thousand acres. At a cost of one million of dollars this water could be conveyed down Little Lake Canyon and put upon the land in the valley beyond. That land is of excellent quality, and there is plenty of it. The land would easily be worth one hundred dollars per acre, and the value of the tract thus reclaimed would be ten fold the cost of the work. Each forty acres of this land would support a family of industrious people, and at the usual ratio of five persons to one family the population of the tract would be 12,500 souls. The towns that would necessarily grow up would swell the population to at least 15,000 people. All this increase of population would be a virtual increase of the population of Los Angeles, as every dollars' worth of business would go to that city. In Little Lake Canyon are natural reservoirs where immense quantitities of water could be held in reserve with little, if any, cost of preparation beyond turning the water into them from above. This is not the rambling talk of visionary men, but the deliberate judgment of well-trained engineers of long experience. Here is an opening for one of the grandest enterprises in the State, and it is certain to be taken hold of and completed sooner or later.

The Railroad

There still appears to be some misapprehension about the result of the conference between Mr. Yerington and the people of Los Angeles concerning the extension of the C. & C. road. The facts about said conference have already been published, but it would appear necessary to go over the same ground again. The business men of Los Angeles who met Mr. Yerington expressed a strong desire to secure rail connection with Inyo county. Leading bankers, capitalists and merchants repeatedly said they firmly believed bonds to aid in securing such rail connection could be placed in Los Angeles to the amount of half a million dollars. More than one capitalist said if such bonds were offered he would invest in them to a large amount. Mr. Yerington said he was not prepared to make any proposition to the people of Los Angeles. One thing he would say, namely, that the Carson & Colorado Company did not want a subsidy, as subsidies, whenever granted, had been the cause of bad feeling between the people and the companies. Investing money in bonds was a very different matter, and if the people of Los Angeles proposed to do that he would consult with the owners of the road on the subject. Several meetings were held and a good deal of consultation had, but the above is the gist of all that was said. If every word spoken at the conferences at Los Angeles were published the result would not be plainer than as given here. The men of Los Angeles have already said all that the people of Inyo could in reason expect them to say. They want to be connected with us by rail and say they are willing to invest money in bonds to help build it. They cannot afford to build an independent road, but they are ready to do all they can to help the matter. Nothing more can be done by the people of Los Angeles till some move is made by other parties.

A Remarkable Salt Deposit.

It is doubtful if there is elsewhere in the world a more remarkable deposit of salt than is found near Silver Peak. The salt is almost perfectly pure, the grade by chemical test being 98 per cent. It is shoveled into sacks where found and is ready for use in that state. It is as white as snow and of fine grain. It has been proved to be the finest salt in use for curing meat. When we have a railroad to Los Angeles meat packing will be one of the big items of Owens Valley business; there will then be use for this fine salt. In Saline Valley, across the Inyo Mountains, is another vast deposit of salt. Indians gather this salt, pack it over into Owens Valley, and exchange it for goods.

Reduced Passenger Rates.

CARSON, NEV., April 8, 1889.

ED. INDEPENDENT: Dear Sir:—I beg to inform you that on and after April 11th we will be prepared to furnish from Owens Valley Stations tickets limited to five (5) days at special rates as follows: To San Francisco, $25.05; Oakland, $25.05; San Jose, $25.05; Stockton, $23.75; Marysville, $22.55; Sacramento, $22.05 Tickets not limited will be sold at same rates as heretofore.

D. A. BENDER,
G. F. & P. A.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John John A. Hannah, Judge.

THURSDAY, April 4th.

Grant vs. Walker—Answer to cross-complaint filed.

MONDAY, April 8th.

Grant vs. Walker—Demurrer filed.

FRIDAY, April 12th.

Estate of H. J. Hartshorne, Deceased—Order of sale of personal property.

The Best Remedy.

Great quantities of raisin and wine grapes are now being planted in Owens Valley. It would be well for planters to bear in mind the grievous losses that have been caused in our own country and in Europe by vine diseases. It is generally believed that most, or all of these diseases are due to impoverishment of the soil, and consequent weakening of the vines, making them unable to resist disease or pests. If a due proportion of land in the valley shall be devoted to the production of fodder for horses and cattle, and consequent supply of manure, and this applied in sufficient quantity to the vineyards, we will not be likely to suffer loss from diseased vines. There is one orange orchard at Los Angeles where the trees are healthy and vigorous and show not a trace of white scale, though in all the surrounding country the trees are threatened with utter destruction by the pests. The owner of this orchard, Mr. Entwisle, turned sewage from the city upon his land, thoroughly enriching the soil, and now his trees are clear and vigorous and bear heavy crops of fruit.

An Important Matter

A large building has been secured at Los Angeles and preparation is making for an exhibition of the resources of Southern California. Already a very large quantity of articles and productions of various kinds have been sent for exhibition and the display is certain to be attended daily by large numbers of people. Many of the visitors will be people seeking information with a view to invest money. In no city in the State is there greater interest taken than in Los Angeles. Inyo county is not prepared at this time of the year to make any display of fruit or farm products, but we could make a splendid showing of mineral resources. Now that teams are running regularly to Mojave there is ample facility for sending mineral specimens. All articles sent in charge of the Chamber of Commerce will be well cared for and placed on exhibition. Everyone who is interested in mining should send something to this exhibit.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken acceptible to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects Possessing these qualities Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

Weinstock & Lubin, of San Francisco, have secured a section of land north of Bishop Station. A few days ago they let a contract for clearing the land of sage brush and getting it ready for planting with grape vines. Mr. Lubin was here about three years ago and made a careful investigation of the valley. He then said that it was his opinion that Owens Valley was the best region in California for producing fine wines, and in a few years would become famous for such brands of wine as could not be made anywhere else in the State. The judgment of Mr. Lubin is now to be put to a practical test.

Messrs. C. S. Compton and W. H. Best left Independence last Monday for Los Angeles. Mr. Compton is a Civil Engineer and came here to examine the country. He made a stay of five weeks in the valley and looked it over carefully from end to end. He was induced to come here through speeches made by Mr. C. Mulholland at Los Angeles. He said he found every statement made by Mr. Mulholland verified by his own observation. Mr. Compton expects to return here about the first of next August and his stay then will probably be much longer than his present visit.

Perry McMurry sits on the wheel horse of the big plow like "Patience on a monument smiling at grief." But that's not a good simile: Perry is now certain that the canal will be finished and smiles as if there was no such thing as grief in the world What a lot of important events is sure to follow the completion of that canal! Perry, and Jake Miller, and Blake, and Big George, and S. P. Roberts, all ready to get married and only waiting for water, and now the water is in sight.

The following land contests have been decided at Washington. A. J. McMurry vs. B. H. Blake, in favor of Blake. A. D. Gilbert vs. Robert Arnold, decided in favor of Gilbert.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer In GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co Clerk.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THOMAS & HILL,
DEALERS IN
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax-Collector.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT of the County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

SEAL. P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o 51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE undersigned, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Aministrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,
Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.

Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated March 20th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,
Administrator of the estate of John B. White, deceased.

A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

BUDDING, GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING

Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.

CHAS. E. CUSACK,
j-12-4i Independence, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1819 1889

I. O. O. F.

—THE—

70th Anniversary

Celebration

—OF THE—

Independent Order

—OF—

:ODD FELLOWS:

—AT—

INDEPENDENCE

Friday, Apr. 26, 1889

—UNDER THE AUSPICES OF—

Inyo Lodge No. 301

—AND—

Bishop Lodge No. 332

PARADE!
ORATION!
BALL!

Orator.....P. W. FORBES, ESQ.

President of the Day..E. ROBINSON

—INVITATION COMMITTEE—

ROUND VALLEY—C. F. Wildassinn, H. Evans.

BISHOP—I. P. Yaney, Wm. J. Dunn, J. L. Bourland, J. H. Bulpitt, Andrew Dell, Wm. McDonald.

LAWS—F. K. Andrews,

BIG PINE—S. G. Gregg, L. M. Newman.

FISH SPRINGS—N. E. Conklin, J. Shoemaker.

INDEPENDENCE—J. D. Blair, D. Crough, J. R. Eldred, J. Alexander, A. Stecker.

GEORGES CREEK—J. E. Shepherd, H. J. Robinson.

LONE PINE—R. C. Spear, S. Decker, John Anton.

KEELER—T. C. Boland, B. F. Gray, C. J. Schalten, S. Levy.

DARWIN—Geo. Lewis, P. Clinton, A. G. McGovern.

LOOKOUT—J. D Channell.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

A. R. Conklin, W. W. Woodruff, P. H. Mack, Wells Barnes, Henry Thomsen.

FLOOR MANAGERS.

Bertrand Rhine, P. P. Keough.

FLOOR COMMITTER.

J. W. Murphy, C. W. Craig, J. E. Shepherd, N. E. Conklin.

BALL TICKETS, $3.00

Supper at the Norman House.

EVERYBODY WELCOME.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to no one on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12-tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 456 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

$975 Sewing-Machine FREE

To at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who may call at your home, and after 3 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out; before patents run out it sold for $975, with the attachments, and now sells for $15.00. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Wheeler & Wilson

Sewing Machine.

New No. 8.

"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.

Old Machines Exchanged for.

Farm Produce Taken in Payment.

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND,
Agent.

Independence, Cal.

EDWARD CHENOT,

Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO Extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDIS

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,

PROVISIONS

Tobacco, Cigars,

WINES AND LIQUORS

FLOUR & GRAI

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.

Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n476tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths

AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS

SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.

And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing

When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,

—And a large—

SWIMMING : BATH

Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,

—AND—

Board by the Day, Week, or the Month

MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pro

GENERAL MERCHANDIS

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain
Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH S ORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S CASH STORE IS

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sep1-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00

REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00

Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to

HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Stockland, Mo., writes: "I stand up and affirm that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 10 acres in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house. If I had to take the finest horse under their sled besides to pay for it." JOHN B. DODGE, Ft. Scott, Kansas, Mar. writes: "I am satisfied I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best machine ever invented by men. 2d. We have had no good clothes on Monday on any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy more for $10." I will ship a sample to that, desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best washer in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Paying reliable agents big money. Write for particulars.

J. WORTH, 1719 Franklin Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

ALLEN GRAY;

— OR, —

The Mys'ery of Turley's Point.

Being a Few Romantic Chapters From the Life of a Country Editor.

BY JOHN R. MUSICK,

AUTHOR OF "WALTER BROWNFIELD," "HELEN LAKEMAN," "BANKER OF BEDFORD," AND OTHER STORIES.

[Copyrighted, 1888, by the A. N. Kellogg News paper Company.]

Was it a spirit of reckless adventure or some unknown impulse which prompted him to scale the wall? He was active, strong and bold, and the feat required but a moment's time.

When he touched the ground he half believed that he was on enchanted ground. He never stopped to think that he was an intruder who was endangering his life by coming here; though a feeling of superstitious awe, which he fought manfully to resist, kept creeping over him.

IN ONE OF THE BASEMENT WINDOWS.

For a moment he paused under the very tree where he had seen the object of his affections bathed in tears. To him it was hallowed ground.

"Oh, Bertha, Bertha, are you still miserable?" he asked himself, fixing his eyes on the gloomy old castle-like house. He was inside the wall almost before he knew it, and did not find it very difficult to induce himself to go quite up to the house and try to learn something of its inmates. He followed a path leading through a garden, under some leafy bowers, until he came to the rear of that immense structure, where he halted.

In one of the basement windows he now saw a second light. It was a very dim light, and could not be seen a few yards from the building. Allen supposed it was a light used by some of the servants engaged in their household duties. Though he listened long and carefully, no sound, not even the ticking of a clock, could be heard. Long he stood gazing through the basement window down into the dimly-lighted room.

His perseverance received its reward at last. A pale, ghostlike form in long white robe glided across the room. It made no more noise than a feather being wafted across the floor by the breath of a playful child.

Despite his skepticism on supernatural questions, Allen felt cold chills running up his spine, while his hair seemed to almost stand upon end. That light became paler and more ghost-like, and he could hardly believe he was not gazing upon beings of another world. Spell-bound he stood gazing at that mystic figure gliding as noiselessly about the room as if it floated upon air. He put his hand upon the window which was half above and half below the surface of the ground, and found it protected by iron bars, effectually preventing ingress or egress.

"The house is a prison!" thought Allen. The old bastile could not have looked more grim and terrible than that house on this dark night.

He went to another window which he also found barred, but it was so intensely dark within that he could at first see nothing. As his eyes became more accustomed to the gloom, he made out an object, that seemed moving about within. Was it man or beast? Slowly it drew nearer and nearer to the window, until a pair of great hollow eyes seemed gazing into his face. Was it man or monster? Never had he seen such a face, never beheld such blazing eyes, as now glared at him from the darkness of that mysterious chamber. Frozen with a strange, unknown horror, the adventurer stood gazing into that face.

Suddenly a wild, demoniacal laugh seemed to shake the old building to its foundation stones. The spell which chained Allen was broken, and he started back with a half-suppressed exclamation of terror.

CHAPTER IX.

CHARGED WITH TREACHERY.

Despite all his courage and all his skepticism in ghosts, Allen Gray was so overcome with terror that he shrank from the window. That horrible creature that glared at him through the iron bars could not be human.

He had run across the lawn in the garden before he could collect his wits sufficient to remember where he was. He was hastening through the garden when he discovered a figure in white entering a summer house.

Allen came to an abrupt halt. On that figure glided until it had disappeared inside the summer house. Then issued therefrom a low, musical voice, sweeter by far than the fairy's shell—in a plaintive song. Like the enchanted boatman, he drew nearer to listen. The air was new to him, and, the words being in French, he could not understand them.

The singer scarce spoke above a whisper, yet each note was distinct and clear. His fear was gone in a moment, and he stood thrilled with pleasure at sound of that familiar voice. The fair singer he had recognized as Bertha, and he determined not to go away without another attempt, at least, to have an interview with her.

"Oh, Bertha, Bertha! if I could only take you from this prison and make you happy, I should feel that my work in life was accomplished!"

He reached the summer house, and fearing that an abrupt entrance might frighten her, he went to the rear and halted within a few feet of where the beautiful singer sat. She ceased singing, and a sigh escaping her lips told the intruder that she was sad.

How was he to make himself known? Even while he was pondering on that matter she rose from her seat and came out at the rear door. The clouds which had obscured the faint starlight at this moment rolled away, and the features of both the intruder and astonished girl became quite distinct.

She stopped and gazed at him for a moment in silent amazement. Any other girl would have shrieked, swooned or fled at the sudden apparition, but Bertha was no ordinary personage.

"Why did you come here?" she asked, in a sad, reproachful manner. "I warned you never under any circumstances to enter these grounds, under penalty of death; why do you insist in disobeying me?"

Allen was for several moments unable to answer, because he had no reasonable excuse to make. At last he said:

"Do not reprove me, Miss Collins, for I assure you that it was no morbid curiosity that brought me."

"Could you understand the danger in which you place yourself by coming here," said the pretty girl, taking a few steps nearer to him, "you would not do so. It is dangerous to you and to me. It would be death to us both to be discovered here."

Allen Gray was only deeper plunged into this dark mystery. He was speechless, his brain seemed stupefied, and he was incapable of thinking. He stood dumb, amazed and almost as pallid as the girl before him.

She came quite close to Allen, and speaking in a cautious undertone that could not be heard a dozen paces away, said:

"Go away, Mr. Gray; go at once, and never come near me again if you value your life."

"Will you go with me to the gate?" he asked.

"Will you leave then?"

"I give you my sacred promise that I will," said Allen, earnestly.

He took the arm of the trembling girl within his own, and in silence they walked to the gate. Here they halted, both casting anxious glances at the great old house which rose up so gloomily before them. To the relief of both all was quiet, and there was no one in the yard.

"Go, go," said Bertha, eagerly. Though speaking in a whisper, her voice trembled with passion and fear. "It would be fatal for you to be discovered here; it would be your ruin—death—" She became choked with sobs, and for a moment was silent.

"Bertha," said Allen, his voice strangely calm, "you are in great distress—what is it?"

"Oh, do not ask," she answered, continuing to sob. "Leave me to my misery and eternal doom. I am the most wretched of humans, my fate is sealed, and it is useless for others to attempt to aid me. Go away—go away."

"But I will not leave you alone in this distress. What is it? Tell me that I may help you."

"I can not, dare not tell."

"Bertha, you are miserable here?"

A sob was the only answer.

"Let me take you away from this terrible place."

"No, no, no; not for the world. Do not think of that. I can not leave—I am held here by bands stronger than iron."

"How long have you lived here?"

"Not more than eight months—though it seems so many ages."

Another moment's awful silence followed, and then Allen, becoming desperate, said:

"Bertha, I would aid you if I could—I—I would give my life if necessary—"

"Hush—hush—" she quickly interrupted, seizing his arm. "You know not what you say. Oh, why don't you go? Go, in Heaven's name, and let us forget that we ever met. I—I—I am doomed, and why should you wish to drag both yourself and myself down to ruin?" and, completely overcome, she buried her beautiful face in her hands.

Dazed, bewildered and confused, Allen Gray staggered and caught at the wall for support. What was he to do, how could he remove the burden from this object of his affections? He seemed to realize that she was lost, lost to him forever.

A voice at this moment in the direction of the great old house caused both to start, and the beautiful girl again seizing his arm in a grasp that trembled, in a terrified whisper, said:

"Go, go at once, before it is too late. Go, go, or we will both be undone."

Nimbly as an acrobat, Allen leaped the wall, and with his brain in a whirl, and a thousand conflicting thoughts swaying his heart, returned to the village.

The mystery surrounding the old stone house and its inmates seemed every moment growing more complicated. Allen Gray had always prided himself on having a great deal of insight into human character, and fancied that he could read people as open pages, and here was one who baffled all his skill. Who was this Bertha? Her face and her name were Anglo Saxon, but her education and manners French. That she spoke the language fluently, and might be mistaken for a native Frenchwoman he did not doubt, yet when conversing in English there was not even the slightest foreign accent on her tongue. She was an enigma, and the more he strove to solve the problem, the more difficult it became of solution.

Another sleepless night, another light breakfast, and again at his office with a heavy heart and aching head. He was struggling manfully to fix his mind upon the business before him, when the door softly opened and a farmer entered.

"Yer the editor, ain't ye?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I fotched ye a little piece about our neighborhood fur ye to print in your paper. Ef ye use it I think I kin git ye some signers out our way."

"Where do you live?"

"Down on Billy's Crick," answered the farmer.

He was an unpretentious author, wearing his pants in his thick cowhide boots, was in his shirt sleeves, and wore a soft broad-brimmed hat on his head. His "galuses" were home made, and he had all the peculiar characteristics of a denizen of Billy's Creek.

Allen took the roll of MS., and after much trouble unrolled and smoothed it out so it could be read. An amateur manuscript may usually be recognized by being rolled so tightly that the editor's patience is exhausted before he can get it in shape to read. Frequently the manuscript is rejected without being read for this very reason. The manuscript contained only a few news items, as follows:

"YER THE EDITOR, AIN'T YE?"

"MR. EDITUR: Not havin' seen any thing from Billy's Crick lately I thot that I would rite a few lines fur ye. Times are good here. Crops is splendid, an farmers are a-dun plowin' corn. Tom briggs fell and broke his arm last sunday. Jim jones tuk mat Stivers to meetin' last week. We have meetin' again at the schoolhouse. Sam herrin was heerd cussin the other day, bekase some feller had his ox yoke. Sam had better bring back the corn knife he borrered frum me last year, when I wuzzn't at home. Had a dance last week at Bart Davises' house. Sol Smith was there, he was so tall he bumped his head agin the jist. Si hed so much corn juice he made the floor crack. Si is a whizzer. G. L—."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Fresnoites are afraid they are to experience another siege of incendiarism like that of last year.

The Santa Rosa Cannery has contracted for 50,000 cases of cans, which is twice the number used last year.

The City Council of San Jose has compelled the water company to reduce rates this year 25 per cent.

N. D. Breckenridge, who swindled the people of Tacoma, W. T., with bogus checks, has been captured at Seattle.

Joe P. Kerr has leased the San Jacinto Register from Arthur G. Munn, and is now the editor of that sprightly sheet.

J. Jordan, who was working on a new Baptist church at Fort Bragg, fell with a scaffold last week and fractured his skull.

A Bostonian suggests a new name—"Whulge," for Washington Territory. It is the old Indian name for Puget Sound. With due respect for the name, it must be said that the suggestion is absurd.

MIGHTY SOLITUDES.

Intelligence from a Party Exploring the Great Canadian Northwest.

William Ogilvie, who has been engaged by the Dominion Government since 1887 in exploring extreme Northwestern Canada, has arrived at Edmonton via Laclabiche and Victoria. The route pursued by the party was from the Pacific coast up Chilkat inlet by steamer, over the Taing pass to Lake Lyndeman, on the Lewis river, the main branch of the Yukon and down the river in canoes to the international boundary line.

It has always been supposed that the Lewis was the main stream of the Yukon, but the Hootilengus, which joins the Lewis from the east about two hundred miles from the coast, is the main stream proper. The party went into camp on the Yukon near the international boundary in the latter part of September. The greatest cold was in February, when the thermometer registered 57 degrees below zero. Camp was struck on March 4, when they descended the Yukon thirty-five miles to the head waters of the Porcupine river—another of the main branches of the Yukon. This pass is 3,200 feet above sea level. The Porcupine was descended twenty miles, when, on April 10, camp was made until the ice broke in the spring, which was on May 18.

The average depth of the snow during the winter was about three feet. The Porcupine was descended to its confluence with Bell's river, coming in from the east. This was ascended to a pass in the Rockies about eight and a half miles long, with nothing to prevent a railroad being built through it. From the east end of the pass a small mountain stream was followed to its junction with Peel river, flowing into the Mackenzie. On this stream coal of good quality and an abundant crop of abestes were seen. The distance from the foot of the Rockies to where they entered the Peel was seventeen miles in a straight line. The total distance traveled from the Yukon at the boundary to Peel river was 318 miles, crossing two mountain ranges.

McConnell's geological survey party was met at the Peel. The ascent of the Mackenzie was begun June 27, and the survey continued until it combined at Chippewa Yan with the survey of the Peace and Athabasca rivers, made by Ogilvie in 1886, a distance of 1,417 miles. The only real obstacle to navigation in this distance was the rapids at Fort Smith.

Wheat and barley are grown every summer at Fort Providence, in north latitude 61 degrees. A sample of wheat grown there was brought out, and makes good flour. Mining is carried on on the Yokon and tributaries, and pays during three months of the year. Forty-Mile creek, the seat of the gold excitement of 1887, unites with the Yukon about forty-one miles of the boundary. Twenty-three miles from this creek is in Canada.—Cor. Chicago Mail.

—He—"If you will be mine, Louise, I will lead you through life like an angel." She—"That is, with nothing to eat and nothing to wear. No, I thank you."—Fliegende Blatter.

—"Professor" is rapidly getting to be a title which implies that the professions of knowlege on the part of the man who applies it to himself are not to be believed.—Journal of Education.

—"How I would like to be the man in the moon, Maude, to look down on this gay old world as he does." "I wish you were, I'm sure, George." "Why?" "Well, the moon is several thousand miles away."—Lincoln Journal.

A CHINESE LILY.

How it Helped to Win a Louisiana State Lottery Prize.

S. E. Davis, a well-known rancher of Firebaugh, Fresno, Cal., owes his luck in the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery to a Chinaman in his employ. The gentleman, who was in this city from January 19th to January 21st, stopping at the Lick House, told the story to Louis Schoenberg of 322 Sansom street, who cashed the prize of $15,000 which Mr Davis won with ticket No. 5,882. Two weeks prior to the drawing the Chinese servant of Mr. Davis gave him a Chinese lily bulb, a very common present among the Chinese, as they believe it brings good luck between the giver and receiver. The bulb was placed in water and supported by small stones as usual. Rapidly as these lilies always grow, this particular one blossomed in the unusually short time of a week. The Chinaman seeing it became very much excited, considering it as an omen of great good fortune to his master, whom he implored to send to San Francisco for some lottery tickets. Mr. Davis actually did send, never expecting anything from what he considered the Chinaman's crazy idea.

When the winning numbers were telegraphed here one of the coupons had thus found its way, thanks to the Chinese servant, into Mr. Davis' possession. He at once came up to San Francisco as stated, and through Mr. Schoenberg received confirmation of the good news that he was the winner of $15,000. The Chinaman has also benefited by his master's luck, for recognizing the cause of his purchasing a ticket, Mr. Davis presented the Mongol with $1,500, and the Chinese lily is now regarded a more lucky flower than ever.—San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle, Feb. 11.

A CONCLUSIVE PROOF.

A Bank with a capital and surplus of $1,700,000, and with average resources of upwards of $4,500,000, must certainly be in a very flourishing condition, due to the uniformly safe and legitimate character of its transactions, for a long series of years that have won for it the entire confidence of our best business men.

Dujardin's Life Essence is very valuable where the stomach is unable to extract from the food the albumen and phosphorus. The Life Essence is immediately absorbed, and nourishes the nervous system, without any aid from digestion. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All Druggists.

Young Men and the Churches.

One of the unpleasant features of religious life is the lack of young men in the churches. The evil is not a small one, and there are indications that it is growing larger; it has certainly increased in the last thirty years. Can the evil be removed or, at least, reduced? We are confident that some things can be done to improve the situation. For one thing, the distinct recognition of the fact that there are too few young men in the church should tend to better the record. Systematic efforts to win young men ought to be undertaken all along the line. The church wants them and must get them. Many ways to go about the enlistment of such soldiers of the cross will be found, some best fitted to one and others to another locality or denomination. One of these is that young men will not go very heartily into any enterprise when they can only sit still, look on and listen. Young men have to be enlisted as active workers. Old men may be taken in as parlor boarders, but a young man must be set at work or he will soon grow listless. Besides, young men can best win young men, and it is in such work that the value of youthful members is always highest. The principle has, however, another important application. The officiary of too many churches has no young blood in it. Give the young brethren a share in the management.

THEIR ONLY MEDICINE CHEST.

William W. B. Miller, Deerlodge, Montana writes:

"I have been using BRANDRETH'S PILLS for the last thirteen years, and though I have had nine children, I have never had a doctor in the house, except three times, when we had an epidemic of scarlet fever, which we soon banished by a vigorous use of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. I have used them for myself, two or three a night for a month, for liver complaint, dyspepsia, and constipation. In diarrhœa, cramps, wind colic, indigestion, one or two BRANDRETH'S PILLS fixed the children at once. A box of pills is all the medicine chest we require in the house. We use them for rheumatism, colds, catarrh, billiousness and impure blood. They never have failed to cure all the above complaints in a very few days."

A new style of linen collar has been named after Private Secretary Halford. It is called "The Elijah" and has a tendency to go up.

A TERRIBLE MISFORTUNE.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nerveless, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions sapped by weakness and infirmity and long unbenefitted by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

"Are you engaged to Miss Eclat?" "No, not exactly. But when I asked for her hand she gave me the refusal of it."

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

See Antisell Piano advertisement.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

ESTABLISHED 1862.

F. H. HAMMER,

WHOLESALE

Produce Dealer

AND

Commission Merchant,

215 and 217 Davis St., - S. F., Cal.

When Shipping anything to this Market let me handle your business.
Quick sales and prompt returns on all Consignments. Write for Weekly Price Current.
Member of San Francisco Produce Exchange and Call Board.
Grain Bought and Sold on Margins. Money Advanced on Shipments.

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES.
Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. J. AIKEN, Manager, Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

STEINWAY, MANUM, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roenisch Pianos; Burdett Organs, band instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

HOW TO GET A SELF-PLAYING
MUSICAL INSTRUMENT FOR NOTHING
One that plays latest Dance, Popular and Sacred Music. No limit to the selections. Send for circular to KOHLER & CHASE, 137 & 139 Post St., S. F.

ASTHMA CURED
German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

CALIFORNIA ROSES!

STRONG, WELL-ROOTED PLANTS, ALL Labeled, Assorted, 10 for $1.00. Geraniums, Fuchsias, Heliotrope, Begonias, Verbenas and Chrysanthemums in large variety. Good Healthy Plants, all Labeled, 12 for $1.00. All plants sent free by mail, and safe arrival guaranteed for Cash with order. Address, W. A. T. STRATTON, Florist, Petaluma, Cala.

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

NEXT SATURDAY

Between the hours of nine and three o'clock, we shall hold a SPECIAL SALE of GINGHAMS AND FLANNELS. Every person buying anything in either line on that day will be entitled to 10 per cent discount from regular prices, which are already much below those of other houses. Our Ginghams are all choice styles and leading makes for shirting, aprons, and finest style of Dress Ginghams. Flannels embrace Red, White, Grey, Blue and Plaids, from 20c a yard up. Every reader of this paper is invited to be present at this sale and secure this advantage. The gain on a small outfit will pay for a magazine for a whole year, and it is a clear gain to you, even if we lose. Positively for the one day only. If it is not convenient to come, mail your order on Saturday, refer to this notice, name the paper where seen, and you shall have all the advantages of those present. If time, send for our full list to make your selections. It will be mailed promptly. But do not miss the chance. We want your trade, and intend to pay you to give it to us. We are the largest dealers in general merchandise west of the Mississippi River. Address, Smith's Cash Store, No. 418 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

CONSUMPTION, WASTING DISEASES,

And General Debility. Doctors disagree as to the relative value of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites: the one supplying strength and flesh, the other giving nerve power, and acting as a tonic to the digestive and entire system. But in SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites the two are combined, and the effect is wonderful. Thousands who have derived no permanent benefit from other preparations have been cured by this. Scott's Emulsion is perfectly palatable and is easily digested by those who cannot tolerate plain Cod Liver Oil.

Isn't it paradoxical that 1:20 o'clock is past 1, while 1:20 o'clock is only half-past?

For Throat Diseases, Coughs, Colds, etc., effective relief is found in the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Sold only in boxes. 25 cts.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Grea Universities as the Strongest, Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alumn. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK, CHICAGO, SAN FRANCISCO.

S.S.S.

Having for the past four or five years been troubled with pimples and blotches on my face and body, and finding no relief in any of the chemically prepared soaps and medicines prescribed for me by physicians, I concluded to try your S. S. S. remedy, and have found great relief in the same, four bottles clearing my skin entirely. I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are in the position that I have been in. You can use this letter and my name as a testimonial to the merits of the S. S. S. remedy.
Very truly yours, ALBERT P. ROBINSON,
320 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.
Send for our books on Blood and Skin Diseases and advice to sufferers, mailed free.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
—FOR—
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. GATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

$500 IN Cash

is offered to the person who shall send in the largest number of yearly subscribers to the Ladies' Home Journal

between now and July 1st, 1889, at 50 cents per year—HALF PRICE. After that date, no subscriptions received for less than $1.50 per year. $400—$200 is offered respectively for next largest clubs. A good cash commission paid for every subscriber secured, if desired, instead of premiums. Hundreds of dollars can be made during the next six months, by men, women or children. We furnish free sample copies, posters, &c. Address
CURTIS PUBLISHING CO.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

OVER 6,000,000 people believe that it pays best to buy Seeds of the largest and most reliable house, and they use

Ferry's Seeds

Earliest Cauliflower in existence.

D. M. FERRY & CO. are acknowledged to be the Largest Seedsmen in the world.
D. M. FERRY & CO's Illustrated, Descriptive and Priced SEED ANNUAL
For 1889
Will be mailed FREE to all applicants, and to last year's customers without ordering it. Invaluable to all. Every person using Garden, Field or Flower Seeds should send for it. Address
D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.

WELL DRILLS
FOR EVERY PURPOSE.
Sold on Trial!

Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by
GOULDS & AUSTIN,
167 & 169 Lake St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Strictures. M'f'd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, O. Chic. Trade Mark

I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease.
G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.
We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction.
D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill.
$1.00. Sold by Druggists

ST. JACOBS OIL
For Neuralgia.
NEW, PERMANENT CURES.

For Years. Palestine, Ohio, June 27, 1888. Suffered constantly for several years with neuralgia; all remedies failed; tried St. Jacobs Oil; was cured. No return in 6 months.
S. S. FETHEROLF, P. M.

Never Again. St. Gibory, Ill., May 15, 1888. My wife was troubled with neuralgia and after using one bottle of St. Jacobs Oil was never troubled again. HENRY BECKEMEYER.

After All. Rutland, Ill., May 21, 1888. Have known cases of neuralgia given up by doctors to be cured by St. Jacobs Oil.
J. M. EdAW, Druggist.

AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

Diamond Vera-Cura
FOR DYSPEPSIA.
A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND ALL Stomach Troubles Arising Therefrom.
Your Druggist or General Dealer will get Vera-Cura for you if not already in stock, or it will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent stamp.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.
Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers.

PIANOS. 1st Premiums, 25,000 in use 20 years Established. No patented Steel Tuning Device, in use in no other Piano, by which our Pianos stand in tune 20 years, good for 100; not affected by climate. No wood to split, bracks, swell, shrink, crack, decay, or wear out; we guarantee it. Elegant Rosewood Cases, 3 strings, double repeating action; finest ivory keys; the Famous ANTISELL Call or write for Catalogue, free. T. M. ANTISELL PIANO CO., Manufacturers, Odd Fellows' Hall, Market and Seventh Streets, San Francisco.

R. H. McDonald PRES'T. F. V. McDonald, CASHIER.
ESTABLISHED 1863.
Oldest Chartered Bank on the Pacific Coast.
PACIFIC BANK
Capital Stock $1,000,000.00.
SURPLUS $ 700,000.00.
AV. RESOURCES $4,500,000.00
Returning thanks for past favors, we respectfully ask a continuance of the same and solicit accounts of Individuals, Firms and Corporations.
R. H. McDONALD, President.
San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1, 1889.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH
PENNYROYAL PILLS
RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND.
Original, best, only genuine and reliable pill for sale. Never Fail. Ask for Chichester's English Diamond Brand, in red metallic boxes, sealed with blue ribbon. At Druggists. Accept no other. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are a dangerous counterfeit. Send 4c. (stamps) for particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return mail. 10,000 testimonials from LADIES who have used them. Name Paper.
Chichester Chemical Co., Madison Sq., Phila., Pa.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH,
Carbolic Sheep Wash.
T. W. Jackson & Co., Mfg. Agents, 104 Market St.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster's Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

MAY TO BELL.

Dear Bell: I'll write you a short letter
To say I'm wonderfully better;
How much that means you ought to know,
Who saw me just one month ago—
Thin, nervous, fretful, white as chalk,
Almost too weak to breathe or talk;
Head throbbing, as if fit for breaking,
A weary, ever-present aching.

But now life seems a different thing:
I feel as glad as bird on wing!
I say, and fear no contradiction,
That Pierce's Favorite Prescription
Is grand! Why, I'd have died without it!
Ma thinks there's no mistake about it.
It's driven all my ills away:
Just come and see! Yours ever, MAY.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription imparts strength to the whole system. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Copyrighted, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

SIZE OF PELLETS
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets
THE ORIGINAL
LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Purely Vegetable and Perfectly Harmless.
Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, cheapest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels. 25 cents, by druggists.

Sleepless Nights

"For nearly a month I was not able to sleep, but after using PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND for two days, insomnia fled and strength returned." E. G. SMITH, Claussen, S. C.

"I have taken only a part of a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and it has entirely relieved me of sleeplessness, from which I have suffered greatly." MRS. E. AUTCLIFF, Peoria, Ill.

Paine's Celery Compound produces sound and refreshing sleep. A physician's prescription, it does not contain one harmful drug. Like nothing else, it is a guaranteed cure for sleeplessness, if directions are faithfully followed.
$1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.
WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington, Vt.

"For a long time I was so nervous and worn out that I could not work. I tried many medicines, but none gave me relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound, which at once strengthened and invigorated my nerves."
HARLEY SHERMAN, Burlington, Vt.

Paine's Celery Compound

quickly quiets and strengthens the nerves, when irritated or weakened by overwork, excesses, disease, or shock. It cures nervousness, headache, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, melancholia, and other disorders of the nervous system.

Tones up the Shattered Nerves

"For two years I was a sufferer from nervous debility, and I thank God and the discoverer of the valuable remedy, that Paine's Celery Compound cured me. Let any one write to me for advice." GEORGE W. BOUTON, Stamford, Conn.

DIAMOND DYES Original and only reliable. Beware of poor Imitations. | LACTATED FOOD agrees with Weak Stomachs. Best for Invalids.

TO MAKE —A— Delicious Biscuit
Ask your Grocer for COW BRAND
SODA OR SALERATUS.
Absolutely Pure.

THE BEST
CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....APRIL 20, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 45. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., APRIL 20, 1889. WHOLE NO. 964.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$3 00
Six months	2 00
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

HER ANSWER.

The question long had been upon my lips;
I asked it, trembling to my finger tips;
She did not falter, though her voice was low;
The answer that she made was simply: "No."

She did not look upon me with surprise;
She did not from my glance avert her eyes;
But in her cheeks I saw the roses glow
As she with gentle firmness answered: "No."

She used no trick or artifice with me;
She did not say a sister she would be,
And no confusion did the maiden show
As to my question she responded: "No."

What was my question, reader? Let me tell;
She just had told me that she loved me well;
I asked: "Will you e'r love another so?"
And to this question 'twas she answered: "No."
—Boston Courier.

HE OWNED HIS MASTER.

A Hunting Dog With a Preference For Human Game.

An Editor's Experience—He Thoughtlessly Accepts a Gift and Gets Into Trouble—He Finally Returns It Without Thanks.

Years ago, when I was employed on the Pittsburgh Chronicle, Mr. W. A. Collins, one of the proprietors of the paper, was the editor-in-chief. He was a pleasant, kindly man, with a nervous temperament and poetic tastes, very social and exceedingly fond of hunting. Every autumn he used to go away off to Michigan, Illinois or Missouri on gunning expeditions, accompanied by his father-in-law, an estimable gentleman named Shields, and to both of them the two or three weeks thus annually spent with dog and gun were as an oasis in the desert of life.

One time the chief of police of Cleveland, O., came over to Pittsburgh on some business and by means of a letter of introduction from a mutual friend, formed Mr. Collins' acquaintance. During the three or four days that the official remained in the then "Smoky City," the editor did all that was in his power to render the visitor's stay enjoyable and even merry. A chance remark in conversation, the night before the chief's return to Cleveland, led to a somewhat enthusiastic expression by Mr. Collins of his fondness for the delights of hunting. The Ohio man asked him if he had a good dog. No, Mr. Collins said, he had not been so fortunate as to own a hunting dog for several years, but felt the deprivation less since he had always, during that time, had the privilege of shooting over Mr. Shields' dogs.

"Well," responded the chief, "when I get back to Cleveland I'll send you a hunting dog, one that you won't be likely to trade for any dog of Mr. Shields'."

Mr. Collins, overwhelmed by the generous proposition, hesitated to take advantage of his new friend's liberality, and said that while he would be rejoiced to have a good hunting dog of his own, he could not think of depriving the chief of such a treasure. But the chief said it didn't matter at all; that really he never got any time to go hunting, and, living as he did, the dog was more bother than good, and Mr. Collins might just as well have him. So it was finally settled that the gift would be accepted with pride and pleasure.

About two weeks afterward a man came up into the editorial room one afternoon and demanded:

"Is there any body here named Collins?"

"Yes," answered the editor, looking up from his work; "I'm Collins."

"Well, there's a dog down at the express office for you."

"Ah! Yes, I expected him. A hunting dog. Just bring him up here."

The man looked hard at Collins for a few seconds, and then said:

"You'd better come down and get him yourself, and you'd better come soon before he gets loose and eats somebody up."

"Eats somebody! Why, he's a hunting dog, I tell you, and hunting dogs are not vicious."

"Oh, they ain't? Well, be that as it may, we want to move some of the freight that is built up into a barricade around that hunting dog, and you want to come right down and get him."

"Very extraordinary? The idea of being afraid of a hunting dog! I'll go down with you at once," exclaimed Collins, putting on his hat and starting out with the man.

It didn't seem so extraordinary when he came to look at the dog. The brute was big, of a dirty brown and white color, with a disreputable looking dark patch surrounding one eye. His chest was broad, his forelegs bowed, his eyes bloodshot, his ears cropped short and his tail a stub. From between his long, gleaming fangs rumbled a constant hoarse growl, and he was choking himself with futile efforts to break the inch rope that held him and get at the legs of the awe-stricken men, who stood afar off and stared at him.

"Very strange," mused Collins, thinking aloud. "I never before saw a hunting dog that looked like that or acted so."

"Hunting dog!" sneered one of the expressmen. "He looks to me like a mongrel, with a good deal of bull in him, and too cussed to live."

"Nonsense. The chief of police of Cleveland, who sent him to me, said that he was a magnificent hunting dog. I admit that I don't recognize the strain, but I'm sure he would not have told me what was not true. The poor animal is no doubt nervous and high-strung, and has been excited by travel. He'll be all right when he's soothed and calmed down. Poor doggy, poor doggy—"

The "poor doggy" just missed by an inch seizing the friendly hand outstretched to pat him, and howled with disappointed rage.

In vain Collins offered one, two, three and four dollars to any of the men present who would lead the dog to his house and tie him to the kennel in the back yard, already prepared for his reception, but at five dollars one of them took the job. The fellow who did so went off somewhere and procured a pole with a thing like a big corkscrew in the end of it. Twisting that screw into the ring in the dog's collar, he pinned the brute to the floor until the rope was cast off from the big safe to which it had been tied, and then steered him out into the street, and to his destination, by main strength, holding him away from taking samples from every body in sight. At the kennel he again pinned "poor doggy" down until Collins made the rope fast. Then, standing well beyond reach, he unscrewed his pole from the collar, and said tersely:

"There's your dog," and having received his five dollars, went away. Mr. Collins returned to the editorial room and resumed his work.

In about an hour a panting, perspiring, red-faced and bare-headed servant-girl rushed in, and, as soon as she could get breath enough to speak, reported:

"Oh, Mr. Collins! You've got to come down to the house right away! That dog has bit off the rope and got loose, and he's took the house. Mrs. Collins and the children are treed in a room upstairs. I got into the parlor just in time to save my life, and had to jump out of a window to come here."

Mr. Collins went home in haste. On the way he procured a dog-chain and a big club. He wasn't a big man, but when he was mad he had as much nerve as the dog. He was mad now, and he had the club. The engagement between them was opened the instant that he entered the front door, and only ended when the infuriated beast had been knocked senseless, pounded almost to a jelly, and chained to the kennel. Then Collins put on another suit of clothes—those worn during the proceedings with the dog having been reduced to rags—and went back to his writing, though not in that calm and philosophic frame of mind suited to literary labor.

Half an hour later the servant girl came back. The dog, seeing Mrs. Collins at one of the back windows, had broken his chain and again taken possession of the house. When the girl left the scene of action the children were presumably safe in the street, and Mrs. Collins was standing on the piano in the parlor beating the dog off with a club as he sprang up to seize her.

That time Collins carried back to the house another club and a chain big enough to hold an ox. When he got through reasoning with his hunting dog and had him fastened up again with the new chain, he was in some doubt whether the animal would live until the next morning. Mrs. Collins laid down her platform:

"If he doesn't die of the beating you have given him and you don't get rid of him to-morrow, I shall take the children and go home to father's."

That suggested a happy thought to Mr. Collins. He still clung to the idea that the "nervous, high-strung dog" had been worried by the excitement of travel until he was almost crazy, "and," said he, "Shields', down at Sewickley, is the very place to restore him to a normal condition. The peace and quiet of the farm and the companionship of Mr. Shields' dogs will soothe and calm his perturbed spirit."

So, the next morning, the dog having survived the pounding, and, indeed, seeming none the worse for it, he took the beast down to Sewickley. In doing so he felt encouraged by seeing that the animal's ferocity was already much abated. He did not recognize the fact that it was sheer terror of him that kept the fiend in subjection, and not any true change of heart.

Mr. Shields was a retired lawyer, of cultivated literary taste and large wealth, who had left the turmoil of a busy life to spend the autumn of his days in the tranquil monotony of farming. Outside of his library only two things possessed much interest for him: one, the raising of fine sheep; the other, his annual hunting excursions. He viewed Collins' hunting dog with grave doubt, looked him over—from a respectable distance—in vain for any evidence of either setter or pointer blood, and did not seem impressed by the assurances offered by his son-in-law that "the chief of police of Cleveland said he was all right." Nevertheless he agreed to let the brute stay there to see what effect country air would have on his temper, and Collins came back to the city temporarily happy and free from care.

But at an early hour the next forenoon, Mr. Shields strode into the editorial-room. His face was very pale and he trembled with suppressed passion. For two or three minutes, while struggling to feel that he might speak with calmness, he stood by the end of his son-in-law's desk, glaring at him. Collins, looking up, became white and shivered, for the old man, aside from being his financial backer, was one whom he loved and respected.

"William," said Mr. Shields at length, speaking through his clenched teeth, "your dog got loose last night; he killed my best setter, two valuable ewes and a Cotswold ram that I paid five hundred dollars for. He has vindicated himself as a hunting dog, but I do not approve his style of hunting. You had better come and get him and at the same time effect a compromise, if you can, with what he has left of the hired man, who is annoyed by anticipations of hydrophobia."

Mr. Collins did not often swear, but he could do so when occasion seemed to demand the employment of such a safety-valve for his emotions, and that was one of the occasions.

Low, but fervently, he cursed that hunting dog and the chief of police of Cleveland.

The next train back from Sewickley brought Collins and his dog in the baggage car. At the Pittsburgh depot they stopped. Quite calmed now by a settled resolve for ample revenge, upon the dog at least, the editor penciled upon one of his cards the address: "Chief of Police, Cleveland, O.," and with a bit of string tied the slip of pasteboard to the brute's collar. Then he led the animal to the rear end of the last car in a train just about starting out westward in the direction of Cleveland, and there made him fast to the coupler by means of his strong chain.

The last seen of Collins' hunting dog—as a whole dog—he was taking twenty-foot leaps through the air, over the ties, in the direction of Cleveland. —J. H. Connelly, in Albany Argus.

COURTSHIP IN IRELAND.

Love Before Marriage a Thing Almost Unknown in the Green Isle.

Love before marriage is so very exceptional as to be almost unknown among the farming classes in Ireland. Matches are made and carried out with scarcely a consideration for the two most nearly concerned, very little or no intercourse being considered necessary between the two young people designed for bride and bridegroom until the actual day of marriage. It is not, indeed, at all an unusual thing for the young man and woman to meet for the first time at the chapel gate on the morning that is to make them man and wife. Every thing is arranged by the parents. Their farm is worth so much, therefore the eldest son is worth so much. He will inherit it. The burning question then is to discover some one fit to mate with their son, some one with a "fortune" equal to his. This desirable daughter-in-law once found (be she old or ugly), the matter may be considered arranged. The bridegroom, impressed by the general talk about the bride's "fortune," which always takes precedence of her "looks," falls in with the family view of the affair, and a wedding follows as a matter of course. Providence, seeing all this, has mercifully ordained that most Irish girls should be comely.

The marriage once consummated, the old people give up the reins of government and retire into the chimney corner, leaving the young couple masters of the field. A most unwise arrangement, that generations of fools in their line have not sufficed to wipe out.

Marriages thus completed with all the chilling formulas that mark the alliances of the crowned heads of Europe, are nevertheless in Ireland almost always happy. Rarely do they turn out badly. An unfaithful husband is so scarce a thing that all the countryside would ring with the mention of him should he present himself; an unfaithful wife is almost unknown. Ireland, in spite of her many imperfections, in spite of her unsubduable people who annoy so terribly the decent House of Commons, people who in their native land would be feted by only the lowest and most vulgar class, is the most moral country in the world, and—if I may dare say so in face of all the criminality that has unhappily of late characterized it—the most tender-hearted.

That I should speak so, let you of all and every political opinion forgive me; for I am Irish born, and Ireland I love; and this small, turbulent, lovable, wild, beautiful Ireland is both my greatest grief and my greatest joy!—The Duchess, in N. Y. Graphic.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.

Why It Is Preferable to Gas and Other Every-Day Illuminants.

Electric-lighting, as a means of preserving and promoting health, has not been sufficiently appreciated by the British public. It may be safely said electric light is the only form of artificial illumination which is not injurious to health. This is a strong argument in favor of the general introduction of the electric light; but it is when we begin to compare this light with that of gas, or any other artificial lights, that its beauty, purity, brightness, cleanliness and safety come out in strong contrast.

Gas not only consumes and pollutes the air, but it is very poisonous, besides having a deleterious effect on the furniture and decorations of our homes. Gas gives off a certain amount of soot, which is evident from the blackened ceilings and cornices, discolored wall papers, etc. The destruction to goods in the shops of our great cities from the action of gas must also be very great. In offices, shops and factories employes can use it continuously without feeling the lassitude, headache and fatigue which are frequently caused by the use of gas. As a means of retaining health its advantages are indisputable.

It has been said, with a considerable degree of truth, that every hour a man spends in a room lighted by gas tends to shorten his life and abridge his powers of work. This light is a pure, healthy light, which, if no other light were used, and the smoke of our fires self-consuming would leave our cities almost as fresh and bracing as a Highland hill; and rosy instead of pale cheeks, and brightly-flashing, instead of dim, lusterless eyes, would mark the city inhabitants.—Health.

—What candy is like the foot of a young horse? Coltsfoot.

ANIMALS IN CHINA.

John Worships All Beasts of Burden as Sacred Creatures.

The Chinamen regard the beasts of burden as sacred animals because they occupy the position of men in the labor market. To eat the meat of an ox is deemed sinful, even though these animals should happen to die of old age or overwork. The carcasses are either sold or given away to the poor, so that their owners might not see their desecration by personally devouring them. The mules and the jackasses, as well as the ox, are inseparable companions of the farmer. They usually live in the same building with their masters, but in a separate apartment, which is especially devoted to them.

By long association with these animals their owners can easily understand their animal language. Thus the simple pawing of the hoof means "hay is wanted." The common bray means either "water" or "oats." The loud stamping in the stall means "general starvation," and the following, in Chinese language, is believed to be understood by the beasts: "Woh" means a southern path, "Yee" a northern path; "Heh" means hurry, and "Wee" means slowly.

Strange to say the above words are all understood by animals of long service and the whip is seldom used except upon old, worn-out brutes in the hands of cruel masters. There being no societies among the Chinese for the prevention of cruelty to animals, it is not unusual to find an occasional benevolent and rich individual buying up here and there old beasts of burden, to turn them loose in some garden of his own where they can eat and drink until they die.

The land is so valuable in most of the settled districts of China that hay has to be made out of the stalks of the grain that was raised for man. Cornstalks are cut down the moment the ears of golden corn are plucked, to make food for the animals.

The principal hay-making stalks are the millet, which the animals prefer to any other. The next that comes in for a large share of animal patronage are the stalks and vines of sweet potatoes and green peas. The former are dried into a reddish brown and cut up in two-inch sections, and the latter even finer. The sweet-potato vines are better enjoyed by oxen and cows than by mules or horses. Wheat straw is the principal food for cows and the provender of the other animals is only given them as holiday meals or luxuries, as the mules, jacks and horses will not touch cow food.

Three times a day the horses, mules and jacks are given roasted beans or browned peas, with salt. These are never given raw. Chinese believe these grains in their raw state would make the animals sick. The cheapest grain with which to diet animals are cakes made from yellow beans—the refuse of the oil manufactories. These cakes when fresh from the mills weigh about 150 to 200 pounds each, and owing to the extremely poor pressing machines in the oil factories they retain about 40 per cent. of the oil. Whole families have been known to exist comfortably upon such cakes for months. Green grass, even during the summer months, is seldom given to working animals. It is deemed unhealthy for them, except for cows, which are usually turned loose to feed by the wayside or wherever they can find food. Altogether the life of a Chinese jackass is not a happy one at best, as it is without doubt the hardest worked and the poorest fed animal in the world.—Wong, in N. Y. World.

HEROIC MAGGIE O'FLYNN.

A Pathetic Story of Irish Life and Womanly Charity.

In a cabin on a sunny hillside overlooking the Bay of Dublin dweit a middle-aged brother and sister. The man was a helpless cripple, entirely dependent upon his sister's exertions; and on her death a car was sent from the poor-house to bring him thither for shelter. The poor wretch clung to the only home he had ever known, and he utterly refused to leave it, crying that he would die if deprived of his "say air and shut up within prison walls." His loud lamentations had brought the priest and some of the neighbors to his side, and one of the latter, Maggie O'Flynn, felt a deep impulse of pity towards the unfortunate man. She was a single woman of about fifty-five, of weather-beaten and certainly not attractive appearance. She acted as herd on the estate of a gentleman close by, to whom her services were invaluable. "Hould hard," she said to the poor-house officials; "It's not Maggie O'Flynn that 'ull see a poor craytur taken to the poor-house when she can give him a shelter. It's a corner and a welcome in me own cabin Mick Costilloe shall have." But here his reverence interposed and vowed he would allow no such scandal in the parish as an unmarried man and woman sharing the same dwelling, cripples or no cripples. "Shure, Maggie, you won't go back on your word?" implored poor Mick. Maggie hesitated a moment, then turning to the priest, said: "If there's no other way to save him from 'the house,' your riverince, I'll marry him, an' sorra a haporth will any one be able to say agin it thin." It was in vain that his reverence pointed out the terrible burden Maggie was taking upon herself. "It's for the love of God I'm marryin' him an' not to plase meself," was the answer she returned; "an' sure the Blessed Virgin will niver let me want for the bite an' the sup when she sees me sharin' it with the craythur that has naythur." The marriage took place, and until his death, several years later, the kind-hearted Maggie O'Flynn carefully tended and supported the poor helpless cripple in her own cabin.—Pall Mall Gazette

THE NATION'S EXECUTIVE.

An Explanation of the Rights and Powers of the President.

Perhaps no other feature of the government has provoked such general criticism, or been so widely misrepresented and misunderstood, as has the office of President of the United States. Its creation was the subject of singular comments among those who framed the Constitution; it was violently denounced when that instrument was put before the people for their approval; it has been the target for savage and persistent assault from that time to the present. And in regard to no other feature of the government, it may be added, have the dismal forebodings of skeptics been so strangely disappointed by the results of experience and practice.

In theory, it may be true that, as the making and enforcement of laws is the great function of government, the power that executes the laws should be in perfect harmony with the power that makes them and be directly under its control—the executive being thus simply the arm of the legislature, acting promptly and implicitly in obedience to its supreme will. This idea, though to-day observed in the workings of other governments, was not accepted by our forefathers. In lodging the executive power in the hands of one person, the Constitution aimed to secure energy and precision in the execution of the laws; but in establishing the Presidency as an independent branch of the government, removed as far as possible from the meddlesome influence of Congress, and endowing it with important special powers, it suggested to many timid folk a vision of royalty in its most frightful shape. Nor were these thoughts quieted by events that followed in the history of the government. Indeed, our third President has given it as his opinion that Washington himself believed the Republic would end in something like a monarchy, and that in adopting his stately levees and other pompous ceremonies he sought, in a measure, to prepare the people gradually for the change that seemed possible, in order that it might come with less shock to the public mind. This remarkable statement we need not take without proof. Whatever may have been Washington's secret fears, certain it is that his devotion to the Republic shielded it from such a fate; and had some of his successors in office, or their advisers, been nearly as wise and as true to the spirit of the Constitution, they would have avoided acts which served to strengthen, rather than subdue, the popular distrust.

That the actual power of the President exceeds that of some of the crowned dignitaries of earth is universally conceded. The Constitution did not intend that he should be a mere figurehead, or "ornamental cupola," to the government. It not only confided to him the execution of the laws, but it armed him with a power over the making of laws which he might deem improper. By this, we mean the provision that every measure passed by Congress shall be presented to him for his approval and signature, and that, if disapproved by him, he may return it with his objections, in which case it shall not become law unless again passed by the vote of two-thirds (instead of a majority, as in the first instance) of each House of Congress. Whether this power was given to him solely as a weapon to defend his own office or the integrity of the Constitution itself from attack by Congress, or whether the Constitution designed that he should in this way have a voice in the making of all laws, of whatever nature, is one of the questions still unsettled. The weight of opinion and the practice at the beginning of the government seem to sustain the former view; the strict language of the Constitution is in favor of the latter. The frequent exercise of the power in recent years, in marked contrast with its rare use by earlier Presidents, has aroused harsh feeling on the part of Congress and some very sober thinking on the part of philosophers; it is plain, however, that the present Executive has no doubt upon the subject. The power is certainly monarchical in its nature, and at first sight appears out of place in a Republic where the will of the people, as expressed by their representatives, should be the law. But here comes in the deliberate device of the Constitution. The executive branch of the government was purposely so shaped as to act as a check against rash behavior by the legislative branch. The President is not the arm of Congress; he does not owe his office to that body, nor is he directly responsible to it for his actions. He is elected, as is Congress, by the people; and, like Congress, he is answerable to the people. Unlike a member of Congress, he is chosen not by the people of a particular State or district, but by the people of all the States. He is, therefore, as an individual, the only representative of all the people, and if, in their Constitution, they saw fit to give to him, as their great national representative, this great influence over national legislation—an influence equal to the votes of one-sixth of all the members of Congress—there is nothing in it contrary to the principles of republican government.—Edmund Alton, in St. Nicholas.

—"When a man dies suddenly, without having been attended by a doctor," says a popular guide to the law, "the coroner has to be called in and an inquest held to ascertain the cause of death. But," adds the writer, when he dies after having been attended by a doctor, everybody knows why he died and an inquest is not necessary.—Ontario Observer.

ESQUIMAU ADDITION.

The Clumsy Numerals Used by Dwellers in the Far North.

The ape which (or perhaps whom) Mr. Romanes has succeeded in teaching to count five seems to tread closely on the heels of some of the races of men. In a paper on the Esquimau of Point Barrow, Mr. John Murdoch of the National Museum, said, that, like the rest of those peoples, they ordinarily do not use numbers greater than five, but speak of six and all higher numbers as "many." Their real numbers are one, two, three, four, five, ten (which means the upper part of the body, namely, the number of digits on the upper extremities), fifteen (perhaps), and twenty (which means "a man complete," i. e., all his digits used up). These numbers are almost identical with those used in the other dialects, while the intermediate numbers are quite different, though expressed in a similar manner; that is to say, "so many on the next hand or foot."

With such clumsy numerals, arithmetical processes are practically impossible, though they practice a sort of crude addition, arriving at the number of a large series of objects by grouping them together in fives. In counting, the ordinal numerals are used. This is also the same as in the other dialects.

They originally had no standard of dimensions for space, but of late years have learned to use the fathom in trading for cloth, etc.

Time is measured by the sun and stars. For example, the star Arcturus is the seal-netters' time-piece. When he is in the east, dawn is near, and it is time to stop fishing. The year is divided into four seasons—early winter, winter, early summer and summer.

Nine lunar months are known by name. The rest of the year "there is no moon, only the sun." They begin to count the moons from the early autumn, the time when the women go off into the little tents to work on deer-skins. The first moon—roughly speaking, October—is "the time for working, i. e., sewing;" November, "the second time for sewing;" December, "the time for dancing" (this is the season of the great semi-dramatic festivals); January, "great cold," or "little sun" (in this moon the sun just re-appears at noon); February, "the time for starting" (on the winter deer-hunt); March, "the time for starting home;" April, "the time for making ready the boats" (for whaling); May, "the time for fowling;" and June, "the time for bringing forth young" (when the birds lay eggs).

They clearly distingush "to-day," "yesterday," and "to-morrow;" but "day before yesterday" and "day after to-morrow" are the same; and beyond that, all is "some time ago" or "some time hence" (the same word), till it gets to be "long ago" or "by and by."

Then there are no dates in their past or future, except what has happened or is to happen.—Science.

TRUE ORIGINALITY.

Why It Should Not Hestitate to Profit by the Experience of Others.

It is curious to note how many excellent ideas have failed to bring forth the abundant harvest of good that might have been expected of them simply because they have been urged with more zeal than wisdom, and have been quite divorced from some other ideas which they needed for their full consummation. The excellence of originality, for example, is much and rightly dwelt upon. For a man to be himself, not a servile imitation of some one else, to preserve his individuality intact, to think his own thoughts, to utter his own sentiments, to live his own life, is certainly the noble and manly thing to do. And yet, if he be so possessed with this idea that he neglects to draw upon outside sources for knowledge and inspiration—if he ignores excellencies which he does not possess and disdains to profit by the characters and examples of others—his life will probably be so meager and poor that it will hardly be worth the living. There is nothing in literature more despicable than plagiarism; yet the author who should on this account cease to read, refuse to obtain information from trustworthy sources, and decline to ponder the thoughts of great thinkers, or to observe the style of fine writers, would soon find that his own volumes were deservedly left without readers. New thoughts, ideas, aims, methods, plans are in the air. Whatever is good in them is due from every nation who originates them to every other, from every individual who conceives of them to every other. What folly to reject them because they are not original. The question is not, are they mine or yours or some one else's? Not, are they American or English, French or German, but are they true? Are they good? Are they adapted to our needs? True originality, while nobly living its own life and disdaining to copy that of another, is yet thankful for every influence that helps it to ascend and to expand, just as the healthy plant, while retaining all its individuality, welcomes every sweet influence of gentle breeze, inspiring sun and refreshing rain, and grows stronger and larger, more beautiful and more fragrant, while absorbing them into its own existence.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Lessons of Experience.

Jenks—I made a bet with Miss De Pink last night——

Blinks—Gloves against a necktie, I suppose?

"Y-e-s. How did you know?"

"O, women always bet that way. If they win, they insist that it was a box of gloves they were to have; but if they lose, you get a twenty-five cent necktie."—Philadelphia Record.

SEA WISDOM.

When the wind has died away,
Sinking with the sinking sun;
When the gold haze turns to gray,
And the purple fades to dun,
Lap the low waves of the sea
Through the twilight peace possessed,
Sighing, hushed and drowsily:
"Rest forever—rest, ah, rest!"

Fair witch maidens, long ago,
Hearkening to the same sea speech,
Saw the black ships come and go,
Longed to lure them to the beach;
Wove a song of subtle rhyme,
Calling all things weariest,
Of the burden of old time:
"Rest forever—rest, ah, rest!"

Wisdom doth the hoar sea hold
In its slowly heaving deep;
Knows the rites and runes of old,
Knows the paths beloved of sleep
To the goal desirable
(Boon of all the last and best);
Sings us still the siren spell:
"Rest forever—rest, ah rest!"
—Graham R. Tomson.

Canary and Mirror.

A lady cites the following pretty incident of the pleasure her canary derived from seeing his reflection in a bit of looking glass:

Some time ago I purchased a canary at a bird store. The little creature was thus accustomed to companionship of its kind. At my home it was alone.

The pretty little songster was evidently homesick. It would not sing, it would not eat, but just drooped and pined. I talked to it, chirped to it, and tried my best to cheer birdie up in vain.

I was on the point of returning the canary to the bird store, when a friend said, "Give him a piece of looking glass." I did so. I put a piece of broken mirror as large as my two hands outside the bird's cage, and fastened it there.

He hopped down from his perch almost immediately, and going up close looked in, seeming delighted. He chirped and hopped about, singing and putting on all the pretty airs he was master of.

He was not homesick at all after that. He spends much of his time before the glass, and when he goes to sleep at night he will cuddle down as close to the glass as he can, very likely thinking he is getting near to that pretty bird he sees in the mirror.

I often let him out into the room where he can have more liberty. If I put that bit of glass anywhere in the room he will find it, and spend most of his time before it, and he sings his sweetest songs to his own beautiful reflection.—Youth's Companion.

Robert Burton.

One of the most interesting remains of English literature in the Seventeenth century is the "Anatomy of Melancholy," written by Robert Burton, who was interred in Christ Church cathedral, Oxford, on the 27th of January, 1639. This book was his sole production, and it passed through eight editions up to 1676, after which it fell into neglect. In the next century it was brought into notice by Dr. Samuel Johnson's remark that it was the only book that took him out of bed two hours sooner than he wished to rise. Sterne was largely indebted to Burton, and many other authors have been poachers on the same preserve. The latest edition of Burton's work was published in 1849 in an 8vo, with notes in which the quotations were translated, explained and referred to the respective authors from whom they were derived. Burton was a mathematician and a curious calculator of nativities. He died at very near the time which he had some years before foretold from the calculation of his own nativity, and which being exact, several of the university students whispered among themselves that, rather than that there should be a mistake in the calculation, he sent up his soul to heaven through a slip about his neck.—Philadelphia Times.

A Story of Carlyle.

I met Carlyle once—the man who enriched the language by the word "gigmanity." He was strolling along Cheyne walk, where his home was in Chelsea, and a small boy running across the pavement before him tripped and fell, crying, in the philosopher's way. Instead of taking compassion upon the poor little fellow, Carlyle struck him with his stick. At that I, who had been doing a bit of quiet hero worship, could not contain myself, and burst out: "Sir, I have read your 'Tailor Retailed' and was about to begin on your 'French Revolution,' but no man who can find it in his heart to cane an unoffending child can write books that it's worth my while to read." Carlyle didn't care, I suppose, but there was a certain amount of satisfaction to me in freeing my mind.—San Francisco Weekly.

A Huge Glass Furnace.

The tank glass furnace plant of the Chambers-McKee company in Pittsburg is the first of its kind in this country, the idea coming from Europe. The tanks, however, are bigger than anything attempted in European glass houses, there being four of these receptacles for molten glass, each capable of containing 250 to 300 tons of metal and supplying seventy-two blowers. The fire clay of which these furnaces were constructed had to be brought from Germany.—New York World.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip,
(Poisonous.)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2-pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7-pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.
CATTON, BELL & CO.
SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.
Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY APRIL 20.....1889

When Congress makes any appropriation of money for public improvements there never fails to be parties who try to have the money used for the benefit of private interests. Congress recently appropriated $250,000 to be expended by the Geological Survey in investigating the feasibility of irrigating the arid lands of the country by means of immense reservoirs to be erected in the mountains adjacent to the lands. Now strenuous efforts are being made to have this large appropriation used for the benefit of railroad corporations by confining the investigation to their land grants. There can be no doubt that when the appropriation was made it was the intention of Congress to improve Government land so that it could be made fit for settlement. Land owned by corporations should be improved by the owners, just as land owned by private persons is improved. The people should no more be taxed to increase the wealth of a company than to increase that of an individual. Railroad companies would think it a monstrous proposition if they were asked to spend money directly for the improvement of public lands; it is no better to ask the public to spend money for the improvement of land granted to railroads. In the Mojave desert; in the valleys of Inyo county; in Mono county; in the vast region east of the Sierras still farther north, are millions of acres of Government land that may be made fit for settlement by building reservoirs; and it is for the improvement of such land, and not for railroad lands, that the public money should be spent.

Several important bills passed at the late session of the Legislature are likely to be inoperative through negligence or ignorance on the part of the framers. For this the whole body of Legislators is blamed and a hue and cry goes up against them as being a lot of ignoramuses. Now it ought to be kept in mind that every one of these bills was reftrred to the Judiciary Committee of each House, and that each Committee consists of over a dozen lawyers. These Committees are supposed to examine carefully every bill that is referred to them and to correct any errors of structure that may be discovered, as well as to note whether or not the bills are in conflict with the Constitution. Having examined these bills the Committees return them to the Senate and Assembly and report for or against their passage. Members of either House who are not lawyers must trust to these Committees as to the bills being in proper form for passage, and if the bills are defective it is not the fault of the general body of Legislators, but of the Judiciary Committees, who are supposed to be lawyers and able to determine whether or not a bill is in proper form. There would be much less blundering in Legislation if, instead of referring bills to a Judiciary Committee, each House had the assistance of a few able lawyers hired to examine all bills and put them in legal form for passage. Under the present system—or lack of system—at every session of the Legislature gross blunders are made in framing bills of importance and damage to public interests is done to an extent that vastly outweighs any cost that would be incurred to have such legal assistance as would prevent such blundering.

Enterprising men invested money and built reduction works at Reno. A large item of the necessary expense was the cost of a dam in the Truckee river to furnish water power for the works. The officers of the Nevada State Insane Asylum made a ditch and took water out of the pond made by this dam, thereby reducing the necessary power for the reduction works. A suit was brought to test the right of the Asylum officers to do this. The Supreme Court has decided against the reduction works. This may be good law but it surely is very poor policy. No State in the Union has greater need for the building up of manufactures than Nevada; but money will not be invested where rights to water power are not respected.

The traveling show of California has been so successful in the East that an extension of time has been decided upon. The original trip was for only three months, then an extension of three months was agreed upon, and now it is possible that the cars may not return here until a year has elapsed from the time of their departure.

The Coral Islands.

It has long been the opinion of geologists that the curious atolls of the Pacific and Indian oceans, the circular coral islands, inclosing a shallow basin of the sea, were to be explained as was first suggested by the late Charles Darwin, through the long continued subsidence of the sea floor on which they rested. The idea was that the coral first found foothold around the shores of a volcanic or other mountain peak projecting above the sea. It was further supposed that the subsidence of the ocean floor gradually lowered the original island below the level of the sea, while the coral reef, growing steadfastly upward, remained after the mountain had disappeared to mark its original site.

Alexander Agassiz and John Murray have recently held to the doctrine that the greater part of our atolls at least are not thus formed, and that the central cup of the atoll is not due to the fact that it occupies the position of a subsiding mountain, but that it is brought about by a process of solution by which the coral rocks are dissolved away.

Dr. H. B. Guppy, a competent observer, has, during a recent sojourn on the Keeling atoll in the Indian ocean, been enabled to confirm the opinions of Messrs. Murray and Agassiz. It therefore seems probable that wherever coral reefs attain the surface of the sea the circular basin will naturally be formed, and that if Mr. Darwin's explanation has any truth in it, it is to be accepted only in rare and, as yet, unascertained cases. —Boston Herald.

The Young Folks' Friend.

A pleasant faced old gentleman, who looks as if he had forgotten as much as some people know about editing newspapers, comes over from the peaceful shades of Newark now and then to mingle in the busy metropolitan whirl of which he was once an important figure. He is Noah Brooks, long time an editor of the Tribune, a conspicuous journalist in San Francisco during vigilante times and one of the most popular writers for children who wield quills today. Mr. Brooks is a tall, well built man; his white hair has thinned out on top, his eyes keep their light, and his short, white side whiskers and mustache give him a venerable appearance. He is well over sixty and carries his age "like a major." As editor of The Newark Advertiser Mr. Brooks continues the active intellectual work which has characterized his life. He has given that journal—one of the oldest in the country, by the way—a standing it was unlikely to get otherwise. Besides, in St. Nicholas and such periodicals, where one looks for the lighter touch and the finer fancies, his name is always welcome, not only to the editors, but to hundreds of the little ones who have learned to look forward with eagerness to his stories for children.—New York World.

Water Tight Match Box Wanted.

Bishop, who made a thousand mile voyage in a paper canoe, says that R. B. Forbes, of Boston, once gave him a water tight pocket match box, that he lost it, and was never able to find another. Thousands of hunters, canoeists, and others have hunted and longed for a match box that would be water tight—one that would preserve its contents dry even though the owner was compelled to take a swim with the box in the pocket of his pants, and the pants on the swimmer. An upset in the wilderness or on the coast, away from dwellings, often destroys every match a man has with him, and places him in a position of great danger.

Though match boxes are made in innumerable styles, we have never been able to find one which was suitable for carrying matches in the pocket and would at the same time protect them from water. There are some difficulties in the way of inventing such an article, because when carried in the pocket the air within the box is rarefied by the heat of the body. When the box is plunged into cold water a partial vacuum is formed, and this aids in forcing water through the joints.—Scientific American.

Napoleon.

The duke said: "After the retreat of Bonaparte from Leipsic, he never, in fact, had any hope of getting over his bad fortune. Mole, then minister of war, told me that shortly after Napoleon's return at that time to Paris he was playing at billiards with him when he became thoughtful and, laying down his cue, began talking to him of the impossibility of ever reviving the spirit of the nation sufficiently to expel the northern powers. Had these reverses, he said, occurred in the first days of the republic, there would have been a freshness of spirit that might have saved the game, but that spirit was how worn out and never could again be expected to revive. Yet, with this depressing conviction upon his mind, he went through his wonderful campaign of Champagne with an activity perhaps unparalleled in his former wars." The duke's invariable comment on Napoleon was: "He was not a gentleman."—Personal Recollections of Lady de Ros in Murray's Magazine.

Two Smart Maine Women.

Two spinster sisters up in Maine who run a sixty-five acre farm, are credited with being the smartest women in the state. One of them chops every winter the year's supply of fire wood, going into the woods early in the season and remaining until the work is completed. She works in the hayfield in summer and digs from seventy to one hundred bushels of potatoes yearly and puts them in the cellar. The other sister is the carpenter of the family and has added all manner of improvements to the farm.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A white tongue is said to denote a febrile disturbance; a brown, moist tongue, indigestion; a brown, dry tongue, depression, blood poisoning, typhoid fever; a red, moist tongue, inflammatory fever; a red, glazed tongue, general fever, loss of digestion; a tremulous, moist and flabby tongue, feebleness, nervousness.

A Chicago Millionaire.

Potter Palmer, the Chicago millionaire, earned his first salary as a clerk in a little country store in a Pennsylvania village. He made his money by judicious investments in real estate in Chicago, and though he lost $2,500,000 in the great Chicago fire and had to borrow on mortgages $1,500,000 to retrieve himself, he is again on top, with several spare millions to push his schemes along.—New York Telegram.

A Tenacious Memory.

Up in North Georgia some years ago there was a young farmer who was as poor as Job's turkey. He was very ignorant, and did not even know his letters. One day a tourist paused to rest under a tree where the farmer was eating dinner and recited a pretty poem. The young man was pleased with it, and the stranger gave him a written copy. But it was useless to a man who could not read, and the traveler had to go over it with his finger, pointing out each word and letter. After his friend left, the countryman went home and took his first writing lesson from the written poem. One letter was missing—the letter Z. The next day he walked five miles to see a neighbor who showed him how to make it, and then he was master of the alphabet. He got a spelling book and a reader, and studied them by a pine knot fire. Two years later he visited Mercer university, at Penfield, during vacation time, and the professors showed him through the building. "He questioned me for an hour," said the professor of chemistry, "and went away knowing more about the science than some young men who have studied it two terms." "And I talked with him an hour," said the professor of English literature, "and he extracted from me enough information to fill a volume." The young fellow had a wonderful memory. It stuck to everything. He entered the university and became noted for his strong, clear style and his varied attainments.—Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

Must Have Thought Her Funny.

A Bangor man has a bright little niece, over whose head but a few years have rolled, and who when saying her prayers the other night repeated a line in the Lord's Prayer, "Harrowed be thy name." The little one was kneeling by her mother's knee, and the latter said:

"Why, darling, you don't mean 'harrowed.' Harrowed means broken up and they 'harrow ground.' You should say: 'Hallowed be thy name.' Hallowed means holy." The little girl thought for a moment and then her face brightened and she said with a smile: "Well, mamma, the Lord must think I'm awful funny, for I've said 'harrowed' for ever so long."—Portland Argus.

"Shoot the Lion."

A minister once announced as his text: "The slothful man saith, there is a lion in the way." As he paused he heard a lad in the gallery whisper: "Shoot the lion." With ready wit he turned to the boy and said: "You have given in three words the sum of my sermon, and that all may remember, I will repeat your summary." Then turning to the congregation he said: "The slothful man saith there is a lion in the way." After a pause he went on: "My young friend in the gallery says, 'Shoot the lion.' this is the exact thing to do. Let us pray."—St. Louis Republic.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer In GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c

Postmaster and Deputy Co Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.
All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.
JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

BUDDING GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING

Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.
CHAS. F. CUSACK,
j 12-tf Independence, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the
KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH
Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

PROPOSALS FOR BOARDING INYO COUNTY PRISONERS.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, at the office of the County Clerk until Tuesday, May 7, 1889, at 12 o'clock M., for the boarding of Inyo county prisoners, for the term of one year, beginning May 10th 1889 and ending May 10th, 1890, said bids to designate the price per diem for each prisoner, and said board to be paid for by warrants drawn upon the General Expense Fund, upon bills duly verified and presented at the regular meetings of said board of Supervisors.

Proposals must be endorsed "Proposals for Boarding County Prisoners," and the same will be opened between the hours of one o'clock and four o'clock P. M. on said 7th day of May, 1887, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. P. H. MACK,
Clerk.

Proposals for Care of Indigent Sick of Inyo County.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, at the office of the County Clerk until 12 o'clock M., on Tuesday, May 7th, 1889, to contract for the care of said indigent sick for the term of one year from May 10th 1889 to May 10th, 1890, said bids to designate the amount for which parties contracting will care for said indigent sick on the basis of an average of four patients per day throughout the year, and to include all medicine, nursing, board, lodging and washing. Said bids to include the burial and funeral expenses of any indigent sick person or persons who may die while under such care.

Said contractor to care for all the indigent sick properly admitted to the contractor's care. And said bids to designate the price per head at which all excess of patients over the average of four each day throughout the year will be cared for, said excess to be paid for by extra allowance on presentation of bills duly sworn to, at the regular meeting of said Board immediately after said contract has expired. The average four per day to be paid for at the regular meetings of the Board on presentation of bills duly verified. All payments to be made by warrants drawn upon the Hospital Fund of said county.

The person or persons to whom said contract shall be awarded shall give a good and sufficient bond in double the sum of the contract price, for the faithful performance of said contract

The care and management of said indigent sick by such contractor shall be at all times subject to the inspection of said Board of Supervisors, or any member thereof, or any person appointed by the Board for such purpose.

Said proposals must be endorsed, "Proposals for Care of Indigent Sick," and the same will be opened between the hours of one o'clock and four o'clock P. M., on the said 7th day of May, 1889, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. P. H. MACK,
Clerk.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.
D. CROUGH, R. S. B. RHINE, N. G.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

Business for Sale.
A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL,
Bishop Creek.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.
Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.
A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.
TRADE MARKS.
In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & CO., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.
COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address
MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors,
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City.
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Notice for Proposals

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance or an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on the 6th day of February, 1889, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed plans and specifications for a proposed new bridge across Owens River, to be erected on or near the site of Big Pine bridge, up to 12 o'clock M., May 7th, 1889.

The same will be opened between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day.

Said plans and specifications must be endorsed: "Plans and specifications for bridge across Owens River on or near the site of Big Pine bridge."

The right is reserved to reject any and all plans and specifications. P. H. MACK,
Clerk of Board of Supervisors.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - - Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.
FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Free Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones Monuments,
Italian and American
Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from sticking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.
CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED
About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to
JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE
GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale
Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
sept1-tf CROCKER BROS., Props.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
C. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.
Horseshoeing .....$2 50 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. L. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Deep SEA WONDERS exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallet and Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day. All succeed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Tuesday, April 1t0h, 1888.

STATIONS.		From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
		Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....		9:15 a. m		5 35 p. m.
Layton		10 45 a. m.		4 35 p. m,
Wabuska		12:45 a. m.		2 25 p. m.
Hawthorne		4 30 p. m.		10 40 a. m.
Luning		5:50 p. m.		9:20 a. m.
Sodа Springs.....		7:00 p m.		8:10 a. m.
Belleville.....		8:10 p. m.		7:05 a. m.
Candelaria.....	Ar.	8:50 p. m	Lv.	6:30 a. m.
		No. 3. Leave—		No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville.....		7 30 a. m.		5:25 p. m.
Benton		11:00 a m		1:45 p. m.
Bishop Creek		1:10p. m.		11:30 a. m.
Alvord.....		2.00 p. m		10.35 a. m.
Independence.....		3:30 p. m.		9:05 a. m.
Lone Pine.....		4:15p. m.		8:15 a. m.
Keeler.....	Ar	5:05 p. m.	Lv.	7:30 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R. which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles), Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Adda Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
Customers supplied on all points
Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law,
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed
Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, APRIL 20.... 1889

Mr. V. G. Thompson has returned to Mojave.

Mr. P. LaBarge came up from Lone Pine last Wednesday.

There is talk or organizing a Parlor of N. S. G. W. at Bishop.

Miss Sarah James has gone to Virginia City on a visit to her aunt.

Lone Pine has a good, live Sunday school and interest in it is increasing.

Mrs. Jane Gilbert, of Bodie, has been granted a divorce from her husband, James Gilbert.

The winter term of the Georges Creek public school closed last week; A. E. Janvier, teacher.

California's wheat crop this year is estimated at 2,000,000 tons, or double the product of 1888.

Gus. McGovern is on his way to Mojave with a big team for a load of merchandise for parties at Bishop.

Mr. McIver expects to make a small lot of raisins next fall, the first along the line of the Eastside canal.

Mrs. I. J. Woodin is planting about thirty acres with raisin grapes on a tract of land under the Eastside canal.

Messrs. S. G. Gregg and Frank Chess came down from Big Pine last Wednesday and remained in town a day or two.

Mr. S. H. Bigland went north last Thursday morning on his way to San Francisco. He expects to return in about a month.

Mr. A. C. Harvey, of Lone Pine, has gone to Los Angeles He hopes to get parties there interested in boring for artesian water.

Around Lone Pine is excellent promise of a fine fruit crop. The peach orchard belonging to A. C. Harvey looks particuly well.

The Supervisors of Mono county have by ordinance reduced the sheep license tax to five cents per head, and the cattle license to fifteen cents per head.

Mr. John White, of San Francisco, has sent some choice varieties of figs to be set out on his ground on the Eastside. For forty plants he paid one hundred and fifty dollars.

Religious services will be held at Lone Pine next Sunday at 10:30 a. m.. Sunday school at 11:30. Preaching at Independence at 7 o'clock p. m. Sunday school at 11 o'clock a. m.

The orange business of the State has already grown to immense proportions. The Los Angeles Times says: "Forty-two cars containing 943,000 pounds of oranges, in three trains, destined for Eastern points by way of Ogden, passed through Mojave one day last week."

Certain parties at Bodie induced a doctor named Lee to go there and seek the appointment as County Physician. The Supervisors appointed him but he was so disappointed with the place that he refused to qualify for the position and left next day in disgust to return to San Francisco.

It is alleged that wheat can be grown in the Sacramento Valley and delivered alongside of ships in San Francisco Bay at half a cent a pound. To accomplish this all the latest improvements in farming implements and farming methods, and all the best machinery for preparing and moving the grain must be used.

At the meeting of the Fair Directors held last Saturday a committee was appointed to confer with Mr. E. Robinson about building a new race track at Independence. Mr. Robinson has always been exceedingly liberal in his dealings with the Association, and it is very likely that we will have a much better track and in a more desirable location than the old track.

Jack Welch and Arlie Mairs came in from Fish Springs last Wednesday. They have been mining there all winter and have a fine lot of ore ready for working by arastra. The ore at Fish Springs always pays well, though a good deal of gold is lost because there is no way of working the sulphurets, of which the ore carries a great deal.

Last Saturday young Ed. Crocker and some other young men were playing a kind of leap frog game at Big Pine. One of the party stood up while the others jumped over him and a post that stood in front of him. Ed. was jumping and fell on top of the post, hurting himself very severely. The injury is internal and may prove very serious.

Mr. W. M. Fitzhugh, a civil engineer' was brought here by Mr. Bigland to examine the water supply of the valley. Like all other strangers who have been here Mr. Fitzhugh says the water supply of Owens Valley is vastly greater than he expected to find it, and the whole valley better than had been represented to him. He expects to return here soon.

Liberal purses will be offered for races at the Nevada Fair, to be held at Reno next Fall. The trots include a $1,500 free for all, a $1,200 purse for the 2:20 class, and an $800 purse for the 2:27 class. The purse for the free for all pacing race was made $1,000, and for the 2:20 pacing class $800. No races were made exclusively for District horses. It is believed that the purses will attract the best horses on the Coast to the Fair.

Last year the Southern Pacific railroad carried to Los Angeles one hundred and thirty-five tons of poultry and five hundred and twenty-five tons of eggs. It is estimated that other railroads carried as much more of these articles into the city. These statements will give some idea of the business that will be done in Owens Valley when we can reach Los Angeles by rail. No other region could compete with us in the Los Angeles market.

Reduced Passenger Rates.

CARSON, NEV., April 8, 1889.

ED. INDEPENDENT: Dear Sir:—I beg to inform you that on and after April 11th we will be prepared to furnish from Owens Valley Stations tickets limited to five (5) days at special rates as follows: To San Francisco, $25.05; Oakland, $25.05; San Jose, $25.05; Stockton, $23.75; Marysville, $22.55; Sacramento, $22.05. Tickets not limited will be sold at same rates as heretofore.

D. A. BENDER,
G. F. & P. A.

The Utah Central.

The extension of the Utah Central Railroad to tidewater would indirectly benefit Inyo county and the prospect is good for said extension. The Los Angeles Herald says: "Chief Engineer Marcus Smith, who helped locate the present Union Pacific Railroad, and who will have charge of extending the Utah Central, says that by the end of 1991 it will be in operation to tidewater at San Pedro. It is very likely that Mr. Smith speaks by the card, for the Directors of the Utah Central, on the 28th of last month, voted in favor of the immediate extension of the road from Milford to Pioche, a distance of one hundred miles and it will be operating to the latter place before the present year. The President of the road has given assurances that the company will build branches and side tracks to any mining district along the line that gives promise of business. As this road will really be the nearest outlet for a great series of mining districts that are now dormant for the want of transportation, Los Angeles will find herself, on its completion the most favorably situated city in the United States for the establishment of extensive and profitable separating and refining works. The assurances of Mr. Smith and the action of the Directors of the Utah Central leave no doubt that the Union Pacific has determined to reach tidewater at San Pedro. The Utah Central belongs to the Union Pacific, and the purchase of Rattlesnake Island by parties representing the U. P. shows conclusively that San Pedro is the objective point of the extension. So well assured are leading mining capitalists that this extension will be carried out soon that they have sent mining experts into the various districts along the route to examine the ledges and buy up the claims. This is the forerunner of a very extensive and permanent mining revival in Southern Nevada and the whole back mineral country of Southern California. A very large share of the profits to be derived from the opening of this rich extent of country will come to Los Angeles, if our merchants and capitalists will exhibit energy, foresight and nerve.

Railroad Extension.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held last week at Los Angeles at which matters of interest to the Southern part of the State were discussed. The Herald says: "The President of the Chamber reported in an informal manner of the work done by the Chamber during the last three months. He told at some length of the work done by Mr. Mulholland in agitating the question of the extension of the Carson & Colorado road. The Chamber had conferred with Mr. Yerington, the President of the road, and had gained from him the concession that the Directors should take the matter into active consideration." The Tribune says: "Major Jones called the meeting to order, and read a resumé of the work of the Chamber during the past month. He referred to the Chamber's efforts to aid in the building of the Carson & Colorado road from Keeler to Mojave. Mr. Mulholland's efforts to promote the interests of Inyo county were highly spoken of." The report of the Secretary showed that during the year of 1888 the city had received 378-629 tons of building material. This does not include lumber, but nearly all stone and brick. If the railroad were extended from Keeler to Mojave this vast weight of material would be exceeded by the quantity of marble that would be shipped over it; and at five dollars per ton freight revenue to the railroad would be at least one and three-quarter million dollars.

Director's Meeting

The Directors of the 18th District Agricultural Association met at Independence last Saturday, present; A. R. Conklin, President; John S. Gorman, W. K. Miller, John Shepherd, W. Walker, W. S. Enos and J. C. Irwin, the latter as proxy for N. Rhine.

A. R. Conklin Esq. was re-elected to serve as President during the current year.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Various bills were presented, examined, approved and ordered paid.

A motion was made to amend the constitution of the Association by striking out the words "at the town of Independence." [This is the clause that determines where the fair shall be held from year to year.] After considerable debate the motion to amend was lost.

It was decided to hold the next annual fair on the 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th of October.

A committee to prepare a premium list was adpointed as follows: A. R. Conklin, W. S. Enos, John Shepherd, W. K. Miller and J. S. Gorman, the committee to report at a meeting of the Board to be held on June 11th next.

By unanimous vote of the Board of Directors certificates of life membership in the Association were awarded to Hon. Cyrus Coleman and Thomas Kehoe.

Whereupon the Board adjourned until June 11th.

A Good Property.

The man who puts his farm in a high state of cultivation and has everything about it neat and orderly, benefits his neighbors as well as himself. Mr. John Lucas, at Lone Pine has his farm in such condition as does credit to himself, and when seen by strangers will increase the value of all the property around him. Fences are strong and straight and no wide margins of weeds and rubbish lie along them. The fields are thoroughly tilled and now look lovely with crops of grain and alfalfa. Mr. Lucas devotes much attention to breeding horses and now has thirteen as handsome colts as there can be found in Inyo county. He is equally careful with cows and has a lot of very fine calves, a number of them being twins. All the animals, horses, colts, cows and calves, are so gentle that a stranger may go among them in the fields and they will come to be be petted and rubbed. Mr. Lucas never has to say, "There is no market;" he can always get fair prices for everything he has to sell.

Met With Success.

LOS ANGELES, April 13, 1889.

MR. C. MULHOLLAND. Dear Sir:—Your kind favor of the 8th inst. reached us in due time and it affords us much pleasure to say that our agent was (considering that it was first venture in your country) successful. The merchants generally treated him liberally, and he was favored with quite an amount of business. It is our intention to visit Inyo county regularly, and we trust with what efforts the people throughout that part of the country will make, added to ours, some lasting good results will follow. We shall leave no stone unturned, and while, perhaps, at first sailing will be a little difficult, we certainly hope that our good intentions will be crowned with success. Hoping to hear from you from time to time, which favors will always receive our undivided attention, we remain,

Very truly yours,
M. A. NEWMARK & Co.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

TUESDAY, April 16th.

Maria Hoffman vs. Cornelius L. Hoffman—Suit for divorce. Complaint filed and summons issued.

Estate of Edward A. Gifford, deceased. Final account of Administrator filed and petition for distribution. April 27th fixed for hearing the same. Austin Wheeler, Administrator.

Trouble At Bishop.

There is trouble at Bishop about water. The Hillside Company is daming lakes to make reservoirs for storing surplus water. This spring they have been planting large quantities of grape vines and, it is alleged, have been taking water out of Bishop Creek for irrigation. The older settlers claim that at this season the stream is low and will not supply more water than they need till later in the season, when the snow melts on the mountains. The settlers went and closed the ditches made by the Company and declare that they will not allow water to be taken from the stream until their own wants are supplied. The Company alleges that they are not taking water to the injury of the settlers. It is probable that the Courts will have to decide between the settlers and the Company. It is a hardship upon the settlers that they should be forced into the trouble and expense of a lawsuit to defend their rights; but if an agreement cannot be made between the parties interested, or by arbitration, then they had better let the Courts decide the matter once for all. Violence would not settle anything and would only increase the expense and trouble.

COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED.

One who thoroughly understands the causes of the water trouble says that all the difficulty could have been avoided by an arrangement that the settlers were willing to enter into. The plan proposed was for the Hillside Company to aid in extending and enlarging the Bishop Creek Canal from Owens River. This would have given plenty of water for nearly all the land owned by the settlers; and they would have been willing to accept a properly guaranteed right to this water in exchange for their interests in Bishop Creek. Then the Hillside Company could have had all the water they need from the creek. If the facts are as stated this would have been by far the best plan that could be adopted. Should the dispute between the settlers and the Company go on expensive lawsuits will be the result, and more money will be squandered than would have put the canal in condition to carry all the water wanted, and to have secured peace and harmony among the parties interested. It is very gratifying to note that there is no disposition to resort to violence, but that both parties to the dispute are willing to let the right be established by law. This is creditable to the people Bishop and neighborhood.

A Welcome Change.

The lessee of the Maxim property is making a very important move. One great drawback to gold mining in this locality has been caused by want of any means for extracting gold from sulphurets; and as the ore carries a good deal of this, the loss in working has been very heavy. Now this trouble will be remedied; a dry-kiln is being built at the Maxim mill to dry the tailings, and concentrators are being put in. The machine chosen is a late invention claimed to be much superior to anything yet in use; it is called the "Victor," and the inventor, Mr. S. W. Shaw, will be here in a few days to put the machinery in operation. The lessee expects to have the machinery running by the 1st of May. All along the Inyo and Sierra mountains in Owens Valley miners are working small claims that are rich in gold; but in all of these the loss by sulphurets is heavy. The lessee will work all such ores at the lowest possible cost to the miners and his enterprise will therefore prove a benefit to all and will lead to the working of many more claims. In the past every enterprise started in the Valley that promised to be of public benefit has had the life crushed out of it by grasping greed and extortion; the lessee is free to do as he pleases and will pursue a more intelligent and liberal policy, doing good to his neighbors as well as himself.

Successful Prospectors.

A few weeks ago a party of mining prospectors came from Pasadena to Owens Val. The party consists of Fred Burnham, Howard Burnham and Jack Gesford; they crossed over the Inyo mountains into Saline Valley and went to prospecting. Last Thursday Howard Burnham came to Independence for supplies; he says that up Marble Canyon, about three miles from the Waucoba road, they have struck what appears to be a big mine. The ledge is at least twenty feet wide, carrying galena ore; the ore is rich in silver and lead. The mine is easy of access and the ore can be got to the railroad at moderate expense. There are not wanting other indications that we are on the eve of a big revival of mining interests in Inyo county. No other part of the State offers such promising fields for prospecting as does Inyo county. These prospectors are a good deal elated over their success so far. Several specimens of the ore brought to Independence look very well indeed.

Eastside.

There is not help enough to be had for planting grape vines along the Eastside canal. Mr. McIver wants to plant eighty acres; he has the cuttings—seedless sultanas, muscatel and flaming tokay—but is forced to put most of them in a nursery for want of help to plant a vineyard.

Doctor Lee, of Carson, will begin work next fall on an extensive scale preparing ground for a large vineyard.

Doctor Bishop has a large tract cleared and is seeding for a general crop this season.

The canal will already supply water for several thousand acres. Next spring there will be work going on under the canal for a distance of about twenty miles.

Last Saturday Mr. McIver moved his camp farther south. Fifteen miles of the canal is now built and water running in it.

A Valuable Mine.

The mill at Beveridge has been started up on a run of ore from the Keynot mine. The old Keynot never fails to respond with a lot of good ore when touched with the pick of the miner. There is a great deal of virgin ground in the mine that could be reached by a moderate outlay of money. Near the mouth of the tunnel is an almost sheer precipice of about four hundred feet; a tunnel run from this would tap the ledge and beyond doubt would open up a large body of ore. Here is a good opportunity for an enterprising miner with some money. The Keynot never has been worked for all that was in it; when the parties who control it want a few thousand dollars they go and take out a little dab of ore, mill it and get their money. If opened up properly the mine would develop into a valuable property.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken acceptible to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax-Collector.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL)

P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o 51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE undersigned, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,
Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.

Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated March 20th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,
Administrator of the estate of John B. White, deceased.

A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1819 1889

I. O. O. F.

—THE—

70th Anniversary

Celebration

—OF THE—

Independent Order

—OF—

-:ODD FELLOWS:-

—AT—

INDEPENDENCE

Friday, Apr. 26, 1889

—UNDER THE AUSPICES OF—

Inyo Lodge No. 301

—AND—

Bishop Lodge No. 332

PARADE! ORATION! BALL!

Orator.....P. W. FORBES, ESQ.

President of the Day..E. ROBINSON

—INVITATION COMMITTEE—

ROUND VALLEY—C. F. Wildassinn, H. Evans.

BISHOP—I. P. Yaney, Wm. J. Dunn, J. L. Bourland, J. H. Bulpitt, Andrew Dell, Wm. McDonald.

LAWS—F. K. Andrews,

BIG PINE—S. G. Gregg, L. M. Newman.

FISH SPRINGS—N. E. Conklin, J. Shoemaker.

INDEPENDENCE—J. D. Blair, D. Crough, J. R. Eldred, J. Alexander, A. Stecker.

GEORGES CREEK—J. E. Shepherd, H. J. Robinson.

LONE PINE—R. C. Spear, S. Decker, John Anton.

KEELER—T. C. Boland, B. F. Gray, C. J. Schalten, S. Levy.

DARWIN—Geo. Lewis, P. Clinton, A. G. McGovern

LOOKOUT—J. D Channell.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

A. R. Conklin, W. W. Woodruff, P. H. Mack, Wells Barnes, Henry Thomsen.

FLOOR MANAGERS.

Bertrand Rhine, P. P. Keough.

FLOOR COMMITTER.

J. W. Murphy, C. W. Craig, J. E. Shepherd, N. E. Conklin.

BALL TICKETS, $3.00

Supper at the Norman House.

EVERYBODY WELCOME.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnishee in a style second to no one on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 256 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S

Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,

Independence, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

500 Sewing-Machines FREE

To at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who may call at your home, and after 3 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out; before patents run out it sold for $50, with the attachments, and now sells for $50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the great line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

Pioneer

Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Wheeler & Wilson

Sewing Machine.

New No. 8.

"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.

Old Machines Exchanged for.

Farm Produce Taken in Payment.

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND, Agent.

Independence, Cal.

EDWARD CHENOT,

Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO Extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDIS

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,

PROVISIONS

Tobacco, Cigars,

WINES AND LIQUORS

FLOUR & GRAI

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.

Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n476tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths

AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS

SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.

And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing

When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,

—And a large—

SWIMMING : BATH

Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,

—AND—

Board by the Day, Week, or the Month

MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pro

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing

Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH S ORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S STORE IS The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,

NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sep1-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00

REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00

Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to

HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Sweetlife, Mo., writes: "I read up and admire that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm will, less than 1-5 saves in cultivation. If you will get up any instrument that will take as much labor off of men as the Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and can as warm, I could sell one at every house. I feel as if I had to take the feathers from under their wife and hatch to pay them."

JOHN A. DODGE, Jr., jeweler, Neosho, Mo., writes: "I'm talk about I think of the Washer I bought last summer. My 11 is the best machine ever invented by man. Sd. We have just as good chance to sell one on any other day. Sd. If you run short, you can not buy another."

I will ship a sample to that [illegible] on approval, subject to trial on liberal terms. A thousand dollars in money [illegible] to the world for saving labor. Write for circulars, testimonials, etc. We create live agents. Address

J. WORTH, 1110 Franklin Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

ALLEN GRAY

— OR, —

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

"Who wrote this?" asked Allen.

"I did—won't it do?"

"I guess so, if it is not so personal as to give offense to any one."

"Oh no, no, it's just all a joke, that's all."

"Are you a subscriber for the paper?"

"No; how much is it? If you'll put that piece in, I believe I'll sign fur it."

"It is one dollar and fifty cents per annum."

"But how much is it fur a year?"

"One dollar and fifty cents."

The citizen from Billy's Creek had only fifty cents, but he promised to bring in the balance next time he came, and a country editor very seldom refuses credit, especially when he gets one-third cash.

The countryman was gone, and Allen was striving, by toil, to drive away the sweet, sad image of that beautiful face which had made such a wonderful impression on him, when the door opened, and this time it was the ambitious politician, Tom Simmons, who entered. No thunder-cloud was ever darker than Simmons' countenance.

"Be seated, Mr. Simmons," said the editor, calmly and politely.

"No, sir; I don't want to set down," growled the politician, nervously fingering some stereotyped advertising plates that lay on a table near.

Very well knowing that a storm was coming, Allen determined to meet it boldly, and continued writing away at his desk.

"There's somethin' I want to say to you," said the politician, in a voice somewhat husky.

"What is it, Mr. Simmons?" He did not look up, but spoke in a manner as imperturbable as if he were discussing some ordinary matters, and knew nothing of the swelling volcano at his back. He was coolness itself; there was not the slightest quiver in his voice. The total indifference of the editor was somewhat embarrassing to the angry politician.

Mr. Simmons cleared his throat, and bracing his nerves for the terrible ordeal, in a voice still more husky, said:

"I'm satisfied now that you are playin' me treachery."

"Then you don't believe what I say on the matter?"

"No, I don't."

Allen retained his temper, and as coolly as if he was merely taking down items of news, continued to write. He was very busy. After a few moments he said:

"So you accuse me of treachery?"

"Yes, I do. You promised me to stand by me for the Legislatur, and the minnit I'm away from here, there comes that infernal Strong, and you are a connivin' an' connivin', an' no one knows what in the world yer up to, only I know yer settin' up some kind o' a job on me. Yer playin' off on me an' I know it."

The editor made no answer, but wrote steadily on until he had finished, and then coolly pressed his blotter upon his paper. Taking up the document he had just written, he read:

"I, Thomas Simmons, hereby agree to become a candidate for the office of Representative of this county in the next General Assembly for the State of Missouri at the coming election, and hereby declare that I will be a candidate for no other office at said election, at which time the editor of the Western Republic, by aid of his paper, shall support me as a candidate for said office. And should Allen Gray, the said editor, support me and I fail or refuse to run, I hereby agree to forfeit and pay to said Gray the sum of one thousand dollars, and in consideration of this agreement should the said Gray fail and refuse to give me his aid and support, at the time and in the manner aforesaid, he forfeits and is to pay to myself, Thomas Simmons, the just and true sum of one thousand dollars. In case of either forfeiture above stated it is agreed by the signers hereto that the amount so forfeited may be sued upon and collected out of our goods and chattels in any court of law in this State having jurisdiction over the same. In witness of which we have hereunto set our hands and seals."

This was a very legal-looking document to Tom Simmons and filled his soul with delight. Once have it executed and he would have his enemy, Strong, on the hip. He was very anxious to sign it at once, but Allen insisted on it being executed in duplicate, and when this was done, and he had a copy in his pocket he was considerably relieved.

"Are you satisfied now, Mr. Simmons?"

"Yes."

"Well, I am very busy. Good morning."

Simmons left the office.

CHAPTER X.

A STRANGE VISIT.

"Be you the editor?"

It was a weazen-faced little old man with a frosty beard on his chin, and weak, watery eyes, who looked in at the door of his sanctum. His dress was the home-spun of a farmer, and his hat-brim was tacked up on one side.

"Yes, sir, I am," Allen answered.

"My gal scratched off this little piece, and I thought as may be ye'd like it."

The little old man timidly entered the office and handed the editor a neatly-folded bit of paper. Allen was astounded to not find it rolled. Unfolding the paper he found written in a plain, legible hand some news items of the neighborhood.

"The article is very good, sir. I will use it."

"D'ye think that gal kin write?" the old man asked, somewhat anxiously.

"Yes, sir; she lacks cultivation, but she will acquire that."

The old man smiled, and said:

"She aint got no larnin' to 'mount to any thing, but she likes writin' monstrous well, an' studies hard to git her pieces right. Ef ye think she'd ever make a writer, I'd send that ar' gal to skule."

"She has good, strong common sense; her article shows it. How old is she?"

"Only fou'teen."

"So young, and yet do her work so well! If she has proper cultivation and perseverance she may make her mark in the world. Do you take the paper?"

"Oh, yes; I subscribed when ye first commenced it."

"Tell your daughter that I will always be glad to have any thing from her pen, and as soon as I am able to do so, will pay her for her contributions."

"Much obleeged to ye, Mr. Editur, I'll tell her, and Sarah'll be right down glad to know it, fur she's mightily set on writin'," said the old man, as he left the office.

"There is true genius in a log cabin," said Allen, gazing at the manuscript. "There is modesty associated with it. What a contrast between the modest little country girl, and the ambitious Miss Hopkins or Toney Barnes. For her there is a bright future, for them nothing but envy, jealousy and grumbling at hard-hearted editors. But who would have thought that so many people were turning their attention to literature and journalism. I supposed these to be avocations which were demanding followers, but instead, the professions are overcrowded. It seems as if the whole world was going into literature. People living in the most remote parts of the earth seem to have caught the inspiration to write."

Toney Barnes at this moment entered with the freedom of a popular author whose services were indispensable to his publisher, and throwing himself carelessly on a chair, said:

"Well, Mr. Gray, I've got something grand this time. It beats Poe's Raven."

"Fame and fortune are within your grasp, then?"

"Well, I've got it. The great success of Poe's Raven was that nobody could ever understand it. Now I've got something here that can't be half so well understood as the Raven."

Allen had read several of his productions that were superior to the Raven on those grounds. In fact, all of Mr. Barnes' poetic effusions were difficult of solution.

"Just let me read this to you," said Toney.

"I am very busy—leave it—"

"No, no, no; its not long, and I will read fast."

"Go ahead, then."

Toney read:

"Once in a deep, dark, lonely swamp, awaiting, all alone,
While the dew of even damp lay upon the stone—"

"Did the dew lay only upon the stones?" the editor asked.

"Oh, no—wait and you will see how it all comes out," and he continued:

"The night was dark, the sun was down,
And all around me rose
Ten thousand fancied gobblins bold—
Ten thousand mortal foes.
Alone I searched the forest o'er,
Alone I searched the forest wild,
When suddenly I heard a cry
Proceeding from some wandering child.

"For hours I searched vainly on,
For hours I searched the forest round,
When suddenly a horrid ghost
Arose bleeding from the ground.
Its head was eyeless, hair on fire,
Blood dripping from the sockets down.
On this horrid thing I cast a glance,
And then fell senseless to the ground."

"Now, sir," cried Toney, triumphantly, "can you tell me what's in that poem?"

"No, sir. I give it up, nor do I think there's a man living that can," Allen unhesitatingly answered.

"That speaks well for it," said Toney, with a wild ecstatic laugh. "This poem will give me wealth and fame. How much will you give me for it?"

"At present I do not feel able to buy it."

"Oh, you might make a big profit on it."

"Yes, but I am not able to purchase it."

"Who do you think could?"

"The Harpers might."

"I'll send it to them by the very next mail," said Toney, quite enthusiastically.

Allen never knew what the fate of this weird unnatural poem was. Though he has been a constant reader of Harper's periodicals from that day down to the present, he has never seen it in any of them.

Next day the editor was hard at work in his office when Mr. Strong entered. That look of distrust and uneasiness on Mr. Strong's face was deepening.

"Well, Gray, they ar' tellin' some hard

"WELL, MR. GRAY, THEY'RE TELLIN' SOME HARD YARNS ON YE."

yarns on ye," said Mr. Strong, leaning on the back of a chair.

"What do they tell?" Allen asked.

"They say as how yer gwine back on me an' gwine to support Tom Simmons."

"Who told you, Mr. Strong?"

"Lots o' people."

Allen was writing. He stopped long enough, however, to say that lots of people were either mistaken or knowingly perverting the truth, and then continued to write.

"I tell ye, if I kin jist git Tom Simmons off the track I'll be the next sheriff, sho' as yer bawn."

"Do you think Tom Simmons is a candidate for sheriff?"

"O' course I do."

"I don't believe it."

"I know it," said Mr. Strong, hotly. "If he isn't a candidate, why is he loafin' about here all the time, an' why's he always dodgin' me on the street?"

"I know now that he will not be your opponent; but you seem to be again troubled with doubts as to my sincerity in supporting you."

"Wall, Mister Gray, I must say thar's somethin' kinder queer in yer actions, that's all. You an' that ar feller are allers collogin' together fur somethin'."

"Now, Mr. Strong, I am going to do what I would under no ordinary circumstances begin to do. If you will enter into an agreement with a forfeit of one thousand dollars to run for sheriff, I will enter into a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars to support you."

Mr. Strong at once saw that he had every thing on his side. He intended to run for sheriff without any contract or obligation, and by this one sweep he was sure he would have the editor safe, and be sure to beat the man whom he despised. Allen had prepared an article somewhat similar to that which Simmons had signed, and now presented it to Strong for his signature.

Mr. Strong was delighted to sign it, and left the office chuckling at the assurance that he had for once proven too shrewd for Simmons.

Allen bowed his head in his hands and his thoughts reverted, as they invariably did, when not pressed with politicians or poets, to that beautiful being in the mysterious old rock house. Ever before him, as if gazing from out some mist-like cloud, seemed to appear that sad but bewitching face in such mute appeal that his heart was always heavy. Those sad blue eyes seemed always gazing fondly into his.

"Oh Bertha, Bertha, how is all this to end?" he gasped.

"Copy," cried Toby, at the sanctum door.

The demand brought him back to the stern realities of life, and he set to work, driving his pencil at a furious rate, dashed off something and handed it in.

"A man in my frame of mind is not fit to edit a paper."

Before his mind had had time to again revert to the painful subject on which it seemed to love to dwell, the door opened and a broad-shouldered countryman stalked unbidden into the room. Allen looked up and before him stood a towering giant, whose face was dark with wrath.

"Are you the feller what runs this shebang?" the modern Hercules demanded.

"I am."

"Then take that fur a meddlesome liar," cried the stranger, aiming a blow at Allen, which he successfully parried. The editor now thanked his stars that in his more youthful days he had not neglected the manly art of boxing. Though no match in strength for this rural giant, his skill made him more than his equal.

For several moments Allen had all he could do to parry those sledge-hammer blows, which fell thick and fast upon him. But at last he got in a well-directed blow from the shoulder, which staggered the stranger. This gave him a decided advantage over his antagonist. In a minute's time the stranger was down in one corner of the office, yelling murder, while the man whom he had assaulted was belaboring him with telling blows.

Ike Hatchett ran into the sanctum, and, assisted by Toby, got the men separated.

"What does this mean?" Ike asked.

Allen answering that he did not know, the stranger struggled to his feet, growling:

"I know. What did ye put that piece in the paper 'bout me fur?"

"What piece? I have no recollection of having ever seen you until now," answered Allen.

"But ye lied about me. Ye said I stole a corn-knife, an' I warn't agoin' to stand it. It was George Leeper who sot ye on me."

As soon as the editor could be made to understand what particular article had given offense, he explained that Leeper had assured him that the whole thing was a harmless joke.

"Harmless joke, thunderation!" growled Herrin, wiping the blood from his face. "Accuse a feller o' stealin', an' then say it's all a harmless joke."

Allen, realizing that he had wounded the feelings as well as the head of the countryman, promised a scathing retraction in the next issue, and while he was still smarting under the misrepresentation made by Leeper, sat down and wrote the article. It was much stronger in his denunciation of Leeper than he would have written had he given the matter a sober second thought, but he handed it to Ike, who put it in type, while Herrin subscribed, to read the raking the paper would give the man he hated.

Allen had allowed himself to get considerably behind with his work, and he sat at his desk late that night, long after the printers had gone home.

His lamp burned dimly, and he found those superstitious horrors with more than usual force creeping over him. He fought against the terrible feeling, but all in vain. He grew nervous and started at the slightest sound.

When he heard a timid knock at the door his heart thumped wildly. He rose to his feet and, trembling violently in every limb, went to the door and opened it. Before him stood a woman.

She entered quickly, closing the door after her, and, her vail thrown aside, revealed the white face of Bertha, the strange girl of the mysterious house on the hill.

CHAPTER XI.

A STRANGE REQUEST.

For a moment Allen Gray stood dumb with amazement. He could hardly believe himself awake, and passed his hand over his face as if to brush away the vision. When he looked again, pale and beautiful as ever, Bertha still stood before him. Those dark blue eyes seemed to have increased in their melancholy loveliness, and never was there a face more angelic than the one that met his astounded gaze.

"BE SEATED," HE AT LAST SAID.

"Be seated," he at last said, in a voice but little above a whisper, placing a chair for her.

"You must think this a strange and untimely visit," said Bertha, her pale face tinged with just the faintest flush, as she accepted the proffered chair.

"I can not say until I am better informed as to the cause of your visit. I hope, however, that I may be able to be of service to you in some way!"

She cast a frightened glance toward the door, and then, with her waite, scared face close to his, her great blue orbs seeming to pierce his soul, she said:

"I knew I could depend on you, Mr. Gray. This world, which I once thought so good and kind, has proved to be so full of deceit and treachery that I had almost decided never to trust another fellow being. But you seem honest, manly and generous. You will not betray me, will you? Oh, promise me you will never betray me!"

Those beautiful eyes became flooded with silent tears, while her pathetic, beseeching manner would have touched a much harder heart than Allen's.

"I will never betray you—I swear I never will!" he answered, with unmistakable earnestness.

A silence fell upon both. The beautiful visitor nervously started at the slightest sound, while Allen, having partially regained his composure, sat gazing at her in astonished embarrassment.

The beauty and mystery which ever hovered over the girl seemed to have increased, and Allen's perplexity had grown greater with them. Like a panorama the events of the past few weeks in which she had so conspicuously figured seemed to pass before him. Again he saw the mysterious chateau on the hill, and heard anew the strange wail of stories which were wont to frighten the children and make the old people shake their heads with doubtful misgivings. Once more the sunlight fell on the deserted turnpike which led to the great house, and he was wandering along from the beautiful spring and the rustic old seat to the plateau above. In an instant the scene had changed and he was on the great bluff overlooking the river, with this beautiful being at his side. The recollections of the happy moment when two loving souls first met is ever sweet to the memory. Then, again, on that dark, wild night, when they so strangely met in the garden. Her face was scarce less white than on that occasion.

Could it be possible that that beautiful being—who had seemed as far removed from him as the stars were in his presence—sat before him alone? Was she on the eve of disclosing the terrible mystery which, like a pall, enshrouded her? Fate seemed to have worked a similar destiny for them, and despite all they might do their paths would tend to the same direction. No wonder Allen Gray's heart beat violently. A few moments more might see him the happiest man living, or the most miserable. A great crisis was coming, and it is no wonder that he trembled at its approach.

It was her place to speak and he could only sit and gaze at her. Her white face, however, was troubled, and that iron resolve which had supported her in this untimely, and seemingly unladylike, call was evidently about to fail her in her hour of need. Allen at last realized that unless she was encouraged she might not reveal the purpose of this visit, and with all his sympathetic soul in his face, he said:

"Have no fears, Bertha, for by all I hold sacred, I swear that I will prove a brother to you in distress."

Poor, tempest-tossed Bertha; long had she searched for a loyal heart on whom she could confide. In this editor's flashing eye was manliness and truth; she would trust once more. Scarce could she restrain her natural inclination to fly to his arms for refuge from the relentless enemies who pursued. She could not have found stronger or more willing arms to defend her.

Having partially regained her composure, she said:

"I believe you; had I not unbounded faith in your honor and courage I should never have run the great risk I do in coming here."

"Then it is a risk?"

"A greater risk than you can imagine.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

In the waste of tissue that precedes consumption, the slight cough at night or morning, if Dujardin's Life Essence is taken, a valuable life may be saved. Don't neglect a cough, but take Life Essence and stop it at once. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

The Lucky Doctor.

Doctor W. H. Dibble who luckily drew $10,000 in the Louisiana State Lottery at the last drawing is quite an interesting character. He is well known to the Middletown public, having been engaged in dentistry here for many years. The doctor says that he and his wife are mediums, "Not the ordinary low style of spiritualists who never exert their own judgement. We always use our judgement and have received frequent communications."

To a Herald reporter this morning the genial doctor gave an account of the way in which he happened to buy the lucky ticket. "In December I saw when in a 'spiritual frame,' certain numbers, and when the drawing of the Louisiana came, I found that I had seen the numbers which drew the second and third capital prizes. I determined if I saw any numbers again to buy the tickets if I could find them. Later I went to Hartford and found four tickets, and to New York where I secured several and among them the ticket drawing the $10,000. I have received the money and have placed it in the savings bank."

How much money do you suppose you have spent in lottery tickets, doctor? inquired the quill driver.

"I can't say. Probably $150 would cover the whole amount I have spent. When I was young I used to invest occasionally, but for the last 10 years until quite recently, I haven't bought any tickets.

Have you any pointers for me on the next drawing!

"Well, I've seen some numbers, but not distinctly enough to be sure of them."

—Middletown (Conn.) Herald, Feb. 7.

Chicago—Do your people here in the East buy your beef on the hoof? Lowell—I should say not. From the samples I get I should think they bought their beef on the neck.

A TERRIBLE MISFORTUNE.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nerveless, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions sapped by weakness and infirmity and long unbenefitted by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

Go West, young man, and send to your friends for enough money to get back. Have your fun while you're young.

LUNG TROUBLES AND WASTING

Diseases can be cured, if properly treated in time, as shown by the following statement from Dr. C. Freeman, Sydney: "Having been a great sufferer from pulmonary attacks, and gradually wasting away for the past two years, it affords me pleasure to testify that SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil with Lime and Soda has given me great relief, and I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering in a similar way to myself. In addition, I would say that it is very pleasant to take."

CURE FOR COUGH OR COLD.—As soon as there is the slightest uneasiness of the Chest, with difficulty of breathing, or indication of Cough, take during the day a few "Brown's Bronchial Troches." 25 cts. a box.

GOLD! GOLD!

Bancroft's map of the New Gold Fields and Mineral Districts in Northern Lower California has just been published and is for sale by The Bancroft Company, S. F., and can be had of all booksellers and news dealers at $1.00 per copy. This map has been compiled from official authentic maps and sketches (on record) and from special investigation in person by Fred J. Engelhardt and assisted by the oldest and most expert Mexican prospectors during 1888-1889.

L. M. Walton and Phillips & Co.'s Tourist Sleeping Car excursions East. No charge for berths. For information, tickets, and location in cars, address

F. G. High, 624 Market St., San Francisco. Steamship Tickets to and from Europe at very lowest rates.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Try Gormea for Breakfast.

S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD.

Some years ago I was thrown from a horse in McLennan county, and received a frightful wound on one of my legs. For more than a year I was unable to walk. The wound ulcerated and refused to heal, and every one thought I would have to submit to amputation. S.S.S. was recommended, and I used it freely, and I shall never get through thanking S. S. S. for saving my leg, and restoring me to perfect health. GARLAND WILSON.
Palestine, Texas, July, 24, '88.

Send for treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases; mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

Help Wanted.

We offer GOOD PAY to WOMEN for special work up to JULY next. Besides good pay for work $500 will be given as an EXTRA present to the agent doing the best work; $400 to the second, and so on. Men, boys and girls can make hundreds of dollars between now and July 1889. This is a SPECIAL chance, and holds good only until July. Address

CURTIS PUBLISHING CO.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BIG G. Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, O. U.S.A. Trade Mark.

I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease. G. H. INGRAHAM M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.

We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction. D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$1.00. Sold by Druggists.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES. Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. J. AIKEN, Manager, Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

COME TO NEW MEXICO. The Finest Climate on earth. To Capitalists, Farmers, Miners, Investors, Health Seekers: send 25 cts. for map and information; 60,000,000 acres Gov. land, wonderful resources. J. J. Fitzgerrell East Las Vegas, N. M.

LUMBAGO.

Gen'l F. B. Spinola, Member of Congress from New York City, writes:

"It is a public duty I perform when I testify to the remarkable curative power of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. For several years I have been at times troubled with violent attacks of lumbago. They would last for several weeks at a time, and the pain would reach from the lumbar regions not only to my feet, but to my finger ends. Some months ago I had a most severe attack, and was confined to my bed, almost paralyzed. I felt much discouraged, and thought of recurring to electric shocks, when Senator Nelson rent me six ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. I immediately applied three—one over the kidneys, one on the small of my back, and one on my hip joint, where I had considerable sciatic pain. The effect was simply wonderful. In six hours I was able to leep, the violent pain having mostly ceased. I continued to wear the Plasters for some days, when I felt I was almost entirely cured. I kept them on for nearly a month, as a matter of precaution."

Book Agent—I would like to show you the very latest English cyclopædia. Old Timer—No sir; English or American, I could never learn to ride one at my time of life.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully, T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alum. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK, CHICAGO, SAN FRANCISCO.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
—FOR—
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

THE BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

WELL DRILLS FOR EVERY PURPOSE. Sold on Trial!
Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by
GOULDS & AUSTIN,
107 & 169 Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

A BIG SHOW
Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes: Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

I CURE FITS!
I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
DR. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., N. Y.

STEINWAY. KRANICH, BACH. Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

Rheumatism
LUMBAGO · BACKACHE · HEADACHE · TOOTHACHE · SORE THROAT · SWELLINGS · FROSTBITES · SPRAINS PROMPTLY AND PERMANENTLY Cured by St. Jacobs Oil
AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
BALTO. MD. THE CHAS. A. VOGELER CO.

Diamond Vera-Cura FOR DYSPEPSIA.
AND ALL STOMACH TROUBLES SUCH AS: Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Nausea, Giddiness, Constipation, Fullness after eating, Food Rising in the Mouth and disagreeable taste after eating. Nervousness and Low-Spirits.
At Druggists and Dealers or sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent Stamp.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

AGENTS WANTED for our fast selling books and bibles. Distance no hindrance. Big Profits. Empyreal Pub. House St. Paul, Minn.

WOVEN WIRE MATTRESSES AND IRON BEDS. Manufactured by W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal. Send for Catalogue and Price List.

PEOPLES HOME SAVINGS BANK
JAS. K. WILSON Cashier. COLUMBUS WATERHOUSE President.
805 Market Street, cor. 4th St.
IN FLOOD BUILDING.
San Francisco, California.
GUARANTEE CAPITAL, $300,000
Deposits from any part of the Pacific Coast States may be sent by registered letter, post office money order, bank draft or express.
The People's Home Savings Bank has exceptional facilities for safe, profitable and satisfactory investment of funds at good rates of interest.

Dr. John C. Spencer, PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Arzt und Chirurg,
OFFICE, 514 Sutter St. bet Powell & Mason, San Francisco, California.
RESIDENCE, Westminster Hotel, 614 Sutter St. one block above.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, THREE WASH, Carbolic Sheep Wash.
T. W. Jackson & Co. Mfr. Agents, 104 Market St.

"THE SLOUGH OF DESPONDENCY."

Smith— "I know 'tis a sin to,
But I'm bent on the notion,
I'll throw myself into
The deep, briny ocean."

Brown—"Fie, fie, my good friend, don't give way to your ailments so easily, and settle down into such gloom and despondency. There's no excuse for such conduct, when it's a well-known fact that all your bad feelings, terrible headaches, poor appetite, sense of fatigue, and lassitude, low-spirits, and hypochondriacal condition are due to torpid liver and consequent indigestion, and debility, which will all give way and disappear, as the dew before the morning sun, if you but make use of that world-famed anti-bilious medicine known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cured me when I was in a much worse condition than you are, and if you will only try it you will soon be singing—

"But my spirit shall wander
Through gay coral bowers,
And frisk with the mermaids
It shall, by the Powers!"

Copyright, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

CATARRH IN THE HEAD, no matter of how long standing, is permanently cured by DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY. 50 cents, by druggists.

A Perfect Laxative should be mild, prompt, and pleasant, with no griping or purgative effects. It should also incite the liver to action, aid digestion, and relieve the kidneys. Like nothing else, Paine's Celery Compound is a perfect laxative, and cures constipation where all other remedies fail.

"As a gentle laxative, Paine's Celery Compound is surely without a peer. I think I ought to know, since I have tried remedy after remedy for about five or six years and have found nothing that equals it in my case of costiveness." J. B. JENKINS, Teacher, Cloyd's Creek, Tenn.

"Paine's Celery Compound is prompt and pleasant. As a laxative it leaves little to be desired. I have great confidence in its merits." ALBERT LEONARD, Associate Editor, Journal of Pedagogy, Athens, Ohio.

"For two or three years I suffered intensely every night with severe pains in my bowels, which were habitually constipated. My bowels are now regular, and I have had no return of those pains since using one bottle of

Paine's Celery Compound

F. G. STICKNEY, Druggist, Havana, Ala.

Moral: Use Paine's Celery Compound and stop ruining the intestinal tract with harsh purgative pills. $1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington, Vt.

DIAMOND DYES Are the simplest Dyes made. A child can use them. BABIES Living upon Lactated Food are Healthy, Happy and Hearty. It is unequaled.

DWIGHT'S COW BRAND SODA OR SALERATUS
TO MAKE —A— Delicious Biscuit
Ask your Grocer for COW BRAND SODA OR SALERATUS.
Absolutely Pure.

ARM & HAMMER BRAND

To Housekeepers and Farmers.—It is important that the Soda or Saleratus you use should be White and Pure same as all similar substances used for food. To insure obtaining only the "Arm & Hammer" brand Soda or Saleratus, buy it in "pound or half pound" cartoons which bear our name and trade-mark, as inferior goods are sometimes substituted for the "Arm & Hammer" brand when bought in bulk. Parties using Baking Powder should remember that its sole rising property consists of bicarbonate of soda. One teaspoonful of the "Arm & Hammer" brand of Soda or Saleratus mixed with sour milk equals four teaspoonfuls of the best Baking Powder, saving twenty times its cost, besides being much healthier, because it does not contain any injurious substances, such as alum, terra alba etc., of which many Baking Powders are made. Dairymen and Farmers should use only the "Arm & Hammer" brand for cleaning and keeping Milk Pans Sweet and Clean.

OUR TRADE MARK
CHURCH & CO'S SODA
ON EVERY PACKAGE.

CAUTION. See that every pound package of "Arm and Hammer Brand" contains full 16 ounces net, and the ½ pound packages full 12 ounces net, Soda or Saleratus same as specified on each package.

Packed in Card Board Boxes. Always keeps Soft.

SODA OR SALERATUS

THE BEST
CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

S F. N. U. No. 352. New Series No. 11

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....APRIL 27, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 46. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., APRIL 27, 1889. WHOLE NO. 965.

INYO IN DEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

THE DIVER'S DRESS.

A Description Which Will Give Land-Lubbers an Idea of the Outfit.

If any one has seen a diver in his submarine suit, bobbing up from the water with his glistening, immense round copper helmet, with its square, clumsy man-fish-like canvas suit, usually stained by use and iron rust and sea water to a brownish, yellowish gray, something the color of the devil fish, he may at first have been somewhat startled by the apparition. The being who thus rises from the sea is not a mischievous creature, but, on the contrary, a very useful member of society, when his services are required and brought into requisition. A description of his dress is something like this: From the helmet projects a coil of snake-like rubber hose, a sort of antenna, which passes through the water, connecting with an air-pump on a float-stage or in a boat, the pump manipulated by two men, and furnishes compressed air for his breathing when under water, which exhausts into the water by a valve in the helmet, enabling him to breathe continually fresh air, while, when he comes to the surface the windows of his helmet can be opened and he can breathe without the assistance of the air-pump. When he goes down into the water he has two means of communication with those above, the hose and the life line. By the latter he also descends and comes up when necessary. By each of these he gives and receives signals mutually understood, three sharp pulls on the life line indicating that he is ready to ascend. In order to overcome the natural buoyancy of his body and make its specific gravity such that he can readily walk about on the bottom of the sea, he wears shoes with soles heavily weighted with lead. The upper part of his body is protected, as is also his lower half, by means of heavy canvas covering consisting of jacket with sleeves and pantaloons with terminations which fit closely with elastic bands clinging to the flesh, the jacket fitted closely to the helmet with metallic bands bolted together, with a rubber gasket between. No water or air can get to him, except the latter by the hose, unless he opens the glass windows of his helmet, which he is not likely to do unless occasion requires. Additional weight is placed at his chest and back. Sometimes a breast-plate and shoulder-plate of lead, sometimes a belt heavily weighted, which can be thrown on or off the shoulders and hang down in front and behind when in use.—Providence Journal.

MAN AND HIS BRAIN.

Some Startling Facts Revealed by a Chicago Medicine Man.

Now that the idea is played out about fish being good brain food—except when taken in the quantities prescribed by Mark Twain—it may be satisfactory to eager inquirers after knowledge to know that there is a cheaper and more pleasant way of increasing brain power than can be found in fish diet. I was startled by hearing a physician say lately: "Our brain is only half developed, anyhow; we are right-handed and left-brained, the right side of the brain being practically unused, just as the left hand." "At that rate," said the patient, "our gymnasts should have well-developed brains, as, with the practice on dumb-bells, Indian clubs, the horizontal bar, trapeze and other muscle manufacturers, the left and right arms are equally developed." "That is quite true," said the medicine man. "Gymnasts bring the physical portion of the brain into the most favorable conditions, but something more than physical exercise is required to produce intellectual results from an excellent physical brain. Ambidextrous men are apt to be smart fellows if they give themselves any kind of a show. For instance, President Garfield, when he was teaching school, acquired the habit of drawing on the black-board very rapidly with both hands at the same time. There is a very distinct relation between the left side of the body and right brain, as also between the left brain and the right side, but it is hard to say how many hours exercise with dumb-bells would transform the average peanut vender into a Daniel Webster. It is, however, something to know the physical conditions of brain power, and if you call again in about half a century I may be able to tell you something still more interesting."—Chicago Journal.

A Sewing-Machine Man's Talk.

There has been a wonderful change in the business methods of sewing-machine dealers within the past decade, and that the change is for the better goes almost without the saying. There was a time when the sewing-machine agent and the lightning-rod man were looked upon as land pirates and their approach regarded with genuine dread. The only way to get rid of the sewing-machine agent of auld lang syne was to give him an order. The majority of agents worked on commission, and they must sell or starve. Nowadays, the business is conducted much upon the same plan as that of the wholesale grocer or dry-goods dealer. Regular traveling men are employed, paid salary and expenses, and they sell machines to those who want them, and not to those who do not, but purchase to get rid of a bore. Some of the best commercial men in the country are now engaged in the sewing-machine business, and the dignity added by the adoption of business-like methods is rapidly putting that branch of trade in the front rank as a desirable occupation.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

—The Bible has to be printed in twenty-nine different languages to supply the people living in Pennsylvania. The largely varied industries of Pennsylvania attract to that State a more cosmopolitan population than any other State in the Union.

—A rich find—almost $2,000 in gold, bank-notes and silver—was made in a bag of oats by a storekeeper of Brentwood, Eng. He returned the treasure to the poor farmer from whom he bought the oats, and was rewarded with a bushel of grain and the promise of a rabbit.

—They live long down on the island of Nantucket. Of the seventy-six who died there in 1888, five were infants; the average of the ages of the seventy-one is a little over 68 years, forty-two were 70 or over, twenty-two were 80 or over, twelve had passed the 85 mark, three saw 90 or more, and one, a woman, died at the age of 97 years and 25 days.

—There is in the United States a dog for every three inhabitants. The cost of keeping twenty million dogs is at least $200,000,000 per annum. The food given to an average dog every year, if fed to chickens, would yield a return of more than ten dollars. Hightoned dogs are very expensive, their food costing a good deal more than that of some people.

—A Wisconsin man has patented a fence for intercepting insects. It is made with boards jointed together at their ends, with a tarred rope at their upper edge, and an outwardly extending board made to form a channel, whereby bugs will be prevented from passing from one field to another, and will be received in a receptacle where they can be destroyed.

—A London fashion journal says that there is in that city a fashionable boarding school where young women are taught to enter and get out of a carriage. "A vehicle with the proper pedal arrangements for this sort of exercise, which determines a lady's breeding and claim to social position, is kept in the back yard of the educational establishment and the carriage classes are put through the most arduous training." The information is also given that "another accomplishment peculiar to this gilt-edged academy is learning to eat asparagus, oranges, grapes and other juicy and unmanageable viands that shall represent the perfection of table manners."

—Any thing to save time is New York's motto. The newest thing is a shop where men and women may have their shoes mended while they wait. Customers see the latest shoemaking machinery in the window, and behind the machines a row of lasts at which men prepare the work for the machines. A women goes in, has her shoes taken off, put on the lasts, trimmed of all tatters and shreds, fitted with new heels and soles, put into a sewing or nailing machine, and made good as new almost half as quickly as it has taken to write these words. Patching is the only work that is done in the old-fashioned way. Entire new shoes are make to order by the pair in two hours.

—A white pine tree was cut recently two miles south of Shade Mills, in Garrett County, Md., near the site of the old Braddock road and converted into shingles. It was a large tree, and by expert woodsmen estimated to be at least three hundred years old. In cutting it up the saw, going through some tough substance, then supposed to be a knot, attracted attention, and investigation disclosed a bullet imbedded within two inches of the heart. The ball is supposed to have been shot from a musket by one of Braddock's men during the campaign which culminated in the disaster at Fort Du Quesne. In this event the bullet was imbedded in the tree 133 years ago, each year's growth burying it deeper. It is a most interesting memento of the ill-starred campaign of 1755.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

The Philosophic Speculations of a Designer of Jewelry Patterns.

"Mark my words, the present century will end as it began. It will be characterized by extravagant fashions and lavish expenditure. It will be an era of two extremes in taste—one according with the accepted laws of beauty, the other reaching out after the bizarre, the extraordinary, the grotesque.

"A man in my line of business is taught to anticipate coming events. It is necessary to have an almost prophetic instinct to succeed. Already I am delving in musty folios and studying old fashion plates to familiarize my mind with the coming styles. From all indications I know in what paths to direct my studies. A revival of the fashions of the Directoire, the Consulate and the early French Empire is now in progress, but it has by no means reached its limit.

"The age of Napoleon was the age of jewelry. Cameos, medallions, engraved antique gems and enameled watches were profusely worn, those who could afford it, literally covering themselves with gold and precious stones. What do we observe to-day? The cameo is again popular and the enameling of watches, brooches and pins is occupying the attention of every worker in gold and silver. But we have not seen the end. Fashions as pronounced in character as those in vogue during Napoleon's time always run to extremes before they die out. You know that history generally repeats itself; therefore I confidently predict an era that will equal all the extravagance of the early French Empire."—Jewelers' Weekly.

THE EAST AND WEST.

A Very Nice and Delicate Question in Ethical Geography.

If there is, as legend says there is, such a thing, seen through Western eyes, as an "effete East," what are its precise territorial limits? In other words, where does such an East really end and the West begin? Or, to state it still differently, at what point on the map may one, if so disposed, put one's finger confidently down and say: "Here is the spot where the effeteness of the arrogant East abruptly ends, and in its stead is the unexpended fecundity of a liberal, untrammeled West?" While the matter is not one that will, apparently, in the immediate future give rise to serious international complication, it is, nevertheless, of no little domestic moment, and may, at some distant day, even call for State interference and adjudication at the hands of a boundary commission, to be chosen from the impartial outlying districts in the extreme North and South.

In reality, the problem of geographical separation would be one extremely difficult to solve to the complete satisfaction of all concerned. It is, for instance, not merely a broad question between Maine and Oregon, between Eastport and Portland, or even, possibly, between New York and San Francisco. On general grounds, it might be admitted that somewhere in the intervening space the line would certainly fall. On a somewhat closer examination, however, it will be found that facts other and more minute than mere latitude and longitude must be seriously taken into consideration. It may even be not unfairly assumed that the fundamental idea of East and West itself is only relative, and can not be thus recklessly applied. Schenectady, where Daisy Miller lived, is west of Jersey City; and we all know that Oshkosh lies far to the westward of Kalamazoo. If, in the inquiry thus set on foot, the reasons for the necessary distinction were still more closely inquired into, it might even be shown that they who have thoughtlessly used the epithet in question themselves may fall under its ban.

When the division is finally made, it must be wholly irrespective of any mere sectional prejudice, to which it should rise superior. The West, it may be supposed, will accept the judgment joyfully; while the East, from the very nature of the case, will be sure, wherever the line is drawn, to regard it with its accustomed equanimity. Only those who, in a possible redistribution, may now for the first time be included under the term "East" will become even a little more intolerant than they who have longer borne the name. For purely practical reasons, apart from mere sentiment, the distinction here suggested ought soon to be made. It was on the island of Grand Manan, down in the Bay of Fundy, last summer, that a comment was made upon the scarcity in the community of young people of both sexes. "How is it," we asked, "that we see so few young men and women here?" "Well," the captain replied, "a great many have married and gone west." "West?" we said. "To what part of the West?" "Well," said the captain, "mostly to Boston."—Atlantic.

CORRUPTION IN TURKEY.

Acts of Depredation Committed by Trusted Officials of the Sultan.

Not long ago a certain Pasha of exalted position borrowed a sum of money from a Frenchman, and when the time for repayment came he was unable to raise the required amount. "But," said he, "if I can not give you money, for I have none, I can at least give you a lucrative post—namely, the repairing of the tombs of the Sultans, which are in a bad state, and you can remove those old tiles, which people care for, and replace them by modern ones made in France." Needless to say, this post was willingly accepted, and on setting to work the delighted Frenchman discovered, in a vault beneath one of the tombs, a whole heap of ancient tiles which provident Turks of a bygone age had put there with a view to restoration, but of the existence of which the Turks of this generation were ignorant. Endless cases of valuable tiles were thus collected and dispatched to France, and when it was found absolutely necessary to make restorations, cheap new tiles made in France were put up, and thus did the French creditor make over and over again the sum of money he had advanced to the Pasha. The recurrence of such an act of depredation is practically impossible under Hamid's strict supervision. A clever imam, however, contrived to outwit the police regulations on this point in the following way. He was priest (imam) of a mosque some little way up the Golden Horn, which was very much out of repair. This fact he represented at headquarters and obtained an order from the evkaf for the repairing of it. The first thing he did was to have the whole of the interior whitewashed over, tiles and all, and, when all the restorations were completed to his satisfaction, he sent for the overseer, whose duty it was to make an inventory of every thing in and about the mosque. This was accordingly done, and the mssque was registered as containing no tiles. The cunning imam then kept quiet for about six months, until he considered it safe to remove by night the tiles from the walls and whitewash the vacant spaces over again. With these treasures he hurried to the shop of some friendly antiquity dealer in the bazaars and made his bargain. Such small acts of depredation are of frequent occurrence still, and even the astutest director of a museum can not contend with them.—Contemporary Review.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Ore stamping by electricity is considered the only sufficient economical system to permit of low-class ores being treated at a profit.

—In Greece, an industrial school for girls has been opened at Athens. Four hundred girls are employed there, with the happiest results.

—Since the telephone was established in Switzerland, in 1860, sixty-one towns have been provided with it, and there are now 6,944 telephone stations, 1,500 of which are in Geneva.

—In the new process of metal-plating the inventor does away with batteries and dynamos and depends upon a double electrical composition. In copper-plating cast-iron an alkaline bath is used in place of an acidulated one.

—Experiments in raising frogs artificially for market have not proved successful. There is considerable demand for frogs' legs in our large markets, which is supplied from thinly settled districts; they have become scarce in regions near our markets.

—The uses of the cotton plant are developing rapidly. Formerly the fiber of the blossom was only part utilized. Then the seed began to supply a large proportion of the "olive oil" and "lard" in the country, and now the hulls are found to be cheaper and better than the wood for paper pulp.

—Sunflower seed is coming to the front as an article of commercial value. As an admixture to chicken food its merits are indisputable. Veterinarians use it in a medicinal way in the treatment of horses. Its growth is considered of use in the prevention of malaria, and the extraction of a valuable oil from it is a looked-for result.

—Many entomologists are of the opinion that the antennæ of insects are organs of hearing, though it is probable that the auditory apparatus in many insects is not confined to the antennæ. Thus grasshoppers and crickets appear to have ears in their legs, and the crustacean genus Mysis is provided with auditory organs in its tail. Equally curious arrangements have been observed in other insects.

—If anything is needed to convince men that gas is the fuel of the future it is found in the recent scientific experiments which show that by the very best method known of burning coal not more than 8 to 10 per cent. of the heat is used, the remainder being wasted by imperfect combustion, or carried off through the chimney. When the coal is turned into gas and the gas burned, nearly 50 per cent. of the heat can be utilized.

—The fact that the elementary substances now number, according to chemists, full seventy, shows an increase, with the last fifty years, of nearly one-fourth in the number known. The size of an atom of oxygen or nitrogen is said to have a diameter of one-ten-millionth part of a centimeter; they are supposed to be in a state of constant motion, at the rate of seventy miles per minute, and, to make them visible, the present highest known magnifying power of the microscope would have to be increased nearly a thousand fold.

—It is only about once in fifteen years that Mars comes as near as 36,000,000 miles. Its orbit is so eccentric that the interval between it and the orbit of the earth varies all the way from 36,000,000 miles to 61,000,000; and it is only now and then that, as the two planets circle round in their respective tracks, the passing point is where the tracks come nearest. The last instance of a very close approach was in 1877; the next will be in 1892. Mars is much smaller than the earth, its diameter being only about 4,200 miles. Its bulk, therefore, is only about one-seventh, and its surface about three-tenths of the earth's.

Divorces in England.

It is customary to throw stones at the United States for the numerous divorces which take place among its people, but statistics show that the percentage of divorces in England is growing with alarming rapidity. Since the Divorce act was adopted by Parliament, thirty years ago, there have been no fewer than 13,022 suits brought under it; and in 7,295—more than half—the court has put asunder those whom the church has joined together. The showing is worse still when the three decades of divorce are compared with each other. In the first, 1858 to 1867, there were 2,188 applications for divorce. In the second, 1868 to 1877, there were 3,272, an increase of 50 per cent. In the third, 1878 to 1887, there were 4,761, an increase of about 75 per cent. In the next decade the increase will be, say the lawyers, fully 100 per cent.—Toronto Mail.

Kissing Under the Mistletoe.

Respecting the question of kissing under the mistletoe, a correspondent writes to London Notes and Queries: "One would suppose, from the part played by the mistletoe in Scandinavian mythology, that this custom was common to all northern peoples. Baldur was slain by a mistletoe dart at the instigation of Loki, and in reparation for the injury the plant was afterward dedicated to his mother, Frigg, so long as it did not touch earth, Loki's empire. On this account it is hung from the ceilings of houses, and the kiss given under it signifies that it is no longer an instrument of mischief. The fetes held in commemoration of the sacred mistletoe survived in some parts of France into the sixteenth century. The plant was credited with many talismanic properties, and its festival attracted immense gatherings of people."

AN AMERICAN BELLE.

How She Is Brought Up, Educated and Trained for Social Life.

A New York girl is as brilliant, beautiful and incomprehensible a thing as one of Browning's poems. Happening to sit at lunch the other day next to one of the most successful debutants of the season I thought I would make gentle inquiries about her early life. She was a charming creature, eminently New Yorkish, and, without being strictly handsome, was irresistible. She was tall and not too slight, with a well-developed figure. A warm color mantled on her clear cheek, and her features were fairly regular, the chief attraction being a pair of large, dark blue eyes, shaded by long lashes, which she knew very well to be her best point, and used with great effect. As she pulled off her long gray gloves and took up her oyster fork I noticed her beautiful hands, which were long and slender, with perfect almond shaped nails that bespoke the manicure's frequent care, and taper fingers. Her rings were few, but costly—too costly.

"Where did you go to school?" I asked, to begin with. "In New York, or were you at boarding school somewhere?"

She turned her beautiful eyes upon me in pretty perplexity. When she spoke her voice was delightful, quite English in its rich, generous quality, and she talked slowly, with a sort of quiet dignity that was very charming.

"Oh, no, I never went to school," said she, smiling. "I had a governess and master at home. My governess taught me the necessary smattering of history, arithmetic and geography, and being a Frenchwoman always spoke her own language with me. My maid was also French, that being one of my earliest accomplishments. Then masters came in for German and Italian, music and dancing. Oh, dear, what care they did take! I had to walk so many hours a day, take a cold plunge-bath every morning—that was for my complexion—go to the dentist every month, have my hair brushed by Celine for an hour every night before I went to bed, and sit for a long time every morning with my shoulder strained against a back-board to make sure that my figure would be good. I rose every morning at seven and went to bed every night at eight. This went on until I was sixteen.

"At sixteen," she said, "they took me abroad. Even on the steamer I was not allowed to make any acquaintances. I spent a year at school in Leipsic, a very small and expensive place, where there were young German girls of high degree and a scattering of English and Americans from the best families, with whom I was not only permitted but instructed to become intimate. Then mamma came again, and this time took me to Paris, where I staid another year at the Sacre Coeur. Then I was eighteen, and it was time to prepare for the important event of my coming out. I left the convent in March, and for the next three months we had a most glorious time getting my things together in Paris. I assure you mamma spent quite $10,000 for the gowns, hats and chiffon she said were absolutely necessary for my first season. From a mere child I suddenly bloomed into a young woman. Mamma took me with her to one or two entertainments in Paris; after that we went to London just for the end of the season, but it was divine; then to Newport for August, to Lenox for September and October, to Tuxedo for November, and then to New York, where early this month mamma gave a great reception to introduce me. And such a good time as I have had since! I think, after all, it is a good plan to keep girls in the background until they are ready to come out. They enjoy it all the more because every thing is so new."

Certainly, her education has been an unmitigated success. She asked me to come and see her, which I did the next day. She lived in a gorgeous house on Fifth avenue, away up by the park, and I found her in a lovely little nest—her own rooms, a dainty chamber all white and gold, with silver brushes and combs and glasses strewn all over the toilet-table, costly favors, trophies of her many triumphant cotillons decking the walls. Then she had a luxurious little boudoir besides. Her brisk, white-capped maid, a quick-witted Frenchwoman, anticipated her every want. She had but to ask for a thing, and presto! she had it, whatever its price, and it really seemed as if she ought to have been a perfectly happy being.

But ah! The little rift within the lute! She had given her young heart to Philip van Vanderness, who has only $3,000 a year. To attempt matrimony on that meager pittance would be sheer madness, so the fair debutante's papa declares, and he utterly scorns such a parti. The debutante herself knows it to be impossible, and while she tells her impecunious lover that she can never marry any man who hasn't at least an income ten times as large as his she feels that she would rather be less fond of the luxury which has become a necessity to her and be happy in a simple way. That, however, her education had made out of the question.—N. Y. Cor. Providence Journal.

—It was recently decided in England, in a legal contest for the possession of a dead body, that the executors of a dead man's will have the right to the control of the corpse; that therefore, "a man can not lawfully dispose of his body by will or any other instrument." The judge added: "That is a legal conclusion."

ECONOMY IN FUEL.

Scientific Reasons Why Hard Coal Is Really Cheaper Than It Appears.

In all businesses like the coal trade, in which a purchaser simply orders what he wants and has to trust to the honesty of the dealer, he is liable to be the victim of fraudulent practices over which he has practically no control. Do consumers of coal get just weight? is a question often asked. Irrespective of purposed dishonesty in the matter of short weights, are coal dealers strictly honest in allowing their coal to lie out exposed to the weather; or, as is often the case, in turning the hose upon it before delivery? It is no uncommon occurrence for purchasers to find a little stream of water running from the base of their coal heaps shortly after the fuel is delivered. Merely to prevent dust is the reason alleged for this practice. Is this the whole story?

At the instigation of the News, Prof. D. H. Galloway secured a number of samples of different kinds of coal and subjected them to careful tests with a view to ascertaining how largely they were receptive of water. After results had been obtained from the samples in a dry state the coal was placed in water for a short time and again tested. The process employed leaves little room for error or uncertainty as to the percentages obtained.

"Anthracite coal is a poor absorbent of water," said Prof. Galloway, "and if it have a dry appearance the purchaser may be sure he is paying for little water. One sample would yield results that would be typical of most kinds of anthracite coal. I tested a piece of bright, dry, hard coal which I got from Robert Law's yard, and found that it contained 4.7 per cent of water. The same coal, after absorbing all it would, gave 5.92 per cent of water, the sample having been carefully wiped before tested. If not wiped the sample would probably show twice the increase in the amount of water taken up. From two to three per cent, I think, would represent the outside limit of fraud with anthracite coal, and the figures can only be that high when the coal is manifestly wet.

"Cannel coal, too, is a poor absorbent, especially as it comes in large lumps. The specimen I tested was a fair average sample. When dry it was found to contain 1.3 per cent of water, and, after soaking, only 2.4 per cent. I should think the average absorbing qualities of cannel coal and anthracite coal are about equal and that from forty to sixty pounds a ton would be all the weight to be gained by wetting.

"Bituminous coal, however, is another thing. Some of it will take up water like a sponge, and that, too, even though the coal looks bright and hard. Probably 12 per cent. would be about the average amount of water contained by bituminous coals in a dry state. One sample of dry Springfield coal showed 13.2 per cent. of water, and, after, lying two hours in water and being carefully wiped, 16.1 per cent. Another sample of Grape Creek coal yielded 7.5 per cent. of water when dry and 15.13 per cent. after a little soaking. In general terms, I think that most kinds of soft coal can be made by judicious wetting to contain fully 20 per cent. or even more of water. Hence on this cheaper article there is a wider scope for fraudulent practices. Consumers necessarily have to pay for about 200 or 250 pounds of water on the average in every ton of bituminous coal they buy, and it is possible, you see, to double this amount and still have the coal not appear wet.

"The value of all kinds of coal for heating purposes depends upon its carbon, or, in other words, upon the absence of water and ash. I don't think that soft coal usually has more ash than hard coal, but irrespective of its larger per cent. of water there is little economy in its use. The volatile substances that produce the flame have really a higher heating power than pure carbon, fully twice the power. But much of these hydro-carbons escape in the smoke and is thus of no use whatever to the consumer. In a general way we may say that coal that burns with a flame is poor in heating qualities, for the simple reason that the carbon can not be utilized. Hard coal, properly speaking, has no flame, the little blue tongues sometimes seen over the fire pot being almost wholly due to the air.

"Counting the larger scope of fraud in weights, and the impossibility of utilizing the hydro-carbons, I am inclined to think that hard coal for mere purposes of heating is cheap coal. The Springfield coal that had 13.2 per cent. of water when dry and 16.1 when soaked had 4.9 per cent. of ash. The hard coal and cannel coal had 1.6 and 6.4 per cent. of ash respectively. One specimen of Illinois coal had 10.1 per cent. of water and 12.32 of ash. Thus it appears that economy doesn't lie in price per ton merely, but in factors the public rarely stops to think of."—Chicago News.

—Corn Soup: Take one can of sweet corn, one quart of boiling water, one quart of milk, one tablespoonful each of flour and butter, one teaspoonful each of salt and sugar, half a saltspoon of white pepper; chop the corn fine and put in the water with seasoning; let boil half an hour, strain and return to fire; add the milk, the butter and flour stirred smooth, and boil five minutes; serve with crisped crackers.

—It is odd, observes the New York Tribune, that passengers on the elevated roads will twist about, strain their necks, and even rise up from their seats in order to see a clock down on the sidewalk, when they have the correct time in their own watch pockets.

ONLY A NEW YORK NEWSBOY.

But He Was a Knightly Little Gentleman All the Same.

It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at the corner of Thirty-fourth street and Third avenue, a delivery wagon, loaded down with evening papers and drawn by a galloping horse, dashed up to the sidewalk and stopped In a moment it was surrounded with a shouting, struggling crowd of newsboys, as thick as a swarm of flies around a sugar barrel.

Every one of the youngsters tried to get his papers on the instant, for the sooner he got them the more he could sell, and every moment's delay meant the loss of so many pennies.

Passers by stopped and looked on, amused at the struggles of the boys, who were reaching over each other's heads and shoulders to get at the men who sat on the tailboard of the wagon scooping in nickels and handing out piles of papers as fast as they could. The street was full of boys who had got their papers and were scampering off, shouting as they ran, "Extry Telegram!" "Evenin' Sun!" "Newis!" (which is newsboy for Evening News).

A blind man, with cautious steps, and cane outstretched before him, came through Thirty-fourth street and paused on the Third avenue curbstone. He evidently wanted to cross the street, but feared to undertake it alone, for horse cars, trucks, beer wagons and other dangers of the highway were passing in a constant procession. The blind man stood there, his pale, thin face partially turned, with that patient, strained, listening expression that is so pathetic in the blind.

At that moment a newsboy dashed diagonally across the avenue in the direction of the news wagon. He was a bright eyed, wide awake little fellow, and one of his rosy cheeks was almost hidden by a smudge of black. He hadn't bought his papers yet and was behind time. He had nearly reached the wagon when he happened to look back and saw the waiting blind man.

Without a moment's hesitation, and sacrificing his chance to get his papers, he instantly started back. He reached the blind man's side, took him by the arm, said cheerily, "Come along, pop," and had steered him safely across the avenue in a jiffy. Then he ran over to the wagon and bought his "Tellees," after nearly all the other boys had received theirs.

The promptness with which he took in the situation, went to the instant relief of the blind man, letting his own interests go when time was money to him, and the matter of course air with which the thing was done, were simply astonishing. One would have thought he had been waiting for the blind man, and that the whole affair had been prearranged. Perhaps other boys might have shown the same instinctive chivalry, but only a New York street arab would have "tumbled to" the situation as quick as a flash.

Utterly unconscious of having done anything in the least degree remarkable, this little gentleman in rags was hurrying away with his bundle of papers to make up for lost time when I hailed him. I bought two copies of every newspaper he had, gave him a quarter and told him to keep the change.

"What fur?" he demanded, in surprise, and looking at me suspiciously.

"For helping that blind man."

"Who?" he inquired with a puzzled air. The youngster had actually almost forgotten it. "Oh, that duffer! Oh, that's nawthin. S'pose I'd take money for dat!"

And his lip curled contemptuously, and I felt I had done a mean thing and had insulted a gentleman as I meekly permitted him to count seventeen pennies change into my hand.

But he was only a newsboy, and a ragged and dirty one at that.

—The "Missionary World" says: "The Bible carts roll out of Madrid, and in the very Spain whose name is the historic synonym of the Inquisition the people are so clamorous for the Word of God that copies can not be printed fast enough to meet the demand." And the work is in progress in Portugal. In Lisbon there are three Protestant churches, the pastors of which were formerly Roman Catholic priests.

—The "Ten Year Book" of Cornell University, recently published, shows that during the last twenty years the total number of degrees confered was 1,437 and the total number of graduates at 1,352. Of this number 45 are engaged in agriculture, 51 in architecture and building, 5 in art, 23 in banking, 11 in chemistry and assaying, 150 in civil engineering, 246 in education, 30 in electrical engineering, 61 in newspaper work, 245 in law, 25 in manufacturing, 43 in mechanical engineering, 65 in medicine and surgery, 115 in mechanical pursuits, 30 in the ministry, 5 in publishing, 12 in scientific investigation and 65 in study. One hundred and twenty-one are without occupation or unreported.

LITTLE'S

CHEMICAL FLUID

NON-POISONOUS

SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied: a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,

(Poisonous.)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO.

SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.

Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY APRIL 27.....1889

The miners of Virginia City are agitating the question of discontinuing Sunday work. This is a step in the interest of working people. The rich employer can rest any day and it is an outrage against humanity that the poor should not have one day in seven to rest from their toil. It is a rule in the history of labor that the more hours of each day that men work, and the more days of each year, the lower is the rate of daily pay. In England women and children were kept toiling twelve to fourteen hours daily in factories, till Acts of Parliament were passed prohibiting such barbarous slavery. In our own country the working people are expected to protect themselves, and they have power to secure the necessary legislation. Sunday is the poor man's day and he should guard it with jealous care; it is his only protection against toil that would never cease so long as his hands could wield the implements of labor.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles held last week a report was received from a Committee appointed to inquire into the feasibility of building a road up through the Sierra Madre mountains. The report was adopted with the recommendation that the Chamber take action in the near future. The proposed road would connect with the Atlantic & Pacific road at Harper Station. It is also expected that the road will connect with another new road from there to Milford, on the Utah Central railroad. The estimated cost of the projected road, a distance of ninety-seven miles, is $3,500,000, an average of a little over $36,000 per mile.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

MONDAY, April 22d.

Estate of Sherman Stevens, deceased—Filed account of Administrator and petition for distribution. May 4th set for hearing a. m.

TUESDAY, April 23d.

Estate of Duncan Campbell, Jr., deceased—Final account filed and petition for decree assigning estate to widow and child. May 4th set for hearing the same.

THURSDAY, April 25th.

R. F. Brooks examined on charge of insanity and released from custody.

Troublesome Telephones.

While the telephone in the drug store is a useful and essential feature of the business, it is placed there more as an accommodation to the public than as an aid to the druggist. Like the Directory, the telephone has become a pharmaceutical fixture, and no drug store is considered complete without both a telephone and a City Directory. The Directory usually speaks for itself, but not so the telephone. The average lady who comes in to use the instrument is ignorant of its mechanism, and courtesy compels the druggist to assist her if not to do the talking. I never saw a lady yet who could walk in and work the telephone without some assistance.

It is really funny to observe how a lady goes to work at the instrument. If she can call up the party she wishes to talk to, she usually does it in this way, after the connection has been made: "Is that Mr. So and So? No. Won't you please tell him to come to the telephone, I would like to see him a minute?" The lady always wants to "see" the person she desires to talk to, although the person may be miles away. Really, the public has no idea of the time and patience it requires from a druggist to attend to the telephone in his store. Not only does he have to answer thousands of questions for those who come in to use it, but he is expected to receive messages and deliver them to neighbors in his locality. Oh, the telephone is a great institution, but it often makes the druggist wish it had never been invented.—Druggist in Globe-Democrat.

A Very Smart Dog.

"Now, my dog Laddie has got more sense than most men," said a veteran breeder of sheep dogs. "I never had to train him anything. He just took it up natural. One day when he was a pup I called him down to the pasture to help drive up the cows. In less than a week he could fetch 'em to the house by himself. It got so pretty soon that whenever the cows heard me call Laddie they'd start for home full tilt, without waiting for the dog to come.

"Laddie can manage anything on the farm but Molly, my bay mare. He can't drive Molly. When he catches her by the tail she just stands and kicks at him till he lets go. They are always quarreling. She's afraid to wallow when he's around, because he creeps up and bites her on the back. One day she caught him asleep on the front porch. I happened to be sitting out there smoking, where I could see the whole show. She walked up sorter on her tiptoes, as quietly as I could have done it, and got even by taking a handful of hair and a piece of skin out of his side with her teeth. Laddie was the most astonished dog I ever saw. He didn't bark and he didn't whine. He just got up as quick as he could and sneaked under the house. He's meditating some revenge yet. For downright hard sense, give me a collie every time."—New York Tribune.

JIM RILEY'S COME TO TOWN.

Jim Riley's come to town, boys, he's now at Parker's place,
His Hoosier verse to read us, with its quaint and touching grace;
He's billed at Tremont temple—oh, how Browning's stock goes down,
As 'tis repeated on the street, "Jim Riley's come to town!"

How dear his homely measure that is more than wordy art,
And takes the very shortest cut to reach the human heart.
The fashioners of tawdry verse upon his muse may frown;
A fig for all their tinseled phrase—Jim Riley's come to town!

The gold of human nature through his verses glints and shines,
And human heart beats are the stops that punctuate the lines;
Enough the surety that's his of well deserved renown;
Enough of joy for us to know, Jim Riley's come to town.—Boston Budget.

Concerning the Centipede.

The centipedes that live in the United States, certainly the northern states, are for the most part, harmless. But the same cannot be said of multitudes of the race residing in the West Indies and other warm climates. In these places the bite of the centipede is not only very painful, but often dangerous. Like some other animals, the appearance of the centipede is against him.

Centipedes are quite ready to stand on the defensive when they are attacked, and when they consider themselves in danger. Their disposition to bite renders them rather troublesome bedfellows. When they get into a bed, the least movement of the sleeper over whom they may be crawling, and who can hardly fail to be disturbed by their sharp, pointed feet and claws acting on his skin, is almost sure to provoke a venomous bite, which will be frequently repeated if the midnight visitor is not removed from the bed.

The bite of the centipede is exceedingly painful for the moment, and is followed, unless the wound is taken care of in season, by great inflammation and high fever. If the insect is a large one, and the bite is severe, life is not infrequently lost, especially if the patient is of a delicate constitution.

Bishop Heber speaks of centipedes as being very large and poisonous in different parts of India. These insects have occasionally been brought to this country in cargoes of hides from countries where they are abundant, and where their bite is poisonous. Some years since, a man who was employed in unloading a vessel in Boston, lost his life in consequence of a bite received from a centipede brought to the country in this way.—Boston Budget.

Malicious—Tell me, is your wife curious.

"She? I really believe she came into the world only out of pure curiosity."—Fliegende Blaetter.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH
Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.
O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

$903 Sewing-Machine FREE To at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send FREE to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send FREE a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who call at your home, and after 3 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out; before patents run out it sold for $903, with the attachments, and now sells for $35.50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure FREE the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Wheeler & Wilson
Sewing Machine.
New No. 8.
"THE BEST!"
Sales Made on Installment Plan.
Oil Machines Exchanged for
Farm Produce Taken in Payment.
This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really
First-Class Machine.
Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.
I. H. MULHOLLAND,
Agent.
Independence, Cal.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
b4761tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad
These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.
THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.
Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANO, Prop.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.
Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.
All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.
JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.
Shaving, Hair Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

BUDDING, GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING
Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.
CHAS. F. CUSACK,
j12-tf Independence, Cal.

PROPOSALS FOR BOARDING INYO COUNTY PRISONERS.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, at the office of the County Clerk until Tuesday, May 7, 1889, at 12 o'clock M., for the boarding of Inyo county prisoners, for the term of one year, beginning May 10th 1889 and ending May 10th, 1890; said bids to designate the price per diem for each prisoner, and said board to be paid for by warrants drawn upon the General Expense Fund, upon bills duly verified and presented at the regular meetings of said Board of Supervisors.

Proposals must be endorsed "Proposals for Boarding County Prisoners," and the same will be opened between the hours of one o'clock and four o'clock P. M. on said 7th day of May, 1887, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
P. H. MACK,
Clerk.

Proposals for Care of Indigent Sick of Inyo County.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, at the office of the County Clerk until 12 o'clock M., on Tuesday, May 7th, 1889, for a contract for the care of said indigent sick for the term of one year from May 10th 1889 to May 10th, 1890, said bids to designate the amount for which parties contracting will care for said indigent sick on the basis of an average of four patients per day throughout the year, and to include all medicine, nursing, board, lodging and washing. Said bids to include the burial and funeral expenses of any indigent sick person or persons who may die while under such care.

Said contractor to care for all the indigent sick properly admitted to the contractor's care. And said bids to designate the price per head at which all excess of patients over the average of four each day throughout the year will be cared for, said excess to be paid for by extra allowance on presentation of bills duly sworn to, at the regular meeting of said Board immediately after said contract has expired. The average four per day to be paid for at the regular meetings of the Board on presentation of bills duly verified. All payments to be made by warrants drawn upon the Hospital Fund of said county.

The person or persons to whom said contract shall be awarded shall give a good and sufficient bond in double the sum of the contract price, for the faithful performance of said contract.

The care and management of said indigent sick by such contractor shall be at all times subject to the inspection of said Board of Supervisors, or any member thereof, or any person appointed by the Board for such purpose.

Said proposals must be endorsed, "Proposals for Care of Indigent Sick," and the same will be opened between the hours of one o'clock and four o'clock P. M., on the said 7th day of May, 1889, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
P. H. MACK,
Clerk.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO lodge No. 341, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.
B. RUSE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

Business for Sale.
A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL,
Bishop Creek.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.
Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly.—Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.
A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.
TRADE MARKS.
In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & Co., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.
COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address
MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors,
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N. Y.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City,
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Notice for Proposals

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on the 6th day of February 1889, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed plans and specifications for a proposed new bridge across Owens River, to be erected on or near the site of Big Pine bridge, up to 12 o'clock M., May 7th, 1889.

The same will be opened between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day.

Said plans and specifications must be endorsed: "Plans and specifications for bridge across Owens River on or near the site of Big Pine bridge."

The right is reserved to reject any and all plans and specifications.
P. H. MACK,
Clerk of Board of Supervisors.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL
OFFICE IN GELUCH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - - Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.
FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Free Bus To and From The Cars

IRVING J. WOODIN, M.D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mananita's Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones, Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.
CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED
About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to
JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE
GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in fact, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
sept1tf CROCKER BROS., Props.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
C. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.
Horseshoeing.....$2 50 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Deep SEA WONDERS exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallet and Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day. All succeed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Tuesday, April 1tOh, 1888.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....	9 15 a. m		5 35 p. m.
Layton.....	10 45 a. m.		4 35 p. m.
Wabuska	12 45 a. m		2 25 p. m.
Hawthorne	4 50 p. m.		10 40 a. m.
Luning.....	5.50 p. m.		9 20a. m.
Sodа Springs.....	7 00 p. m.		8.10 a. m.
Belleville.....	8 10 p. m.		7.05 a. m.
Candelaria.....	Ar. 8.50 p. m		Lv. 6.30 a. m.
	No. 3.		No. 4.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Belleville.....	7 30 a. m.		5.25 p. m.
Benton	11 00 a. m		1.45 p. m.
Basin Creek	1 10p. m.		11:30 a. m.
Alvord.....	2.00 p. m		10 35 a. m.
Independence.....	3 30 p. m.		9.05 a. m.
Lone Pine.....	4 15 p. m.		8.15 a. m.
Keeler.....	Ar 5.05 p. m.		Lv. 7:30 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salisbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
Customers supplied on all points
Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law,
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRANT OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, APRIL 27.... 1889

MARRIED.

HOPKINS—MCARTHUR—At Bishop, April 20, 1889, by Rev. Andrew Clark, John Hopkins and Margaret McArthur.

DIED.

THOMAS—At Big Pine, April 24, 1889, Mrs. R. W. Thomas.

The Independence public school closed this week.

Mrs. Mary Compbell was down from Tibbetts last Monday.

Pat. Clinton came in from Darwin on Thursday to spend a few days in town.

Mr. John White, of San Francisco, has been at Independence since last Monday.

Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald has come in from Lookout to spend the summer at Lone Pine.

W. K. Miller, of Lone Pine, has several men at work taking out ore in a mine at Beveridge.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Boland have gone on a trip to Los Angeles, where they will remain some weeks.

Frank Fitzgerald went out to Lookout last Tuesday. He had been at Lone Pine for some days.

H. H. Spear arrived at Independence last Monday with a big load of freight for merchants at Bishop.

George Lewis came up from Darwin on Tuesday. He has been mining there for several months past.

Mr. James McDonald, Superintendent of the Defiance mine, returned last Monday from a trip to San Francisco.

Miss Emma Taylor, of Gridley, Butte county, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. H. J. Robinson, at Georges Creek.

A fine prairie schooner was delivered at Alvord last Monday for conveying borax from the new works in Saline Valley to the railroad.

Stephen Decker has set out a vineyard of considerable extent at Lone Pine. The locality has been proven suitable for the production of very fine wine.

R. F. Brooks, of Round Valley, was reported to be insane and Under-Sheriff Williams went up last Wednesday and brought him to Independence for examination.

In the country south of Darwin, about Riley and beyond, quite a number of prospectors are at work. Several of them have good claims and are getting out some fine ore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McGee, of Pleasant Valley, stayed over night at Independence and left on Monday morning for Santa Cruz. They went south by private conveyance.

John Schober got in last Tuesday from Mojave with a load of general merchandise. Much of it was for Mr. L. Wood, of Independence. Mr. Wood gives all the support he can to the teams.

Malcolm M. Glenn has become insane and has been committed to the Asylum at Stockton. The unfortunate man lived at Independence five years ago and since then has resided at San Bernardino.

The Academy at Bishop has more students now than at any other time since it was opened. Mr. and Mrs. Logan have won the confidence and esteem of the people and proven their ability as teachers.

Good progress is being made with the artesian well at Blackrock. To a depth of about forty feet boulders of lava were encountered and progress was slow. Now the drill is in better ground and is going down rapidly.

Lank & Kehoe have the finest young orchard around Independence. The cherry and peach trees are heavily loaded with their first crop. Many of their apple trees are beginning to bear. The orchard was set out two years ago.

There will be a meeting of the stockholders of the Carson & Colorado railroad in Hawthorne on the 9th of May for the purpose of electing directors to serve for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

The Governor has appointed Elijah Robinson, of Independence, and Finley McIver, of Citrus, Directors of Agricultural District No. 18. The former to succeed Nathan Rhine and the latter to succeed Harvey Boone, both of whose terms had expired.

Easter Sunday was celebrated at the Academy at Bishop by a service of song and readings from Scripture and many secular authors. The programme was very interesting and attracted a large audience. All present evidently found hearty enjoyment in the service.

It is said that many a shapely leg owed its symmetry to sawdust. A dusky Indian beauty beats that out of the field. A few days ago one of these was stretched in blissfull repose by the side of the road at Independence, her stocking nicely padded with a bottle of whisky.

A severe drought prevails in Eastern Nevada. Cattle men are gathering up their herds and driving them out of the country as rapidly as possible. It is feared that many cattle will perish. The streams and springs are reported to be lower now than is usual in August and there is no snow on the mountains.

Bishop is sure to have one of the finest race tracks in the State. A great deal of work has been done upon it and is still being continued. The track is made as level as a house floor and is solid, yet springy. The curves are raised a little on the outside and every other improvement is made that experience suggests.

Rev. J. H. De La Matyr left Bishop last Monday on a tour among the various charges of the Methodist Church east of the Sierra mountains. His trip will be extended north nearly to the border of Oregon, and will occupy many weeks. He travels by private conveyance, and will go over many hundreds of miles, much of the way through very sparsely settled country.

MINING ITEMS.

Last week when sinking on a lead vein at the White Hill Barnes & Kehoe encountered quartz. The seam is about two feet wide and was taken out to give room. After a good deal of the quartz had been thrown over the dump Kehoe happened to pick up a piece of the rock and saw gold in it. Further investigation showed that the ore thrown away carried gold. Many samples have since been caushed in a morter and prospected and all of them carry gold in big paying quantity. A shaft is now down on the ledge to a distance of thirty-eight feet and the ledge gives evidence of widening out as it goes down. A thin seam of clay divides the quartz from the lead vein, and this is about three feet wide, being a mixture of clay and seams of lead. Some of the ore is carbonate of silver. The location of the mine is such as to afford the best possible facilities for working; the mountain is very steep and short tunnels would tap the ledge at great depths. A tramway and wire cable would deliver the ore at the foot of the mountain, where there is a big water power in the Eastside canal which would work a mill of any desired capacity and the ore could be worked at small cost.

Dunphy & O'Keefe have struck a big vein of ore at Cerro Gordo. The mine is an extension of the Union ledge, which yielded many millions of dollars in former years. The vein is described as being three feet wide of solid galena and is opened a considerable distance. Thirty tons of ore was recently sent to be tested at the Reno reduction works. The ore can be taken out in large quantities and very easily. There is every indication that this is likely to prove as big an ore body as the great find in the Union mine; and should it prove to be it will make a big stir in the country. The entire claim is owned in equal parts by Hon. P. Reddy, Jack Dunphy and Dennis O'Keefe. The mine may, and we hope it will, make them all millionaires.

A. J. Davis has a lot of ore from the Montezuma mine ready for work at the Maxim mill. There is a very large amount of ore in the mine that can be got out at a trifling cost per ton. This ore carries a high percentage of sulphurets that are rich in gold. Hitherto the gold could not be worked to advantage for want of machinery to concentrate, though sulphurets taken out near the water level in the mine assayed several hundred dollars per ton. The ledge is such that ore can be taken out as easily as from an open quarry, and if the concentrating process proves successful Mr. Davis has a good thing in the mine.

The Hope mine, near Maxim, is showing up a good ledge of gold bearing ore. The "pay streak" is two and a half to three feet thick and carries all the way from ten to fifty dollars per ton. A shaft is down ninety feet on the ledge; the walls are smoothe and solid; there is a clay gouge between the ore and the walls and every indication of an extensive ore body. On the surface the ledge crops out a long distance on each side of the shaft. Sulphurets taken from the greatest depth yet been reached in the mine carry three hundred dollars per ton in gold. The parties interested in the mine know its value and are amply able to control and work it.

At the Minnietta mine, Lookout District, a good paying business is done in working over tailings from the mill. The pile of tailings is estimated to contain about 4,000 tons. The stuff carries 17 ozs. silver per ton and 40 per cent. lead. The lead hinders the silver from amalgamating. Recently machines were put in operation that separate most of the lead from the tailings; the lead is then worth enough to pay all expenses of the operation and leaves a profit of about $3.50 per ton. After this operation the silver amalgamates readily and about 82 per cent. of the assay value is recovered. The parties who are operating say it pays very well.

For some time past John Barnes, of Keeler, has had men working a mine adjoining the Lucky Jim, at Darwin. A few days ago a body of ore was struck in the mine. It will take some time to determine how extensive the deposite is. The ore from the Lucky Jim and the Christmas Gift mines run above the average ores of the district in value, often going several hundred dollars per ton. This last find is certain to be of the same quality as the ore from the other two mines.

Jerry Fitzgerald recently found some immensely rich ore in Lee District. One chunk of the ore is almost pure silver; the metal can be cut in shavings with a pocket knife, and these will curl over like wood shavings. Jerry says that one ton of such ore would make him a nice little stake. Several miners have gone out from Darwin to look at Jerry's claim and they all seem to think he has a good thing.

The Pamlico mine, near Hawthorne, is producing some wonderfully rich ore. Recently a sack weighing one hundred and twenty-four pounds yielded $8,200. Seven sacks yielded $14,000. The vein is thin and the ore is found in bunches. The mine is owned by Messrs. Knapp and Forbes and has already paid them a large amount.

Bush and Lent have a good body of ore in the Alvord mine, near Big Pine. The ore prospects high in free gold. As soon as the concentrator is ready for work at the Maxim mill a lot of the ore will be worked. In addition to free gold the ore carries a great deal of sulphurets, and the gold in this would be lost unless concentrated.

Several mines over about Lookout are reported to be turning out a good deal of ore. From the St. John mine teams are now hauling ore to Keeler the amount of a carload each train. The ore is reported to carry 102 ozs. silver per ton and forty per cent. lead. Gunn & Fitzgerald are the owners of the St. John mine.

Hon. A. J. Gould is taking out ore from the Gypsy Queen mine, at Darwin.

A skilled druggist and a good stock of drugs and medicines are necessary in every community. Mr. H. E. Wright, of Bishop, is just such a druggist and keeps just such a stock. Orders for any goods in his line, or for any prescription of drugs or medicines, will be promptly and carefully filled. All medicines and drugs are of the best quality and will be supplied at a very slight advance over San Francisco prices. Send your orders to Mr. Wright and give him a trial.

The beet sugar factory established at Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, appears to be a success. Mr. Spreckels reports that last season the factory gave a profit of $30,000, or $18.20 per ton of sugar produced. The farmers were paid $71,000 for beets and $20,000 was paid for labor. The cost of the sugar when manufactured is reported at $83 per ton, or four cents per pound.

Business Men of Bishop

For many years we have been acquainted with Asher Cohn. Few men have better qualities of head and heart than he. In a successful business career of about twenty years in Plumas county he never made an enemy. Since coming to Inyo county his history is the same.

W. O. Meroney has been in business many years in Inyo county. He came here when a very young man and by close attention to business and honorable conduct has won a high position as a merchant and as a man.

Mr. H. E. Wright came into this county from Bodie. He has not been here very long, but long enough to establish a reputation that any young man may be proud of. He is a well trained, skilful druggist and an excellent man of business.

Given & Ingalls have long been in business as merchants at Candelaria. More recently the Firm established a business at Bishop, of which Mr. Given has charge. The firm does a large business in farm produce, as well as in general merchandise, and have a full measure of public confidence.

J. E. Dunlap is a skilful harness maker and successful dealer in all kinds of harness and saddles. No business man in Bishop is more respected than he is.

No town can prosper without ample and good hotel accommodation. Mr. O. H. Hill did good service to Bishop when he moved there from Bodie and put up a fine large hotel. The house is well provided with comforts and conveniences; every visitor is well received and all go away highly pleased with the treatment given them by the landlord and his assistants.

If landlord Hill is ready to feed the hungry Munzinger & Phillippay never turn anybody away thirsty. They make good beer and, money or no money, every thirsty soul can moisten his clay at the Bavaria Brewery.

There is much beautiful scenery and many fine drives about Bishop and Mr. Robert O'Neal is ever ready to furnish visitors with gentle, though fast traveling teams and saddle horses, or to take the best of care of horses left at his stable.

From all of which it is plain that Bishop has live, wide-awake business men who know the value of advertising in a good local paper.

Pay for the Music.

Though it is to be greatly doubted if the Supervisors will feel justified in taking a thousand dollars from the county treasury and giving it to the Board of Trade to be spent in advertising, it may be true that in the end money so spent would benefit the county very much. There is a way, however, in which the money might be raised. It will be admitted that those who have most to gain by advertising should bear the heaviest part of the expense. During the past two years thousands of acres of land have been located in Owens Valley by men who do not live in Inyo county, who have no other property here, and who do not bear the least part of the burden of taxation of the county. Many of these locators have not spent a dollar in the county, do not mean to, and only made their locations in the hope that others would use toil and money in making improvements that would make their locations valuable. This class of locators will gain most by every effort made to improve the county. There are so many such locators that among them a thousand dollars would be a trifle to each and surely they ought to be willing to contribute that trifle when they have the assurance of so respectable a body as the State Board of Trade that the profit to result from advertising will vastly exceed the outlay. The INDEPENDENT has for five long years been engaged in advertising the county, and is not yet wearied of so doing; now let outsiders, who expect to benefit by all that has been done, contribute a little to do the same.

The Searles Borax Works.

Searls' borax works are a big institution. The buildings cover about two acres of land and are located in San Bernardino county, a little south of the Inyo county line. The borax field appears to be inexhaustible. When a crop of borax is gathered, at the end of a year the same ground can be gone over again and the supply is renewed and as great as at first. In boring for artesian water a large vein of borax was passed through at a depth of tree hundred feet. At the works are machine shops, blacksmith, carpenter and cooper shops. Everything from a fish hook to a prairie schooner can be made at the works. Water for domestic use is conveyed seven miles in pipes from the mountains; the quality is excellent and the supply abundant. Within the limit of Inyo county a tract of land is cultivated that yields an abundant supply of fruits and vegetables. Oranges and bananas are grown. A visitor who was recently at the works says that a thermometer exposed to the sun showed a temperature of one hundred and forty. The buildings at the works are constructed so as to secure as much comfort as possible in a warm climate. From the works to Mojave the distance is eighty miles.

R. F. Brooks was examined last Thursday morning for insanity by Drs. Woodin before Judge Hannah. The Judge decided that the man was not insane and he was discharged. It is alleged that the charge of insanity was prompted by a party who wants to get possession of the business and property of Mr. Brooks. Mrs. Brooks and her father, a man named Sherwin, testified at the examination. The wife wept bitterly and wanted to take her husband home with her, but her father objected and they went off without him.

A letter written at Wadsworth, Nevada, last Tuesday says the outlook for farmers and stockmen is very gloomy. The writer of the letter has lived in Nevada since early days and says he never saw such discouraging circumstances for the country as at present. The drought is already severely felt and every hoof of stock is being driven away as fast as possible to Idaho, Montana, or wherever there is a chance to find feed and water. Circumstances are different in Owens Valley; here we have an abundance of water, crops never looked better, and there is a fine growth of grass all over the pasture lands.

Large quantities of lumber are being delivered at Keeler for additional buildings at the soda works. The machinery for refining the soda works perfectly and soda of superior quality to any other in the market is now being produced. This will grow to be one of the largest industries not only of Inyo county but of the State. It is evident that the Company intends to increase the capacity of the works so as to supply the market of the entire United States. They can readily do so, as the source of supply is inexhaustible and the facilities for manufacturing unequalled.

It is not a practice of the INYO INDEPENDENT to indulge in puffing itself. The paper is run with the constant aim to benefit the whole county and it rests with the people to decide if it is worthy of praise or blame. This week we will be excused for referring to the advertising columns as a proof of the estimation in which the paper is held by the leading business men of the county.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken acceptible to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

E. H. Edwards,

—DEALER IN—

General Merchandise,

LONE PINE,

INYO COUNTY . . . CALIFORNIA.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 29 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fee, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL)

P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o 51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,
Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.

Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated March 20th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,
Administrator of the estate of John B. White, deceased.

A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1819 1889

I. O. O. F.

—THE—

70th Anniversary

Celebration

—OF THE—

Independent Order

—OF—

-:ODD FELLOWS:-

—AT—

INDEPENDENCE

Friday, Apr. 26, 1889

—UNDER THE AUSPICES OF—

Inyo Lodge No. 301

—AND—

Bishop Lodge No. 332

PARADE!
ORATION!
BALL!

Orator.....P. W. FORBES, ESQ.
President of the Day..E. ROBINSON

—INVITATION COMMITTEE—

ROUND VALLEY—C. F. Wildassinn, H. Evans.

BISHOP—I. P. Yaney, Wm. J. Dunn, J. L. Bourland, J. H. Bulpitt, Andrew Dell, Wm McDonald.

LAWS—F. K. Andrews,

BIG PINE—S. G. Gregg, L. M. Newman.

FISH SPRINGS—N. E. Conklin, J. Shoemaker.

INDEPENDENCE—J. D. Blair, D. Crough, J. R. Eldred, J. Alexander, A. Stecker.

GEORGES CREEK—J. E. Shepherd, H. J. Robinson.

LONE PINE—R. C. Spear, S. Decker, John Anton.

KEELER—T. C. Boland, B. F. Gray, C. J. Schatten, S. Levy.

DARWIN—Geo. Lewis, P. Clinton, A. G. McGovern.

LOOKOUT—J. D Channell.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

A. R. Conklin, W. W. Woodruff, P. H. Mack, Wells Barnes, Henry Thomsen.

FLOOR MANAGERS.

Bertrand Rhine, P. P. Keough

FLOOR COMMITTER.

J. W. Murphy, C. W. Craig, J. E. Shepherd, N. E. Conklin.

BALL TICKETS, $3.00

Supper at the Norman House.

EVERYBODY WELCOME.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 256 pages, 8½x11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S

Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S STORE

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,

NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sep1tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00

REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $5.00

Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to

HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide. 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, SPORTSLAND, Mo., writes: "I stand up and say that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than 50 acres in cultivation. If you will set up any instrument that will take as much labor off men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, if I had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."

JOHN R. DOBBS, JR., jeweler, Normal, Ills., writes: "You ask me what I think of the Washer I bought last summer. Let it be the best machine ever invented by man. P.S. We have just as good dinners on Mondays as any other day, Sd. If you can't see, you can not buy ours for $5."

I will ship a sample to those desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best value in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Payable agents big money. Write for particulars.

J. WORTH, 1710 Franklin Ave., St. Louis.

THE LOST ATLANTIS.

For many centuries there has been a tradition of a long lost island called Atlantis.

The Greek geographers located it in the Atlantic Ocean, west of the northwest part of Africa and the Pillars of Hercules. The sea-kings of Atlantis are said to have invaded Europe and Africa, and to have been defeated by the Athenians.

All the legends agree that it was a vast island, of inexhaustible resources, and inhabited by a race of superior people. For ages this island has existed only in legendary lore. But now, when the light of modern research is turned full upon the investigation, behold the lost Atlantis at our very doors.

So the bigoted medical fraternity goes groping about in the dark, seeking for an Atlantis or Esculapius, when if they would investigate, they would behold the lost Atlantis at their very door. With their ancient text book, a case of physic, a paper in their waistcoat giving them license to practice, experiment and dose with their injurious drugs, cauterize and perform unnecessary acts, with no person or laws to hold them accountable, they continue their bigoted, unjustified practice, staring into vacancy, and imagining that they see in themselves an Esculapius.

Wrapped in ancient bigotry, they are crying out against all improvements that have been made in medical science. They denounce any new idea advanced by a layman or an opposition school as a fraud.

Why?

Because humanity will not be benefited? Not at all, but because their specialism did not make the discovery.

Yet they concede that there is no remedy known to their materia medica that will cure an advanced kidney malady and the diseases arising therefrom—although many of them know from crowning proof that Warner's Safe Cure will—but unscrupulously treat symptoms and call them a disease, when in reality they know they are but symptoms.

A few of the more honest physicians admit that Warner's Safe Cure is a valuable remedy, and a great blessing to mankind, but say, in so many words, when asked why they do not prescribe it, that they cannot, according to their code.

Nevertheless, the world is fast becoming satisfied that the cure for kidney and liver diseases, in whatever form or condition, has been discovered, and there is no doubt but what Warner's Safe Cure and its fame will live long after such bigotry as we have instanced is dead and buried.

The late eminent physician and writer, Dr. J. G. Holland, published in "Scribner's Monthly," and showed his opinion of such bigotry, and no doubt was satisfied that Atlantis might possibly be discovered in a proprietary medicine, when he wrote editorially, as follows:

"Nevertheless, it is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day were more successful than many of the physicians, and most of them, it should be remembered, were first discovered or used in actual medical practice. When, however, any shrewd person, knowing their virtue, and foreseeing their popularity, secures and advertises them, then, in the opinion of the bigoted, all virtue went out of them."

—Better a little wit to lift the latch than the strength of an ox to force the gate.

—There is nothing like running for office to cure a man of undue self-esteem.

—The man with polished manners rubs along easily through the world; but it is because he rubs that he is polished.

—If you can quietly wait while the pearl is made you will gain the pearl plus its value ten thousand times, viz., patience.

—Life is not long enough to spend a portion of it in scolding. John Wesley said he would no more scold than blaspheme. He considered them equal sins.

—There is no talent so useful towards rising in the world, or which puts men more out of the reach of fortune, than discretion, a species of lower prudence. —Swift.

THE MONEY IS HERE.

It Has Been Placed to the Bank Account of the Lucky Holders of 25,215.

The large bundle of money (15,000) recently drawn in the Louisiana State Lottery by Titusville parties arrived by express yesterday, and the amount quartered among the four lucky guessers, each receiving $3,749, minus his share of the expenses of collecting. The sharers in this prize will never know for certain which of them held the lucky twentieth of the magic No. 25,215, the ticket which drew the $300,000.

Ed. Bartholomew, one of the four gentlemen, said to a Herald reporter last night, "It makes no difference about who would have gotten the lucky number had we each placed our dollar separately. We pooled our issues and one of the four tickets purchased by us jointly, got there.

"The money comes in handy so far as I am concerned and I guess that's about the case with the other three gentlemen interested. I consider the game fair and square in every respect and not one whit worse than buying and selling oil on margins or many other similar modes of money making and losing. It was by accident and more for the fun and novelty of the thing that we four went in, than anything else, and I for one am far from being sorry for my action.

"Yes, I've ventured in once or twice before and before the last windfall which is so much talked about, I was ahead of the game." Mr. Bartholomew displayed a wonderful amount of light-heartedness while being talked to regarding the matter and a few moments later as the newspaper man was chewing his lonely midnight sandwich he could not prevent his thoughts from straying to the subject of the $3,000 pull and what a pleasant feeling it must be to grab on to so large a bundle in such short order and for the small sum of a dollar bill.—Titusville, (Pa.) Herald, Feb. 28.

A SUCCSSFUL INSTITUTION.

The PACIFIC BANK, of San Francisco, is one of the few successful institutions. It owes its splendid reputation to the fact that Dr. R. H. McDonald, as its President, has never entered into any speculations. He has never swerved from the straight forward cause, which gives the public that confidence which all banks should inspire.

ALLEN GRAY

—— OR, ——

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

Should I be discovered here it would be fatal to my plans—plans which are more than life to me."

What were the plans to which she alluded? Doubtless some request—some simple service she wished him to perform for her. Knowing that one so pure and noble as she could not make an evil request, he resolved to do her bidding.

"Have no fears to speak boldly to me," said Allen. "Your wishes, if in my power, shall be granted."

"Can you leave the village?" she asked.

Starting in amazement, the astonished editor gazed at her for a moment, repeating:

"Leave the village?"

"I mean only temporarily—for two or three days at the longest."

"Y-y-yes, I can—and—and I will if it is necessary."

"It is necessary. Some one must go, and I can trust no one but yourself."

"Where do you wish me to go?"

"Do you know where the French settlement or French town is?"

"I have heard of it, and can find it very easily. It is about fifty miles down the river."

"Yes, sir; it is fully that far," the girl answered, gathering up the folds of her apron in her embarrassment and with nervous fingers folding them down into little plaits.

"What am I to do when I get there?" Allen asked.

"You are to go to the house of Mademoiselle Camille," said the girl, still hesitating to make her request fully known.

"Am I to take a message to her?" asked Allen.

"You are to take a child," said the girl, slowly turning her great blue eyes upon him.

Amazement, wonder and curiosity were raging like so many fires in Allen's breast.

"A child?" he gasped.

"Yes, sir; a little boy six years old."

"When am I to start?"

"This very night."

Could he believe his senses? Was all this a strange, wild dream from which he would awake before he knew how it all came out, or was it indeed a reality?

In his helpless bewilderment he asked himself what this child was to the people of the French settlement. Could he be accused of kidnaping for secretly undertaking this task? While all these conflicting thoughts were surging like a tempest in his mind, he vividly recalled the remark of Toney Barnes a few weeks before. Toney, shaking his head in his weird manner, said:

"Never trust yourself in the power of those people. I tell ye the whole family is blighted by a curse. No good ever come to any one who had any thing to do with 'em. If you ever befriend one o' 'em in any way you'll repent it the longest day you live. They're a blighting curse to anybody who has any thing whatever to do with 'em."

Somehow the young editor could not help asking himself if he had fallen under this blighting curse. Was he to be only one more victim to the strange mystery of Turley's Point? Then his eyes fell upon the pale, sweet face of the anxious girl, and he knew she was no siren, charming him to destruction. With determination in his voice he said:

"If you say for me to go to-night I will go."

The girl who, during the moment's silence had been sitting, her face burning with eagerness, now grew brighter as she returned:

"It must be to-night, Mr. Gray; to-morrow will be too late."

"How am I to go, by the river?"

"No, on horseback."

"I do not know that I can get a horse."

"One will be furnished you."

Then another short silence ensued. She seemed waiting to gather up her thoughts. From her breathless exhaustion it was evident that she had come very rapidly from the great house to the village.

Her agitation became less as she recovered from her exertion, and now she was almost as much composed as she had ever been. Gazing at him with intense eagerness, she began giving her instructions.

"As soon as I am gone," she said, in a clear, steady voice, "go to the spring where you found the locket. There you will find a horse saddled and equipped, tied to a tree just back of the old rustic seat. He is the best roadster in the whole country, and will carry you safely to the end of your journey without stopping. The poor child is deaf and dumb, but he is very patient and will give you little or no trouble. Allen was disappointed to learn of the child's affliction, for some how he thought the little prattler would, on this long, lonely ride, unravel to him some of the mystery of the stone house on the hill.

"Where will I find the child?" he asked.

"Untie the horse and bring him back to the road which leads up to the stone house on the hill, and there will be an old negro woman waiting for you with the child. When she gives it to you, lose no time in your flight. Do not think this an easy task you are undertaking, Mr. Gray, or that it is unattended with danger. There is danger of which you can have no knowledge. The journey is hazardous, and may cost you your life."

"Danger shall not deter me for a single moment," said Allen, his bosom heaving with uncontrollable emotions. "I am acting in a just cause in serving you; I know it is right or you would not have imposed the task on me."

The girl had risen to her feet, and when she heard his noble voice, so full of faith and trust, she extended her hands toward him, while her beautiful face glowed with gratitude.

"Thank you! Oh, may Heaven reward you for saying that. I had almost come to the conclusion that I would never see another man whom I could trust. I am thankful that I was in error, and it is with the greatest joy that I have put that feeling forever out of the way."

She unconsciously seized his hand, sending such a thrill through Allen's frame at the touch that he seemed electrified.

"Bertha—Bertha!" he involuntarily and almost unconsciously cried. "What is it all? What is all this mystery surrounding you? Forgive my inquisitiveness. I feel as if our destinies are one."

"Hush, hush!" she cried, starting back and gazing in terror at the door. "You know not what you say—you can not!"

"You misunderstand me, Bertha," he hoarsely whispered, while a cold fear seemed creeping over his heart almost choking his utterance. "You know not the motive that prompts the question. It is a personal interest in yourself and not idle curiosity. This mystery is doubtless a family affair which you would very properly keep from the eyes of the world. Again I assure you 'tis not idle curiosity that prompts me to lift the mystic veil; it is that I may help you in your distress, for—oh, Bertha, I—I—love you!"

What a shriek of horror she uttered and how she shrank trembling from head to foot from him! Then, wringing her hands in silent agony, she gazed so wildly at him that he began to fear she had suddenly been seized by a fit of madness. Spellbound and speechless for several minutes both stood glaring at each other.

"Bertha—Miss Collins!" he at last said, in a very penitent voice, "forgive me! Forget all that I have said. I will serve you without making any further inquiries, and, be the errand to the grave, I am ready to go."

Slowly she opened the door, and turning her white sad face toward him, faintly said:

"Adieu!"

"Farewell!" His voice was as faint and sad as hers. They were parting, perhaps forever, yet she was doubly dear to him now. That crushing weight upon his heart seemed almost unbearable.

He wrote a few lines to the foreman, leaving some instructions in regard to the business, stating that he would return in three or four days, and then prepared for that mysterious journey.

CHAPTER XII.

A LONG DARK RIDE.

All necessary arrangements having been completed, Allen Gray left his office, and passing through the dark, silent village, entered the old, long-deserted turnpike. Pausing on the hill-top he instinctively gazed down on Turley's Point, now buried in slumber. He almost wished that he could run away from the toils and vexations that had harrassed him ever since that morning when the steamer brought him to the landing. Oh, to be free from the bitter envy and jealousies which were blighting the village.

He was engaging in a mysterious undertaking, and really knew no cause for the journey. Halting a second time on his way up the hill, he said:

"Why am I going? Her conduct has been very unnatural from the first, and I may be following the mad ravings of a maniac. But no—there is some powerful cause that induced her to ask my assistance in this. That afflicted child is very dear to her. I promised aid in taking him to a place of safety, and I will keep my promise even though the heavens fall!

Wending his way along the road, now almost overgrown with weeds and bushes, he felt a recurrence of that superstitious dread which had almost overcome him on a former occasion. He vainly fought against it, yet, by more than superhuman power, he managed to keep his feelings in subjection.

At last the spring was reached, and he found the horse tied as had been represented. The noble animal, as if aware of the journey before him, stamped in his impatience to be on the road.

He unfastened the horse, and, vaulting in the saddle, the spirited animal, as light and free as the woodland breeze, flitted along the dark winding path to the turnpike.

A dark figure, leading a child so completely wrapped up that he could not at first distinguish its features, came up to him. Bending low in his saddle, Allen lifted the little boy to the horse's back and seated the child before him. The old negro woman, thrusting into his hand a sealed note, murmured the name of Mademoiselle Camille.

"Am I to give her this?" he asked.

"Oui, monsieur!" she answered.

"Too bad, too bad!" said Allen, thrusting the note into his pocket, as his horse started down the road. "Every one connected with this confounded mystery is either dumb or speaks some foreign language except Bertha, who refuses to reveal any thing."

The child proved to be a very patient little fellow, and sat silently in front of Allen. Fearing that some of the villagers might be awake and that they would see him, Allen, after cantering gaily down the old turnpike to the bottom of the hill, turned aside and rode around Turley's Point, entering the road two miles beyond it.

Knowing his danger he became quite nervous. Every sound emitted from that dark wood he construed into a pursuer. From those dark recesses he seemed to ever see the frightfully stern visage of the tall, dark man at the chateau. The demoniacal smile of triumph on his dark visage bode no good to the horseman and his young charge. The face followed him everywhere. It peered at him from the fence corners, or hedge-rows, or the orchard beyond; wherever he went, that revengeful face followed him.

Down a long lane, through a forest, across a bridge and up a hill the noble steed, bearing his double burden, galloped. The child was so still and quiet that Allen thought he must be asleep. It was not until he attempted to change his position that he found him awake. He turned his great blue eyes in mute wonder and appeal to his guide and companion.

"AM I TO GIVE HER THIS?" HE ASKED.

"Poor child," said Allen. "I wonder if he knows where he is going, or what is to be his fate when he gets there? I wish his speaking and hearing faculties were as clear as his big blue eyes, I would fathom this mystery. Yes, I am mean enough to pump a child to find this out."

The mystery of Turley's Point had baffled the shrewdest and most inquisitive of the village. Even Allen's daring was defied by it, until he had become desperate.

It was one of those calm, quiet starlight summer nights, and had it not been for the constant strain upon his nerves, Allen would have found the riding pleasant. The moon did not rise until well on towards morning, and the fore part of the night was quite dark, especially when passing through the forests.

While galloping along a wooded ridge Allen heard the sounds of horses' hoofs in the rear.

"Are we pursued?" he asked himself.

He soon became certain that the horseman was gaining on them. The fierce ring of hoofs became louder every moment.

"I might outrun him," said Allen, "but with this child to look after it would be best to play a game of hide and seek."

On his left was a narrow, dark path leading down into the woods, and he turned his horse into it. Here he waited until his pursuer had passed along the road. The ring of iron hoofs upon the stony road could be heard long before the horseman reached the point opposite where Allen had reined in his horse. When the sound of hoofs had died away in the distance, the editor again returned to the road and continued his journey. The little boy became sleepy, yawned, laid his tired head against Allen's shoulder and was soon buried in slumber.

"Poor little fellow," said Allen, gazing into that young face, disfigured with care and weariness. "His being a part of that terrible mystery has had a fearful effect on him."

The child had wonderful resemblance to Bertha. The fair, beautiful face and golden curly hair was similar to hers. Undisturbed by the easy motion of the horse, his slumbers were not disturbed.

Allen was kept awake by the responsibility that was on him. Sometimes he blamed himself for having undertaken this journey at the request of one whom he really did not know. Was ever man engaged in a more madcap enterprise? It might be, after all, that it was only a shrewd scheme to make him a tool in an abduction.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Tommy—I wouldn't want to be the preacher's little boy. Aunt—Why? Tommy—Oh, he's got hundreds and hundreds of slippers. They are scattered all over the house.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—Better a little wit to lift the latch than the strength of an ox to force the gate.

—There is nothing like running for office to cure a man of undue self-esteem.

—The man with polished manners rubs along easily through the world; but it is because he rubs that he is polished.

—If you can quietly wait while the pearl is made you will gain the pearl plus its value ten thousand times, viz., patience.

—Life is not long enough to spend a portion of it in scolding. John Wesley said he would no more scold than blaspheme. He considered them equal sins.

—There is no talent so useful towards rising in the world, or which puts men more out of the reach of fortune, than discretion, a species of lower prudence. —Swift.

—The fancies of men change, and he that loves to-day hateth to-morrow; but let reason be thy schoolmistress, which shall ever guide thee aright.—Sir W. Raleigh.

—Money and time are the heaviest burdens of life, and the unhappiest of all mortals are those who have more of either than they know how to use.—Johnson.

—The love which does not lead to labor will soon die out, and the thankfulness which does not embody itself in sacrifices is already changing to ingratitude.

—The man who always tells the exact truth in this world on every possible occasion may have a clear conscience, but he will never be popular among his neighbors. —Somerville Journal.

—Weariness may sometimes come from simple indolence. It is a mistake to suppose that only work brings weariness. A life of bright activity and eager service keeps back the flood of ennui and weariness.

—Man's free will is free will up to a certain point only; he may choose what he will think, say or do, but he can not choose what the consequence of these things shall be; these are fixed by a law at once immutable and gracious.

—There is a burden of care in getting riches—fear in keeping them; temptation in using them; guilt in abusing them; sorrow in losing them; and a burden of account at last to be given up concerning them.—M. Henry.

—Pride, ill-nature and want of sense are the three great sources of ill-manners. Without some one of these defects no man will behave himself ill for want of experience, or what, in the language of fools, is called knowing the world.—Swift.

—The "Ten Year Book" of Cornell University, recently published, shows that during the last twenty years the total number of degrees conferred was 1,437 and the total number of graduates at 1,352. Of this number 45 are engaged in agriculture, 51 in architecture and building, 5 in art, 23 in banking, 11 in chemistry and assaying, 150 in civil engineering, 246 in education, 30 in electrical engineering, 61 in newspaper work, 245 in law, 25 in manufacturing, 43 in mechanical engineering, 65 in medicine and surgery, 115 in mechanical pursuits, 30 in the ministry, 5 in publishing, 12 in scientific investigation and 65 in study. One hundred and twenty-one are without occupation or unreported.

—Out of the five hundred and fifty-five adult converts baptized by the English Church missionaries at Amritsar, India, since the establishment of the mission in 1852, no less than two hundred and fifty-three have been converts from Islam.

—"Knowledge must be the foundation of all true enthusiasm. It was the reading of Cook's voyages that filled Carey with the desire to carry the gospel to the heathen. It was reading Claudius Buchanan's 'Star in the East,' that awakened a missionary zeal in Judson."

—In Michigan University "a larger proportion of women than of men are taking by choice the full classical course," President Angell reports. Men are becoming scientific rather than classical, on account of the new openings in scientific professions, while women study Greek and Latin, to meet the requirements of teachers.

—The one serviceable, safe, certain, remunerative, attainable quality in every study and every pursuit is the quality of attention. My own invention, or imagination, such as it is, I can most truthfully assure you, would never have served me as it has but for the habit of commonplace, humble, patient, daily, toiling, drudging attention.—Dickens.

A TERRIBLE MISFORTUNE.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nerveless, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions capped by weakness and infirmity and long unbenefitted by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

A squatter in a Western boom town has recently laid claim to the principal avenue in the place, and the Grand Jury are trying to indict him for highway robbery.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

A patch on a boys' trousers is something new under the sun.

For paralysis, and nervous diseases generally, Dujardin's Life Essence is the true remedy. Hundreds of cases of paralysis have been prevented by timely use of this life-giving essence. A physician in Oregon writes: "I have prescribed the Life Essence in several cases of sexual debility, and am surprised at the results. I thank you for placing such a remedy in my reach." Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

DISGUSTING SKIN DISEASES.

What spectacle is more disgusting than that of a man or woman with a skin disease which shows itself in pimples or blotches on hands, arms, face and neck? It is simply impure blood. See what BRANDRETH'S PILLS did for a chronic case:

George Chapman, Pinconing, Mich., says: "For four years I was in the Mounted Infantry in the U. S. Army, residing during that time principally in Texas. Almost all of that time I had a chronic skin disease, characterized by an eruption over the entire surface of my legs and thighs, arms and chest. The doctor termed it eczema. I had given up all hopes of ever being cured, when BRANDRETH'S PILLS were recommended to me. I concluded to try them, and did so, and I have thanked God daily since then that I did so. I think I used them altogether for about three months, and, by that time, was completely cured and have never had any trouble since. My skin is as clear as any one's."

The richest man in Berlin has an income of $1,190,000. He wants to marry an American beauty.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

"Voters bought like hogs!" cries an excited contemporary. Of course, purchased by the barrel.

For allaying Hoarseness and Irritation of the Throat, it is daily proved that "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are a mild remedy, yet very efficacious.

L. M. Walton and Phillips & Co.'s Tourist Sleeping Car excursions East. No charge for births. For information, tickets, and location in cars, address

F. G. High, 624 Market St., San Francisco. Steamship Tickets to and from Europe at very lowest rates.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,

T. A. STOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FOR THE BLOOD! SSS SSS

Swift's Specific cured me of Cancer, which was hereditary, for my father died of Cancer. My case resisted all other treatment, in fact grew worse all the time. I left off all other remedies, and took S. S. S. which forced out the poison until my system was cleansed, when the Cancer healed, not even leaving a sign. My health since has been excellent.

MRS. LAURA E. DUGGAN, Dawson, Ga., Sept. 26, '88.

Send for Treatise on Cancer and Blood Diseases; mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 5, Atlanta, Ga.

WHAT SCOTT'S EMULSION CURES

CONSUMPTION SCROFULA BRONCHITIS COUGHS COLDS Wasting Diseases

Wonderful Flesh Producer.

Scott's Emulsion is not a secret remedy. Containing the stimulating Hypophosphites and Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, the potency of both being largely increased. It is used by Physicians all over the world.

PALATABLE AS MILK.

Sold by all Druggists.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM PRICE 50 CENTS.

—FOR—

Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.

417 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ASTHMA CURED
GERMAN ASTHMA CURE
Instantly relieves the most violent attack, and insures comfortable sleep. NO WAITING for RESULTS. Being used by inhalation, its action is immediate, direct and certain, and a cure is the result in all curable cases. A single trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00 of any druggist, or by mail. Sample Free for stamp. Dr. E. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

I CURE FITS!
I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a lifelong study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES.
Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. J. AIKEN, Manager, Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEARSE & BACH, Gabler, Boenish Pianos; Burdett Organs, band instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 208 Post Street, San Francisco.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

$50,000 given away in Prizes Packages. $1 each. E. C. SHAWKEY, Phillipsburg, Kans.

S F. N. U. No. 353. New Series No. 12

Rheumatism IS CURED BY St Jacobs Oil AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS. BALTO. MD. THE CHAS. A. VOGELER CO.

Diamond Vera-Cura FOR DYSPEPSIA, A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND ALL Stomach Troubles Arising Therefrom.

Your Druggist or General Dealer will get Vera-Cura for you if not already in stock, or it will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent stamp.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md. Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers.

COME TO NEW MEXICO. The Finest Climate on earth. To Capitalists, Farmers, Miners, Investors, Health Seekers: send 25 cts. for map and information; 60,000,000 acres Gov. land, wonderful resources. J. J. Fitzgerrell East Las Vegas, N. M.

LADIES! A SECRET YOU WOULD like to know, especially, Making Ladies of delicate health. Send stamp for full particulars of this great boon to women, sent in securely sealed letter. DR. GRAEME, box 1841, San Francisco, Cal.

A BIG SHOW
Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes: Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

WELL DRILLS FOR EVERY PURPOSE. Sold on Trial! Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing, large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by COULDS & AUSTIN, 167 & 169 Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

ESTABLISHED 1862.
F. H. HAMMER,
—WHOLESALE—
Produce Dealer
—AND—
Commission Merchant,
215 and 217 Davis St., - S. F., Cal.
When Shipping anything to this Market let me handle your business.
Quick sales and prompt returns on all Consignments. Write for Weekly Price Current.
Member of San Francisco Produce Exchange and Call Board.
Grain Bought and Sold on Margins. Money Advanced on Shipments.

R. H. McDonald PRES'T. F. V. McDonald, CASHIER. ESTABLISHED 1863. Oldest Chartered Bank on the Pacific Coast. PACIFIC BANK. Capital Stock $1,000,000.00. Surplus $700,000.00. Av. Resources $4,500,000.00

Returning thanks for past favors, we respectfully ask a continuance of the same and solicit accounts of Individuals, Firms and Corporations.

R. H. McDONALD, President.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1, 1889.

DON'T BE A GULL!
Because a gull is a very foolish bird that will swallow anything you offer it. When you ask for "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" Smoking Tobacco, and the dealer wants you to try some cheap brand on which he makes a much larger profit. He is simply trying to "gull" you. He knows as well as you do that "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" is the most popular and the best Smoking Tobacco on the Pacific Coast.

WHITE LABOR LEAGUE S. F.

TO THE PUBLIC:
We wish to call attention to the fact that a large percentage of Shoes imported from the East to California are made by convicts in Penitentiaries and are inferior in every way to Shoes made by the "White Labor League" of California.
None but the best White Workmen employed, and Shoes bearing above stamp are warranted to give satisfaction. See that the Shoe you buy bears this stamp, and insist on your dealer having it.
BOOT AND SHOE MAKERS' WHITE LABOR LEAGUE.

GARMENTS Guaranteed TO FIT PERFECT without trying on. FREE by return mail, full descriptive circulars of MOODY'S NEW TAILOR SYSTEM OF DRESS CUTTING. Any lady of ordinary intelligence can easily and quickly learn to cut and make any garment, in any style to any measure for lady or child. Address MOODY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS
RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND.

Original, best, only genuine and reliable pill for sale. Never Fail. Ask for Chichester's English Diamond Brand, in red metallic boxes, sealed with blue ribbon. At Druggists. Accept no other. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are a dangerous counterfeit. Send 4c. (stamps) for particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return mail. 10,000 testimonials from LADIES who have used them. Name Paper. Chichester Chemical Co., Madison Sq., Phila., Pa.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH, Carbolic Sheep Wash. T. W. Jackson & Co., Mfr. Agents, 104 Market St.

BIG G Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, O. Trade Mark.

I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease. G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.

We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction. D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill. Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists.

IT MADE MOTHER STRONG

"My mother has been using PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND for nervous prostration, accompanied by melancholia, etc., and it has done her a world of good. It is the only medicine that strengthens the nerves." G. H. BEERS, Orbisonia, Pa.

Paine's Celery Compound is of unequaled value to women. It strengthens the nerves, regulates the kidneys, and has wonderful power in curing the painful diseases with which women so often silently suffer.

$1 per bottle. Six for $5. At Druggists.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington, Vt.

"I am in my 64th year. Have been afflicted in several ways—could not sleep, had no appetite, no courage, low spirits. I commenced using Paine's Celery Compound, and felt relief from the third day after using it. I now have a good appetite and can sleep well. My spirits and courage are almost like those of a young man." S. C. KINKAID, D. D., Gonzales, La.

Paine's Celery Compound

Strengthens and builds up the old, and cures their infirmities. Rheumatism, Indigestion and nervousness yield quickly to the curative power of Paine's Celery Compound.

A Perfect Tonic and Invigorator, It GIVES NEW LIFE.

"I am now 69 years old and have tried several remedies, but none had any effect until I used Paine's Celery Compound. I feel entirely different for the short time I have used it. I can walk nearly straight, sleep sound and well, and feel as though there was new life and energy coming into my whole system." H. MYLIUS, Cleveland, Tenn.

DIAMOND DYES True to Name and Color. Nothing can Equal Them. YOUR BABY will be rosy, plump and merry if given LACTATED FOOD.

MIRACULOUS RESTORATION.

That dainty lady tripping by,
How light her step, how bright her eye,
How fresh her cheek with healthful glow,
Like roses that in Maytime blow!

And yet few weeks have passed away
Since she was fading, day by day.
The doctor's skill could naught avail;
Weaker she grew, and thin and pale.

At last, while in a hopeless frame,
One day she said, "There is a name
I've often seen—a remedy—
Perhaps 'twill help; I can but try."

And so, according to direction,
She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription,
And every baleful symptom fled,
And she was raised as from the dead.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the world-famed, invigorating tonic and nervine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. It is the only medicine for the distressing weaknesses and derangements peculiar to women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Copyright, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Anti-bilious Granules, are Laxative or Cathartic, according to size of dose.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY....MAY 4, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 47. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 4, 1889. WHOLE NO. 966.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

COUNTRY BUNCO-STEERERS.

How City Men Fall Easy Victims to Their Shrewdly-Planned Schemes.

The story of the unsophisticated hayseed being relieved of his shining gold by the flashy swell, who recognizes him on the street as an old friend, has been told so often that one would naturally suppose that that is all that can be related on the subject.

But this is not so. The rural districts have many bunco-steerers, who lie in wait for the urbanite who settles in the blooming lea to squander the dollars of New York in New Jersey.

These bunco-steerers are innocent-looking yokels, who don't appear to be overstocked with every-day intelligence, and no city man would ever imagine them capable of fleecing him.

They don't step up and say: "Are you Mr. Smith, of Rochester?" and follow it up by inquiring after the health of the family.

They go to the barber-shop, that boundless bureau of information in every town, and ask:

"Who is that man who just moved into the yellow house on Brick Hill?"

"Bunkard!" replies the barber, as he gives his victim a spirited upper cut.

Then the bunco-steerer mounts his stilts, and struggles through the incarnadined mud to the residence of Mr. Bunkard.

After the door is opened, he says:

"Is Mr. Bunkard in?"

And when he is told that Mr. Bunkard is in, and Mr. Bunkard appears, the rural bunco-steerer asks:

"Ah, Mr. Bunkard, would you like to buy some hickory at five dollars per cord?"

As a matter of fact, hickory is so scarce that carriage makers use ash when they make hickory wheels; but Mr. Bunkard does not know this. He would know how to take the farmer in in a Wall street grain-pool in which there is no grain; but when it comes to firewood, he doesn't even know that hickory is superior to pine. So he orders two cords of hickory, and in the course of a few days receives one cord of chestnut, for which he pays ten dollars.

Then the bunco-steerer goes to the florist and tells him what an easy victim Mr. Bunkard is; and in a few days the florist goes around and sells Mr. Bunkard a dozen onions for Roman hyacinths. But he first dips them into hot water, that they may not develop and expose the swindle.

In the spring-time, these creatures who live on the fat of the city man, come around to rake up the place, and remove the dead leaves and ashes. They make a bargain to do it for fifteen dollars. Mr. Bunkard thus thinks he is getting a bargain, and he orders them to go ahead. They start at eight in the morning, and have the job finished by noon-time; and when he comes home at four they are waiting for their money.

After a day or two, Mr. Bunkard is told by a plumber that he ought to have his place cleaned up. But he doesn't suspect that the first cleaners-up purposely left it in such a state that he would have to employ others. So the plumber sends his brother up, and he gathers ten dollars for doing the job that was only worth five to start on.

In the summer, a man comes and offers to cut the grass for two dollars per day; and he purposely runs Mr. Bunkard's lawn mower over stones and breaks it beyond repair. Then he recommends Mr. Bunkard to get a Paracelsus mower down in the village, at Crowley's; and if he does so, Crowley gives the bunco-laborer a good commission; and whether he does or not, the laborer secures a day's employment raking the stones out of the grass.

When he renders his bill, he adds a day that he never put in on the place; and if Mr. Bunkard mentions it, he says it was a rainy day, and that he spent it chopping up barrels for kindling wood in the cellar. Then he, the bunco-steerer, has the expressman drive off the roadway a foot or so and hack the lawn to pieces, to create a fresh job.

In the autumn, Mr. Bunkard is waited upon by a man who tells him that if he wants a green lawn next summer he must have some fertilizer put on. Then he suggests that a blind drain be put down the middle of the road, to keep it from being washed up against the house and down the cellar windows. After he has left with an order, his brother calls on Mr. Bunkard, under a different name, to see if he can sell him a barrel of cider. The cider, which is short in measure, is put in the cellar to develop into vinegar. Mr. Bunkard is told that it will be vinegar in three months, and the vender leaves a small hole in the barrel so that it is soon empty, and Mr. Bunkard never learns that it originally contained water.

And in the winter it is just the same; for at that season Mr. Bunkard employs a man to care for his furnace, and he leaves all the drafts on and burns up all the coal he can in the interest of the coal dealer; and occasionally lets it go out at night to freeze the pipes, in the interest of the plumber.

And so, year after year, the country bunco-steerer works his little game, and has the art to conceal his art in such a way that he is universally regarded as pure as the white rose at his peaceful sill, and one who ought not to be allowed to go off the farm alone. —Puck.

—The profession of "lady guide" is so well established in London that a society which sends out 200 guides carries on a lucrative business.

THE CHICAGO FOX HUNT.

Suggestions by The New York Tribune Prior to the Event.

Chicago has decided to celebrate Washington's birthday by following the hounds in an imitation fox hunt. Six months ago the leaders in her best society ceased stamping the little tin pails of lard turned out at their refineries with the familiar porker's profile, but instead emblazoned thereon a lion rampant. It was clear from that moment that American ideas and institutions were doomed in Chicago-by-the-Lake.

We are assured that the most extensive preparations are being made for the meet. Chicago, however, keeps in view the fact that discretion has long been recommended as being the most desirable part of valor, and is determined to take no risks.

To this end, we are told, those having the matter in charge, "after an earnest consultation have determined to have no jumps or obstacles of any kind on the course," even if it somewhat mars the effect, the committee being "fearful of the consequences." All dangerous American barbed wire fences, sign boards, trees, bushes, stones and other objects are being carefully removed from the course, which will be twelve miles straightaway, and the farmers along the route will be requested to keep in their cows, hogs and poultry on the day of the meet. The committee hates to take these precautions, but the consequences hang over it by a single hair and render it fearful.

Various other precautionary measures are under consideration by the committee and may be adoped. A plan for strewing the course thickly with feather beds, spring mattresses, and so forth, to ward off, in a measure, the "consequences," has been suggested, but it is thought that the cost will be too great. It is believed that by strapping pillows to various parts of the persons of the riders, practically the same result may be reached at only a fraction of the expense. The idea of strapping each rider firmly to his horse met with no approval except among some of the more timid; but a novel plan has been proposed in its place and will probably be carried out. Each rider will wear a jacket, which will be short enough, so that as he sits on his horse the lower edge of it will be some six inches from the cantle of the saddle.

The jacket edge will then be fastened to the saddle by a half dozen stout six inch spiral springs. This, it is thought, will insure great safety and leave the intrepid follower of the hounds ample freedom of motion. In case the horse falls, takes an imaginary hedge, or otherwise becomes highly unpleasant for a Chicago man, the rider will simply fly up into the air a foot or two and be drawn back quickly and surely to the padded saddle. On Washington's birthday Chicago will be in the saddle, and retained there most of the time by strong steel springs.

The hounds will be procured from Detroit. A man from Oshkosh attempted to foist some of his hounds on the committee, but the manifest superiority of Detroit hounds, coming, as they do, from so near British territory, being pointed out, the gentleman from Wisconsin did not get a bid. The committee politely but firmly advised him to take his ample dog back to Oshkosh. Whether or not semi-English horses will also be used is not stated, but it seems probable that they will.

The 22d of February promises to be a most remarkable day for Chicago. Laying aside any little animosities which may have been engendered among her society leaders by surreptitious cutting in the price of leaf lard and side pork, they will mount their spirited bobtailed horses and dash away along the picturesque lake front twelve miles straight toward Milwaukee. With the gamey anise seed bag disappearing on the horizon, the Detroit hounds in full cry, the resolute Chicago riders clinging to the pommels of their saddles with the strength of desperation, and a physician stationed every half mile to render assistance if needed, the scene will be worth a long journey to witness. We wish the meet every success possible, and "no consequences."—New York Tribune.

A New Yorker's Bad Break.

Philadelphian—You are very fond of society, I see. Do you belong to the exclusive 400?

New Yorker—No; unfortunately there is a dark stain on my social record.

"Indeed!"

"Yes, it's too true. I once walked two squares on Fifth avenue with a very dear friend of mine, an eminent scientist, who had on a suit of ready made clothing."—Philadelphia Record.

The Power of Music.

The sun had already sunk in the west when the convict returned to his native village. During the many years of his confinement he had harbored but one idea—that of revenge. As he neared the old school house (which, by the way, he had made up his mind to fire) a bell from a distant spire began its slow and solemn peal. A feeling which the convict had not felt in many years filled his breast. He stood rooted to the spot, and tears, hot tears, moistened his cheeks. When the bell had ceased its tolling, he hastily wiped his eyes with the back of his calloused hand, and exclaimed: "My heart is softened; I will not shed blood to-night—I will rob instead!"—Life.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The Lady and the Panther—A Story From East India.

Mrs. H., wife of a Bombay official, sends us the following account of a recent adventure:

I was visiting some friends at Matheran, a delightful hill resort, which affords an agreeable relief during the hot season to a number of jaded Bombay officials. On my arrival at Belle Vista, I found that some other of S.'s friends had unexpectedly asked to be put up, and indeed were occupying the spare room of the bungalow. I therefore insisted that no change should be made in the family arrangements on my account. At my earnest solicitation I was allowed to have my way, and take up my quarters in a cool, inviting tent, erected about thirty yards from the house, and which I found my host was using as a study. The removal of his books was the work of a few minutes; and these were quickly replaced by the necessary furniture of a bedroom. I soon found every thing arranged to my mind, and I congratulated myself upon having secured the coolest and most delightful sleeping apartment in the place. The lookout from the door was one of exceptional beauty. The moon shone out clear and soft over the whole landscape before me. Having done a great deal that day, I was very tired, so I soon prepared for bed. My little fox-terrier Fidget, my only companion, took up her usual place at the foot of my bed. I crept under the mosquito curtains and soon sank into a deep sleep. In about an hour I was awakened by the growling and barking of Fidget, and by the light of the moon I caught sight of a huge panther standing in the doorway of my tent. Its eyes were flashing fire, and it was lashing its long tail furiously to and fro, as if it really meant mischief. In a moment more it seemed on the point of making a spring at me, and I could no longer doubt that it was bent on making a meal on my dog or myself. I in no way, however, lost my presence of mind, as I commenced shouting with all my might, which caused the beast to beat a retreat. He walked slowly toward the open door, by which he had entered, but only to walk round the outside of the tent and enter by another opening, which brought him somewhat nearer the bed. I stretched out my hand and clutched my candles and matches and quickly struck a light. This, together with my shouting and the dog's barking, startled the animal, and he again disappeared. I was not certain that he would stand such trifling any longer, so I made a dash for my dressing-gown, slipped into my slippers, tucked my dog under my arm and ran for my life. Unfortunately, I could not tell where the animal was, and the dark shrubbery, with trees overhead, looked just the place for him to be hiding, but I had to take my chance, and I ran as if fifty bulls were behind me, leaving my slippers on the path, and, tumbling up the steps, I fell into the verandah panting. I rushed to the door, which was locked from the rest of the house, and, knocking loudly, called out: "Mr. S., there is a panther in my tent." You can imagine the commotion. Every one was about in a few seconds. The gentlemen all seized their guns and ran out to see if there was any chance of a shot, and I was made a great fuss of; every one said what a wonderful escape I had had. They saw no more of the panther, but the next morning we heard that he made for the house of another friend some distance off, and there he attempted to carry off a big English bull-dog, which he found asleep in the inner verandah. Fortunately the cries of the dog brought the servants to the rescue, but not before its throat and face had been frightfully mauled. My friends are all of the opinion that the mosquito curtains saved my life. The beast was evidently very hungry and was at one moment preparing to spring upon us, but he was puzzled by my surroundings, and probably took them for some kind of trap. But I never for a moment lost my presence of mind; this and the watchfulness of my little dog enabled me to beat a safe retreat and escape the jaws of my midnight visitor.—London Queen.

Telegraph Company's Liability.

A verdict was recovered some time ago by a Chicago firm against the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company for a mistake in the transmission of dispatches sent to their correspondents in New York in regard to the purchase of a large quantity of coffee. The company lately moved before Judge Baker, of the Circuit Court, for a new trial on the ground that their printed message contained a notice of exemption from liability, and further that the transactions were in the nature of gambling transactions. The Judge decided against the telegraph company on both grounds. He held that a telegraph company was obliged to use ordinary care in the transmission of telegrams, notwithstanding what had been printed on its message forms, and that the errors made raised the presumption of neglect. As regards the charge of gambling, the Judge held that such transactions were not necessarily illegal. If actual purchases were made under which the buyers were bound to take and the seller to deliver coffee in a specified time and for a specified price, the mere fact that the purchase may have been made with the intention of reselling did not necessarily make it illegal under the Gambling act.—Bradstreet's.

—"You're too fresh," said the brine to the beef. "I acknowledge the corn," replied the beef, humbly.—Puck.

HIGH BUILDING SITES.

Why They Deserve a Preference in the Choice of a Healthy Home.

Other things being equal, elevated building sites deserve therefore a decided preference in the choice of a healthful home. High ground secures easy drainage, free access of fresh air currents, and a comparative immunity from the influence of the noxious gases which settle in pent-up hollows and down-town slum alleys. A sort of instinct seems, indeed, to guide the choice of high-ground homesteads, for even savages show a preference for the highest available building sites of a rolling prairie region, or often devise artificial means of remedying the absolute flatness of an extensive plain. Quite aside from the business considerations of their predatory mode of life, the aristocrats of our Saxon forefathers were remarkably fond of hill-top locations, and in the old house of the Celtic nations, too, nearly every conspicuous hillock and carr is crowned with the ruins of an old castle. Hence, perhaps, that incomparably-pleasant first-look impression of that finest promenade on the American continent, Euclid avenue, in a suburb of Cleveland, O., where nearly every private residence stands on a mound of grass slopes and shrubbery, and artificially raised from twenty to fifty feet above the level of the street. In a factory town, shrouded with its vail of shifting smoke-clouds, an elevation of one hundred feet insures immunity from the worst effects of the vitiated atmosphere, which, by chemical tests, has been found to deposit all its vilest gases on low ground, while the law of gravity sifts the drifting smoke-whirls of their coarse admixtures, thus giving the down-town quarter a double share of every disadvantage. In midsummer, when a brooding heat adds its horrors to the nauseating fumes of a crowded street, the very life of a sick child may depend upon the chance of getting a breath of the cool night wind, and that chance is about as 160 to one in favor of an isolated hill-top residence, as compared with the tenements of a narrow slum alley. The architecture of our Anglo-American cities, in fact, reverses the plan of nature, which excludes the direct rays of the summer sun by a canopy of screening foliage. The continuous brick ramparts of our American cities admit, and even intensify, the glare of the noontide sun, but obstruct the current of the breezes that sweep free through the open arcades of the forest. The trifling objection to the over-airiness of a hill-top residence in winter should, therefore, not for a moment outweigh the unspeakable benefit of its advantages in the brooding summer of a climate like that of the East-American coast regions.—National Tribune.

ELECTRIFYING ANIMALS.

How Monkeys and Elephants Act When Under the Influence of a Battery.

Some interesting experiments have been made lately in electrifying the wild beasts of a menagerie in winter quarters at Bridgeport, Conn. A savage baboon was tied after a desperate struggle; a sponge at the end of a wire was put into his mouth, and another wire tied to one of his paws. A current of two cells maddened the beast, and the irritation increased until twenty-eight cells were used, when it grew less. When forty cells were applied the animal became lethargic, and very much like a man overcome with drink. The resistance was 8,000 ohms, a surprisingly large figure. After his release the baboon became furious with rage. Small monkeys acted very much like children when electrified. When the current struck them they screamed as if in agony; when the current was withdrawn they looked puzzled. One monkey tore the sponge apart as though looking for the current inside, or to find what had bitten him. A tame seal was made very vicious, and bit the wires in two. A hippopotamus took the full force of the battery of forty-two cells without wincing. The wetness of the hides of the seal and hippopotamus made it impossible to ascertain the degree of resistance. Wild carnivora showed keen sensitiveness to the current, their resistance varying from 8,000 to 15,000 ohms. Brother wolf sat on his haunches and cried piteously when the current was applied to him. Elephants took nearly 12,000 ohms, and they actually enjoyed the sensation except when a strong current was passed through the trunk. They did not seem to care for a few cells in other portions of the anatomy, but under the influence of the full battery of forty-two cells they rubbed their legs together, caressed keepers and visitors and squealed with delight.—Baltimore Sun.

—Fifty years ago no gentleman could have smoked in the presence of ladies. The unmarried girl or young wife of a certain social status met walking with a young man puffing a cigar would have gone home with several shreds less of character than she had set out with. But who has a word to say now? Now we have the cigars and cigarettes brought in with the coffee immediately after dinner, and no one is offended. Often, indeed, one of the ladies will herself join the men; and if a few prim old souls think the exhibition shocking, the younger accept it as a matter of taste, and either decline or determine to try, accordingly their individual liking, with no moral afterthought whatever.—London Queen.

—Before the wedding-day a girl generally overrates the man she is to marry, but she more than makes up for her misjudgment afterward.—Somerville Journal.

Who Has Not Suffered Like This?

"Is this where Mr. Pallister lives?" inquired the caller, referring to a memorandum he carried in his hand.

"No, sir," replied the man of the house, who had answered the door bell himself.

"Why, I was told this was his street and number."

"He doesn't reside here, sir."

"H'm! This is No. 614, isn't it?"

"Yes."

The caller looked at his memoradum again.

"That's strange," he said, eyeing the man of the house with something like suspicion. "No. 614 Webster place. That's the direction I have here. Didn't Mr. Pallister live in this house until recently?"

"I don't know."

"Do you know where he lives now?"

"I do not."

"Is there any such man on this street?"

"I don't know, sir."

"Well, that beats me. Your name isn't Pallister, of course?"

"No."

"Do you know"——

"I tell you I don't know of any such man."

"Do you suppose"——

"I don't suppose anything. Is that all you want of me, sir?"

"Where do you think I would be likely to find"——

By slamming the door in the face of the man who wanted to find Mr. Pallister the exasperated victim saved himself from the commission of a deed that a jury of ignorant and untried men would have mistakenly pronounced murder.—Chicago Tribune.

Before the Bite.

"I like to shpeak about some law," said a caller at police headquarters, yesterday.

"Yes," replied the sergeant.

"If a man haf a dog, und dot dog bites me, can I make dose man pay me sometings?"

"Well, that depends. You could tell better after trying."

"But I doan't try him."

"Have you been bitten by a dog?"

"No, sir. I know dot dog likes to bite me und so I poison him off before he gets a chance."

"Then there's no question of law to be decided."

"Maype not. I come here to see aboudt her."

"If you have poisoned anybody's dog you'd better keep your mouth shut about it. That's my advice."

"I doan't tell nopody but ten peoples aboudt him so far, und I shan't shpeak to nobody else. Dot was good advice. I hope you good day."—Detroit Free Press.

The Five Senses.

—Life.

Willie's Judicial Mind.

Mother (severely)—Robert, you did very wrong to do what I told you not to do. As a punishment for your disobedience, I forbid you to play with Willie again this afternoon."

Bobby and Willie twist nervously about their respective chairs for half an hour, when Willie observes:

"Ma, do you think it's fair to punish both of us for what Bobby done?"—Binghamton Republican.

A Mean Man.

Philanthropist (joyously)—I am delighted to learn that you have promised your sick daughter $50 on the day she is well enough to go out.

Old Closefist—Yes, the doctor said she only needed encouragement.

"That will no doubt do her good. Fifty dollars is a good deal of money to her."

"Yes, and to me, too, but it would cost more than that to bury her."—New York Weekly.

The Modern Magazine.

Quillpen—I understand, Mr. Calfbound, that your house is contemplating the issue of a new magazine?

Mr. Calfbound—We have so announced.

Quillpen—What are to be the principal literary features of the first number?

Mr. Calfbound—We haven't thought anything about that yet. The most important thing, of course, is to get a taking design for the cover.—Burlington Free Press.

The Reason.

"So the belle of the choir has married the tenor."

"Yes."

"I thought she favored the bass."

"Yes, but she got some high flown notions into her head and threw over the bass for the tenor."

"For what reason?"

"Because the tenor was more high toned."—Boston Courier.

Voted Down.

A lady living in Ohio is the mother of six boys. One day a friend calling on her said: "What a pity that one of your boys had not been a girl." One of the boys about 8 years of age overheard this remark, and promptly interposed: "I'd like to know who'd 'a bin 'er; I wouldn't 'a bin 'er; Ed wouldn't 'a bin 'er; Joe wouldn't 'a bin 'er; and I'd like to know who'd 'a bin 'er."—Christian Observer.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

—"A Kansas apple has the flavor of a banana, the tart of a lemon and the fragrance of an orange," says a Kansas paper.

—"Che Mah," the Chinese dwarf, the smallest liliputian on earth, aged fifty years, is so small that you can cover him with an ordinary plug hat.

—A church at Almont, Mich., raises money in a novel way. A box is placed in the church, and the members on their birthday dropped as many cents into the box as they are years old.

—An Ohio farmer mortgaged his farm to get his wife some diamond ear-rings and she lost one of them in the suds the first wash day and attempted to hang herself in the barn.

—An intoxicated man, who died on a New York doorstep the other day, was identified as an ex-millionaire merchant of New Orleans. Four years before he began dissipating, and his wife on that account left him.

—A farmer was rather noted among his friends for a complaining disposition. One year the crop was exceptionally good, and some curiosity was felt to see how he would meet the case. "I am afraid," said he, "that such a great crop will be a powerful strain on the land."

—An intelligent taxpayer of St. Paul, Minn., was asked to buy his daughter a geography, and he wrote the principal of the school: "I do not see any use for a girl to take geography lessons, for it is of no use to them, because they can not be any officer in the army or navy."

—The barkeeper of one of the large New York hotels has decided the interesting question of the value of New York "swear-offs." He says that he has noticed that immediately after the first of the year the receipts for drinks fall off on an average of 35 per cent, but as the month advances they gain steadily, and by February 1 they are back to the starting point. A "swear-off," therefore, will generally last about thirty days.

—A diver at work on the Wellington, New Zealand, harbor improvements, was down in his diver's dress, placing blocks between the piles that had just been driven. While there he was seized by an octopus that grabbed him with some of its legs and the piles with the other. Do what he would the diver couldn't get away, so he stood perfectly still, and pretty soon the octopus released its grasp on the piles. Then the diver gave the signal and was drawn to the surface with the creature clinging to him. It was killed. Its legs measured nine feet in length.

—A farmer, who recently chopped down a hollow beech tree at Anna Station, O., which was apparently 150 years old, had his attention drawn to a peculiar-looking earthen jar, which was well sunken in the center of the hollow butt. A few blows of the axe liberated it from its confined position, and, after securing it, it was opened and found filled to the brim with silver coin. They were all of Spanish mintage, with a few exceptions. Some of the coins were over 300 years old, but all the Spanish silver pieces were about 200 years old. The face value of the coin was about $500.

A PLUCKY MAIDEN.

Daring Feat of a Beauty of the California Foot-Hills.

Near Forest Ranch, in the mountains above Chico, resides a young lady who for grit and pluck we'll take off our hat to every time. The lady in question, Miss Kate Lucas, resides on a mountain ranch with her mother and brothers, the latter being engaged in furnishing the meat used by the large lumber crews high up in the Sierras. Miss Lucas is a tall, lithe and well-built girl, with red, rosy cheeks, jet black hair, bright, flashing eyes, and is the acknowledged belle of that vicinity. She is an intrepid horsewoman, and rides fearlessly and alone over the mountain slopes and through the ravines. She scorns a saddle and at times rides a fiery mustang without either bridle or blanket, simply using a lariat, the end tied around her horse's head and neck. She is a capital shot with the rifle and has worsted many of the crack shots there by her unerring aim. She has been out with her brothers hunting, and very rarely fails to bag a deer or other wild animals which so abound in that section. Sometimes the young miss assists in capturing the wild cattle when they are required for the market, and then the lariat is twirled with a precision that often puts the vaqueros to shame.

A few weeks ago, after a daring ride after a particularly wild and fleet-footed steer, which showed fight from the start, the young lady laughed at the vaquero who seemed to be afraid of the animal, and smilingly challenged him to throw a rope over the animal's head and ride him. The vaquero declined with thanks. Miss Lucas then displayed a piece of courage and daring worthy of the ancient Roman arena. Springing from her horse, she went up to the bound and bellowing beast, quickly and deftly tied a rope around his head and neck, then told the vaquero to let him loose. This he did reluctantly, and the enraged steer was quickly on its feet, but equally as quick the fearless lass was on its back. Then commenced a ride that is rarely witnessed. For half an hour the wild chase and ride was continued—over hill and dale, through brush and canyon—when the steer gave completely out and the triumphant girl led her captive to the house. It was a bold feat, and the daring rider has made herself famous in that section of the country.—Chico Enterprise.

SOME GOLDEN RULES.

Advice for Young Men Who Are About to Enter Business Life.

The following, from an unknown source, contains advice which experienced business men indorse and young men will do well to follow:

Have but one business, know it thoroughly, and attend personally to its minutest details. Be self-reliant, concentrate your energies in a determination and supreme effort to conquer success. Keep your own counsel, attend strictly to business, and never dabble in any thing foreign to it, curtail your expenses, never sacrifice safety to prospective large returns, cut short your losses and let your profits run on, and make your prime movers industry, economy and fair dealing. It is the merest rant and bosh to rely on luck. He is always indolent and whining, folding his arms, drinking and smoking, waiting for big prizes in lotteries, or lying abed expecting a letter with news of a legacy. On the contrary, labor and pluck are the invincible heroes who conquer success; they strike out new paths, create, contrive, think, plan, originate, take all legitimate risks, toil to surmount obstacles, push forward, win renown by success. The glorious galaxy of successful business men and illustrious authors have all been hard workers. Shun bad company and the prevalent vices of the day, never loan a borrowing friend more than you are able to lose if he can not pay, and never take a loan on opportunity. Never borrow money to speculate with. Acquire knowledge. It is only enlightened men who successfully hold their own with the surging masses who throng the road to riches. Avoid law and legal squabbles of every kind. In discussing business disagreements, keep cool. Make all the money you can and do all the good you can with it, remembering that he who lives for himself alone lives for the meanest man in creation. If engaged in public business advertise it; be punctual in meeting promised payments; keep short accounts; settle often; be clear and explicit in making bargains. Be civil and obliging as well as decisive and prompt with customers, and do not overtrade your capital. Finally, in the maturity of life, don't rust out by retiring from business; keep bright by useful effort, remembering that industry and happiness are inseparable.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—A correspondent of the London Times says that the word "teetotal" had its origin through a stuttering temperance orator, who urged on his hearers, that nothing less than "te-te-te-to-tal" abstinence would satisfy temperance reformers. Some one at once adopted "teetotal" as a suitable ward, and it sprang into general use.

A placard placed on a window of a shoemaker's shop near Cripplegate, London, many years ago, is said to have read as follows: "Surgery performed on aged Boots and Shoes broken Legs sett and bound upright disordered feet repaired the wounded healed. The whole Constitution mended and the body supported by a new Sole. By T. T —A convict who was lately released from the Joliet penitentiary after serving a six years' sentence, took with him $531 which he had earned by stonecutting as "overwork." The man knew nothing about that industry when he entered the prison, but he soon became skilled in the work, owing to the energy with which he entered into it.

—Europe can not compete with the United States in the loftiness of her stations for taking meteorological observations. There are only two stations on the European continent which reach any great height, being about 10,000 and 11,000 feet respectively. Among the stations in America is Pike's Peak, which has an altitude of 14,100 feet—or only about 1,600 feet lower than the summit of Mount Blanc—and exceeding by more than 3,000 feet any meteorological station in Europe.

—Don't despise a man because he is poor. You can hire him a good deal cheaper than you could if he were well-to-do.

—That is the happiest conversation where there is no competition, no vanity, but only a calm, quiet interchange of sentiment.—Dr. S. Johnson.

—"Man," says Adam Smith, "is an animal that makes bargains. No other animal does this—no dog exchanges bones with another."

—Riches, rightly used, breed delight, pleasure, profit and praise; but to him that abuseth them they procure envy, hatred, dishonor and contempt.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 150 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,
(Poisonous.)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO.
SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.
Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY MAY 4, ... 1889

Volume XII of Alden's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature is richly freighted with literary gems. As in the preceding volumes the biographical sketches are concise but clear and interesting, and the extracts from the writers represented are ample and have been selected with excellent judgment. As illustrating the scope of the work we give a few of the famous names which appear in this volume. William and Mary Howitt; Huber, the blind naturalist; Thomas Hughes; Victor Hugo, the French poet and novelist; Humboldt, the immortal scientists; Hume; Leigh Hunt; Huxley, the great biologist; St. Ignatius; Jean Ingelow; Washington Irving, the first American who secured literary recognition from England; Helen Hunt Jabkson; Henry James; John Jay, the spotless jurist; Thomas Jefferson; Edward Jenkins; Douglas Jerrold; Sir William Jones, the great Oriental scholar; "rare Ben Johnson;" Josephus, the Jewish historian; Juvenal, the great Roman satirist. Although these embrace many nationalities and cover many centuries of time, they are only a few of the large number of au hors represented. Sold for only 50 cents a volume in cloth binding, or 60 cents in half Morocco; 10 cents additional for postage if mailed. A specimen volume may ordered and returned if not wanted. John B. Alden, publisher, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Toronto.

Australia, when first settled by the whites, was an almost treeless country. The English Government wisely spent money for planting forest trees and gave every possible encouragement to the settlers to do so. Now Australia is able to compete with other countries in bidding for contracts to supply immense quantities of railroad ties. There are immense tracts of land in our own country that could be covered with forests if Congress would pass necessary laws; and such tracts would be of enormous value to the whole country instead of being what they now are, of little value except for what scant pasturage they afford.

The English Dwelling.

The characteristic English dwelling is described as a two story brick house, walled in, and with the best part of the house at the back; there are the drawing and dining rooms, while the kitchen and pantries are in front. In suburban and country houses the rooms are large and are arranged around a hall, but the windows and doors are small. The outside of the house is almost uniformly without architectural decorations, and the dullness of the climate is seen in the somberness of the furniture and the adornments of the house.

The interior is dull and uncheery. There is little "sweetness and light" in the colors, forms and expressions, except in the dwellings of more recent building and furnishing. Up to within a few years the inside finish was all of dark wood and the furniture was mahogany, of very heavy and ungainly construction.

But if you can dissociate the idea of comfort from that of art, the English home has a very marked spirit of comfort. The sofa is easy and big and the chairs were made to use. The walls are papered, never painted, the papers being dark and of large pattern. The dining room is the living room of the middle class families. Such of the family as remain at home sit in that room during the forenoon and until after the noon meal.

Were the color of the English house less somber and the furniture less cumbrous; were the rooms more open and less separated from each other, it would be the center of the most perfect external comfort known to the domestic life of this world. As it is, the English house is the home of sweet love, of thoughtful civility and of unforgetting and undying loyalty.—Good Housekeeping.

A Double Dinner in Russia.

The Russian eats on an average once every two hours. The climate and custom require such frequent meals, the digestion of which is aided by frequent draughts of vodki and tea. Vodki is the Russian whisky, made from potatoes and rye. It is fiery and colorless, and is generally flavored with some extract like vanilla or orange. It is drank from small cups that hold perhaps half a gill. Vodki and tea are the inseparable accompaniments of friendly as well as of business intercourse in the country of the czar. Drunken men are rare. Russia and Sweden are the only countries in which the double dinner is the rule. When you go to the house of a Russian, be he a friend or a stranger, you are at once invited to a side table, where salted meats, pickled eel, salted cucumbers, and many other spicy and appetizing viands are urged upon you with an impressiveness that knows no refusal. This repast is washed down with frequent cups of vodki. That over, and when the visitor feels as if he had eaten enough for twenty-four hours, the host says, "And now to dinner." At the dinner table the meal is served in courses, with wines grown in the Crimea and in Bessarabia, where excellent clarets and Burgundies are made and sold for from a shilling to half a crown the bottle.—Boston Budget.

FROM THINE EYES.

From thine eyes, by fair disguises,
Love is glancing unrevealed,
O'er thy face in sweet surprises
Blushes wander unconcealed.
Dare I ask thee, though unbidden,
Of thy secret therein hidden?

On thy breast a rose reposing,
Jealous to thy blushes turned,
Lifts its leaves in pride disclosing
Where the sun's glow ardent burned.
As the rose unfolds its glory
Dare I tell thee all my story?

In thy hand a lily blest is,
Holden near thy gentle breath,
Fairer far thy snowy breast is
Rival and it swoons to death!
As the dying flower allures me
So thy gentleness assures me!

By thine eyes, in fair disguises,
Love's sweet secret is revealed;
By thy blushes in surprises
Love has neared me unconcealed.
Dare I bid love thus to lead me?
Dare I tell thee how I need thee?

Envious rose, so proud reposing,
On her breast more fragrant grow;
Swoonings lily, die disclosing
All her passion thou mayest know;
As I dare to ask her choose me,
And I pray her not refuse me!

—Harriet Maxwell Converse.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brough to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. 6-4

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamented trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.—FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to—Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC

☞ Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal. March 29, 1884.
o4767

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENTS TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH P.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 304, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RHINE, N. G.
D. Cheron, R. S.

$93 Sewing-Machine FREE To at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who may call at your home, and after 2 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is much after the Singer patent, which has run out; before patents run out it sold for $93, with the attachments, and now sells for $50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City,
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.
Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.
All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.
JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.
Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUPP, Prop'r.

BUDDING GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING

Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.
CHAS. F. CUSACK,
j 12-tf Independence, Cal.

PROPOSALS FOR BOARDING INYO COUNTY PRISONERS

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, at the office of the County Clerk until Tuesday, May 7, 1889, at 12 o'clock M., for the boarding of Inyo county prisoners, for the term of one year, beginning May 10th 1889 and ending May 10th, 1890, said bids to designate the price per diem for each prisoner, and said bond to be paid for by warrants drawn upon the General Expense Fund, upon bills duly verified and presented at the regular meetings of said Board of Supervisors.

Proposals must be endorsed "Proposals for Boarding County Prisoners," and the same will be opened between the hours of one o'clock and four o'clock P. M. on said 7th day of May, 1887, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. P. H. MACK, Clerk.

Proposals for Care of Indigent Sick of Inyo County.

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, at the office of the County Clerk until 12 o'clock M., on Tuesday, May 7th, 1889, to contract for the care of said indigent sick for the term of one year from May 10th 1889 to May 10th, 1890, said bids to designate the amount for which parties contracting will care for said indigent sick on the basis of an average of four patients per day throughout the year, and to include all medicine, nursing, board, lodging and washing. Said bids to include the burial and funeral expenses of any indigent sick person or persons who may die while under such care.

Said contractor to care for all the indigent sick properly admitted to the contractor's care. And said bids to designate the price per head at which all excess of patients over the average of four each day throughout the year will be cared for, said excess to be paid for by extra allowance on presentation of bills duly sworn to, at the regular meeting of said Board immediately after said contract has expired. The average four per day to be paid for at the regular meetings of the Board on presentation of bills duly verified. All payments to be made by warrants drawn upon the Hospital Fund of said county.

The person or persons to whom said contract shall be awarded shall give a good and sufficient bond in double the sum of the contract price, for the faithful performance of said contract.

The care and management of said indigent sick by such contractor shall be at all times subject to the inspection of said Board of Supervisors, or any member thereof, or any person appointed by the Board for such purpose.

Said proposals must be endorsed, "Proposals for Care of Indigent Sick," and the same will be opened between the hours of one o'clock and four o'clock P. M. on the said 7th day of May, 1889, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids. P. H. MACK, Clerk.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845

Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.
A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 50,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.
In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & CO., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.
COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address
MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors.
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Notice for Proposals

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance or an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on the 6th day of February 1889, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed plans and specifications for a proposed new bridge across Owens River, to be erected on or near the site of Big Pine bridge, up to 12 o'clock M., May 7th, 1889.

The same will be opened between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock P. M. of said day.

Said plans and specifications must be endorsed: "Plans and specifications for bridge across Owens River on or near the site of Big Pine bridge."

The right is reserved to reject any and all plans and specifications. P. H. MACK,
Clerk of Board of Supervisors.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - - Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Free Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time-pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and traded.
All orders from any part of the county will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(PO SONOUS)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
CROCKER BROS., Props.
sep1 tf

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
C. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.
Horseshoeing .....$2 50 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Deep SEA WONDERS exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallet and Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day. All succeed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Tuesday, April 1tOh, 1888.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....	8:15 a. m.		5 35 p. m.
Layton.....	10 45 a. m.		4 35 p. m.
Wabuska.....	12 45 a. m		2 25 p. m.
Hawthorne.....	4 30 p. m.		10 40 a. m.
Luning.....	5:50 p. m.		9 20 a. m.
Sodа Springs.....	7:10 p. m.		8:10 a. m.
Belleville.....	8:10 p. m.		7:00 a. m.
Candelaria.....	Ar. 8:50 p. m		Lv. 6:30 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—		No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville.....	7 30 a. m.		5:25 p. m.
Benton.....	11 00 a. m.		1:45 p. m.
Basalt Creek.....	1 10 p. m.		11:30 a. m.
Alkali.....	2:00 p. m.		10:35 a. m.
Independence.....	3 30 p. m.		9:05 a. m.
Lone Pine.....	4 15 p. m		8:15 a. m.
Keeler.....	Ar 5:05 p. m.		Lv. 7:30 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
Customers supplied on all points
Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, MAY 4 1889

MARRIED.

JOSEPHS—HARRIS—At San Francisco, April 28, 1889, Mr. Louis Josephs and Miss Minnie Harris.

DIED.

Cox—At Darwin, May 1, 1889, Mrs. Frank Cox.

Joe Rogers came in from Oasis early in the week.

For as fine clothing as in the county go to L. Wood.

Mrs. H. L. Clark has gone on a visit to San Francisco.

Gus. McGovern has arrived from Mojave with a load of freight.

Mr. C. A. Levy came down from Bishop last Monday and is still in town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Russell arrived at Independence on Thursday from Benton.

Mr. H. H. Spears was down from Bishop last Wednesday on business at the Land Office.

The first concentrator arrived at the Maxim last Wednesday and will be put in operation in a few days.

Rev. E. McEvers will go to Mojave next week to meet his brother, who intends to locate in Owens Valley.

Messrs. James Yerington and E. B. Yerington and their wives were in the valley some days this week.

Mr. E. Clark, book-keeper for Knapp & Laws, of Hawthorne, came down last Wednesday to Independence.

Mr. J. H. Prince made a brief visit to Independence at the end of last week. He went to Hawthorne on Saturday.

Water has been turned into the new water works at Bishop. This is a very valuable improvement to the town.

Sixty-four tons of ore taken from the Pamlico mine, near Hawthorne, yielded fifty-five thousand dollars.

John Schober came in from Bishop on Thursday with his big team and left town next day for Mojave after a load of freight.

H. H Spear is at work with a good force of men and teams on a contract to build a stretch of the Owens River Canal, up at Bishop.

All kinds of fruit trees around Independence are heavily loaded. There never was so good a prospect for a fruit crop as at present.

Mr. Robert O'Neal has made great improvements on his town lots at Bishop by filling the mudholes and leveling and seeding with grass and flowers.

Religion services will be held to-morrow (Sunday) at Independence at 11 o'clock a. m.; at Lone Pine, 7 o'clock p. m. Sunday School at usual hours.

It will not be long till ten sugar factories each costing half a million dollars will be in operation in this State. Beet growing will then be a great industry.

Last Sunday the County Clerk was able to treat some visitors to strawberries. These were the first berries at Independence so far as heard from.

Mrs. Vinson and her daughter, Miss Nora Vinson, arrived at Independence on Wednesday from Butte county. Mrs. Vinson is a sister to Messrs. E. and H. J. Robinson.

It is confidently expected that within a few years a trotting horse will be produced to trot a mile in two minutes. The value of such a horse is estimated at $100,000 to $150,000.

Mr. El. Clark arrived at Independence last Monday from Bakersfield. He has been doing a big practice in spaying cows and heifers and is engaged to go to Oregon to continue the work.

Mr. Frank Fitzgerald went north on Tuesday morning on his way to Reno. His business was to make arrangements with the Reno Reduction Works Company for the shipment of ore.

There was a May Day pic-nic last Wednesday at Turner's grove, on the river below Lone Pine. In the evening a social dance was given in town. Young and old report having a jolly good time.

Last Tuesday the people of Lone Pine gave a pic-nic at the McCall ranch, south of town, to celebrate the centenary of the first inauguration. The day was pleasant and the affair proved very enjoyable.

The water in Lake Tahoe is lower than for several years past. The mills around Truckee will not have water to run over half the season and farmers along the river will be very scant of water for irrigation.

Too many working men are reported to be in Virginia City. Many cannot find work and the Enterprise says that they will be forced to go away. Merchants are refusing to give further credit to men out of work.

Mr. Henry Borgwardt, of Bakersfield, arrived at Independence last Monday and met Mrs. Borgwardt, who had been on a visit with her mother, Mrs. Sanger, at Alvord. They left town next morning for home.

The Los Angeles Tribune of last Friday says: "The latest news about the Carson & Colorado road is that it will be rapidly pushed to completion to this city via the Tejunga Pass, and will be extended to Redondo beach via the road now building to that place."

There is no more valuable enterprise in progress in the Valley than the Owens River Canal. The total length of the canal is intended to be about twenty-two miles. The most difficult part of the work is already done; all that remains to do will be over easy ground, and although more than half of the entire length is yet untouched, yet that will cost much less than what is already done. It is already demonstrated that the land to be irrigated will produce wine of rare excellence, as well as fruits of all kinds. The wine described in a letter from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, published this week, was produced on the line of this canal.

Owens Valley Wine.

A few weeks ago a sample jar of wine was sent to Mr. E. W. Jones, President of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, by C. Mulholland. Here is what Mr. Jones has to say of the wine.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 26, 1889

MR. C. MULHOLLAND: Dear Sir:—The wine Mr. Compton brought has been tested by twenty or thirty persons, several of whom are thorough judges, and it has been unanimously pronounced good wine for its age. It is astonishing that so good a wine should be made by one without experience in the art of wine making. It is well to encourage the manufacture of so good an article and the storing of it until it has acquired age, say four or five years. This, I think, would make a beautiful and popular brown sherry. It was pretty generally pronounced sherry, tho' it did not have altogether sherry characteristics. You know that the trouble with most California wines that have been put on the market has been want of age.

I asked Mr. Compton, as you requested, what he thought of your mountains and I gather from his answer that they are grand beyond description. The air is full of railroad rumors and it seems there cannot be lack of some fire where there is so much smoke. * * * The Chamber is awake and doing much. * * * When some great project that requires large pecuniary advances appeals for them I think we will be equal to the emergency. Let me hear from you as convenient.

Very Sincerely yours,
E. W. JONES.

Centenary Celebration.

Inauguration Centenary was duly celebrated at Independence. Service was opened at the M. E. Church at 9 a. m. by Rev. E. McEvers. An address was delivered by C. Mulholland. The myth of Prometheous was taken as typical of the condition of mankind, chained down in slavery with the vulture Tyranny gnawing at its vitals. America was the Hero who destroyed the Tyrant and restored liberty. It is not Legislatures or statutes; it is not fleets and armies that preserve liberty. Greece and Rome had all of these yet freedom in both perished. The freedom of any people rests upon the virtue of the individuals. The person who is a slave to vice is ready for the condition of political slavery. The permanence of American liberty rests upon the sense of individual responsibility to Almighty God; and the daily history of the United States and the dealings of our Government with other Nations prove that this sense of responsibility is growing deeper in the hearts of our people. Mr. McEvers spoke eloquently and earnestly upon the proofs in our history in the past, and upon daily occurrences, that show how deep seated in the hearts of the American people is that reverence for God and his law that are the best foundations for individual and National strength and greatness.

The Odd Fellows

Bishop sent down a large deputation of ladies and gentlemen to the Odd Fellows Celebration at Independence. The oration by P. W. Forbes was not mere verbiage, but full of facts and information about the Order, all of which was interesting. The mid-day dinner at the Pavilion was alike elegant and substantial, and was as creditable to Mr. Mairs as it was pleasing to the company. The ball at night was one of the most enjoyable ever had at Independence. This depended in good measure upon the excellent music and careful management of dances. It would be worth having the celebration over again to see Emily Pat Conklin dance. She shows more versatility every time she appears in public and excels in everything she does. Independence will welcome the first opportunity to show appreciation of the generous support given to the celebration by the people of Bishop. It was not numbers merely, but the character of the delegation that made the attendance so pleasing.

A Useful Invention.

Mr. C. Meysan, of Lone Pine, has a self-acting apparatus already proved of value. The inlet pipe of the town water works is protected with iron plates perforated with holes to prevent leaves or other matter floating in the stream from which water is taken from entering the pipes. At certain seasons much trouble has been caused by the accumulation of leaves on the strainers. The leaves collect and form a mat so thick that very little water can pass through, thus rendering the water works nearly useless. The invention of Mr. Meysan has now been in use some time; it keeps the strainers entirely clear of all obstructions, is entirely self acting, not requiring the least attention when once put in operation, and costs comparatively little to make. Anyone wanting further information about the above invention should communicate with Mr. Meysan at the above address.

Contemptible

It is a useless labor to throw water on a drowned dog. Vile insinuations have no other effect than to cause the person who makes use of such a cowardly weapon to become a greater stench in the public nostrils. The books of the Secretary of the 18th District Agricultural Association are now, and always have been open to public inspection at his office. That gentleman holds the Treasurer's receipts for all money collected by him and $10 in excess, which he advanced. The Treasurer has receipts for all amounts paid, and advanced a considerable sum to meet demands for which there were no funds at present to pay them with. Out upon such contemptibly petty meanness.

Heroism

On Tuesday evening a telegram called one of the Drs. Woodin to Darwin. Dr. I. J. Woodin was already at Lone Pine and Mrs. Woodin started on the trip, leaving town about eight o'clock at night to make the drive of fifty-six miles. She was accompanied by Harry Jiggens as driver and through the long night traveled over the lonely desert to reach her patient. This is heroism. It matters not if the patient be a poor miner without a dollar, these physicians will travel day or night to give all the assistance in their power.

New Mining Company.

A new mining company has been incorporated to be known as the Butte Valley Mining Company. The mines of the company are in Butte Valley, in the southeastern portion of Inyo county. The principal place of business of the company is Santa Ana, Los Angeles county. The capital stock is $300,000 and is divided into 300,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each. The Directors of the Company are John G. Kimball, D. M. Tomblin, George L. Morgan, O. R. Scholl and Milo Page.

The Indian who killed Louis Sammann at Mono Lake has been sentenced to ten years in States Prison. It might be inferred from the verdict that the jury thought the killing of Sammann was not a very serious loss to the county; they found the prisoner "guilty of manslaughter," and recommended him to "the extreme mercy of the Court."

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

SATURDAY, April 27.

Estate of Edward A. Gifford, deceased—Property distributed and administrator discharged.

WEDNESDAY, May 1st.

Estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased—Petition filed of Horace M. Smith for letters testamentary.

Maggie Johnston vs. Martin Johnston alias W. L. Randle—Publication of summons ordered.

Maria Hoffman vs. C. L. Hoffman—A summons filed.

Meteorological Summary for April, 1889, Keeler, Cal.

Mean barometer	29.854 inches.
Mean temperature	62°
Highest temperature	86°
Lowest temperature	40°
Monthly range of temperature	22°
Mean dew point, 35°
Mean relative humidity 39 per cent.
Prevailing direction of wind, S. W.
Maximum velocity of wind, direction and date, 42 miles N. W. 18th.
Precipitation	0.12
Number of clouds days	21
Number of partly cloudy days	6
Number of cloudy days	3
Dates of Frosts—None.

D. C. GRUNOW,
Private, Signal Corps.

One of the most successful fruit raisers at Independence said a few days ago that his crop last year brought him two hundred dollars per acre. The orders sent him for fruit were far in excess of what he could fill. Fruit raising is by far the most profitable crop of Owens Valley.

Last Tuesday night Dr. Mrs. Woodin left Independence for Darwin to attend Mrs. Frank Cox. When within three miles of Darwin about four o'clock Wednesday morning, a messenger met the doctor with the sad news that Mrs. Cox was dead. An infant survives the mother.

Los Angeles is always to the front when anything generous is to be done the Tribune says: "The San Jose Ranch Company and M. L. Wicks offer to the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows the San Dimas Hotel and 20 acres of ground, to be used as an Odd Fellows' Home. The offer is a generous one and will probably be accepted."

Sam Chalmers has found ore at Deep Spring that puzzles the assayers. Several assays have been made and it is certain that the ore carries a good deal of gold, but it is mixed with something that prevents it from amalgamating. The hindering matter is supposed to be telurium and the ore must be roasted.

For some months past Celadonia Elias has been prospecting a mine at Fish Spring. He has made a start on a working test of the ore. The vein is now over three feet wide and carries all the way from forty to one hundred dollars per ton. All the indications are favorable for finding a big body of good paying ore.

A big artesian well is about to be bored near Mojave. The hole is fourteen inches in diameter and the Superintendent is reported to have said that he will keep on boring till he strikes water or rice. The finding of a good supply of artesian water in that region would be of immense importance. There are many thousands of acres of excellent land.

After about a month spent vainly churning a lava bed Mr. Anger has abandoned the first attempt to sink an artesian well. A fresh start, and with fair prospect for success, will be made at a location about a quarter of a mile from the first. No one has any doubt that good wells will be found when the proper localities are selected for boring.

Henry Miller, the well known cattle man, recently bought a large band of cattle and a range in Oregon. Mr. Miller said very recently to a citizen of Owens Valley that he wanted to buy all the cattle he could get; but any man who would sell would be doing an unwise thing, as cattle are sure to increase in value in the near future. No man on the Pacific Coast understands the whole cattle business better than Mr. Miller.

A new fast overland passenger train is about to be established on the Santa Fé road from Los Angeles. The rapid growth of the City and increased travel makes this necessary. The City Cable Car Company has made application for an extension of ten miles of their lines. Most of the stock of the Company is owned by Chicago capitalists. It is evident that they have plenty of faith in the continued and rapid growth of the City.

A freighting company has been formed and will run teames between Mojave and Bishop. A team will will start from each end of the line once each week. Goods will be delivered with strict regularity at all points on the line. The members of the company are Rudolf Schober, A. G. McGovern, J. Eisenger, O. Hampton and Milburn Hall. Teams are now on the road making regular trips.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Inyo
Freighting Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Notice for publication of time appointed for probate of will.

Notice is hereby given that Monday, the twentieth day of May A. D. 1889, at five o'clock p. m. of said day, and the Court-Room of said Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo State of California, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Joel H. Smith, deceased and for hearing the application of Horace M. Smith for the issuance to him of letters testamentary thereon. P. H. MACK, Clerk.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Petitioner.
Dated May 1, 1889.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken acceptible to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

E. H. Edwards,

—DEALER IN—

General Merchandise,

LONE PINE,

INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Rose Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL) P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o 51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,
Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.

Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated March 20 h, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,
Administrator of the estate of John B. White, deceased.

A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.

Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL
Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Wheeler & Wilson

Sewing Machine.

New No. 8.

"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.

Old Machines Exchanged for.

Farm Produce Taken in Payment.

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND,
Agent.

Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESpectfully invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 256 pages, 8½x11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you, Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,

Independence, Cal.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries and canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 SLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S CASH STORE

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full Latest Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sep14tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Sycamore, Neb., writes: "I stood up and saw that a Washer does more hard labor and money to a large family than any Report and Money that ever was put on any farm with less trouble to calculation. If you will set up any instrument that will take enough labor off men as the Washer takes off the women, and save as much as it does and cost as little, I could sell out every house in this town to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."

JOHN E. DOOR, JR., Jeweler, Norman, Ills., writes: "You ask if I think of the Washer I bought last summer. Yes, it is the best one ever invented by man. Yours truly." We have just as good testimony on any other day. Sir, If you run short, you can not buy cars to ship. I will ship a sample to the first, desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best seller in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Payable again big money. Write for particulars.

J. WORTH, 1710 Franklin Ave., St. Louis.

DOCTORING IN THE DARK.

No sensible surgeon will attempt the performance of an operation involving human life in a room secluded from the proper amount of light. A practitioner will not attempt the diagnosis of a complicated disease unless he can see the sufferer and make an examination upon which to base his opinion relative to the course of treatment necessary to bring about a complete restoration of health.

Notwithstanding the impropriety of such action there seems to be a great deal of doctoring done in the dark.

By this it is not intended that a literal meaning be inferred, but that a great many mistakes are committed because of the darkness which is the result of ignorance. It needs no illustration to demonstrate that gross ignorance has caused many fatal mistakes to be made in the treatment of diseases by those who profess to be learned in the art of healing.

In many diseases several organs are more or less implicated and what seems a primary ailment may be one quite remote. For instance, a severe headache may have its origin in a disturbed stomache. On the other hand, sickness at the stomach may be caused by a blow on the head. The seat of typhoid fever is in the upper part of the bowels, but most of its worst symptoms are often in the brain.

Symptoms of disease as well as diseases themselves are oftentimes followers or concomitants of some unsuspected organic disease and this is peculiarly true of lung, liver, brain and heart diseases in general, for it is now known that they are the result of kidney disease, which shows its presence in some such indirect manner.

Several years ago a gentleman became convinced of the truth of this and through his efforts the world has been warned of kidney disease and as a result of continued effort a specfic known as Warner's Safe Cure was discovered, the general use of which has shown it to be of inestimable benefit in all cases where kidney treatment is desirable or necessary.

When consumption is threatened see to it that the condition of the kidneys is immediately inquired into and if they are found diseased, cure them by an immediate use of Warner's Safe Cure and the symptoms of lung decay will rapidly disappear.

There are too many instances already recorded of the terrible results produced by a lack of kdowledge concerning the cause of disease, and human life is of too much importance to be foolishly sacrificed to bigotry or ignorance.

CURRENT ITEMS.

—It was a mean editor that headed the account of a death from delirium tremens. "Spirited Away."—Binghampton Republican.

—It has been computed that the power required to drive the tenpenny nails contained in a full keg would draw a wagon loaded with a ton of coal fifty-two miles.

—The heaviest leather belt ever put in an establishment is 60 inches wide and 140 feet long and weighs 1,600 pounds. It will drive 1,000-horse power machinery.

—A hint to all traders, big and little, is given by a boy who peddles matches near an elevated railroad station in New York. He watches the passengers as they come down the stairway, and when he sees a man with an unlighted cigar he hands him a match ready lighted, and then offers to sell him the rest of the box.

—A conscience contribution of $200 has been received by the Secretary of the Treasury in an envelope, postmarked Syracuse, N. Y., containing also the following note signed "Loyal": "Mr. Fair Childs Treas please put the within $200 into the United States Treasury where it belongs (I think).—Washington Star.

—The following facts about the tongue may interest some people: A white tongue is said to denote febrile disturbance; a brown, moist tongue, indigestion; a brown, dry tongue, depression, blood poisoning, typhoid fever; a red, glazed tongue, general fever; loss of digestion; a tremulous, moist and flappy tongue, feebleness, nervousness.

—A Kansas paper relates that a cattle raiser near Severy went out into his feed lot recently on foot. The cattle became infuriated and made a rush at him. He fell flat on the ground and remained perfectly quiet. The mad, bellowing herd came up and tramped round and round, often smelling of his body, but never attempting to injure it. After four hours in this position some men noticed the peculiar action of the herd and went in and rescued him.

—A man in Delhi has invented a combination running gear for vehicles. The combination consists of runners and wheels. When the runners are in use the wheels are in position above them. By a simple movement of the foot the runners are replaced with wheels, and vice versa, the whole arrangement being automatic, and the change being effected without the driver leaving his seat, the transfer occupying not more than five minutes.

—A veteran African explorer says: "The greatest danger to health in tropical climates, or at any rate in tropical Africa, occurs from catching cold. Two other imprudences next to be guarded against are excesses of any kind in eating or drinking or exposing one's self too much to the direct rays of the sun. Errors in diet are promptly and piteously punished with sickness, and as Europeans are all the better in health for taking a good deal of exercise they are easily liable to get sick if they expose themselves to the sun's rays without the protection of an umbrella, which is frequently done by newcomers out of foolish bravado."

—William Euston, who died in Charleston nearly fifty years ago, left a sum of money to be used in establishing a home for aged and indigent persons, something like the institution at Canterbury, England, Mr. Euston's native place. It was only about nine years ago that the trustees took hold of the matter and began operations with the $200,000 in their hands. About twenty cottages were built and sixty persons moved into them a few days ago. About twenty more buildings will be put up, and there will be room for some 200 inmates. The Euston Home will be one of the largest and most interesting benevolent institutions in the South. The buildings are of brick and granite, and surrounded by gardens and fields for cultivation, while the inmates have fuel, lights, and water provided, and pensions for personal expenses.

ALLEN GRAY

— OR, —

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

"Heaven knows it is no wrong on my part," sighed Allen. "But I know that I am committing no wrong. She who bade me do this errand is too good, too pure to meditate a wrong. I will not for a moment doubt her motives. By whomsoever she may be surrounded, by whatever mystery she may be engulfed, her goodness and the purity of her motives can not be questioned."

He reached a long bridge which spanned a small stream. Before he reached the approach he discovered a horseman descending the opposite hill, and, fearing that it was a returning pursuer, Allen rode down the creek bank under the approach to the bridge, where he remained until the horseman had come over and had gone out of hearing up the very road he himself had come.

"If that was a pursuer, he is now on the back track," thought Allen.

Our hero was really in a poor condition for either flight or defense. The sleeping child lay heavily on him, and he was totally unarmed. When the horseman was out of ear-shot Allen returned to the road, crossed the bridge and galloped over the opposite hill and along the hard-beaten road.

Night was well-nigh spent and he was several miles yet from his journey's end.

"This is certainly a remarkably patient child," said the horseman, gazing into the face of the sleeping boy, as his horse sauntered along the road. "He has not, by a gesture or movement, indicated either weariness or impatience. Poor little fellow, this journey, I hope, will result in great good to you."

The moon, well on toward morning, came struggling above the eastern horizon, but in its old age its light was but little. The silver ray thrown upon the earth was very pale indeed.

Darkness, slowly but surely, began to fade. The child slept on. The eastern horizon grew to a bright vermilion, and stars in the far east began to slowly pale and go out before the approach of a more powerful light. A new day was coming into existence, and the journey lacked several miles of completion.

CHAPTER XIII.

MLLE. CAMILLE.

Day dawned, the sun rose above the hills and fields and dried the sparkling dew-drops from the grass. What a glorious scene that sun revealed. As far away as eyes could see were the gently rolling hills and green valleys with dark, solemn forests massed in the background. Farm cottages and fields were everywhere in view. Smoke could be seen issuing from the kitchens where the good housewives were preparing breakfast for their husbands. Thin, spiral clouds of pale blue ascended into mid-heaven to become a part of it.

A glorious day it promised to be. Prairie poppies and roses saucily nodded their heads in the gentlest of warming breezes. The dew drops sparkled like diamonds in the early morning sun, and the air was laden with the sweetest perfume.

The child awoke shortly after sunrise, and turned his large blue eyes inquiringly upon his companion. Allen knew he wanted to ask some question, but was unable to tell what the question was, or convey any answer to the boy.

The light of the morning sun revealed a still nearer resemblance to Bertha, and he knew that the child must be a very near relative of hers. She had not said how nearly related the child was to her, or that he was any relation at all. There was so much hidden in the manner of the beautiful girl that Allen was unable to come to any satisfactory conclusion.

At last the little fellow began to show signs of restlessness. He gave utterance to inarticulate sounds and pointed down the road.

"I suppose he is anxious to know how near we are to our journey's end," Allen thought. "If I even knew, it might be impossible to get him to understand. It can not be over ten miles, and I will try to tell him some way."

The child's mind was very bright, and he understood by the nods and gestures of his companion that it was not far.

For several moments the little fellow was quiet, and then he began to make signs that he was hungry.

"Poor little fellow, no doubt you are hungry," said Allen. "The first house we come to, we will try to get breakfast and have our horse fed."

Unaccustomed to the saddle, Allen was stiff, sore and weary in every joint. The long ride, without a moment's sleep or rest, was telling even on his iron constitution.

He drew rein in front of a country house, and hailed a farmer who was just harnessing his horses to go to his day's work.

"Can we get breakfast and horse fed here?" he asked.

The farmer, with one eye closed and head slightly to one side, gazed at him a moment and said:

"I reckin so, stranger. Breakfast's 'bout over, though I reckin the old ooman kin skeer up a leetle fur ye. Whar'n the worl' d'ye come from?"

The direct an inquisitive old farmer was until this moment unthought of, and for a moment Allen was a little disconcerted. He knew so little about the mission on which he was engaged that he doubted if he could make the explanation satisfactory to the countryman, even if he attempted it. He evasively answered that they came from up the country.

"Umph, humph! that your boy?" asked the farmer.

"No, sir, I am taking him to some of his relatives who live further down the country, and are going away."

"Looks like ye rid 'most all night," said the farmer, examining the horse with one eye shut.

"We have traveled a good part of the night. We had to do so to reach the child's friends in time."

"Bright boy—ar' ye hungry, youngster?"

"Unfortunately the poor child is both deaf and dumb."

"Ah! is that so? Well, it's too bad. Mighty pretty leetle feller. Here, Chet," called the farmer to a ragged, dirty urchin, who was running about in the yard, "go in the house an' tell yer maw that thar's a gent an' leetle boy here what want their breakfast; an' then you come back an' feed this hoss."

"All right," answered the boy, running to the house.

With a feeling of almost complete exhaustion, Allen dismounted. When the farmer took the poor child from the saddle he could scarcely stand. Our hero took the child's hand in his and led him to the house, where both sank down in chairs.

The farmer remained behind to see that the horse was properly fed and curried by Chet.

"I tell ye that hoss hez bin rid mighty hard," said the farmer, shaking his head knowingly. "That feller ain't pulled the wool over my eyes as much as he thinks he hez. I'm goin' to larn somethin' about him, cause there's a screw loose shore."

With this end in view he went to the house, and while coffee was grinding and meat frying for breakfast, he proceeded to interrogate the traveler. But he was met by wits much shrewder than his own, his every thrust was successfully parried by a satisfactory explanation, and making no headway he was soon almost ready to give it up.

"CAN WE GET BREAKFAST?"

"Hed a purty hard ride?" said the farmer.

"Very," the traveler answered.

"Dark, too, warn't it?"

"Rather. We had a moon late in the night, though it was a very feeble moon and soon followed by the sun."

"Sartinly. Didn't travel much afore the moon riz?"

"Oh no," was the evasive answer.

"Good hoss, though?"

"An excellent traveler."

"How much d'ye giv fur him?"

"He is not mine. He was loaned me to make this journey."

"Must a rid him purty hard?"

"I had to ride hard. We will barely get there in time now."

A door from the kitchen opened at this moment, and the tangled head of the woman was thrust into the apartment to announce that breakfast was ready.

"Walk in, stranger; I reckin yer leetle boy is kinder hungry."

"He must be very hungry, for I feel faint and weak myself."

Allen touched the shoulder of the dumb boy, who was sitting as motionless as if he had been carved from stone, and the little fellow turned his wearied eyes upon him. He motioned to the child to come, and he rose and followed him to the dining-room, where they ate their breakfast.

Never did a man feel less like riding across the country, but delays were dangerous, and if parties were in pursuit they might overtake him before they reached their destination.

Settling his bill he ordered his horse, and mounting with the little boy before him, they continued their journey. The child gave evidences of soreness from continued travel, but Allen made him to understand that their journey would soon terminate, and the little fellow become quiet.

Galloping down a hilly road they turned into a long lane. On every side could be heard the merry whistle of the plow-boy, mingled with the song of the lark. They crossed a considerable strip of prairie, and were refreshed by the gentle breeze sweeping over it.

"Poor little fellow," said Allen, when he discovered how haggard the child was becoming. "Oh, how I wish you were at the end of your journey."

The prairie was about four miles wide. They had crossed it and were entering a grove of trees when, chancing to look back, he saw two horsemen about three miles in his rear coming at full speed.

"Pursued!" cried Allen. The child discovering the horsemen, a look of terror spread over his infantile face, and, uttering strange cries, he began kicking the sides of the horse.

Allen increased the speed at which they were going, as much as he dared, knowing that a five mile journey was before them.

They passed a teamster, who turned his eyes inquiringly upon the fugitives, but asked no questions, and Allen kept steadily on, soon losing the wagoner to view by a bend in the road.

About a mile further on they overtook a boy, of whom Allen inquired the distance to Frenchtown.

"'Bout three miles this way; 'tain't more'n half as far, though, ef ye take the nigh way ahead here."

"How far are we from the 'nigh way?'" Allen asked.

"'Bout a quarter."

"Take me to it, and put me on the right road, and I will give you a dollar for your trouble."

The boy, highly pleased to earn a dollar so easily, whipped his thin sorrel to a gallop, and soon brought the fugitives to the nearer route, where he received his promised reward.

"Jist go right ahead," said the boy, "thar hain't no other route to take ye off."

"Where are you going?" asked Allen.

"East."

"At ones?"

"Yes, zur."

"You are in a hurry, are you?"

"Ye bet ye I am, or I'd take ye right plum to Frenchtown myself."

"If there is no road to lead us off we can make it without any more trouble now. Go on, and good luck to you," said Allen, watching the boy until the thin, sorrel mare had galloped out of sight. "I am glad he is not going back, for he might meet those men and put them on our trail."

The fugitive held the child close in his arms and put his horse into a run. The gallant steed almost flew along the wooded road. On, on he sped like the wind. A high bridge which spanned a narrow, deep stream burst into view. The gallant steed thundered over the bridge and ascended the tall hill beyond.

Frenchtown was near; this journey would soon be ended, but where was he to conceal himself from those wrathful pursuers when it was ended? He had a very complete description of Mlle. Camille's cottage, and thought he could find it without trouble, but would it afford either himself or the child shelter from their pursuers when found?

When the top of the great hill had been reached the village appeared in sight. The boy, recognizing the landscape, clapped his hands with delight, as the tall church spire was seen above the trees.

When they had reached the top of another hill they saw the village lying below them. Not wishing to attract any attention Allen reigned in their horse and rode quietly down into the town.

Uttering gutteral cries of delight, the dumb boy pointed toward a vine-covered cottage which Allen at once recognized by the description to be the house of Mlle. Camille. He rode quickly to it. A negro man opened the gate and motioned him to enter.

Entering the gate he found himself in a sort of court surrounded by a wall ten feet high. The place looked not a little like a fortification. A woman about forty years of age came out from the house, and taking the little dumb boy who had been lifted to the ground in her arms almost smothered him with kisses.

Allen had hoped that he would meet some one at this end of the journey who was able and willing to enlighten him on the perplexing mystery; but he was soon doomed to disappointment, for there was not one of the household able to speak English.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Some Denmark Railway Companies employ a man and his wife together. The women signal the train and the husbands do the track-walking. In case of the death of either husband or wife the other half of the family must marry again in six months or get out of the company's employ.

The meeting of Cleveland street-car employes to express disapproval of the bill making 3 cents the fare in street cars defeated that measure. It is claimed that the companies paid for the hall and furnished cars for the men to ride home in. Now the request of the employes for twelve hours and $2 per day is denied by the companies. The men now receive $1.75.

When Charley put on his first trousers he was very proud. He strutted up and down in front of his mother almost crazy with delight. Then he burst out: "Oh, mamma, pants make me feel so grand! Didn't it make you feel grand when"— But an awful consciousness came over him that this bliss had never been shared by his mother, and he laid his wee, chubby hand pityingly against her cheek, saying, pathetically, "Oh, poor mamma! poor mamma!"—Sunshine.

Got There First.

A little girl was sitting on the floor when the sun shone in her face. "Go 'way! go 'way!" she cried, striking out at it. "You move, dear, and it won't trouble you," said mamma. "I s'ant; I dot here first," said the little one.—Youth's Companion.

Very Low Indeed.

The youngest of the family returned from school yesterday to remark to his mamma "Teacher says it's 30 degs. below the squeezing point."—Rochester Post-Express.

ANOTHER BIG WINNER.

A Broker Draws $30,000 From the Louisiana State Lottery.

Many of the prizes won at the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery were secured by ticket holders in San Francisco. This paper on Wednesday gave the names of two persons who got $15,000 each. Another gentleman, E. Fritsch, partner in the firm of Kuhl, Roemer & Co., brokers on Pine street won $30,000, one-tenth of the capital prize.

Mr. Fritsch has been in business for a number of years and accepted the $30,000 with a great deal of philosophy.

"What will you do with the money, Mr. Fritsch?"

"Oh, I don't know," he said. "I'll invest it, I suppose. I did not need it, you know, but can find some good use for it."

"How many tickets did you buy?"

"I got a couple of coupons for $2 and they proved worth just $30,000. I have been buying tickets for some time. I consider it just as safe an investment as stocks—safer maybe. No big ticket holder can depreciate the value of the one you hold, the way a stock-holder can run down the price of mining shares. A dollar or two a month isn't felt very much and one will hit the winning ticket some time. That's how I look at it. I know all about stocks and shares and am of the opinion that this small investment of mine is safer and surer than any I could make in mines."

Since Mr. Fritsch's good fortune has been made known, he has been the object of much attention from acquaintances and strangers. Many people bring him money and ask him to buy tickets for them. He has a very charming family and a beautiful home in Alameda.—San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle, March 1.

A Rochester cat gets drunk on beer. That proves that beer will intoxicate.—Binghampton Republican.

A TERRIBLE MISFORTUNE.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nerveless, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions rapped by weakness and infirmity and long unbenefitted by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

Snappish—Young Wife—The trouble with my husband is, he doesn't thoroughly know me. Old Maid—How thankful you ought to be, dear.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

There is an article going the rounds telling "How to catch the public eye." This, we think, is best done with an umbrella.—Omaha Herald.

Consumption, Scrofula, General Debility, Wasting Diseases of Children, Chronic Coughs and Bronchitis, can be cured by the use of Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Prominent physicians use it and testify to its great value. Please read the following: "I used Scott's Emulsion for an obstinate Cough with Hemorrhage, Loss of Appetite, Emaciation, Sleeplessness &c. All of these have now left, and I believe your Emulsion has saved a case of well developed Consumption."—T. J. FINDLEY, M. D., Lone Star, Texas.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CURED.

About two years ago our daughter had congestion of the kidneys, which developed into Bright's Disease. Her body was swollen to an enormous size—measuring 45 inches around the waist, and 18 inches below the knee. After physicians had given up her case, I determined to have her try Dr. Kennedy's "FAVORITE REMEDY," of Rondout, N. Y. Gradually the swelling was reduced from 45 to 29 inches. She began to gain strength, and was able to walk without fatigue. We do not know how to express our gratitude for what it has done for our child. We are confident the Favorite Remedy will do all that is claimed for it—surely God has blessed it in this case, and we earnestly recommend it to all suffering from kidney disorders.—S. D. Van Buskirk, Demarest, N.J.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

In any case of Seminal weakness, arising from any cause, Dujardin's Life Essence is a sure cure. It acts very quickly, and permanently cures. Two or three bottles have been often sufficient to cure even cases of long standing. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

L. M. Walton and Phillips & Co.'s Tourist Sleeping Car excursions East. No charge for births. For information, tickets, and location in cars, address

F. G. High, 624 Market St., San Francisco.

Steamship Tickets to and from Europe at very lowest rates.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

HOW TO OVERCOME THE DANGERS OF EXPOSURE.

Francis O'Reilly, the well-known livery man of No. 18 Prince Street, New York, says of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS:

"For the last forty-two years I have been engaged in the livery and hacking business. I am greatly aided by my four boys. We are much exposed to the weather, and we have found ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS of very great service. We use them as chest protectors, placing one on the chest and one on the pit of the stomach. They not only ward off the cold, but act as a tonic.

"We are frequently affected with rheumatism, kinks in the back, and pains in the side; but one or two of ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS quickly cure us. My wife and daughter have been using ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS for weak back and think the world of them. I have now been using them for twenty years, and always have a box in the house."

St. Louis boasts of a dwarf barber less than four feet high. He must be a little shaver.

A Slight Cold, if neglected, often attacks the Lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give immediate relief.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,

T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

FULL WEIGHT PURE

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alum. Sold only in Cans.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK, CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

INTERESTING AND USEFUL.

Book Keeping can now be learned by getting your lessons from San Francisco, on the new system of teaching. It is preferred even by students living in San Francisco. Instructions and lessons are sent by mail, in printed letters; they are plain and explicit, they admit of no misunderstanding. Beginners, as well as experienced accountants, find it equally interesting and entertaining, being happily deprived of those features which render the study laborious and irksome. Lessons are to be written on loose sheets which, at stated periods, are sent to me for examination. On their return the entries are made in the books. The system is thorough and complete, not only in double and single entry book keeping, but also in regard to the customs of trade and office. With the last letter, embracing also the final examination, you receive blanks of bills, notes, drafts, checks, statements, etc., for practice. Terms, $25 for entire course, including material needed for the study, and valued $6. Course may be completed in from four to six months. Address:

MAX LEVY, 727 McAllister St., San Francisco.

MAX LEVY, Esq., Dear Sir:—The last of your valuable letters came duly to hand, and is a fitting conclusion of a work which cannot fail in attracting the attention of merchants and accountants. Your instructions contain many things only encountered elsewhere in active business life.

Yours Sincerely,

SANFORD FEIGENBAUM,
With Feigenbaum & Co., 520-526 Market St., San Francisco.

WOVEN WIRE MATTRESSES AND IRON BEDS. Manufactured by W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal. Send for Catalogue and Price List.

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean simply to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY OR FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.

H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

CALIFORNIA ROSES!

STRONG, WELL-ROOTED PLANTS, ALL Labeled, Assorted, 10 for $1.00. Geraniums, Fuchsias, Heliotrope, Begonias, Verbenas and Chrysanthemums in large variety. Good Healthy Plants, all Labeled, 12 for $1.00. All plants sent free by mail, and safe arrival guaranteed for Cash with order. Address, W. A. T. STRATTON, Florist, Petaluma, Cala.

A BIG SHOW

Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

LADIES!

A SECRET YOU WOULD like to know, especially MARRIED LADIES of delicate health. Send stamp for full particular of this great boon to women, sent in securely sealed letter. DR. GRAEME, box 1841, San Francisco, Cal.

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES.
Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. J. ALKIRS, Manager Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

AGENTS are coining money with our new book. Write for circulars. Distance no hindrance. Empyreal Pub. House, St. Paul, Minn.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

$50,000 given away in Prizes Packages, $1 each. E. C. SHAWKEY, Phillipsburg, Kans.

S. F. N. U. No. 354. New Series No. 12

FOR CHICKEN CHOLERA.

419 Huron St., Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 12, 1888.

I have used St. Jacobs Oil for chicken cholera with great success. Every fowl affected with the disease was cured by it and I recommend it as a sure cure. It has saved me many dollars.

H. A. KUENNE,
Breeder of Fine Fowls.

Diamond Vera-Cura FOR DYSPEPSIA.

AND ALL STOMACH TROUBLES SUCH AS: Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Nausea, Giddiness, Constipation, Fullness after eating, Food Rising in the Mouth and disagreeable taste after eating, Nervousness and Low Spirits.

At Druggists and Dealers or sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent Stamp.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

KNABE PIANOS

It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.

A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 132 Post street, S. F.

ORATORS say Piso's Cure for Consumption is THE BEST for keeping the voice clear. 25 cents.

PEOPLES HOME SAVINGS BANK

JAS. K. WILSON, Cashier.
COLUMBUS WATERHOUSE, President.

805 Market Street, cor. 4th St.
IN FLOOD BUILDING.
San Francisco, California.

GUARANTEE CAPITAL, $300,000

Deposits from any part of the Pacific Coast States may be sent by registered letter, post office money order, bank draft or express.

The People's Home Savings Bank has exceptional facilities for safe, profitable and satisfactory investment of funds at good rates of interest.

Dr. John C. Spencer,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

Arzt und Chirurg,

OFFICE, 514 Sutter St. bet. Powell & Mason, San Francisco, California.

RESIDENCE, Westminster Hotel, 614 Sutter St. one block above.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEARL & BACH, Gabler, Boomish Pianos; Burdett Organs, band instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post street, S. F.

ARM & HAMMER BRAND

To Housekeepers and Farmers.—It is important that the Soda or Saleratus you use should be White and Pure same as all similar substances used for food. To insure obtaining only the "Arm & Hammer" brand Soda or Saleratus, buy it in "pound or half pound" cartoons which bear our name and trade-mark, as inferior goods are sometimes substituted for the "Arm & Hammer" brand when bought in bulk. Parties using Baking Powder should remember that its sole rising property consists of bicarbonate of soda. One teaspoonful of the "Arm & Hammer" brand of Soda or Saleratus mixed with sour milk equals four teaspoonfuls of the best Baking Powder, saving twenty times its cost, besides being much healthier, because it does not contain any injurious substances, such as alum, terra alba etc., of which many Baking Powders are made. Dairymen and Farmers should use only the "Arm & Hammer" brand for cleaning and keeping Milk Pans Sweet and Clean.

OUR TRADE MARK

CHURCH & CO'S SODA

ON EVERY PACKAGE.

CAUTION. See that every pound package of "Arm and Hammer Brand" contains full 16 ounces net, and the ½ pound packages full 12 ounces net, Soda or Saleratus same as specified on each package.

Packed in Card Board Boxes. Always keeps Soft.

SODA OR SALERATUS

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used only one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and was perfectly cured. I can now jump around, and feel as lively as a boy." FRANK CAROLL, Eureka, Nevada.

$1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.
Mammoth testimonial paper free.
WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Props., Burlington, Vt.

"Paine's Celery Compound has been a God-send to me. For the past two years I have suffered with neuralgia of the heart, doctor after doctor failing to cure me. I have now taken nearly four bottles of the Compound, and am free from the complaint. I feel very grateful to you." CHAS. H. LEWIS, Central Village, Ct.

Paine's Celery Compound

"I have been greatly afflicted with acute rheumatism, and could find no relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound. After using six bottles of this medicine I am now cured of rheumatic troubles."

SAMUEL HUTCHINSON, So. Cornish, N. H.

Effects Lasting Cures.

Paine's Celery Compound has performed many other cures as marvelous as these,—copies of letters sent to any address. Pleasant to take, does not disturb, but aids digestion, and entirely vegetable; a child can take it. What's the use of suffering longer with rheumatism or neuralgia?

DIAMOND DYES Give Faster and Brighter Colors than any other Dyes. BABIES Living upon Lactated Food are Healthy, Happy, Hearty. It is Unequaled.

AN HONEST DRUGGIST,

when asked for the best blood-purifier, always recommends Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, because he knows it has by far the largest sale and gives the best satisfaction to his customers. Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from a common Blotch, or Eruption to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-joint Disease, "White Swellings," "Fever Sores," Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands.

Consumption, which is Scrofula of the Lungs, is arrested and cured by this remedy, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease. From its marvelous power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "CONSUMPTION CURE," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for Consumption, but for all chronic diseases of the Liver, Blood and Lungs.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy. Sold by Druggists, at $1.00, or six Bottles for $5.00.

Copyrighted, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

CATARRH IN THE HEAD

is conquered by the cleansing, antiseptic, soothing and healing properties of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. 50 cts., by druggists.

THE BEST CLOTHING

For Men and Boys at

"THE HASTINGS,"

Lick House Block, San Francisco.

MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co.

27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY....MAY 11, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 48. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 11, 1889. WHOLE NO. 967.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 20

LO THE POOR INDIAN

AND OTHER IMPRESSIVE FIGURES ON THE THOROUGHFARES.

Facts About the Manufacture of Dummies. The Wood Used for the Purpose—Cost of the Noble Savage and His Associate Graven Images.

In a recent interview with a citizen of Brooklyn who makes dummies, I acquired considerable information relating to this branch of the art of wood carving which proved entertaining as well as instructive. As I entered his place of business he was busily engaged in putting the finishing touches of color on a huge, grim looking Indian, which vainly tried to look me out of countenance during my conversation with its owner.

"I always finish them up myself," said he, "for no two painters tastes, are alike, and I like to have them finished to my taste as nearly as possible. The fine, big fellow goes to New Orleans to-morrow, and will bring me a neat sum, too."

ORIGIN OF FIGURE CARVING.

"I suppose hard wood is always used for figures," said I, "on account of having to withstand all sorts of weather and temperature?"

"You were never more mistaken in your life. We use soft pine for carving entirely. I get my logs from a spar yard down in Erie basin, pay from 30 to 60 cents per running foot for them, and they are mostly ends which have been detached from logs in constructing spars and masts in the yard. The only thing we find to contend with is the number of knots always found in pine logs, but it's the only kind that's ever been used, so I take it for granted it's the best."

"What was the origin of dummy carving, or is it not a trade in itself, but a branch of the common wood carving trade?"

"I don't know how dummies in the first place became associated with the tobacco business, but this I do know: Figure carving is a complete trade in itself—a trade in which artistic instinct is essential to success, and without which no workman can become proficient. It descends from the now obsolete art of figurehead carving for vessels in ancient times, and requires equally skilled workmen to properly execute the designs now used. At least twelve or fourteen years' apprenticeship is necessary to become proficient in this branch, even though possessed of the necessary talent, and considering the wages paid it's little wonder no apprentices are to be found now and that very few men follow it for a livelihood."

"How do you commence work on a figure?" I asked.

"It is the simplest thing in the world. The log is suspended horizontally between two blocks, just high enough for the carver to reach handily. He draws with pencil the outline of front and back of the proposed figure, and hews it out roughly to within half an inch of the line. Then the log is turned over and a like process is gone through regarding the sides, which completed the fine work begins. The sharp tools are produced the carver puts his thinking cap on, and in the course of a few days a perfectly formed and expressive face will have made its appearance. The rest, of course, is easier, the most difficult part of the remaining work being the pose, for a poor attitude spoils the effect of the most perfect facial expression."

A KING FOR $350.

"How long does it take to turn out an Indian, from first to last?"

"For an average five foot warrior about five days is required for the carving and as many more for painting and finishing up, but for a monster like this fellow," pointing to the fierce visaged chieftain he had just finished touching up, "nearly a month is required for its completion. It's tedious work, but a figure like that will bring me about $150, and an average sized one from $25 to $100, according to design."

"What do you pay your carvers after their spending so many years acquiring the necessary knowledge?"

"Four dollars per day is the highest rate paid, and as steady work can never be assured it is a very low price for the work done."

"Is your demand mostly home trade?"

"Not by any means. I have plenty of repairing here, but sell very few new ones, as a figure with moderate care lasts a lifetime. My demand is mostly from inland cities and mostly for Indians, which will always be the substantial stand by in way of design. I get occasional orders for clowns, or darkies, or dudes, or some such specialty as a Pickwick or a king, but rarely. The finest job I ever turned out was a likeness of King William I, several years ago, for which I received $350."

"What was the most novel design, in your opinion, that you've yet undertaken?"

"I think the most ridiculous figure I ever got up was one ordered by a St. Louis man a couple of years ago—a likeness of Knox Dunlap, the dude, a character in Mestayer's 'We, Us & Co.,' which was very popular then in the west. It represented a very homely young man, with the tightest of pants and the largest of mouths, the latter extended to its utmost capacity in a desperate attempt to smile; a nose ornamented with numerous buds which threatened soon to become blossoms, and a beard conspicuous for its irregularity of length, scarcity and vermilion shade."

"Do you have busy seasons, as is the case with most businesses?"

"Only in the repairing line. In the spring—housecleaning time, you know—dealers in tobacco and cigars generally treat their figures to a new coat of paint and a general overhauling, but orders come in about the same the year around, and that," he added, "is slow enough, slow enough."

The huge Indian here shed a tear of sympathy with its master, and feeling as though I had awakened unpleasant thoughts I quietly withdrew to the street, leaving both in a brown study.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Satirical.

Gen. Timothy Ruggles, of Hardwick, was quite a noted man in his day, though few readers of the present time will remember his name. He was chief justice of the county court, which was composed of all the justices of the county. Ruggles entertained a poor opinion of a court thus constituted.

One day a dog belonging to one of the members came in and took a seat beside his master, whereupon the chief justice administered to the animal a solemn reprimand.

"You must go and be sworn as a justice of the peace," he said, "before taking your place as a member of this court."—Youth's Companion.

A Live Question.

An aged couple in Providence had been without food in the house so long that finally, when their last penny had been spent for a candle, the hungry rats devoured it, and they were too weak to resist. When finally the old man crawled out for help the rats attacked the prostrate woman. Such sad scenes are constantly occurring in great cities. At the same time the Andover theological disputants are fighting month after month over the question whether a dead heathen in Burmah can be saved though he never heard of Him who had not where to lay His head.—Boston Globe.

A WOMAN.

I've had his dark eyes over brimmed with light
Fall on my face,
Stay scarce a moment, then indifferent go,
Adrift in space;
I've had the blood, like myriad, hot tongued flames,
To my cheeks dart,
Before his eyes' cold brilliancy—but that—
That did not break my heart.

I've known the bitterness that I to him
Was simply naught;
My love and I had never entered in
His slightest thought.
I've seen him, careless, meet me in the crowd,
And careless part;
And though I paled in anguish, yet I lived—
That did not break my heart.

I stood one evening when the opal lights
Tinted the west;
A lovely woman by me leaned,
A rose lay on her breast.
He paused in passing—as his eyes met hers
I saw him start,
Turn to her with one look; but that—
That broke my heart.

—J. Hunt Brisbane.

Red Snow.

From the Alps, from the Himalayas, and from every part of the Arctic regions where snow remains many months, if not all the year round, reports are brought of large or small patches of red snow. A good account of this strange appearance is given in the "Journal of a Voyage in Baffin's Bay":

We observed a pool a few feet above the level of the sea, which reflected the light from the sky, and appeared to be of a blood red color.

On approaching it, we found the water as pure and clear as possible, but the small stones which composed the bottom were grown over with a most perfect coating of the red snow plant.

Some of the water appeared either to have drained away or evaporated, for the stones around its margin were left dry, but they had the coating of "red snow" still adhering to them. In the water the plant was of a beautiful crimson tinge, but that on the dry stones was slightly darker, resembling dried blood, except that it was a little more granular when closely examined.—Youth's Companion.

Animals with Peculiar Eyes.

Nature has enabled some animals to see objects behind them as well as in front without turning around. The hare has this power in a marked degree. Its eyes are large, prominent and placed laterally. Its power of seeing things in the rear is very noticeable in greyhound coursing, for though this dog is mute while running, the hare is able to judge to a nicety the exact moment at which it will be best for it to double. Horses are another instance. It is only necessary to watch a horse, driven invariably without blinkers, to prove this. Take, for instance, those on tramways. Let the driver even attempt to take the whip in hand, and if the horse is used to the work he will at once increase his pace. The giraffe, which is a very timid animal, is approached with the utmost difficulty, on account of its eyes being so placed that it can see as well behind as in front. When approached this same faculty enables it to direct with great precision the rapid storm of kicks with which it defends itself.—New York Telegram.

The "Arabian Nights" Translator.

Everybody has read the "Arabian Nights, but few of the thousands who have enjoyed the book are aware to whom the western world is indebted for the possession of this treasure house of Oriental folk lore. It was translated from the Arabic by Antoine Galland, a French savant and traveler, who died on Feb. 17, 1715. He obtained it in its original form during a residence in the east, as attache to the French embassy at Constantinople. He traveled extensively in the east, giving much attention to the study of eastern authors. His learning was prodigious, and he produced many laborious works, all of which are now forgotten. But he has secured a kind of immortality by his life task of translating the "Arabian Nights," which will doubtless never cease to be read.—Philadelphia Times.

A Delicate Compliment.

I heard a very delicate compliment paid to one of the rosebuds of Washington the other evening at a reception; one of the prettiest tributes from an old to a young belle that could possibly be offered. So writes a correspondent from the capital. The old belle, who had seen a dozen or more winters in Washington and is getting a little passe—a fact she is perfectly aware of, and does not try to conceal—was standing in a group with several of her admirers, when one of the freshest and brightest of the season's debutantes approached and thrust her hand affectionately through her arm. The old belle looked down admiringly into the face of the young one and remarked:

"My dear, I love you, but I wish you would keep on the other side of the room. You are not very becoming to me."

Professional Clock Winders.

I am a professional clock winder. I do nothing else from Monday morning to Saturday night, being employed for the work on a salary, my employers making their own arrangements with customers. My beat is down town. I am only one of five persons similarly employed. I have certain days for winding every clock on my list. I enter the office, mount a chair or desk, as the case may be, wind the clock, set the hands if the time indicated is not correct, and silently go away. Under this plan clocks are never permitted to run down and they are less liable to get out of order. I count a good day's business the winding and inspection of 200 clocks. To do this I must keep steadily on the move. A clock winder has little time for sociability or "soldiering."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Transmission of Diphtheria.

Dr. De la Roche believes that diphtheria can be transmitted from animals to man. He has had under his care two women suffering from diphtheria, which he thinks he has traced to the contamination of drinking water from a cistern by the excrement of pigeons, which had been washed down by the rain from the roof on which these birds had perched. Admitting the possibility of the transmission of diphtheria in this manner, the means of combating it are simple. In places where spring water and well water are not available, or where the supply consists of rain water collected in cisterns, it is well to limit pigeon breeding, and to construct dove cotes as far away as possible from dwelling houses.—Science.

A Lucky Doorkeeper.

John A. McDonald, a doorkeeper at a dime museum in Boston, has received word that he has fallen heir to $100,000, bequeathed by the late Lieutenant Governor James A. McDonald, of Michigan. The lieutenant governor was killed in a railroad accident on Jan. 26, leaving an estate valued at about $4,000,000. John A. McDonald was a nephew of the millionaire. The uncle had seen him only once in his life. Young McDonald is about 23 years old and has drifted about during the past ten years of his life. Six years ago he was a fireman on the New York and New England railroad, and after going through sixteen smashups he quit the business.—Philadelphia Times.

IN THEIR OWN TRAP.

DID NOT VISIT NEW YORK TO BE SWINDLED BY SHARPERS.

The Adventures of a Montana Horse Raiser in Which the Bunco Men Lost $25—A Team That Was Sold to the Mayor of Boston, but Which He Did Not Get.

A fine looking gentleman strolled into The Times office and said that he wanted to see the "horse editor." The visitor's card bore a name which is very familiar to horse dealers and horse lovers.

For some years past his stock farms in northern Montana have been a leading source of supply for the horse marts of the country. The man was unknown, having loved, wedded and always lived in the fastness of his adopted state, but his name and his horses were famous.

"Good morning, sir. I kinder thought I'd call in an' see you for a minute or two and tell you about a little fun I had in this metropolis of yours this morning.

After a few preliminary remarks concerning horsey matters he, in a half amused, half earnest sort of way, related the following tale of his adventure during the morning with a quartet of horse sharpers.

"You see, I've been out in Montana so long I thought I'd like to come east, so I came and here I am. I put up at a hotel, and this morning, feeling sort er lonely, I strolled around to Van Tassell & Kearney's horse sale stables on West Thirteenth street I had a partial reason for going there, as I wanted to buy a pretty team for a relative of mine down in Pennsylvania. I staid around there for a while, and finally a couple of bay mares were offered that struck my fancy and I bid $400 on them. I was outbid, and was walking away from the stable when a slick, neat looking individual touched my arm and said:

THE TEAM HE DIDN'T SEE.

"'Do you want to buy a team?'

"I told him I was not over particular, but was always ready to snap up a good bargain, so says he:

"'Well, I have got just what you want. A pair of beautiful young bays, owned by a widow lady who's going to Europe. Come down to the stable and the coachman will show them to you.'

"That expression, widow lady, kinder set me to thinking. I'd heard through the papers of widow ladies who were going to Europe and wanted to sell their horses, and was suspicious; but, thinks I, I'll see it through, and I'm glad I did. The fellow led me down Thirteenth street to Third avenue and up Third avenue. I told him I was not used to and did not enjoy long walks, and he said we were most there. He took me up an alleyway and into one of the shabbiest private stables, for a rich widow lady, that I ever saw. Then he sung out 'John.' John did not show up. I suppose he was the coachman; but a minute later there came in a fine looking old gentleman, who looked as swell as the president of a European syndicate in western farm lands. I was introduced to him as a possible customer for 'that pair of horses.' The old chap greeted me very affectionately, patted me on the shoulder and said he was the executor of the widow's estate. He explained that the team was a couple of fine trotting mares, cost $2,500, but he would sell one for $300 to a country gentleman. Did I belong in the country? 'Oh, yes,' I replied, thinking I'd humor him, 'I come from way up in Vermont.' The old cove gave a sort of a satisfied grunt and said he would go and get the coachman to bring in the team. He had no sooner gone out than in bobbed a horsey looking individual, who said to me in an excited way:

"'Say, I'm a horse dealer, I am, from Boston. I want that pair of mares, but the widow won't sell 'em to a dealer. You buy 'em for me and I'll give you $50. It's an easy way to make a half hundred. Here's my card.'

"He handed me a card. A look at it convinced me that I had struck a pretty crowd of swindlers, for it was the card of a celebrated horse dealer in Springfield, Mass., whom I had known for many years. I did not let on, though, but entered into his scheme. I was to buy the team for $300 and turn them over to him, getting $50 commission. Just then the respectable looking old gentleman came in and says to the Boston dealer: 'Hello, what do you want here? Didn't I tell you my sister would not sell her horses to a dealer?' Then turning to me he said: 'I am very sorry, sir, but the coachman has taken the team out for exercise.'

"That excited the Boston chap, and, calling me aside, he said: 'Say, I must close a bargain for that team now. I've sold 'em in advance to the mayor of Boston. I've seen the mares and they are stunners. Now I'll tell you what we'll do. You close the bargain with him and deposit $100, the balance to be paid when the team is delivered.'

MONTANA GOT SOLEMN.

"Then I caught onto his little game. I sort of hesitated and looked solemn like. He urged me to accept the proposition, so finally I says in an innocent sort of way: 'I tell you what I'll do. If you want that team so bad I'll deposit the $100 with the executor there, but you must give me $25 as security that you are all right.' That idea did not seem to tickle him. The swindlers wanted a clean $100. To help the scheme along I pulled out my pocketbook. That settled it. The fellow handed me $25 and then, turning to the executor, said:

"'Say, mister, this gentleman will buy the team without looking at 'em. He'll give you $100 deposit and the rest when the team is delivered. That's satisfactory, eh?'

"'Oh, yes,' said the executor of the estate, with a broad smile, 'that is entirely satisfactory.'

"Then my turn came in. 'Oh, is it?' said I. 'Well, it just ain't. You fellows may think you are pretty smart, but you ain't. You've run up against a gentleman from Montana this time who knows a thing or two about horses, and who is more than a match for you. Good morning,' and I started for the door.

"'Well, there was a circus in that stable for a minute or two. The horsey man demanded his $25. The executor called me a swindler and a thief. Just then the fellow I met first came in and stood between me and the door. He had apparently been waiting just outside. Said he:

"'Look here, you hayseed, give up the $25 or we'll make you. See!'

"I could not help but laugh. I could have handled the three of 'em easy. I turned to the fellow who was going to make me give up the money, and, taking him by the collar, threw him half way across the stable. Then I turned to the three of them and said: 'Now, gentlemen, I'll bid you good morning again. If we had such fellows as you out in Montana we'd hang you. I'll keep this $25 for my time and trouble. If you want to sell that team tell the coachman to bring it around to my hotel when he gets back,' and I went out. That's the last I saw of that crowd. Now here's the $25. What shall I do with it?"—New York Times.

Professor Mark D. Harrington, director of the Michigan university observatory, says the highest clouds he sees there are but three miles and a half high.

"DE GANG" COULD CARE FOR HIM.

Street Arabs Maintain Their Dignity Under Adverse Circumstances.

A small band of bootblacks, newsboys and street arabs were playing in Chambers street, just in front of our $15,000,000 court house. They were skylarking in their own peculiar way, when a heavy grocer's wagon came dashing down the street. The boys scattered, but one of them was too slow. He stumbled and fell, and before he could recover himself the wheels of the wagon had passed over one of his legs. The driver whipped up his horse and escaped. There was no policeman near, and but few passers by. But the boy had friends. Every boy who had been playing with him was at his side in an instant. The boy was badly hurt.

It was plain at a glance that his leg was broken, and, rough and ignorant as his companions were, they saw this. Then "Corkey," the newsboy, who is the chief of the arabs of the City Hall park, took command and ordered him to be taken up. Two of the strongest of the lads lifted the boy, and no child was ever more tenderly lifted from its bed by its mother than was this rough waif of the street by his fellows. Then he was placed on the back of the strongest of his friends.

"Ter der Chambers street hospittle," ordered Corkey. Then he bent over the injured boy. "Does yer tink yer kin stan' it?" he asks solicitously.

"It's pretty tough, Cork," is the reply, "but I ain't lost me nerve yit."

At this juncture a gentleman who had come up suggested that a policeman be hunted up and that an ambulance be called. Then Corkey asserted himself.

"Dere ain't no policeman wanted," he said, "an' dere ain't no ambulance wanted. Me friend," continued the self possessed child of the street, oracularly, "yer means well, an' we tanks yer. Yer a gentleman. But lemme tell yer this. Dis yer gang ain't very high toned, an' dis yer gang don't count fur much, but w'en one of dis yere gang gits hurt dis yer gang don't go back on him. See?"

The gentleman did see, and left the scene, slipping a dollar into Corkey's hand. Then the latter ran after his army, which had nearly reached the hospital. After they had delivered the boy over to the hospital physicians the whole gang camped out on the street until Corkey reported that their friend had a broken leg, but that the doctors had said there was nothing serious about it.

Delegations visited the hospital every day, and "Corkey's" dollar and other sums contributed by "dis yere gang" have been expended in delicacies for "Chimmy," as they call their friend.

The New York street arab is not the worst in the world.—New York Mail and Express.

Origin of the Great Lakes.

Mr. A. T. Drummond, a Canadian geologist, has recently published an interesting paper on the origin of the great lakes of North America. It has been the opinion of most geologists that these lakes were formed by glacial action, a view which seemed to find corroboration in the fact that a very large amount of debris apparently worn from the basins occupied by these sheets of water lies on the country to the south of their borders in positions where it could only have been brought by ice action. Mr. Drummond holds that glaciers had not much effect in eroding the lake basins proper, or in shaping their present outline. He furthermore holds to the conclusions that Lake Superior is the most ancient basin of this chain, and that it was formed in the Cambrian and Huronian times, i. e., in the earlier stages of the earth's history. He regards it in part due to a down folding of the rocks, as in the trough of a mountain valley, but that much of the detail of its shape was due to long continued volcanic action, which has clearly occurred about its borders.

Michigan, Huron and Ontario he considers to have been low areas on the path of an ancient river, which existed before the glacial period, the basin like character of the country having been given by the relatively recent warpings in the surface of the country. Erie and St. Clair he regards as the last formed of the lakes, these basins also being due to warpings in the rocks about them, which created barriers across the original outlets of the valleys.

There is no question that Mr. Drummond's explanation of the lakes shows that the circumstances of their formation were more complicated than is commonly supposed by geologists. It does not appear, however, that he has given quite sufficient weight to glacial action or to the processes of solution by which the waters of such great lakes extend their shore lines. A large part of the rocks about these basins other than Lake Superior are of a limy nature, and in parts more or less charged with saline materials, all of which readily pass into solution and go away to the sea. This dissolving process is of more importance in fresh water basins than in the seas. The sea water is already so far charged with mineral matter held in solution that it cannot readily dissolve the rocks with which it comes in contact. Where, however, fresh water basins have their shores in contact with rocks containing a considerable quantity of lime they readily and rapidly extend their margins by this process of decay.—Boston Herald.

Gave Himself Away.

"How did I get this black eye?" repeated the drummer, as he buckled the straps to his sachel. "Well, I tried to be smart."

"How?"

"I was at Seymour, Ind., and in a hurry to get my railroad ticket. So was another chap. The ticket seller was slow, lazy and impudent. The other man pulled his gun, shoved it into the window and got his ticket ten seconds later. It was a hint for me."

"And you accepted it?"

"I did. I shoved my revolver into the window and gave the ticket man a quarter of a minute to get me a pasteboard."

"And he jumped?"

"He did—jumped out of his office and broke me in two over a baggage truck. He's got my revolver yet."

"But how did it happen to work in one case and fail in another?"

"Oh, I couldn't keep my voice from trembling, and then I didn't have long hair and a buffalo overcoat. He got right onto me for a fake."—Detroit Free Press.

About Car Cables.

The strain put upon a cable in operating a cable road is very heavy, while the power required to move one is enormous. On most lines a cable one and one-fourth inches in thickness is used, which consists of a hemp or jute heart wrapped with six strands composed of nineteen wires of crucible steel. The weight of the cable is three and one-half pounds to the foot, so that a mile of cable figures up a dead weight of ten tons. The force necessary to draw this weight extended over the entire line is very much greater than would be required to move the same weight in a compact body. The breaking strain guaranteed by cable manufacturers is forty-five tons, but the maximum strain we use is only ten tons. An average of 75 per cent. of power is spent in pulling the empty cable, and the balance is all that is used for profit. A cable can be used only about seven months, when it becomes so worn as to be of no further use.—Kansas City Journal.

FACES IN STONE.

STRANGE RESEMBLANCES SEEN IN NATURAL FORMATION.

A Monster Hump Backed Whale in the Rocky Mountains—The Head of the Iron Duke in Brazilian Stone—Washington and Garfield by the Great Artist.

Among the wonders of nature none are of greater interest than those strange resemblances in natural formations to human faces and figures, as well as to other forms, which are found in various parts of the world.

One of the most beautiful of these curiosities is found in the Mammoth cave of Kentucky, which contains many others which have been more frequently described. This is the "Last Rose of Summer," a magnificent formation in the center ceiling of one of the largest chambers, which is absolutely perfect in its shape. In size it is about eight feet in diameter, of pure white, with stem, flower and leaf, and, in the glare of torches, sparkling like countless diamonds. Many similar stalactites are found in other parts of the cave. In one room the entire ceiling is thickly studded with the most graceful formations of flowers, all of the most dazzling white.

THE MONSTER OF BEAR LAKE.

Although not, strictly speaking, a natural formation, the wonderful "monster of Bear lake," in the Rocky mountains, may be spoken of in this connection. This is the petrified form of what was evidently once an immense sea monster. It died on a high plateau, in a position giving rise to a theory among antiquaries that its resting place was once a great shoal, and that the antediluvian leviathan flourished and perished on the surface as the water receded. The petrifaction is perfect, and it is estimated to weigh about ten tons. A geologist says:

"It presents a dull appearance, the head and body of a hump backed whale, and the extremities extend into feelers and antennæ like the polypus or devil fish, with the exception that evidently, during life, they were lined with a hard and bony substance. The eyes are set in each side of the head, which is flat and oblong, and are twenty-four inches apart. The mouth is armed with triple rows of teeth, sharp in front, but underneath and well in the jaw are turned into grinders, capped by a solid osseous formation, running back from the widest portion of the head."

The length of this singular relic of an unknown age has not been determined, but as the body blends into the tail it tapers to a small size, so that, making due allowances, the entire weight would not be far from that stated. This monster is, beyond doubt, the descendant of the denizens of the mighty ocean that once submerged this region.

Few natural curiosities are more remarkable than those in which rocks or mountains have, through the action of the elements and similar causes, assumed most striking resemblances to the features of historical characters.

The range of mountain situated near Rio Janeiro, in Brazil, displays to the gaze of approaching voyagers a complete head of Wellington, apparently rising out of the sea around. As it raises its majestic form high above the level of the ocean no one who has ever seen a portrait of the famous duke can but think that nature must have had him in view when it constructed this addition to her great gallery of curiosities.

At Heumi, in the far away regions of Iceland, the high bluff there overlooking a valley is surmounted by a colossal head, with a high cap covering it.

One of the countless rocks which stud the northwest coast of Norway forms the exact likeness of a gigantic horse and rider, 1,500 feet high, plunging headlong with fury into the sea. In this figure the poetic fancy of a native bard has seen the form of Odin retreating before the advance of Christianity.

In the Island of St. Vincent, one of the Cape Verde group, situated off the coast of Africa, there is a huge volcanic rock, which forms a complete bust of George Washington, in a recumbent position, with the face upward. The hair, the profile, the chin and even the very collar frill, is reproduced with singular exactness, though on a gigantic scale.

GARFIELD AND THE "OLD MAN."

Another presidential portrait is found in the irregularly undulating boundary of the Catskill mountains, near the Hudson river, New York. The "Reclining Giant," or "Man in the Mountains," near the southern beginning of the highest summits, has long been noted, but it may not be generally known that this recumbent form is an excellent likeness of the late President Garfield. The features are sharp, the body stretching downward, is somewhat angular, but on tracing the line backward to the north one is startled with the sudden recognition of the grave face of Gen. Garfield, reclining precisely as the illustrated papers represented him in his last days. His broad and high forehead is shown as in the best photographs, although, of course, the details are not so well preserved. This is, however, forgotten in the surprising proportion of each part to the whole, the splendid physique and the grave and thoughtful expression of the lamented statesman, being faithfully preserved as an enduring memorial in the "everlasting hills."

Any mention of "great stone faces" would be incomplete without some reference to the famous "Old Man of the Mountain" of the White Mountains, New Hampshire, which is unquestionably the greatest curiosity of the kind in existence. No finer description has been given of this natural sculpture than that by Samuel Adams Drake, the distinguished author, who writes:

"It is difficult to believe the evidence of the senses. Upon the high cliffs of the mountain is the remarkable and celebrated rock sculpture of a human head, which from a height of 1,200 feet above the lake has for uncounted ages looked with the same stony stare down the pass upon the windings of the river through its incomparable valley. The profile itself measures about forty feet from the tip of the chin to the flattened crown, which imparts to it such a peculiarly antique appearance. It is perfect, except that the forehead is concealed by something like the visor of a helmet. And all this illusion is produced by several projecting crags.

"It is the most extraordinary sight of a lifetime. A slight change of position varies more or less the character of the expression, which is, after all, the marked peculiarity of this monstrous alto relievo; for let the spectator turn his gaze vacantly upon the more familiar objects at hand, as he invariably will, to assure himself that he is not the victim of some hallucination, a strange fascination draws him irresistibly back to the Dantesque head on the highest battlements of the pass, a face too majestic, too nobly grand for anything of mortal mold."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Shark Story.

An English cruiser had once seized what they believed to be a slaver, but were obliged reluctantly to let her go for want of papers to prove the fact. A fortnight later a shark was caught, and in its body was found a roll of papers which condemned the slaver, they had been thrown overboard. The cruiser hastened in pursuit of the slaver and seized it just three weeks after the papers had been thrown into the sea.—Stories of the Deep.

BUFFALO BILL AS A SWELL.

His Experience in a Clawhammer Worse Than Fighting Indians.

I met Buffalo Bill last night at the corner. He was entertaining a crowd of jolly fellows by relating his experiences in the wild east. It was not exactly the east, either, but it was east to him. He told of being with Sheridan during the war. On his return he was invited to visit the general at Chicago. He was in the Garden City two or three days as the general's guest, and was asked to attend a society ball. It became whispered around that Gen. Sheridan and his scout were to be present, and society was delighted with the idea of meeting the terror of the west.

On the afternoon preceding the society event Mike Sheridan asked Buffalo Bill if he had brought his full dress suit with him. This staggered the man of the plains, and he said he guessed he couldn't attend the ball. The general's brother rented an evening suit from a furnishing house, and Buffalo Bill got into it and started for the ball. "I was never in such a sweat in my life," said William, as The Herald man hid his note book and assumed an intelligent look; "I would rather have plunged into forty Indian battles than to have entered that ball room. I felt uncomfortable, but I went in with the general's brother. I was introduced to about one hundred ladies and the same number of gentlemen. My pants—or rather the pants which Mike Sheridan had rented for me—were terribly tight, as were also my gloves, which came through the same channel. I did not know which garment would break first, but fortunately neither did. I had one dance, and this was at the solicitation of a lady who was desirous of dancing with a cowboy. I got on the floor with her, and the music started. I was waiting for some one to call off, but there was no call, as I had been accustomed to. I never had such a dreadful time. After I got through with the dance I started for the door, and put in the rest of the night at the nearest saloon, where I had a racket with the settler. I had changed my clothes, you know, and had neglected to change the contents of my pockets. I hadn't a cent, and the barkeeper or, as I called him then, the settler, saw me there in full dress and asked me what I would have. I told him whisky, and then he kicked because I did not offer to pay him for it. Mike came in shortly afterward and fixed it with the barman. Before this I was on my good behavior, as the general had told me that he wanted to show people that his scout was a gentleman. That was all I wanted with full dress evening balls, and I was myself again when I disrobed of those rented clothes."—Omaha Herald.

The Birth of Washington.

The birthday of Washington is registered in an old family Bible of quarto form, delapidated by use and age and covered with Virginia striped cloth, the record being in the handwriting of the patriot's father:

George William, son of Augustine Washington, and Mary, his wife, was born ye eleventh day of February, 1731-2, about ten in the morning, and was Baptized the 3d April following, Mr. Bromley Whiting and Captain Christopher Brooks godfathers and Mrs. Mildred Gregory godmother.

The difference in the Gregorian calendar, or new style of reckoning time, brings the birthday to the 22d of February instead of the 11th.

Almost every one is familiar with the home of Washington through the many engravings which have been published, and which have found their way to almost every fireside. The mansion, very spacious on the ground floor, is architecturally quite pleasing. It stood upon a smooth green, velvety lawn, spreading several hundred feet down to the river, which washed its eastern base. The prospect it commanded was magnificent. The eminence in the rear was crowned with a stately forest. The estate of 2,500 acres was divided into many highly cultivated farms. Much of the region was still covered with the forest which the ax of the settler had never disturbed. Game of every variety abounded on the hills. Washington inherited this property from his brother Lawrence, and the original mansion house was built by him, but when it came into the possession of George Washington he enlarged the mansion and improved the property in every way.

Washington wrote regarding its resources, saying:

"No estate in the United States is more pleasantly situated. In a high and healthy country, in a latitude between the extremes of heat and cold, on one of the finest rivers in the world; a river well stocked with various kinds of fish at all seasons of the year, and in the spring with shad, herring, bass and carp."

The Blind Chaplain of the House.

Rev. Dr. Milburn, the chaplain of the house of representatives, is a blind man. He has been blind from childhood, but a man of more distinguished appearance cannot be found in congress. He bears a striking appearance to Governor Gordon. The blind chaplain, as he is usually called, is an inveterate smoker. He smokes a dozen or more strong cigars daily and is seldom seen without one between his lips. His daughter leads him to the Capitol each morning about 11 o'clock, and from that hour until noon he sits in the reception room smoking while Miss Milburn reads to him the morning papers. Whenever anything is read which strikes him he asks to have it read a second time, and it is, indeed, a rare exception when in his opening prayers he does not refer to something his daughter has just read to him from the morning papers. By his reference to current events and the strikingly beautiful and eloquent language of his prayers, he has made a friend of each and every member, and some of the more religiously inclined always go to the Capitol early just to hear the beautiful morning prayer offered up by the blind chaplain.—Washington Cor. Atlanta Constitution.

Burying a Gendarme Alive.

A gendarme was buried alive in a village near Grenoble. The man had become intoxicated on potato brandy and fell into a profound sleep. After twenty hours passed in slumber his friends considered him to be dead, particularly as his body assumed the usual rigidity of a corpse. When the sexton, however, was lowering the remains of the ill fated gendarme into the grave he heard moans and knocks proceeding from the interior of the "four boards." He immediately bored holes in the sides of the coffin to let in air and then knocked off the lid. The gendarme had, however, ceased to live, having horribly mutilated his head in his frantic but futile efforts to burst his coffin open. So terrible a case of premature burial has hardly ever before been reported in this country, where hasty interments are only too common.—Paris Cor. London Telegram.

About Thermometers.

Thermometers are liable to inaccuracies even when most carefully constructed. The freezing point is liable to be temporarily depressed or elevated, a temporary fall occurring after the thermometer has been subjected to great heat and a temporary elevation after it has been repeatedly cooled. There is also a permanent elevation, which may amount to two degrees, and which is caused by the atmospheric pressure on the bulb; therefore, a thermometer tube after being filled should be allowed to remain for two or three years before graduation.—New York World.

A PHOTOGRAPHER TALKS.

SARONY DEPLORES THE CHANGES IN THE METHODS OF HIS ART.

The Dry Plate Process Defeats Efforts to Secure a Good Portrait—Instantaneous Photography — A Serious Grievance Against Portrait Painters.

"Photography today does not give as good results as it gave eighteen years ago," said Mr. Otto Sarony when questioned as to the progress of his art.

"Do we owe nothing, then, to instantaneous photography?"

"Don't misunderstand me. I am not crying down the results of inventions that have enabled us to do all sorts of things by photography that the early photographists did not even dream of. It is undeniable, however, that as a means of reproducing artistic portraits photography today is not what it once was, and this is due in part to some of the very inventions that are regarded as the most important in the art. The dry plate, for example, enables us to take a negative in from half a second to two seconds. The old wet plate often required fifteen seconds or longer, but it gave more roundness to the picture and made a better portrait. If we should ask customers to sit fifteen seconds now we should soon lose our trade. Modern haste has sacrificed something that we obtained with ease twenty years ago."

"Instantaneous photography would enable you still further to hasten the processes; would it give less satisfactory results than you now obtain?"

"The time occupied in taking a negative by instantaneous photography is almost inappreciable, say one-tenth of a second, but that process is not used in photographic studios. To get a satisfactory portrait under a skylight we cut off some of the light and thus tone down effects. The instantaneous process needs a strong light, such as you obtain in the open air.

IN ONE-TENTH OF A SECOND.

"Here," continued Mr. Sarony, drawing from his pocket a small negative, "is an interesting little thing that illustrates what I am saying. This is a little interior that I took at home on a dark, rainy afternoon, by exploding powdered magnesium. I could have taken it quite as well at midnight. You see that the furniture is very distinct, and even that miniature of a cherub and the photographs on the mantel are perfectly produced. The boy is a little dim because he ran away when the explosion came. Yes, it is an actual fact that he was scared off by the very light that was to take his picture. He was not quick enough, however, as you see, and there he is. The process probably occupied one-tenth of a second. It is done by blowing powdered magnesium across an alcoholic flame. The flash is brief, but intense. It could not be satisfactorily used, however, in producing portraits, for the reason that the photographist would have no opportunity to pose his subject and study in the camera effects of light and shade.

"Instantaneous photograrhy has greatly aided the amateur, and the result has been to drive professional photographists out of the open air business. It does not pay a photographist to devote himself to outdoor work. There are too many amateurs in competition. I think it is not generally known, by the way, that many artists in this country and in Europe are amateur photographists, and that they use our art in aid of their own. I believe that the marvelous minuteness of Meissonier's work is due to the fact that he paints a great deal from photographs. He has been an amateur photographist since the days of the ambrotype, and I have no reason to believe that he has changed his method.

A TRICK OF PORTRAIT PAINTERS.

"I am told that Jerome also uses photography in his work, and it is easy to believe, when one recalls the character of his pictures. It seems to me a perfectly legitimate art. The artist just makes his sketch from nature and then relieves his model from laborious posing by working from photographs in the matter of detail. One thing that has been done by portrait painters is not quite so defensible. Last year a foreign portrait painter with a great reputation came over here and painted many portraits of wealthy persons at great prices. In one instance, he painted the portrait of a rich woman, and it is an absolute fact that he photographed her on canvas and painted over the photograph. It was regarded as a 'speaking likeness,' and the artist was paid $4,000 or $5,000. Now it is not many years since that sort of thing was done by photographists in this country, but the artists made such an outcry that it was stopped.

"It is an amusing thing to see the attempts at posing made by portrait painters, who bring their sitters to us for photographs. The artist believes that he can get just the right effect by posing the subject himself, and is surprised to find that the negative shows an utterly different result from what he had expected. Trained photographists understand the art of posing, and persons obtain most satisfactory portraits by giving themselves into the hands of the photographist."

"Would not photographing in colors aid you in making race distinctions?"

"There is no such thing as photographing in colors, and I see no prospect of its perfection. What is now called photographing is merely an effect of lithography. No, the future improvements in photography are likely to result from the study of posing, and the management of light and shade. Just now general excellence and novelty in style are the photographists' aims."—New York Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The question of the best form of meter for registering the supply of electricity to private consumers is being argued in English electrical circles.

It is again reported that Prince Alexander of Bulgaria will soon take service in the Austrian Army, his recent marriage having removed the political objections which formerly prevented this step.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,
(Poisonous.)

M

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY MAY 11, ...1889

IS THIS TRUE?

From all over Inyo county comes the same complaint that never since white people came to the country was business so dull and money so scarce as at present. Farmers have no money and consequently merchants have but little business. There is no revenue coming into the county except for ore. The railroad freight on ore is so low that it hardly pays running expenses to the Company for hauling it; and if it were not that this is the only resource left to keep any business alive in the county there would be little inducement for the railroad to keep trains running at all. It is not possible to send our produce to market by rail; if railroad freights were not one cent above the bare cost of running the trains we are so far distant from any possible buyers that the cost of transportation would prohibit shipments. Stockmen have no market for cattle at home, and other markets are so distant that cattle can neither be shipped nor driven to where they can be sold. Our market for horses is in Los Angeles or the San Joaquin Valley, and report says there is a glut of horses everywhere west of the mountains and in Los Angeles. There is no inducement for farmers to increase the area of cultivated land because greater production would only be increasing the quantity of unsalable products. Professional men suffer like all the rest; clients have no money for lawyers nor patients for physicians. Ministers have always been used to poverty and live mainly on the bread of heaven. Since teams have begun hauling freight from Mojave there is a little consumption of hay along the road, but this is only prolonging the farmers' misery; unless some new outlet is found for the produce of the valley there will be no money to pay for goods, consequently nothing for the teams to haul. The only trace of silver lining to this very gloomy cloud is that mining prospects are brighter now than in several years past. We have often been accused of giving too bright views of the country, and now we hope the foregoing will be dark enough to satisfy the most despondent prophet of evil.

The Legislature at the last session passed a law on the appointment of Notaries that seems to be the cause of some confusion. The Attorney General says that under this law the term of Notaries commissioned heretofore is either extended or extinguished, but he is of the opinion that the term is extended to four years instead of two. He thinks it safer for Notaries commissioned before the late Act to be recommissioned and give bonds in the proper time, as the Courts might not agree with him upon the extension of terms. Grave complications may come out of this muddle. If the terms of Notaries were extinguished by the Act, as the Attorney General seems to think possible, then all official acts done by them would be illegal till they should be reappointed. It is an improvement to change the terms of Notaries from two years to four years.

Many reports have been current about the sale of Santa Catalina Island, but now the Los Angeles "Tribune" says positively that the island has been sold to an English company for $400,000. The investment of $400,000 for the property opposite San Pedro, means that a million or more will be put into the enterprises proposed. The development of mining industries on that rocky island, employing scores of men and supporting a line of ocean vessels between England and San Pedro, would alone be a matter worth rejoicing over. In addition it is proposed that the island shall become a famous watering place, and the time is not far distant when thousands will be enjoying its all the year comforts.

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—
PIANOS
& ORGANS
☞If you think of buying it will pay you to rite for p rticulars to
Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Thought He Was a Peddler.

A well known lawyer started for his north side home about dusk one evening last week. He thought he needed exercise, so he concluded to walk over. He had with him a ladies' work basket, fixed upon a high standard, and this he was carrying home to his wife. He struck Dearborn avenue and hastened north at a rapid gate. He was looking straight ahead, and after he had gone a few blocks he noticed a stylishly dressed lady alight from a handsome equipage and run hurriedly up the steps of a house. He thought he noticed her drop something, and when he reached the sidewalk in front of the house where the carriage had stood he looked down and discovered a fat purse. Picking it up he tripped up the steps and rang the door bell, the lady having been admitted before he came up. His ring was answered in a moment by a neat maid, whom he asked if the lady of the house was in.

The lady evidently heard the question, as she stepped at once to the door. He was about to return the pocketbook she had dropped, when she noticed the basket in his hand and blurted out: "No, we don't want anything." Then she slammed the door in his face. He wanted to explain, but it wounded his pride to be taken for a peddler, and he tucked the pocketbook in his pocket and proceeded on his way home.

On his way down town in the morning the gentleman stopped again at the lady's house to return the pocketbook. His wife had not been satisfied with the work-basket he had brought home with him, and he carried it along to exchange for another.

It happened that when he rang the bell of the house, the number of which he had carefully noted the day before, the lady herself was in the hall. She hastened to the door and when she saw the man and the basket again she petulantly exclaimed, "I told you last night, sir, that we wanted nothing," and for the second time she slammed the door in his countenance. This made him hot. When he reached his office he put the pocketbook in a sealed envelope and tucked it away in his safe. For a whole week afterward the lady advertised in all of the papers for her lost wealth. At last the lawyer addressed her a note, asking her to call at his office. When she came he sat her down, explained all the circumstances to her, and then handed over her pocketbook. It contained $351. Now it is a safe bet that when a man who looks like a canvasser rings her door bell she will search her pockets before she turns him away.—Chicago Times.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[INDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. 6-4

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the
KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH
Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

BUDDING GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING

Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.
CHAS. F. CUSACK,
j 12-49 Independence, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, ap 20-tf ANGLO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of Dr. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album. Address FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card. Address FLEMING BROTHERS, Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
☞Buyers and consumers should not fail and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1889.
m29tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad
These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.
THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN RECENTLY —Added to—
SWIMMING BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.
Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BLAZANOVICH Pr

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 36, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

D. Choren, R. S. B. Rhine, N. G.

$92 Sewing-Machine FREE To at once establish the Singer machine in all parts, by placing our machines in good places where the people can see them, we will send FREE to one person in each locality the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send FREE a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who may call at your home, and after 2 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out, before patents had run out it used to sell for $95, with the attachments, and now sells for $50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City,
For SYLSCT LIST OF 3000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.
Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.
All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.
JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo
Freighting
Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.
Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,
BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c
Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.
is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS
Edition of Scientific American.
A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.
In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & CO., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.
COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address
MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors,
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N.Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.
Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 29 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax-Collector.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - - Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.
FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Free Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M.D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
☞NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.☜
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Lenses repaired and fitted.
☞A fine watch in any part of the county will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones Monuments,
Italian and American
Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from sticking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.
CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE
GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale
Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 29, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House.
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
☞Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
CROCKER BROS., Props.
sept tf

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
C. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.
Horseshoeing ..... $2 50 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

NORMAN
HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House.
New Furniture,
Low Rates.
☞Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Deep SEA WONDERS exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallet and Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day. All succeed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Tuesday, April 10th, 1888.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House.....	9 15 a. m	5 35 p. m.
Layton.....	10 45 a. m.	4 35 p. m.
Walker's.....	12 45 a. m	2 25 p. m.
Hawthorne	4 30 p. m.	10 40 a. m.
Luning	5 50 p. m.	9 20 a. m.
Sodа Springs.....	7 00 p. m.	8 10 a. m
Belleville.....	8 10 p. m.	7 05 a. m.
Candelaria..... Ar.	8 50 p. m	Lv. 6 30 a. m.
	No. 3.	No. 4.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville.....	7 30 a. m.	5 25 p. m.
Benton	11 00 a. m	1 45 p. m.
Basin Creek	1 10 p. m.	11 30 a. m.
Alkali	2 00 p. m	10 35 a. m.
Independence.....	3 30 p. m.	9 05 a. m.
Lone Pine.....	4 15 p. m	8 15 a. m.
Keeler ..... Ar	5 05 p. m.	Lv. 7 30 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salisbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
☞Customers supplied on all points☜
☞Of the C. & C. Railroad.☜
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed
Flooring.
sep 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
for California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work, either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND GIFTS FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, MAY 11.....1889

MARRIED.

DUNLAP—COOK—At Bishop, April 27, 1889, by Rev. Andrew Clark, John E. Dunlap and Mrs. Lillie Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Marshall came up from Keeler last Wednesday.

For a good cheese, or a piece of one, go to L. Wood, at Independence.

Mr. H. L. Clark arrived home last Monday from San Francisco.

George W. Penter, formerly of Bodie, made a visit to that place this week.

Miss Eva Bodle, of Big Pine, has been visiting friends at Independence during the week.

A copious rain has fallen over most of Nevada and there is much rejoicing in consequence.

Dunphy & O'Keefe are taking out ore and plenty of it, from their recent find at Cerro Gordo.

For medicines, drugs, perfumery and toilet articles send to H. E. WRIGHT, Bishop.

Mrs. J. C. Irwin and Mrs. J. J. Gunn returned home last Tuesday from a visit to Darwin.

An immense body of plumbago is reported to be found within twelve miles of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. McKnight came down from Bishop on Tuesday to stay a few days in town.

E. Chenot keeps a good stock of buckskin gloves, heavy boots and shoes. All prices down to the lowest figures.

Mr. John Baxter has been appointed by the Board of Supervisors as Justice of the Peace for the Third Township.

Last Sunday a heavy snow storm raged at Truckee. On the summit snow fell to a depth of four and a half feet.

A. R. Conklin Esq. left town last Thursday morning for San Francisco to attend the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

Pack trains are at work carrying ore from the Gavilan mine to the Keynot mill. The ore belongs to W. K. Miller and others.

"Boot" Conklin passed through town last Sunday with a long-eared instrument which he graphically described as a "music box."

Mrs. Munson came up from Lone Pine on Monday and stayed in town a few days. She intends starting for her home in Minnesota soon.

The annual meeting of stock-holders of the C. & C. Road was held at Hawthorne on Thursday for the election of Directors and officers.

Rev E. McEvers expects to meet his brother-in-law, L. W. Allingham, M. D., at Mojave next Tuesday. Dr. Allingham comes from Canada.

The land contest between H. F. Boden vs. Peter Gorley has been decided in favor of the former. Cash patents have been granted for applications Nos. 389 and 390.

There is much excitement caused by the report of rich placer ground being found on the South Fork of Carson River. A great deal of ground is said to be already located.

Letters addressed to the following parties remain uncalled for at the postoffice at Independence: Rev. E. C. Julien, Richard L. Jackson, John Smith and J. H. Ranson.

Much damage to crops is reported in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys. A severe wind and rain storm swept over the country beating down the grain and destroying it.

Tom McDonough struck a body of a new kind of ore over at Beveridge recently. There is plenty of it. He has been in town during the week having it assayed and it appears to be rich in silver.

A. C. Harvey got back from Los Angeles and Bakersfield last Saturday. He brought a moving reminder of the trip with him in the form of an attack of the ague; but this will quickly disappear at Lone Pine.

George Miller, the young man shot by David Crosby at Virginia City, was buried last Sunday. Michael Egan, the other young man shot by Crosby, is improving and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

A well known business man of Los Angeles, Mr. Charles E. Day, offers first class pianos and organs for sale. Mr. Day will promptly answer all inquiries about instruments and give all the information asked for. See his advertisement.

California dried prunes are selling higher in New York than French prunes. Our prunes are superior to the French in that they do not ferment, mould, or candy. Experts in New York say that the California prunes rank as first in quality. The business is sure to grow to large proportions

An election of trustees for Independence School District will be held on the first Tuesday in June. It will then be the happy privilege of the parents and guardians of children to stay away from the polls and then growl about the hiring of the teacher.

David Crosby is in jail at Virginia City charged with shooting George Miller and Michael Egan. Miller lived a short time after being shot; Egan is reported to be mortally wounded. Crosby has long been engaged in the grocery business at Virginia City.

The Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles is working vigorously for a grand exposition of the industries and products of Southern California, to be held at Los Angeles during the coming fall. It is the intention to erect fine building and have everything on such a scale as will attract visitors from all parts of the world.

The Directors of the Third District Agricultural Association have decided to largely increase premiums for all kinds of live stock, and for all kinds of fruits and farm products. The increase will be from 25 to 35 per cent. over other years. The design is to promote the production of things of real use. The District includes the counties of Butte, Colusa and Tehama.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY, May 6, 1889.

The Board of Supervisors met on Monday afternoon and adjourned.

TUESDAY, May 7, 1889.

The Board met at 10 o'clock a. m., present, Supervisors Harger, Sneden, Robinson and Stewart. Absent, Eddy. Chairman Robinson presiding.

Minutes of May 6th read and approved. The following claims were allowed and warrants ordered drawn for the amounts:

George M. Gill, sunds	$ 7 15
Drs. Woodin, examining insane	10 00
Independence Water Co	12 00
P. H. Mack, sunds	6 90
Bancroft & Co., paper	20 00
A. Carlisle & Co., stationery	31 50
L. Wood, mdse	24 30
R. O'Neal, livery hire	37 00
W. T. Bunney, J. P	6 00
Mrs. J. Keppler, Janitress	30 00
P. W. Forbes, Fees in Justice Court	20 00
A. E Janvier, Board of Education	6 80
J. H. Shannon, " "	18 50
D. Crough, " "	5 00
J. W. P. Laird " "	5 00
P. A. Chaffant, sunds	7 37
J. H. Shannon, visiting schools	12 75
W. A. Chaffant, printing	10 00
C. Mulholland, printing & J P fee	119 33
Charles Wonsecott, bridge plans	10 00

The bill of J. H. Shannon rejected at February meeting was again considered and rejected.

The Board appointed John Baxter a Justice of Peace for Third Township.

Plans for a bridge across Owens River at Big Pine examined and accepted.

Contract for boarding county prisoners awarded to H. Levy at the rate of forty cents per day for each prisoner.

Bids for the County Hospital were considered The bids were presented by Mrs. Margaret Lewis, F. E. Bunting and Mrs. E. J. Reynolds. Action was postponed till Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, until which hour the Board adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, May 8, 1889.

The Board met at 10 o'clock a. m., all the members being present except Mr. Eddy. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

Bid of F. E. Bunting for County Hospital withdrawn. Contract for County Hospital awarded to Mrs. Margaret Lewis for the sum of $500 for four inmates, every additional inmate seventy-five cents each per day.

I. J. Woodin was appointed County Physician at a salary of $600 per annum.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

N. Ruhe, mdse	$ 20 38
J. J. Moore, postage	2 16
H. S. Crocker & Co., books etc	36 33
O. I. Mairs, boarding prisoners	63 00
J. R. Eldred, sunds	29 75
J. W. Murphy, labor	8 00
A. W. Eibeshutz, mdse	21 32
Mrs. M. Lewis, Hospital	160 00
I. J. Woodin, Salary	150 00
A. W. Eibeshutz, mdse	1 50
H. Levy, conveying sick	2 50

The following resolution was passed by the Board:

Resolved. That if the bonds for the purpose of raising money for purchasing school lots and for the building and purchase of one or more school buildings in Big Pine School District and furnishing the same be sold, the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county shall annually, at the time of levying the county taxes of each year, and in addition to all the other taxes upon the Big Pine school district, levy a tax of such per cent. upon the taxable property of such school district as shall be sufficient to pay the annual interest upon $2,500 of Big Pine school district bonds, and sufficient also to provide a fund for the redemption of the principal of this issue as the bonds shall severally mature, viz.: For one bond of $500, maturing February 1, 1894, and one bond of $500 annually thereafter until all shall be paid, and in accordance with the manner prescribed in section 1887 of the Political Code of the State of California.

Reports of Road Overseers of Road District Nos. 1, 2, 5 and 6 were examined, accepted and approved.

Overseer of Road District No. 4 ordered to verify his report, and upon such verification the County Auditor is instructed to draw his warrant in payment of claim of $85 presented by said Overseer.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

Henry Evans, labor on road	$41 50
W. H Powers, " "	104 50
M. E T. Stevens, material	22 00
W. James, labor on road	57 50
R Harry, " "	72 00
J. L. Gale " "	15 00

Auditor and Treasurer ordered to transfer $6.49 from the General Road Fund to fund of Road District No. 1.

The Board adjourned till 10 a. m. next day.

THURSDAY, May 9, 1889.

The Board met at 10 o'clock a. m., all present except Eddy. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

Petition of J. R. Eldred asking an allowance of $400 for deputy hire in the collection of sheep license tax rejected.

Toll rates on Deep Spring road fixed the same as in former years.

On petition viewers were appointed to lay out a road between Alvord and Warm Spring. S. P. McKnight, J. L. Bodle and George Hall were appointed. Bond accompanying petition approved and accepted.

Petition for a road running east near Bishop to and across Owens river granted. Bond approved and accepted. S. P. McKnight, J. M. Horton and E. Eulon appointed viewers.

Whereupon the Board adjourned till two o'clock p. m., at which hour it reassembled the same members being present.

The rates of Independence Water Company were fixed the same as last year.

The Board then took an adjournment till one o'clock p. m. of next day.

Good Ore.

A few days ago we received a specimen of ore from a friend who is mining in the Inyo range near Alvord. The piece of ore is quartz and weighs about thirty-five pounds. The Selby Smelting Company, of San Francisco, gives the following report of an assay of the ore: Gold, $48 64; silver, 39 83 ozs; lead, 32½ per cent. The owner of the claim is not seeking notoriety, and requests that for the present his name be not given. He says there is an abundance of the ore in sight; the mine is within a short distance of the railroad, and with ore worth about $110 per ton the mine is a good property.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John John A. Hannah, Judge.

SATURDAY, May.

Estate of George H. Parish, deceased—Administratrix discharged.

Estate of Duncan Campbell, deceased—Settlement of final account and property distributed to widow and minor child.

Estate of Sherman Stevens, deceased—Final account settled and property distributed equally between Sarah B., Marcia, S. V. and A. C. Stevens.

TUESDAY, May 7.

Estate of John Henry Meyers, deceased—Petition for letters of administration filed by Fritz Meyers.

WEDNESDAY, May 8th.

Grant vs. Walker—Answer to demurrer and cross-complaint submitted without argument.

THURSDAY, May 9th.

Broder et. als. vs. Conklin et. als.—Defendants file an amended answer.

A Great Mistake.

Somebody is blundering. The Reno Gazette of recent date says: "The Inyo Marble Company is talking of putting up works here. They are to take water from the Mill dam, just above town, and construct a flume on the south side of the river to a point between the V. & T. railroad bridge and the iron bridge, where the works will be constructed." Owens river will afford all the power needed for a marble mill. At Reno the works would be stopped by freezing in winter. A good deal of freight would have to be paid on waste marble, and this would be dead loss. If the mill should be built here in Owens Valley there would never be any loss of time by freezing, nor loss of freight on waste material. These facts are so obvious and of such importance that the managers of the marble quarry will give them due consideration before building the mill.

East side Canal.

On the Eastside Canal Superintendent McIver has just finished a stretch of three miles of very difficult ground. The stuff to be moved was shale mixed with cement; it was very hard and consequently progress was slow and expensive. About fifteen and one-half miles of the canal are now finished. All the rest of the way the ground is easy and the ditching machine will make rapid progress. During the past few days water in Owens River has been rising, and in all probability will continue to rise until high water mark is reached. At the lowest stage of water the channel of the river for a width of seventy feet at the head of the canal was about six feet deep. Any quantity of water that may be wanted even at the lowest stage of the river, can be had by throwing loose rock, plenty of which is at hand, into the bed of the stream.

Destruction of Pests.

The County Government Bill, as amended at the last session of the Legislature, in defining the powers of Boards of Supervisors, contains the following clause: "To provide for the destruction of gophers, squirrels, other wild animals, noxious weeds and insects injurious to fruit or fruit trees, or vines, or vegetable or plant life." By this law the Boards of Supervisors have power to compel fruit growers and farmers to make due effort for the destruction of all kinds of pests injurious to fruit trees, vines, or crops of any kind. Where such pests are known to exist, and the party in charge of the property fails or refuses to make proper effort for their destruction, the Board may order the work done and the property will be held liable for the expense.

The Maxim Mill

The Victor concentrating machine was started working on Wednesday and proved to be very successful. There is now no doubt that the machine is the best suited to the ores of this locality of any in use. There is an abundance of ore along the Inyo range to be worked in this way. Arthur Smith set up the machine and put it in running order. This was the first one of the kind he had ever seen yet he was as successful as if he had set up many.

The Ladies Delighted

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, syrup of figs, under all conditions makes it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting upon the liver, kidneys and bowels.

It is estimated that cattlemen lost $150,000 by feeding cattle during the past season at Truckee Meadows, near Reno. The loss is due to low price of beef and high price of hay.

The transfers of real estate in Los Angeles for the month of April amounted to $4,524,510. Somebody has an abiding faith in the value of Los Angeles property. This does not look much like a "busted boom." The little end of that boom would be a big thing for Inyo county.

All but the aristocrats think that Parnell is fighting the battle, not of the people of Ireland alone, but of the masses in England, Wales and Scotland. A majority of 14,611 votes was given recently in Edinburgh in favor of tendering him the freedom of the city. Scotland will claim home rule as strongly as it is claimed for Ireland.

The rapid improvement in the manufacturing interests of the State is shown in a very emphatic way by the contract given to the Union Iron Works, of San Francisco, for constructing another great war vessel at a cost of $1,628,000. The fact that such a vessel can be built in San Francisco means a great extension of all the manufactures of the State.

The Reno Gazette says that the chief cause of heavy loss to stockmen who fed cattle on the Truckee Meadows during the past season was fox tail in the hay. This pestilent weed made the cattle have sore mouths so they could not eat. If farmers do not take pains to kill the fox-tail the hay crop will become worthless. There is none of this pest in Owens Valley so far as we know.

It is reported that large tracts of mining land in Lower California are about to be sold, or have already been sold to the Chinese Six Companies, of San Francisco. Mexico has no law prohibiting Chinese from entering the country and they could go to Lower California by thousands; from there it would be very easy for the Chinese to enter the United States. Grave fears are entertained that swarms of Chinese will come into the country by this route unless a very strict guard shall be kept along the line between Mexican and United States territory.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D., 1889.

(SEAL) P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o.51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,
Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.

Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated March 29 h. 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,
Administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased.

A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Notice for publication of time appointed for probate of will.

Notice is hereby given that Monday, the twentieth day of May A. D. 1889 at five o'clock p. m. of said day and the Court Room of said Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo State of California, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Joel H. Smith, deceased and for hearing the application of Horace M. Smith for the issuance to him of letters testamentary thereon.

P. H. MACK, Clerk.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Petitioner.
Dated May 1, 1889.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL
Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Wheeler & Wilson
Sewing Machine.
New No. 8.
"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.

Old Machines Exchanged for.

Farm Produce Taken in Payment.

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND, Agent.

Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. expt 256 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations, a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES WHOLESALE Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Aveune, Chicago, Ills.

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Have added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

GENERAL MERCHAND

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117
SMITH'S CASH STORE
The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.
SPRATT & CREASER,
sept-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON MINERAL CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps)

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, Intelligent persons all over the country, with or without team.
JOHN C. EVANS, Sweetsers, Mo., writes: "I stand up and say that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on my farm with less the same in cultivation. If you will get up one instrument that will so much labor of the women as the Washer takes of the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house, and to take the burdens from under their wife and babies to pay for it." JOHN R. BOOKER, JR., jeweler, Nebraska City, Neb., writes: "You sold me a Washer last summer. Yet it is the best investment I have made in years. We have just as good dinners on Monday as any other day. Sell. If you run short, you can not buy ours for gold." I will ship a sample to Ind. Desiring an agency on a well tried on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best work in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Payable agents big money. Write for particulars.
J. WEBB, 1710 Franklin Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

A PUBLIC BENEFACTOR.

"Who is H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., whose Safe Remedies, especially Warner's Safe Cure, have attained such success and celebrity at home and abroad?"

The question is inspired as much by affection as curiosity, since through his instrumentality hundreds of thousands, in both hemispheres, have been restored to health and happiness.

Hon. H. H. Warner, then, is a leading and honored resident of Rochester, not only, but a prominent and influential citizen of the United States. On several occasions chosen by his party as a National delegate to nominate a President of the Republic, he has been a member of the Republican State Committee and of its Executive Committee. He is a member of the American Institution for the Advancement of Science; President of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce; a successful and upright business man. He has given away fortunes in charities. The celebrated and costly Warner Observatory of Rochester was conceived, endowed, and is maintained by him. His munificent prizes for the discovery of comets has been at once the wonder and delight of the scientific world.

The yellow fever scourage in the South, the Ohio floods, the fire disasters of Rochester and other cities awakened his profoundest sympathies and in each instance his check for from $500 to $5,000 swelled the several relief funds. Where other wealthy men give tens and hundreds, he gives hundreds and thousands.

His charities are as ready and magnificent as his enterprises and public spirit are boundless.

The world has need of more such men.

An incident led him into the manufacture of medicine. Seized some twelve years ago with what the ablest physicians termed fatal kidney disease, he was miraculously restored to health by what is now known as Warner's Safe Cure. At once he resolved to make known the merits of so potent a remedy, and the consequence is that to-day he has immense laboratories and warehouses in the United States, Canada, England, Germany, Austria, Australia and Burmah. Sales of his Safe Remedies are enormous, and their power over disease simply marvelous.

The merit of a production is in exact keeping with the character of its producer. An honest and reliable man himself, Mr. Warner makes honest and reliable medicines—a fact abundantly attested by their phenomenal efficacy and popularity.

PATTI AS JULIET.

The Costume Worn by the Diva as the Shakespearean Heroine.

No stage costumes have of late years created more sensation than those worn at the opera by Jean de Reszke and Adelina Patti as Romeo and Juliet. These costumes are an esthetic treat to themselves, and M. Bianchini, in designing them from old pictures and manuscripts, has done honor both to Patti and Gounod. The first dress in which Juliet appears is one that has been copied exactly from a fresco of Ghirlandajo, now to be seen in the church of Santa-Maria-Novella at Florence. Portions of the underdress, which is of pink and gold brocade, are seen beneath a talmatica of white velvet, embroidered with gold thread and pearls and laced with pearls one side. The chatelaine is of pearls, rubies, and gold balls, with long, pear-shaped gold pendants. With this toilet Patti wears a rope of pearls twisted into the coils of her rich, black hair.

The marriage dress of the third act is a sober one, befitting the occasion, and has been copied from a picture by Lorenzo di Pietro. It is a study in various shades of blue. The petticoat and portions of the bodice and sleeves are of velvet, while the remainder of the dress is of pale blue-gray silk, ornamented with patterns in dead gold and with chenille of a darker blue. With this Juliet wears a small velvet coif or cap, a black necklace and cross, and a white plaited chemisette.

The wedding dress in the fourth act, designed from a manuscript in the Bibliotheque Nationale, is of splendid effect and a good specimen of the Italian dress of the sixteenth century. The skirt is composed of lés of white velvet and white moire alternating, those of velvet being embroidered with silver and those of moire with white jet. The center le, forming the front of the dress, is elaborately enriched with pearls, diamonds and silvery embroidery. The bodice is of white velvet, glittering with silver and diamonds; the sleeves, Venetian in style, leave the upper part of the arm bare, and the mantle in white brocade is so elaborate that the flowers stand out in relief. With this Juliet wears a long bridal vail of white tulle.—Paris Cor. Boston Transcript.

The Ant and the Lion.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The Ant having heard that the Lion had killed a Hunter and picked his Bones set out and journeyed through the Forest until she met the King of Beasts. After stating what she had heard the Ant said:

"It fills me with sadness and sorrow to know that of you. I shall Proceed to make your Future conduct my Special Mission."

At the Desire of the Ant the Lion accompanied her Home. The young Ants annoyed him and he killed them by the score. The Beetles, who were Friends of the Ants, came on a visit to be snapped up. Wishing to see how the Ant Hill was constructed, the Lion in one moment made a wreck of the Labor of Weeks. Finally, when the Philanthropic Ant had several times Narrowly escaped with her Life she felt to exclaim:

"Begone with you back to your Haunts! As a Wicked Lion you may now and then Slay a Hunter, but as a Reformed Beast you will certainly be the Death of this Whole Colony!"

Moral—The Tramp who is taken in for the Night causes more Anxiety than the dozen sleeping in the fence-corners.

The Opportunity Utilized.

"Prisoner," said the judge, "have you anything to say before the sentence of the court is passed upon you?"

"I have, your honor." (Turning to his lawyer.) "You slick fingered, smooth jawed puddin' head! You billy-be-dad-slammed hunk of soap fat! You said you could clear me for $25, and took your money in advance. You hain't got sense enough to be assistant janitor to a corn crib, you don't know as much law as a Texas horned frog, and you haven't the moral principle of a blind owl. Go ahead, judge."—Chicago Tribune.

When Charley put on his first trousers he was very proud. He strutted up and down in front of his mother almost crazy with delight. Then he burst out: "Oh, mamma, pants make me feel so grand! Didn't it make you feel grand when"— But an awful consciousness came over him that this bliss had never been shared by his mother, and he laid his wee, chubby hand pityingly against her cheek, saying, pathetically, "Oh, poor mamma! poor mamma!"—Sunshine.

ALLEN GRAY

— OR, —

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

CHAPTER XIV.

"DIE, YOU DOG!"

Allen was informed by signs that he was to remain at Mlle. Camille's house for a few hours, he supposed until he and his horse had had time to rest. A negro boy took the horse round the house to the stable, and the hostess, in polite French, which was Greek to him, invited the tired traveler into the house. The good lady, evidently some maiden relative of the little dumb boy, was in ecstacies at the arrival of the child, but not more delighted than the little fellow himself. His laughter, clapping his hands and dumb show indicated excessive pleasure.

Allen's arrival seemed to have been expected by Mlle. Camille and her servants. It seemed to him that she was standing in the door waiting for them. The mademoiselle was a pleasant-looking old lady, with large dark eyes and soft, iron-gray hair. She did not possess a single feature that indicated a distinct family resemblance to either Bertha or the child. Yet those tears and those emotions of joy at sight of the little dumb boy was proof positive that he was very dear to her.

"He is in good hands and will be well cared for," thought the editor, his heart relieved by an approving conscience.

He was ushered into the house by a mulatto boy, and conducted to the end of a long corridor, where the negro pointed to a room indicating that he was to occupy it.

"Can you speak English?" the tired traveler asked.

The mulatto shook his head, and then, showing Allen a bath, made him understand by signs that dinner would be ready for him as soon as he was ready for it. The tired editor found a good bath quite refreshing, and when he had dressed, donning the wrapper and slippers which were brought him, he felt almost himself again. The mulatto then conducted him to the dining room in the basement at the rear of the house. Two colored waiters, who spoke nothing but French, brought him an excellent repast, to which he did ample justice.

When he had satisfied his appetite the same mulatto boy conducted him to a bed room, where he was made to understand that he was to sleep and rest himself for awhile. He now remembered the sealed letter which the old woman had given him to bring to the mademoiselle, and taking it from his pocket sent it to her by the negro boy.

Having no other cares on his mind for the present, Allen threw himself upon the bed, and in five minutes was sound asleep. The exhaustion, mental worry and excitement, through which he had passed in the last few hours would have overcome any person of ordinary strength and powers of endurance.

After toil sweet is sleep, and no sleep so deep and refreshing as the sleep of exhaustion. The shadows lengthened, and the sun was just dipping behind the Western horizon when he was awakened by the mulatto boy.

Signaling Allen to rise, he handed him a sealed note, which contained instructions for his safe return. The note was written in English, in a plain, neat, lady-like hand, and Allen suspected that the directions had been written by Bertha herself and inclosed with the note which he had brought Mademoiselle who now sent it to him. At dark he was to start on his return, and he would reach a certain village ten miles from Turley's Point, where he was to remain closely concealed all day. At or near sundown he was to again set out for Turleys Point, reaching it after night. The horse he was to return and tie to the same tree at which he had found him.

"Umph, humph," said Allen, gazing at the writing and wondering if Bertha had penned those lines. "I suppose this affair is to terminate as mysterious as it begun."

The mulatto informed him by signs that his supper was ready, and by the time he had finished it his horse would be waiting for him. Allen rose and went to supper.

He finished his meal in silence, and then by the same pantomimic motions, the boy informed him that his horse was ready. It was almost dark when he found himself once more at the side of that coal-black horse that had borne him so nobly on his long journey to Frenchtown. A day's rest and excellent care had removed all indications of evil effects of his hard travel.

Neither the child nor mademoiselle had been seen by Allen since morning, and no message was given him to return. He vaulted in the saddle, and the mulatto pointed to a road leading off through a grove of trees. This road went directly north from the village, and by following it he would, he knew, come into the main road a mile or two away from Frenchtown.

"They seem to fear that I am being watched," said Allen to himself, "and I suppose that the sooner I get away from here the better."

He gave his horse the rein, and the animal cantered away at a brisk pace.

It was a quiet night. The hum of insects and chirp of crickets along the wooded road made pleasant music for the lonely traveler. Though he had been considerably rested, his muscles, unaccustomed to the hard strain so recently put upon them, were bruised and sore. Had not his horse been an easy-going animal he could not have stood the journey. Being alone and unincumbered the return was much more comfortable than his ride of the night before.

The farmers were returning to their homes after their hard day's toil. The weary horses, now freed from the clanking chains, crunched their corn and oats at their stalls. As Allen cantered along the dusty road he envied the farmer, sitting on the door-step to cool his heated feet, the night of sweet repose that was before him.

The country was thickly settled, and for the first hour or two of his night ride he heard the low murmur of voices in and about the farm-houses. At one the weary plow-man sat on the front porch smoking his evening pipe; at another a pair of lovers were cooing upon the lawn; at a third two or three noisy children were playing prison house, their shouts and laughter making the weary traveler glad.

But anon the hum of voices and scenes of life died away. As night still more closely enwrapt the earth in her sable mantle a quiet repose fell over the scene and all became silence. The farmer had cooled his feet and was sleeping sweetly; the plowman had smoked his pipe and retired; the lovers had separated with a parting kiss, and the merry childish voices were hushed in slumber.

Only occasionally was he aroused from his gloomy reveries by a restless dog running out into the road to bark at the passing stranger. Then he plunged into a great forest-covered valley, and the hoot of owls and screams of night birds grated upon his nerves, causing him to shudder.

Having only a forty-mile ride before him, and not wishing to enter the town before daylight, Allen allowed his horse to jog along quite leisurely, while his mind dwelt upon the strange events of the last few weeks, terminating in this most extraordinary journey. How was he to account for his strange absence, and would he be able to keep this visit a secret from the tall, dark stranger? Somehow he felt that that tall, dark man, giving his name as X. Y. Z., was his enemy, and if he had been pursued he was one of the pursuers.

All night, over lonesome roads, through dark forests and along silent lanes the young editor continued his journey. When morning dawned he was in sight of the village where he was directed to stay.

"DIE, YOU DOG!"

He went to a small hotel, where he gave his horse into the care of the landlord, ordering the horse to be groomed and fed and that breakfast be prepared for himself. He slept most of the forenoon, but at two o'clock rose, and after a hearty dinner called for his horse.

"Which way are you goin'?" the landlord asked.

"Back home—up the river," he answered.

"Did ye come from up the river?"

"Yes, sir."

"Been out tradin'?"

"No, sir. I went to a town below here on some business, and I am now on my way back."

Glad to escape so inquisitive a man as the landlord was liable to prove, Allen paid his bill and mounting his horse galloped away in the direction of Turley's Point.

If he went straight ahead he would reach the Point long before night, which he did not wish to do; so, coming to a thick forest, he rode some distance into it, and there waited until the sun had gone down and the shades of twilight had begun to deepen, when he again resumed his journey.

Allen was almost worn out with his long ride at such unseasonable hours, and was very glad when he found himself once more in the vicinity of Turley's Point. It was still early, and not wishing to be seen by any one, he rode around the village, entering the old deserted turnpike some distance above it. Here it was so dark that he could scarce see an object three paces before him, but he managed to find the path, and took the horse to the very spot where he had found him, and tied him to the same tree.

He felt a great burden lifted from his breast. He seemed to be just awaking from a troubled dream. Cramped by his long ride, his stiffened limbs seemed hardly able to carry him to the village.

Danger was over; a few moments more and he would be in his bed resting from his toilsome journey.

Allen reached the turnpike, and had just stepped out of the narrow path into it, when a tall dark form sprang upon him. Before he could make an effort to resist, he was seized by the shoulders and hurled to the earth. A hand clutched his throat and a sharp bright blade glittered in the starlight above him, while a voice almost stifled with hate, hissed in his ear.

"Die, you dog!"

CHAPTER XV.

THE MAN WITH THE HORSE WHIP.

Wholly unprepared for the sudden attack, Allen Gray was quick to think and equally as quick to act. His movements had to be with lightning-like rapidity to seize the wrist of the descending hand which held the murderous dagger, but once he had the arm he clung to it with an iron grasp. Next, with his hand that was free, he seized the hand of the would-be assassin, which was clutching at his throat until he was almost suffocated, and tore it loose. The assailant had one knee on the chest of the man he had hurled to the earth, but not knowing how strong he really was, the young fellow actually sprang from under him, and in a moment was on his knees. He clung with wonderful tenacity to the hand which still held the dagger, for he knew that it was certain death to release his hold.

The struggle was silent and desperate, for both were strong, determined men. While Allen's opponent was taller and heavier than himself, the latter had an advantage in activity and skill in wrestling and boxing. From their knees the struggling men rose to their feet.

The dagger fell to the ground and neither could get it. The contest became one of endurance. The men were fighting for life. They struggled, turned and twisted, and fought with maddened desperation until Allen finally struck his antagonist on the head. The blow staggered him, and another brought him to his knees.

Following up this momentary advantage, Allen struck three or four more blows and felled him to the earth. Enraged and furious at the sudden attempt on his life, the young editor seized the dagger which lay on the ground at his side, and raising the gleaming blade to drive it to the heart of his assailant, he cried:

"Now we'll see which dog shall die!"

A piercing shriek rose on the air, and a slender form clad in spotless white flew toward them and seized the uplifted arm.

"Oh, don't, don't in Heaven's name, don't murder him!" cried the beautiful girl, at whose solicitation he had gone to Frenchtown.

"Bertha—Bertha—you here!" gasped Allen, starting back in surprise, not unmingled with horror, when he reflected that he was about to take the life of a human being.

"Oh, spare him, spare him. In the name of the Virgin let there be no blood shed!" plead Bertha, wringing her hands in agony.

Allen stood transfixed and dumb with amazement, while the dark-whiskered man, to whom her appearance was not such an inexplicable mystery, rose to his feet and in a voice of suppressed thunder said:

"It is very kind of you to save my life after plotting so long to take it."

"Oh, Heaven—I never—never dreamed it would come to this!" groaned the beautiful girl, still wringing her hands in agony.

The master turned upon her much as a cruel father or master might upon a child or servant, and in a tone of muffled thunder said:

"We've had enough of this—go home."

In his excitement and rage Allen could distinguish a strong foreign accent in his language, which on ordinary occasions was not perceivable.

"Not while you threaten each other," she answered, sobbing bitterly.

"Why did you follow me? Did I not tell you to stay within ze house?"

"I know—I know; but if I had not come you would have been killed," she answered, still sobbing.

(To be Continued.)

Florida still feels the effect of the yellow fever epidemic, there being now, according to local papers, fewer tourists there than usual at this season of the year.

At Gainesville, Ga., the J. G. Hynds Company is to manufacture leather boots and shoes, liquids, extracts and machinery used in the manufacture of shoes, and build and operate tramways and street railroads. The capital stock is to be $250,000, with the privilege of increasing to $500,000.

The Empress of Austria carries a traveling basket fitted up so that she is able to make soup on the cars. It has silver saucepans with gold handles, and the Empress declares that she can make in it better broth than any chef can concoct.

CLIMBING.

Once these hills that I have gained
Seemed like towering mountains tall;
Now in the evening, sunset stained,
My weary soul doth find them small.

Before my sight no Rights rise,
Mont Blancs stand towering up sublime;
But in the sky life's daylight dies,
And, is it worth our while to climb?

Lie down, O soul, and be content,
Behind the hills do lie, all low,
Of level, dull accomplishment;
Beyond the eternal stars still glow
—Bennett Bellman.

Blanche Roosevelt.

Blanche Roosevelt, one of our famous American girls, is said to be one of the most interesting girls in Europe to talk to. It is doubtful if a celebrity has appeared on the other side during the last ten years whom she has not met. She knows every crowned head in Europe. She has reminiscences of every court. She has been feted in every capital, and she is the only person living who ever attended a ball at Battenberg palace without the previous formal presentation. She has some literary reputation, but it is not this to which she owes her remarkable position. She has a genius for universal fascination. The person is yet to be heard from who has ever resisted Blanche Roosevelt. Moreover, she has a knack of always knowing the right person. If she wants a thing done, she immediately meets the person that can be of use to her. People talk about her, but forgive her every indiscretion. She doubtless conquered Sardou, and he said: "I will make you, I will write a play with you. She is about 30, and very handsome.—Current Literature.

IN LUCK.

How F. W. Smith Won a Fortune. A Month Ago He Was Poor; Now He is Worth Fifteen Thousand Dollars.

F. W. Smith is one of the happiest men in Santa Clara County.

A month ago he was working on the ranch of Miller & Lux, below Gilroy, at small wages; to-day he has $15,000 in the bank.

Mr. Smith came to this county from Nebraska about two years ago. He had no money, but he was intelligent and industrious, and it was not long before he was hard at work on a ranch, eager to make an honest living and if possible to lay up something beside. But money accumulates slowly at ranch wages, and finally, as a mere experiment and without any hope of success, he purchased a ticket in the Louisiana State Lottery.

The drawing took place on the 12th of last month, and a day or two later Mr Smith picked up a paper to look at the lucky numbers. Suddenly his eye was riveted to the number "25,215." It had drawn the capital prize of $300,000, and his ticket called for one-twentieth of that amount, or $15,000.

Within ten days the money was delivered to him through Wells, Fargo & Co's Express office in San Jose.

Mr. Smith, although delighted with his unexpected good fortune has not permitted it to unbalance his usual good judgment and sturdy character. He is now at Campbell station, near this city, with the view of purchasing a home. Mr. Smith is about 26 years of age, and with his present start he has a successful career before him.—San Jose (Cal.) Herald, March 12th.

POPULAR AND PROSPEROUS.

Business men are glad that the Pacific Bank, of San Francisco, begins its second quarter of a century, with the same reliable President, Dr. R. H. McDonald, at the helm; this being sufficient guarantee that the liberal yet prudent policy which has made the Bank so popular and prosperous in the past, will be the watchword in the future.

STONE IN THE KIDNEY.

I was first taken with sharp pains in the lower part of my bowels in the region of the bladder. Shortly blood appeared mixed with my urine, and a few weeks later I had an attack of gravel. I tried a number of doctors. One said it was gravel, another inflammation of the bladder, and another stone in kidneys. For three months I was under the care of an eminent doctor at Albany, but constantly growing worse, went home to die. At this time I was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., and am now robust and strong. A remedy which can do this for one so near death as I was should be known everywhere. I hope this statement will cause others afflicted as I was to use the remedy.—C. W. Brown, Petersburg, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1, 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

There is much in a name. Dr Carver and Jack the Ripper are acknowledged champions in their respective specialties.—Chicago Tribune.

UNDESERVEDLY LAUGHED AT.

The unthinking are prone to make game of nervousness. Yet this is a very real and serious affliction, the harassing symptoms of which are rendered all the more poignant by ridicule. The stomach is usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve tonic and tranquillizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion, it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headaches, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve tonic and tranquillizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion, it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headaches, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these modify and ultimately disappear as the system gains strength from the great tonic. Dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, constipation and kidney complaints are subdued by the Bitters.

"I haven't been in a country," said a Nebraska preacher, "where the hand of man has never set foot—Kansas City Star.

Coughs—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are not new and untried, but, having been tested by long and constant use, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple cough remedies. 25 cts. a box.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

To the Editor:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,

T. A. Slocum, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

L. M. Walton and Phillips & Co.'s Tourist Sleeping Car excursions East. No change for births. For information, tickets, and location in cars, address

F. G. High, 624 Market St., San Francisco.

Steamship Tickets to and from Europe at very lowest rates.

The cure of the opium habit may be found in Dujardin's Life Essence. Without any opiate, the iron and protagon will furnish the nervous system all that it needs. It has never failed when faithfully used. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

S. F. N. U. No. 355. New Series No. 14.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Nothing that has ever lived is lost, nothing is useless; not a sigh, a joy or a sorrow which has not served its purpose.—Madame de Gasparin.

RELIABLE AND ALWAYS THE SAME.

Brandreth's Pills are the oldest, safest and best blood purifier and purgative known. They are purely vegetable, therefore harmless. They are always the same and always produce the same effect. Other purgatives require increased doses and finally cease acting altogether. A course of one or two of Brandreth's Pills taken each night is a positive cure for constipation, headache and all bilious disorders. If you can't take them plain, get them sugar-coated.

Pay, night, water, sun and moon are to be had gratis; for everything else, down with your dust.—Plautus.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FULL WEIGHT PURE

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia Lime or Alumn. Sold only in Cans.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK. CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

BRONCHITIS CURED.

After spending Ten Winters South, was Cured by Scott's Emulsion.

143 Centre St., New York, June 25th, 1888.

The Winter after the great fire in Chicago I contracted Bronchial affections, and since then have been obliged to spend nearly every Winter South. Last November was advised to try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and to my surprise was relieved at once, and by continuing its use three months was entirely cured, gained flesh and strength and was able to stand even the Blizzard and attend to business every day. C. T. CHURCHILL.

Sold by all Druggists.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM PRICE 50 CENTS.

—FOR—

Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.

117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

Established 1862.

F. H. HAMMER,

—WHOLESALE—

Produce Dealer

—AND—

Commission Merchant,

215 and 217 Davis St. - S. F., Cal.

When Shipping anything to this Market let me handle your business.

Quick sales and prompt returns on all Consignments. Write for Weekly Price Current.

Member of San Francisco Produce Exchange and Call Board.

Grain Bought and Sold on Margins. Money Advanced on Shipments.

DON'T BE A GULL!

Because a gull is a very foolish bird that will so allow anything you offer it. When you ask for "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" Smoking Tobacco, and the dealer wants you to try some cheap brand on which he makes a much larger profit. He is simply trying to "gull" you. He knows as well as you do that "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" is the most popular and the best Smoking Tobacco on the Pacific Coast.

DROPSY

—TREATED FREE.—

Positively Cured with Vegetable Remedies.

Have cured many thousand cases. Cure patients pronounced hopeless by the best physicians. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. Send for free book of testimonials of miraculous cures. Ten days treatment furnished free by mail. If you order trial, send 10 cents in stamps to pay postage. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Atlanta, Ga. If you order trial return this advertisement to us.

ASTHMA CURED

German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. Dr. R. Schiffman, St. Paul, Minn.

HAZELTON BROS., AND HEMME & LONG PIANOS

Sold on Easy Installments. Also dealer in Sheet Music and Musical Merchandise. CHAS. S. EATON, General Agent, 735 Market St., S. F., Cal. Send for Catalogues of Pianos and Sheet Music.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

LADIES! A SECRET YOU WOULD like to know, especially Married Ladies of delicate health. Send stamp for full particulars of this great boon to women, sent in securely sealed letter. DR. GRAEME, box 1841, San Francisco, Cal.

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES. Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. J. AIKEN, Manager, Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

St. JACOBS OIL

TRADE MARK

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN

For Stablemen and Stockmen.

CURES

Cuts, Swellings, Bruises, Sprains, Galls, Strains, Lameness, Stiffness, Cracked Heels, Scratches, Contractions, Flesh Wounds, Stringhalt, Sore-Throat, Distemper, Colic, Whitlow, Poll Evil, Fistula, Tumors, Splints, Ringbones and Spavin in its early Stages. Directions with each bottle.

At Druggists and Dealers.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

Diamond Vera-Cura

FOR DYSPEPSIA,

A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND ALL Stomach Troubles Arising Therefrom.

Your Druggist or General Dealer will get Vera-Cura for you if not already in stock, or it will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent stamp.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers.

The Portland Oregonian issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage. MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. 111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

WELL DRILLS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE. Sold on Trial!

Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by

F. C. AUSTIN MANUF'G CO., 167 & 169 Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

The Oldest Medicine in the World is probably

DR. ISAAC THOMPSON'S CELEBRATED EYE-WATER.

This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century. There are few diseases to which mankind are subject more distressing than sore eyes, and none, perhaps, for which more remedies have been tried without success. For all external inflammation of the eyes it is an infallible remedy. If the directions are followed it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. For sale by all druggists. JOHN L. THOMPSON, SONS & CO., Troy, N. Y. Established 1797.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH

PENNYROYAL PILLS

RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND.

Original, best, only genuine and reliable pill for sale. Never Fail. Ask for Chichester's English Diamond Brand, in red and gold boxes, sealed with blue ribbon. At Druggists. Accept no other. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are a dangerous counterfeit. Send 4c. (stamps) for particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return mail. 10,000 testimonials from LADIES who have used them. Name Paper. Chichester Chemical Co., Madison Sq., Phila., Pa.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH,

Carbolic Sheep Wash.

F. W. Jackson & Co., Mfg. Agents, 104 Market St.

R. H. McDonald PRES'T. F. V. McDonald, CASHIER.

Established 1863. Oldest Chartered Bank on the Pacific Coast.

PACIFIC BANK

Capital Stock $1,000,000.00.

Surplus $700,000.00.

Av. Resources $4,500,000.00

Returning thanks for past favors, we respectfully ask a continuance of the same and solicit accounts of Individuals, Firms and Corporations.

R. H. McDONALD, President,

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1, 1889.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Ronisch Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 205 Post Street, San Francisco.

SECRETS Free Masonary, Signs, Grips and Morgan's fate by mail on receipt of $1. People's Pub. Co., St. Paul, Minn.

KNABE It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.

A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 152 Post street, S. F. PIANOS

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

A BIG SHOW

Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

WEBSTER

3000 more Words and 1 nearly 2000 more Illustrations than any other American Dictionary.

An Invaluable Companion

in every School and at every Fireside. Sold by all Booksellers. Illustrated Pamphlet sent free.

G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

BIG G Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio. Trade Mark

I prescribe and fully dorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease. G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.

We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction. D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill. $1.00. Sold by Druggists.

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

It Makes You Hungry

"I have used Paine's Celery Compound and it has had a salutary effect. It invigorated the system and I feel like a new man. It improves the appetite and facilitates digestion." J. T. COPELAND, Primus, S. C.

Paine's Celery Compound

is a unique tonic and appetizer. Pleasant to the taste, quick in its action, and without any injurious effect. It gives that rugged health which makes everything taste good. It cures dyspepsia and kindred disorders. Physicians prescribe it. $1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.

Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.

Spring medicine means more now-a-days than it did ten years ago. The winter of 1888-89 has left the nerves all fagged out. The nerves must be strengthened, the blood purified, liver and bowels regulated. Paine's Celery Compound—the Spring medicine par excellence—does all this, as nothing else can. Prescribed by Physicians, Recommended by Druggists, Endorsed by Ministers, Guaranteed by the Manufacturers to be

The Best Spring Medicine.

"In the spring of 1887 I was all run down. I would get up in the morning with so little a feeling, and was so weak, that I could hardly go around. I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and before I had taken it a week I felt very much better. I took fifty recommended it to all who need a building up and strengthening medicine." Mrs. B. A. Bow, Burlington, Vt.

DIAMOND DYES Color anything any color. Never Fail! Always sure!

LACTATED FOOD Nourishes before perfectly. The Physician's favorite.

CUPID'S HARNESS.

Most women naturally look forward to matrimony as their proper sphere in life, but they should constantly bear in mind that a fair, rosy face, bright eyes, and a healthy, well-developed form, are the best passports to a happy marriage. All those wasting disorders, weaknesses, and functional irregularities peculiar to their sex, destroy beauty and attractiveness and make life miserable. An unfailing specific for these maladies is to be found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years. $1.00 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.00.

Copyright, 1888, by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets — Size of Pellets

THE ORIGINAL

LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely Vegetable and Perfectly Harmless.

Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, cheapest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels. 25 cents, by druggists.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....MAY 18, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 49. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 18, 1889. WHOLE NO. 968.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 20

Big Money for Flowers.

"I don't think there is another city in the country," said a well to do florist, "which in proportion to its size spends as much money for flowers as Chicago does. The appreciation of flowers is a taste that must be cultivated if it is to attain respectable proportions, and the rage for flowers among Chicagoans who can afford it appears to increase in intensity season by season. Well known and wealthy families, who entertain regularly all through the winter, run up bills for amounts which would pay all the living expenses of a family in moderate circumstances for the entire year. A bill for $300, $500 or $750 for floral decorations for one evening's entertainment is a very ordinary matter, and it frequently passes the thousand mark. I naturally think flowers constitute the most delightful of luxuries, and for the fashionable world to coincide with this view is for it to put dollars in my pocket. It is not only the rich people who indulge in floral displays, however. Lots of people who as a matter of fact cannot afford it do the same thing. Nine-tenths of the costly floral tributes that go to the popular actresses of the day are paid for out of the pockets of young sprigs who would do far more wisely to spend the money for clothes—or, better still, save it up. Then of course there are the countless swarms of eager lovers who besiege the affections of their adored ones with handsome bouquets. I pity them all, of course, but they are their own masters, and if they will victimize themselves for my benefit I suppose I ought not to complain. You may set it down for a fact, though, that Chicago is a liberal supporter of the florist, and one who has a fair sized trade and understands his business coins money." — Chicago Journal.

A Memorable Contest.

On February 9, 1801, when the senate began to count the electoral votes, it appeared that no one had a majority of the votes, consequently the choice was left to the house of representatives. That body determined to sit until an election was had, and on the first ballot the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee voted for Jefferson, and Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware and South Carolina for Barr, while Maryland and Vermont were divided. Though ample time was allowed to Burr in which to catch the necessary votes and the air was filled with rumors of bargains, he entirely failed to do so. Jefferson, in a letter to Monroe on February 15, expressed great anxiety at the delay, and proposed a law creating the chief justice president. At this, however, the middle states threatened a revolt, and the call of a new convention to frame another constitution. Not till after Jefferson had given a pledge that he would not remove meritorious subordinates from office merely for political reasons, and had promised that the government policy would not be materially changed, did the Federalists yield their opposition and break the deadlock. The thirty-sixth ballot was taken on the seventh day of the struggle, the day after the Federal caucus. Morris, of Vermont, was absent, and Craik and Baer, of Maryland, cast blank ballots. This gave two more states to Jefferson and procured his election.—Philadelphia Times.

British School Training.

I was at a private school. The master was an unmitigated ruffian. If we did anything wrong during school hours we were told by an usher to stand on a form. The master suffered from lumbago. Periodically he used to crawl into the room on all fours, rear up when he came close to a boy standing on a form and proceed to beat him savagely with a cane. I believe he thought the exercise was good for his lumbago. Then I went to Eton. Dr. Hawtry was the head master. He was an amiable and kindly man and a fine gentleman. He probably flogged about twenty boys every day on an average. He did it with exquisite politeness, and, except on rare occasions, the whole thing was a farce. Four cuts were the ordinary application and ten cuts were never exceeded. The proceedings took place in public, and any boy who had a taste for the thing might be a spectator. If the victim flinched there was a howl of execration. Far from objecting to this the doctor approved of it. I remember once that a boy fell on his knees and implored him to spare him. "I shall not condescend to flog you, but I leave you to your young friends," said the doctor. I happened to be one of the young friends, and I remember aiding in kicking the boy round the quadrangle for about half an hour.—Henri Labouchere in London truth.

She Had No Time to Tend Birds.

Dealer (to countryman looking at clocks)—Now there's something unique in the way of clocks, sir. When the hour begins a bird comes out from the top and sings "Cookoo." For instance, I turn the hand to 3 o'clock, and now the bird comes out and sings "Cookoo" three times.

Countryman (enthusiastically, to wife)—By gum, Mariar, dont that beat all!

Wife—That kind o' clock may do fur people who've got lots of time, but it'd take me half the forenoon every day to look after the bird.—Harper's Bazar.

The Lick Observatory.

The great Lick observatory, of California, is, for purposes of observing solar phenomena, a failure. Being located on the apex of a mountain, the atmosphere, by the heat of the sun, undergoes that phenomenon you may notice at any time in the air surrounding a very hot stove—a flickering movement that blurs the vision. The Lick observatory, in the daytime, is surrounded by just such a condition as this. For nocturnal observations the Lick observatory is unequaled. For solar observations it would be better if the observatory were located on a level plain.—Professor Nisher in Globe-Democrat.

INGENUITY OF THE AFFLICTED.

Painters Without Hands—The Tongue Not Necessary to Speech.

Few examples of human ingenuity are more interesting than the devices which have been employed by cripples to enable them to pursue some calling, and there are few subjects more interesting and curious than the means by which the deaf have heard what was passing around them, and the dumb have made themselves understood.

Passing over the well known case of Miss Biffin, who, though born without hands or arms, attained considerable eminence as a miniature painter, it may be noted that there are abundant instances recorded of persons who could not only write, but paint tolerably well, with their toes.

There was, for instance, at Coggeshall, in Essex, a man named Carter, who was so thoroughly paralyzed that he had quite lost the use of his hands, and was obliged to be on his back. He partly supported himself by his beautiful drawings, which he did with his mouth; and he could copy an old wood cut or plate so closely that it was difficult to distinguish it from the original.

Sir Charles Bell, too, tells us of a Russian beggar born without hands, who frequented the high road to Moscow, and committed many murders before he was discovered and executed. His method of work was peculiar. He used to throw himself against a person who was giving him alms, and, having stunned him, proceeded to seize him with his teeth, and so drag him into the wood. There are therefore many occupations which can be followed even if a person have no hands.

To prove that the tongue is not absolutely necessary for speech would be an easy matter, since there are many authentic cases of persons, who, having lost their tongues owing to some accident or operation, have yet managed to speak distinctly. But to convey thoughts without speech, to speak without words is another matter. Perhaps the most curious example of this form of ingenuity—either in fact or fiction—is the means by which the paralytic old Noirtier, in "Monte Cristo," was able to speak to anybody who understood his system. He, it will be remembered, had sight and hearing left to him, and he expressed approbation by closing his eyes, his refusal to any proposal by winking them several times, and if he had some desire or feeling to express he raised them to heaven. By this code, together with the aid of a dictionary so arranged that he could see a page as a finger was rapidly run down it, he contrived to hold converse on any subject.

After such examples of devices to supply the places of missing senses or members of the body as those we have mentioned, it would be indeed surprising if there were no natural way of overcoming the many disadvantages incidental to deafness. But as a matter of fact there is a method, and a very simple method, by which many deaf people can hear, and that, too, without artificial instruments. In "King John," Hubert says:

> I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus,
> The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool,
> With open mouth, swallowing a tailor's news.

Scott, too, has passages to the same effect, and we often hear of a particular person "swallowing it all in"—i. e., listening with his mouth wide open. Now, there is a sound physiological reason for opening the mouth under such circumstances. There are two opposite openings in the car—namely, the external opening, which is known to all of us, and the internal opening, called the eustachian tube, which passes from the internal auditory organs to the back of the mouth, just where the nostrils open into it.

It therefore follows that a person who opens his mouth has a better chance of hearing than if he keeps it shut. In short, the inner opening is an auxiliary to the outer one. There is at least one case in which the latter opening alone has had to do service, as the following advertisement from a copy of The Daily Post of some thirty years ago will clearly show: "Missing on Sunday afternoon, a young man of weak intellect. The lobes of his ears are closed, but when spoken to he opens his mouth, and is then able to hear." It is clear, then, that the accidental destruction of one or more parts does not necessarily destroy the sense of hearing, provided that the injury does not reach the more essential part of mechanism, the brain.—London Tid-Bits.

Just His Way.

"There goes a singular man," observed a Woodward avenue grocer as an old gentleman passed out with a package under his arm.

"How singular?"

"He always begins business by asking if we have any strawberries. In season we say yes, and out of season we say no. If we have 'em he doesn't buy; if we don't have 'em he looks disappointed for a minute and then gives his order. His trade is worth $3,000 a year to me. I lost it once and had to apologize to him."

"How?"

"I had a smart aleck of a clerk who replied that we had no strawberries but lots of chestnuts, and the old man walked out as stiff as a ramrod. I apologized, discharged the clerk, and he returned. He's my strawberry as long as we use him well."—Detroit Free Press.

Ducks in China.

It is stated that there are more ducks in China than all the world outside of it. They are kept on every farm, on the private roads, and on all the lakes, rivers, and small streams. There are many boats on each of which as many as 2,000 are kept. Their eggs constitute one of the most important articles of food. They are hatched in establishments fitted up for the purpose. Some of them turn out as many as 50,000 young ducks every year. Salted and smoked ducks are sold in all the towns, and many of them are exported to countries where Chinamen reside.—Brooklyn Eagle

CONSUMPTION OF WOOD.

Some of the Numberless Uses to Which Timber Is Put.

Many interesting items in regard to the consumption of wood material in this country have been gathered from various sources, and compiled by the chief of the Forestry division, which are not only interesting as showing the enormous amount used in some of the most important industries, but also as exhibiting in minor ones that are seldom taken into account, a consumption greatly in excess of the popular understanding on the subject. The annual consumption of wood in railroad building is computed at 500,000,000 cubic feet. One copper mine in Butte City used last year 14,000,000 feet, board measure, for timbering its works, and 600 cords of wood daily for the reduction and other purposes.

It is estimated that one of the largest lake vessels requires the oak furnished by about two thousand first-class trees, such as can hardly be found in our forests. The wooden pumps made annually consume from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 feet of poplar lumber. The wood manufactures of Chicago for 1887 are credited with a product of $34,500,000 in value. The manufacture of doors, sashes and blinds is calculated to need an annual supply of 50,000,000 cubic feet of raw material. The product of looking-glass and picture frames alone is valued at $4,871,248.

Not less than 100,000,000 cubic feet are required for car building, and this must be of excelent quality. The material for carriage and wagon building is valued at over $10,000,000, and wood of special good qualities is required. Furniture factories are reported as using over $350,000,000 worth of lumber, while the wood in sewing-machines alone is valued at $1,250,000. Seven million dollars' worth of inferior lumber is used in packing cases, while coffins require $3,750,000 worth of the best.

One firm in Maine uses over 100,000 cubic feet, mainly birch, for spools; other firms use large quantities for the same purpose. One pennsylvania factory, not the largest, employs constantly twenty-two men and fourteen teams to cut and haul maple logs for the manufacture of umbrella sticks selling at $6 to $18 a gross. One of the steadiest industries is the manufacture of wash-boards. Butter-plates, trays, wooden bowls and clothes-pins require large quantities of material. Even the manufacture of the wooden shoe has found its way into this country, and butternut furnished the desirable material.

The cooperage interest uses about eighteen and a half million dollars' worth of raw material, and the shingle product of Michigan alone required in 1887 20,000,000 cubic feet of wood, and that of the whole country probably four times as much. One New Hampshire firm makes 40,000 bushels of shoe pegs, and 100,000 cords of birch and maple are said to be annually converted into this shape. Toothpicks and skewers require large amounts of wood annually, and one match factory, out of a dozen or more, reports its need of raw material at 4,000,000 feet of best white pine. Three factories of excelsior in Michigan, not to mention others, consumed nearly 20,000 cords of basswood in 1887. Altogether the numerous wood-pulp factories converted from 350,000 to 400,000 cords of wood into pulp annually. Only a portion of the almost numberless uses for which wood is required have been mentioned, but enough to set land-owners to considering the best methods of forestry and forest preservation for supplying the wants of the future.—N. Y. World.

INDIAN OPIUM FIENDS.

Fearful Prevalence of a Habit Worse Than That of a Drunkard.

In almost any village of Guzerat, if not in all, you may see among the Hindoos the listless, apathetic manner and dull, sleepy eye of the opium-eater. Anywhere there it is only necessary to ask for a little kasumba to be offered it on all sides. The mode of making that drink is not pleasant to see. A little crude opium is produced and placed on a small ball of raw cotton. The maker holds this in the palm of his hand and pours a little water on it. He kneads the opium into the wet cotton and goes on pouring water till the cotton is saturated with brown fluid. He then squeezes it out as from a sponge into the palm of his hand, and you are invited to sit on the ground while he pours the dirty stuff into your mouth from a still dirtier hand. The opium-eater is always dirty. These people ask but little food. Opium-eaters have no appetite. They will work just as much as they are compeled to do in order to procure their drug. Ask them why their fields are uncultivated or half-tilled and they say: "Look at the labor we should have to undertake." They listlessly drag one foot after another, silent and half asleep. In one village the reply given to an inquirer, who asked if the people were well off, was: How could we be when opium is so dear?" No wonder the active little Mahrattas walked through this country According to the London Globe, more than half the outlawry of the province is due to opium smuggling. Where the cultivators have managed to keep to a certain extent free from the opium fiend they are invariably well off.

—A Poughkeepsie man, in suing for a divorce, stated, among other reasons for wishing to be rid of his wife, that she was too stylish. She used three clean towels in one week in the house, while he, before marriage, could get along three weeks with only one.

HISTORICAL RUINS.

Destruction of the Oldest Saw-Mill in the United States.

What remained of the oldest saw-mill in the country has been torn down and upon its site is building a new grist mill, the property of E. E. Billings. This historic spot, situated in the town of Rocky Hill, has long been a favorite trysting place for lovers of the antique, and the visitors who have paid their respects to the place by defacing the crude logs are numbered by the thousands.

But the mill will be visited no more. It was known far and wide as the old Ephraim Goodrich saw-mill and was of the most pristine construction imaginable. The saw was a cumbersome horizontal affair, set in a monstrous wooden frame, propeled by a natural waterfall upon a big wooden wheel, an invention of past ages. When the machinery was set in motion the earth for miles around reverberated with the most hideous noises, and the work was slow. It is told of old Ephraim that, after starting a prodigious log upon its road of separation, he used to lie down upon the carriage and sleep the dreary hours away, awakening when the log had run its race by the comparative stillness of the mill. He became afflicted, so the story goes, with a peculiar disease, contracted by this habit, which prevented him from sleeping in a quiet spot, and he then took to running his saw-mill at the dead of night for his own personal benefit, and to the detriment of lethargy of his neighbors, who, unable to stand it any longer, swooped down upon the old man and his mill one dark and gloomy night, and spiked the water-wheel down. That was 1750, a year after the mill had been founded.

Old Ephraim, who was fast becoming aged, finally deserted this industry, and his son, also bearing his father's name, took the business and ran it to the satisfaction of the Plebes, his neighbors. But the mill out-lived the family, and in 1829, the Goodrich stock having become depleted, it passed into the hands of William and Thomas Tryon. These men were the Connecticut lumbermen of their day, but after some five years they too deserted the mill, and let it fall into a state of desuetude. Then came the great Morus-Multicaulus craze. Thousands of men became inbued with the idea that they were to make their fortunes by raising silk worms, and the greatest excitement prevailed. Acre after acre was planted with mulberry trees. Year-old shoots bearing one bud were sold for one dollar apiece, and worms were imported by the thousand. Rev. Israel Williams, Captain William Butler and several others were among the most enthusiastic, and they at once seized upon the Goodrich mill and were to build an extensive addition to it, preparatory to turning it into a silk mill. But the craze fell through before one log of the old mill had been displaced, with nothing but the stone foundation of the extension erected, and at an enormous loss to hundreds of people. Since that time the property has remained in statu quo, cherished by the descendants of the settlers of Rocky Hill as a monument to the noble deeds of their ancestors, the pride of antiquarians and the idol of itinerant sketchers and embryo artists. But the only thing which now remains to identify it with the past is the old wheel, almost rotted away, which lies upon a high embankment, a few hundred feet down the stream, where it was washed by last year's flood.—Norwich (Conn.) Letter.

Washington Society.

Perhaps you think I exaggerate. I don't mean to say every woman makes forty calls a day or every day. But the congressman's wife above quoted said to me: "I often make thirty or thirty-five calls in an afternoon. The greatest number I ever made was thirty-eight. I think I could make more if I had a better driver. I've heard of ladies making forty-five or fifty." Mrs. Fuller, the chief justice's wife, says she has made thirty-one calls between luncheon and dinner, and that she knows of a senator's wife who has made forty-eight in two hours. Mrs. Fuller could not keep up with her obligations, she says, if she didn't have four lively daughters to help her. She has 300 or more callers every Monday. The cabinet ladies have found it simply impossible to return calls, having often as many as 1,500 cards in a day, and last December they concluded to give up returns except their calls of etiquette on the wives of the supreme court justices and senators.—Washington Letter.

British Red Tape.

It is doubtful if anything in the "red tape" line can excel two instances recently brought to public notice in connection with the military service of England. So minute are the reports required that Sir Evelyn Wood, commander at Aldershot, recently had occasion to record the momentous fact, with all the paraphernalia of imposing official document seals and the like, the thrilling fact that a private soldier had fallen over a stone and skinned his nose. Another instance of puerile inefficiency is seen in the case of a soldier who, while in Egypt in 1884, had an overissue of rations amounting to seventy cents. This has been the subject of a vast amount of official correspondence, involving reams of paper and rolls of red tape, and it has finally been settled by the discovery that the soldier held a certificate in full for the provisions in dispute.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Why He Was Excited.

[New York Times.]

Mother (who with her little boy is dining at a friend's)—Johnnie, I am ashamed of you. You never behave so badly at home.

Johnie—I know it, ma. But when I have a chance at a good dinner like this I'm apt to get excited.

REST.

Let us rest ourselves a bit.
Worry?—wave your hand to it—
Kiss your finger tips, and smile
It farewell a little while.

Weary of the weary way
We have come from yesterday,
Let us fret us not, instead,
Of the weary way ahead.

Let us pause and catch our breath
On the hither side of death,
While we see the tender shoots
Of the grasses—not the roots.

While we yet look down—not up—
To seek out the buttercup
And the daisy, where they wave
O'er the green home of the grave.

Let us launch us smoothly on
Listless billows of the lawn,
And drift out across the main
Of our childish dreams again.

Voyage off, beneath the trees,
O'er the field's enchanted seas,
Where the lilies are our sails
And our seagulls, nightingales.

Where no wilder storms shall beat
Than the wind that waves the wheat,
And no tempests burst above
The old laughs we used to love.

Lose all troubles—gain release,
Languor and exceeding peace,
Cruising idly o'er the vast,
Calm mid ocean of the past.

Let us rest ourselves a bit.
Worry?—wave your hand to it—
Kiss your finger tips, and smile
It farewell a little while.

—James Whitcomb Riley

WIRES UP HIS BACK.

How the Man with the Galvanic Battery Lost a Bet of $5.

Street fakirs are usually pretty sharp. Their wits are being constantly rubbed against the rest of the world, and the friction keeps them bright and acute. Despite the fact that they are ever on the lookout for the best of the encounter they are sometimes "done up." The man with the electricity machine was plying his vocation on the street and apparently doing a good business. A crowd stood around him amused at the twistings and contortions of those experimenting with the unseen force, while the manager would sing out in solemn monotone the capacity of his dupes for enduring the fluid. Among the lookers on was a tall, gawky fellow, who had made himself noticed by some sneering remarks as each customer relinquished his hold on the handles and straightened up. "That feller ain't of no account," said he to the proprietor as one chap who had taken a big dose let go. The proprietor was induced to break over his rule of dignity and challenge the odd looking cove to try his nerve. "Humph," the fellow grunted, "you can't make me squirm like you did those other fellers." "Bet you $5 I can," said the man with the machine, "and make you holler 'nough besides." "Guess I'll have to go you jest once for luck," chipped in the stranger, and, going down in his pocket, fished out a fiver. "Well, lay the money right there on the machine so we can both see it now then, open up her valve."

As the stranger said the last words, having laid a $5 note down and seen it covered by the proprietor, he took up the handles and prepared to be shocked. The electrical man opened out on him gently at first as though fearful of doing some damage. Gradually he increased the force and looked to see the quivering and shaking begin, but he saw neither shake nor quiver. More and still more force he put on, but the gawky stranger stood like a rock. The last notch was reached, but it did not feaze him, and the machine man said he was playing some gouge on him, but as he could not see what it was he would have to give up. The stranger laughed, pocketed the money, and walked away. As he went around the corner he laughed again, and said to some of the crowd who had followed him: "This is the fourth machine I've worked today, and I could make a fortune if they would only hold out. See here," he said, and he showed the looker on a wire passing from one hand to the other and over his neck, but so flexible as not to interfere at all with his movements. The wire explained the secret—it had proved a most successful destroyer of the current.—Chicago Herald.

She Was Satisfied.

In front of a shop on Twenty-third street there is set a showcase filled with photographs of famous people, and it is always surrounded by a curious group of women eagerly scrutinizing the faces of the actors and actresses that they see so often on the stage and read so much about in the newspapers. As I passed along I glanced at the collection of pictures, and found the most conspicuous one to be of that placid delineator of Shakespeare, Mrs. Langtry. As I was moving away a victoria drawn by a team of bay horess drew up at the curb. A handsomely dressed woman raised herself from the seat and strained her fine gray eyes in an endeavor to see over the crowd to the photographs in the showcase. She was evidently anxious to discover if some special picture was being displayed there. She satisfied herself in regard to this in a moment, and smiled to herself as she sank back into her robes, and ordered the man on the box to move ahead. It is a fact that among the many who were raving over the loveliness of the woman in the photograph, and afterward glanced carelessly at the occupant of the victoria, not one recognized that Mrs. Langtry had driven up to see if her own picture was there on exhibition.—New York Sun.

A Real Mouse Story.

Here is a truly mouse story, sent in by a friend, which has a moral for mothers:

"I went to my chamber one evening lately and turned up the light, which was burning dimly, and I thought I saw something dark under little Daisy's chin. And on going nearer a little mouse sprang from there—and away—like a flash. He was certainly taking a warm, cozy nap under her pink little chin. She had been eating oyster crackers in bed (the naughty girl), which accounted for the attraction under her chin."—Boston Transcript.

THE COMING HORSE.

Two Styles of Animals for Which There Is a Growing Demand.

Is it no loss to a country like ours, no loss to our business men, no loss to our civilization considered as a whole, then, when it is impossible for them to buy, even at any price, the one horse they need—the docile, handsome, strong-going roadster? And what can be more foolish on the part of the breeder of New England to continue to breed the "trotter" that few want and that seldom comes to hand, when he can, with much greater chance of success, breed the horse so many are crying for, all are ready to pay well for, and no one is able to supply?

There are two styles of horses for which there is a genuine and earnest demand in New England and the country to-day, and for this demand there is no supply. The first is the roadster, and the second is the coupe coach-horse. The former must be of good size, handsome to the eye, docile and able to pull two persons from ten to twelve miles an hour and burst out when called upon to a three-minute gait. The latter must be of large size, of fine form, of good solid color, gentle in stall and harness, of high, showy action and able to carry a coupe or carryall eight miles an hour. Such horses will sell, and sell at good prices, and whoever breeds them will find himself breeding to a profit and a good round one at that.

There is in France a race of horses which, crossed on our native stock, might and probably would give us the people's horse, or the horse of the future. His appearance is noble, his form handsome, his temper gentle, his spirit high, and his blood, through many clearly defined and well-known channels flows clean and straight from the desert.

Centuries of governmental supervision and controling authority have placed his pedigree beyond dispute and made him the embodiment of prepotent forces to a degree unmatched in the world, beyond the limits of Arabia. If stallions from this famous stock could be, by private enterprise or concerted action on the part of our breeders, imported to New England, the style of horse for which there is such a demand and of which there is no supply, might speedily become attainable. In a few years the finest carriage horse in the world and a noble class of roadsters would be seen in our city and on our suburban roadways, and the breeders of the country would have what they need—a horse that would sell, and sell for a good price and sell as soon as he was educated to go safely to harness. That is the kind of a horse gentlemen want and are ready to pay for.—W. H. H. Murray.

NATURAL TEACHING.

How to Make the Acquiring of Knowledge a Pleasure to Children.

Mental dormancy, we have been told time and again by the old schoolmaster, who has, moreover, not passed through the mill of experience with his eyes shut, can be quickened into newness of life when necessity presses upon it to act. But when the pressure of necessity is continued too long, the result is nearly always the same on the active as on the inactive mind. Nothing is so easily stultified as stupidity, and the process which renders the stupid child more stupid, not unfrequently makes even the clever child lose heart. In dealing with the willing and the unwilling mind the process is the same, the supplying of the food of knowledge that nourishes and strengthens and encourages to self-effort, not the supplying of the medicine of discipline which, though it purifies for the moment, eventually enervates, and stupifies the natural gifts in the child. Thanks to Nature there are few, if any, children without "a turn," as it is called, for something good and useful, and it is in this "turn" there lies the hope of mental development. It is this gift which the teacher must first discover before either medicine or food can, with good effect, be administered. By building upon this nucleus of native intelligence or inclination, the bitter-sweet of school-work soon strengthens the soul to recognize the pleasure of doing one's duty; and when the most indifferent pupil—indifferent, perhaps, not so much from laziness as natural longing for muscular freedom—begins to feel this pleasure, the school life becomes all sunshine, the acquiring of knowledge becomes as sweet to the mental desires of the child as is the sirup of the maple to the taste. The natural developments in education are gradual, not violent. The true methods of imparting instruction are born of Nature itself; and under them the knowledge that is acquired is the knowledge that assimilates as a palatable food that nourishes, not as a bitter medicine that nauseates even when it rectifies. By the natural process of getting understanding, the memory is not excoriated with a knowledge that is beyond the comprehension of the intellect. Mind growth is as slow and gradual as body growth, and can be checked only by too much food or too much medicine. The true education has only to guard against a surfeit of the one; since Nature itself has provided the means of escaping the other.—Phrenological Journal.

—A Connecticut man recently paid $100 for calling a man a liar through a telephone. The doctor's bills wouldn't have footed up any more than that if he had delivered himself of the declaration at closer range.

VESPERS AT TEHERAN.

The Persian Ceremony of Horn-Blowing at the Sunset Hour.

One of the most impressive things in the daily life of Teheran is the ceremony of horn-blowing at sunset. It is a very ancient custom and evidently a relic of the barbaric splendor of ancient Iran, when Persia was among the foremost nations of the earth and her mailed warriors, swarming like locusts, were wont to dominate the East. Every evening an hour before sunset a company of musicians repair to the bala-khama (balcony; our word is taken from the Persian) over the gates to the front and rear of the royal palace, and proceed to usher in the close of another day with discordant blasts from ancient Persian trumpets and noisy belaboring of kettle and snare drums. These musicians are arrayed in fantastic scarlet costumes not unlike the dress of a fifteenth century jester, and every evening at sundown they repair to these bala-khamas and for the space of an hour dispense music of the most unearthly character and volume. The trumpets are sounding tubes of brass, five or six feet long, and from long practice and force of lungs the tooters fill the whole city with a fierce, brassy blare that sounds barbaric in the extreme. They make no attempt at time or harmony, but each trumpeter endeavors to out-do his fellows in volume of noise. As sunset approaches a company of more modern trumpeters appear in the artillery square or top-maidan, the same place where the young fanatic tried to carve me with his sword in Tazzia week, and likewise proceed to toot. For several minutes there is a fierce rivalry of very brassy melody between the ancient and modern trumpeters; but as the sun sinks out of sight behind the western mountains the whole volume and blare expires in a discordant blast, the like of which is to be heard nowhere else on earth.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

COACHES FOR CORPSES.

Gorgeous Cars Designed to Transport the Dead in Buenos Ayres.

The Brill Car Works, of Philadelphia, have recently finished three steel cars designed to transport the dead in Buenos Ayres. The cars are unique in construction, and are the first of the kind made in this country. They are first, second and third class, the first being designed to carry the body of a wealthy individual, the last the corpse of a pauper. The first-class car is very handsome. The body is a rich black toned with purple, with passion flowers painted on the sides. The windows are of French plate glass. The seats, folding up against the sides, are upholstered in black plush, and the window curtains are black cloth trimmed with gold bullion.

In the forward end of the car is an altar, with silver cross and candelabra, while on either side the altar are cathedral purple-stained glass windows. The interior of the car is finished in white and gold. The metal work is nickel-plated and handsome in design. On the top nine large sable plumes are placed. The other cars are much simpler and plainer in design, and the third-class car has merely a row of shelves for the coffins. These cars are intended to run on the street-car tracks in Buenos Ayres, and will be switched off on a side track nearest the house of the dead person. The body is carried on a bier to the car, placed inside, the mourners seat themselves around, horses are attached and the car proceeds on its way to the cemetery.

This custom is adopted in the City of Mexico and in some cities of Central America. The only parallel among northern nations is the dead train which leaves the Gard du Nord in Paris at five o'clock every morning, carrying the bodies of paupers and unrecognized persons of the morgue.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Big Prices for Postage Stamps.

The highest price that was ever paid for old and rare stamps was paid recently to a resident of Denver by the Scott Stamp and Coin company of New York. The stamps were the first issue of the two cent, five cent and thirteen cent numerals of the Hawaiian or Sandwich Islands. They were known as the missionary stamps and were issued about 1839. There are only two other specimens known to be extant and these were found on some old letters and saved as curiosities by the finder till the New York dealers, hearing of the find, offered first $50 for the three, but gradually raised the price, finally offering $600 for the three, taking them at that price. The stamps were at once sold by them to a wealthy collector for $850.—Denver Republican.

LITTLE'S

CHEMICAL FLUID

NON-POISONOUS

SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied: a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,

(Poisonous.)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2-pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO.

SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.

Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY MAY 18, ... 1889

It will be better for everybody concerned to know the facts in every important matter. During the past year the gross amount of mortgages recorded in Inyo county has increased fifty per cent. There has been no corresponding increase in business or population. During the year the value of farm products sold and of ore shipped from the county differed very little, if any. from the value of the year before. The greater part of the improvements made in the county during the year were paid for by parties who brought the money into the country. Much of the money borrowed was used by the borrowers to pay taxes and grocery and other bills for supplies; and this part of the borrowed money represents the amount that the farmers went behind. If the money borrowed had been used for farm improvements that would in future increase the income of farmers there would be nothing to be uneasy about in the increase of mortgages; but such is not the fact. Only a comparatively small part of the money borrowed during the year has been spent for improvements. The mortgaged property is as good security for the money as exists anywhere, and lenders feel not the slightest uneasiness about their investments. With the borrowers it is very different; they are not able to pay interest and are sinking deeper in debt, many of them with no hope of ever redeeming their property. Instances there are where men having as good farms as there are in Owens Valley have apparently given up in despair and are not making an attempt to keep interest paid. The interest on these mortgages ranges all the way from twelve to eighteen per cent. per annum. Farmers cannot pay such rates of interest as the business will not stand it. Sober, industrious men who do not spend one dollar a year in dissipation of any kind have worked good farms for years, paid interest as long as they were able, and now utter ruin stares them in the face. As shrewd men as in the county say the day is not far off when mortgages will be foreclosed, property sold and pass into the hands of other parties. Very recently bonds of New York to the amount of over seventy millions were sold, and these bonds bear but two and a half per cent. per annum. If our farmers could borrow money at three times that rate of interest they could live and in the end pay their debts, but at present rates they cannot. There are other facts in this connection that deserve study. Every year many thousands of dollars are sent out of the county for articles that could be produced at home. We can grow corn in the valley, yet we eat hams and bacon from Chicago. We produce the finest fruits and vegetables and every merchant in the county has shelves loaded with canned fruits and vegetables brought at great expense from other parts of the State. It is a very strange condition of affairs that our farmers should be complaining of want of market and yet our local market be supplied with imported farm products. The strangest thing of all is that there is no other part of the State where farm products of all kinds, with the single exception of hay, command so high a price as here. Our present financial embarrassment would appear to be not altogether caused by our isolation and distance from other market, but to be in part at least, due to faults in our business methods. We have no hesitation in saying that any industrious farmer starting clear of debt on one hundred and sixty acres of land in Owens Valley can make as much money as can be made on farm property of equal value in any other part of California. The fact that good land can be bought here at a fraction of what land of like quality would cost in other parts of the State is certain to bring such people here.

BUDDING GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING

Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.

CHAS. F. CUSACK,
j-12-tf Independence, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, j12-tf ANGELO ESCH, Lone Pine.

OFFICIAL.

Treasurer's Report.

Office of County Treasurer.
To the Hon. Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, California:

Gentlemen—I herewith hand you my report of County Financial Affairs for the Quarter commencing Feb. 1st, 1888 and ending with Apr. 28th, 1889.

	Cash Balance last report	$45,162 12
1889	Receipts—
	Office fees 467 77
	J R Eldred, Tax Col.. 2370 69
	State lands 9 3 00
	State Controller, coun. 454 51
	State school money .. 4656 60
	Swp & overflwd land .. 17 92
	School Dist Bldng Fd 73 10
	P A Chalfant, Assessr 656 51
	Total receipts	$54 831 22

Disbursements—

Bond Fund, paid	1503 75
School Fund Warrants	3624 00
Salary Fund Warrants	3346 74
Rebate	3 17
Gen Exp Fund Warrants	191 75
Road Districts	549 22
Hospital Fund, war. paid	344 25
Coupons	140 00
Sundry Fund Warrants	514 78
Semi-annual State settlement	9970 00
Register State Lands	36 00
Bishop School Building Fund	612 61
" " Bonds canceled	6000 00
Irving " Building Fund	6 00
Independence " "	565 00
Warm Spring Library "	26 20
Balance cash on hand ..	26 745 46
	$54,831 22

Trial Balance for Quarter ending Apr 30, 1889

To the State General Fund	$1 490 50
Salary "	4 240 71
General Expense "	2 978 41
Hospital "	715 33
Bond "	2 806 65
County Road, "	98 09
Floating Debt "	112 29
General Road "	816 58
To the various Road District Funds:
No 1	$ 35 01
No 2	197 30
No 3	72 97
No 4	131 45
No 5	264 01
No 6	15 76
To the General School Fund		1 36
To the various school Dist Funds:
Round Valley	$ 0 88
Station	113 32
Big Pine	215 14
Milton	189 69
Independence	225 45
Fish Springs	88 16
Union	267 77
Lone Pine	511 43
Irving	147 65
Bishop Creek	417 48
Warm Springs	85 78
To the various School Dist. Library Funds:
Milton	$56 76
Round Valley	38 65
Irving	42 56
Station	34 80
Warm Springs	37 51
Big Pine	92 56
Independence	80 12
Union		75
Lone Pine	68 56
Unapportioned Property Tax 1887 Fund		349 00
Independence S D B Fund		414 04
Warm Spring " "		441 78
Darwin " "		222 17
Bishop Creek " "		324 75
Big Pine " "		202 85
Irving " "		147 02
Union " "		2506 52
Darwin Library "		48 14
Fish Springs Library "		21 82
To the Bridge Fund		1651 68
Swamp Land "		1195 38
Institute "		31 00
Estate of Jno. Chastine		1 199 25
Coroner's "		54 00
Estate of J B Frebasco		267 48
Revolving Fund		100 00
Rebate Fund		33 22
Balance cash on hand		$26,745 46
	$26,379 4.	$26,.. 9 46

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of May, 1889.

P. H. MACK,
County Auditor.

Examined, accepted and approved by the Board of Supervisors this 10th day of May, 1889.

E. ROBINSON,
Chairman.

Auditor's Report.

Quarterly report of the County Auditor of Inyo county, Cal., for the Quarter ending Apr. 30th, 1889.

Apr. 30. Exhibit showing the amount of warrants drawn and registered and upon what funds since Jan. 31, 1889, date of last report. Inyo county, (sum total of warrants) drawn		$9 457 20
General Exp Fund	1 294 56
School Fund	3,606 02
Salary Fund	3 343 74
Hospital Fund	344 25
Irving S. D. B. Fund	6 00
Rebate P. P. Tax 1886 ..	9 41
Rd. Dist. No. 1 Fund	8. 75
" " " 3 "	121 09
" " " 4 "	59 10
" " " 5 Fund	126 63
" " " 6 "	158 75
Unapportioned	4 00
	$9 457 20	$9 457 20
Apr. 30. Exhibit showing the amount of indebtedness of Inyo county, interest not included and how distributed among the various Funds.
Inyo County	$ 0	$74,935 24
Inyo Co. Bonds 1884	71,000 00
Gen Exp Fund	70 23
Salary Fund	1,254 58
School Fund	1,640 06
Rebate	3 22
Irving S. D. B. Fund	6 00
General Fund ..... old	918 25
Expense Fund ..... old	42 30
	$74 935 24	74 935 24
Apr. 30 Exhibit showing present financial condition of Inyo county, interest not included Inyo county (total indebtedness)		$74,935 24
Less cash, redeemed warrants and bonds in the hands of the County Treasurer .. $21 340 39
Rem'n'g Indebtedness 53 594 85
	$74 935 24	$74 935 24

Respectfully submitted to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County.

P H MACK,
County Auditor.

Examined, accepted and approved this 10th day of May, 1889, by the board of Supervisors.

E ROBINSON,
Chairman.

Great Reduction

—IN PRICES OF—

PIANOS & ORGANS

If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to

Charles E. Day,

Los Angeles, Cal.

Our New Autograph ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of Dr. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured And Obtain the ALBUM FREE! Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.—FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,

Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,

PROVISIONS

Tobacco, Cigars,

WINES AND LIQUORS

FLOUR & GRAIN

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.

Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n47tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths

AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS

SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.

And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing

When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,

—And a large—

SWIMMING BATH

Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,

—AND—

Board by the Day, Week, or the Month

MARTIN BRAZANOVICH Pr

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 391, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RUHE, N. G.

D. CROUGH, R. S.

$95 Sewing-Machine FREE To at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who may call at your home, and after 2 months (if we shall become your own property). This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out, before patents run out it sold for $95, with the attachments, and now sells for $15.50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City.
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
which sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Plans, Specifications

And Estimates of all kinds of buildings

Furnished.

All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.

JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo Freighting Company.

REGULAR LINE

Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.

Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.

A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.

In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & Co., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.

COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address

MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors.
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N.Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.

WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,

District Attorney,

INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,

Sheriff and Tax Collector,

INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,

COUNTY CLERK,

—AND—

Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,

INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,

C. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.

Physician & Surgeon

LONE PINE, CAL.

OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING

All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 12th
"	February 9th
"	March 16th
"	April 13th
"	May 11th
"	June 8th
"	July 12th
"	August 10th
"	September 7th
"	October 5th
"	November 2nd
"	December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the licence required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo County, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Independence Hotel.

Independence - - - Cal

H. LEVY, Proprietor.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL

DINING ROOM,

APARTMENTS,

—AND—

—THE BAR—

Will be found acceptable to all patrons.

Free Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,

Physician & Surgeon,

(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.

NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.

Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,

County Treasurer,

INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,

—DEALER IN—

Owens Valley Lands

39 SUTTER STREET,

SAN FRANCISCO.

FRED BURCKHARDT

Watchmaker & Jeweler,

LONE PINE, CAL.

Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and based.

All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURCKHARDT

RENO MARBLE WORKS.

W. E. LINDSEY,

—Dealer in—

Gravestones Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.

—Agent for—

PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.

Virginia Street, Below Second,

Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S

CHEMICAL FLUID

NON-POISONOUS

SHEEP DIP.

One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip.

(POISONOUS)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO

Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,

No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to

JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.

IMPORTERS AND

WHOLESALE GROCERS,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK

Livery, Feed & Sale Stable.

ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.

Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1888.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.

BIG PINE - - CAL.

New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in fact, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

CROCKER BROS., Props.
sep1-tf

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

C. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK ..... PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing ..... $2 50 for Cash.

For particulars, call and see

W. F. MATLACK.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - - Cal.

New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests

O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Deep SEA WONDERS exist to thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallet and Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day. All succeed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Tuesday, April 16th, 1888.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	9:15 a. m	5.35 p. m.
Layton	10 45 a. m.	4 35 p. m.
Wabuska	12 45 a m	2 25 p. m.
Hawthorne	4 30 p m.	10 40 a. m.
Luning	5:50 p. m.	9 20 a. m.
Sodа Springs	7:0 p m.	8:10 a. m
Belleville	8 10 p. m.	7 05 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 8.50 p. m	Lv. 6:30 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—	No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	7 30 a. m	5:25 p. m.
Benton	11 00 a m	1:45 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1:100 m.	11:30 a. m.
Alvord	2.00 p. m	10 35 a. m.
Independence	3 30 p. m.	9:05 a. m.
Lone Pine	4-15 p. m.	8:15 a. m.
Keeler	Ar 5:05 p. m.	Lv. 7:30 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coach for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK BREWERY,

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO., Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points on the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,

Attorney-at-Law.

Independence, Cal.

Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.

FORBES & TOBEY,

HAWTHORNE, NEV.,

—DEALERS IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS.

DOORS,

SHINGLES,

SASH AND BLINDS,

LATH,

RUSTIC

MOULDINGS,

DRESSED LUMBER.

Matched and Dressed Flooring.

sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.

COUNTY SURVEYOR

—AND—

U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor

for California and Nevada.

—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—

Obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.

All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us, and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, MAY 18 1889

BORN.

JULLIEN—At Lone Pine, May 13, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. M. Jullen, a son.

Mr. J. R. Moffit was in town last Tuesday.

John Dodge, of Lone Pine, was in town on Thursday.

Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz left town last Tuesday on a vist to San Francisco.

Mr. J. G. Birchim, of Round Valley, came down to Independence on Thursday.

Sheriff Eldred is making a close collection of the sheep license. He has already gathered in quite a snug sum.

The Grand Jury at Virginia City refused to indite David Crosby for the murder of George Miller and shooting Michael Eagan.

Mrs. J. J. Stewart, of Lone Pine, arrived at home last Wednesday after an absence of several months. She traveled a good deal and visited many friends.

County Clerk W. J. Henley, of Esmeralda county, Nevada, has been removed for evil doing in office. S. D. Rosenthal has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

A man at Los Angeles who has some money and pluck wants to go into the business of raisin making in Owens Valley. He says that is the best paying product that can be grown on land.

Martin Mitchell has filed a lien on the Ibex mine and mill for $2,412.50, balance due him as watchman. The mill and mine are in Saratoga Mining District, in the southeastern part of the county.

Mr. J. R. Moffatt has been appointed a Deputy Sheriff to collect sheep license tax. This is a good appointment, as Mr. Moffat is a live man and is so located that bands of sheep cannot pass his place unseen.

Many deaths are reported in the east by buildings blown down in the recent storms, by lightning and by floods. Here in California it is difficult for us to realize that such storms have recently been raging in other parts of the country.

At the meeting of stockholders of the Carson & Colorado railroad held at Hawthorne last week nothing more was done than the usual business of the annual meeting. There will be no change in the present officers and management of the road.

Trains going south on the C. & C. railroad now arrive one hour later than formerly. The train gets to Independence station at 4:10 p. m. There is no change in the time of trains going north; the up train arrives at Independence Station at 8:30 a. m.

Mr. L. McLean, of San Mateo county, arrived at Citrus on Friday of last week. He left for home again on Tuesday. Mr. McLean is one of the original owners in the Eastside canal; this is the first time he saw the land to be irrigated and he said he was very well satisfied with his investment.

The blustering winds that have prevailed here during the past two weeks are nothing compared to the terrible storms that prevailed during the same time over the whole United States from the Pacific to the Atlantic. We have had some unpleasant weather but fruit and other crops have sustained no damage.

Perry McMurry and Al Smith passed throught town on Thursday with a big team for Mojave. Most of the return load will be goods for Thomas & Hill and A. K. Engley, merchants of Big Pine. This is one of the finest teams on the road and Al and Perry are rustlers, they will make good trips.

The fair of the 11th District is to be held at Quincy, Plumas county. Susanville offered four thousand dollars and a race track and pavilion; Quincy offered four thousand five hundred dollars and like privileges and got the fair. The District gets an appropriation from the State of five thousand dollars for two years. This year ten thousand dollars will be offered in racing purses and five thousand dollars in premiums for exhibing. The fair of the 6th District will be held at Downey, twelve miles from Los Angeles.

While at Los Angeles recently Mr. A. C. Harvey was very strongly impressed with the importance of having a display of Inyo products there. He found a keen interest among business men in everything pertaining to the county. Eager inquiries were made about mines and mining prospects. Architects and builders questioned him about marble and other building stone. Some parties expressed a deep interest in artesian wells and expressed a willingness to invest money in machinery. He went to the markets, and stores of produce dealers, and now knows that if railroad connection existed Owens Valley could send vast quantities of produce of all kinds to the city.

Looks Like a Certainty

A railroad from Utah to Los Angeles is now a certainty. A special telegram to the INDEPENDENT from Carson last Monday stated that Bishop Sharp, of Salt Lake, had that day been in the city and formed an extension of the Utah Central Railroad Company, of which he is President. He had deposited fifty thousand dollars in the State Department at Carson as the law requires, being ten per cent. on the first section of the road to be built in Nevada. The section will be extended to Pioche. From Pioche the road will be extended to Barstow, on the Atlantic & Pacific without loss of time. This will give access to Los Angeles by two routes; one over the Santa Fé road by way of the Cajon Pass; the other by Mojave and the Southern Pacific. The power behind Mr. Sharp, and the real parties in interest are the Union Pacific Company. The new road will open up a vast region rich in minerals of various kinds, as well as giving a shorter and better route from Los Angeles to the East. The road will be of vast importance to Los Angeles. Except in a general way this road will be of no especial benefit to Owens Valley. It will go through the eastern part of Inyo county and will doubtless open up a good deal of mining country there; but it will still leave us as far from a southern outlet as at present. The building of all new roads hastens the building of more by developing new resources and increasing population and wealth; and in the end the Utah road will be a help to us. It will also increase taxable property and add to the revenue of the county, and this will be a clear gain.

UNJUST.

The following article appeared in the Carson Tribune of recent date.

"It is needless to say that for all these years the Tribune has advocated the interests of the State of Nevada, Carson City and the counties adjacent thereto, and when it is constantly reminded by the press of Inyo county that the true interest of the inhabitants of that section of California are to be served by making war on and destroying a number of business projects in that county built up and paid for by the citizens of Carson City, Virginia City and Reno, it feels that the time has come to protest against such short-sighted, stupid and outrageous policy. We are informed that public meetings have been held and the doctrine of non-intercourse promulgated and acted upon as against Nevada, its products and enterprises, the latter consisting of the Carson & Colorado Railroad, the Hillside Water Company ditch, the Inyo Canal Company ditch, the marble quarry works and the soda works at Owens Lake, together with a large quantity of land on the line of those ditches, taken up and paid for by citizens of Nevada. It is said that a boycott has been declared by the citizens of the west side against the railroad company and the ditch companies, the proposition being that no products of Nevada can be tolerated in Inyo county, and the railroad company must extend its road to Mojave in order that the Inyo crops of hay, grain, etc., may be sold in the southern country at high figures, which according to ruling rates at Los Angeles and surrounding country is a fallacy.

"Of course the tendency of this action on the part of the west side people of Inyo county is to induce the several corporations and individuals interested on the east side as above mentioned to combine against the enemy new trying so hard to throttle them, refuse to patronize or do any business with them, draw their supplies from Nevada, and in fact to let the west side people severely alone.

"This is right and proper under the circumstances and it is now understood that a large merchandising institution, with ample capital, will be established at several of the railroad stations on the east side of the valley, in order that the farmers along the line can buy goods at a low figure and dispose of their grain, etc., at fair rates, and be subjected to the cut both ways that is now accorded to them by the bloated and arrogant merchant monopolists of Inyo county."

The editor of the Tribune never was in Owens Valley; he does not understand the affairs of the county, and it is not surprising that he should make a "stupid and outrageous mistake" when he undertakes to discuss matters he knows nothing about. The people of Owens Valley have not boycotted anything or anybody; they find money getting scarcer every day and are trying, as other people would try under like circumstances, to better their condition. Near the town of Bishop land worth two hundred thousand dollars depends upon the water of certain streams to make it valuable. The Hillside Company attempted to take this water for their use. The older settlers become alarmed and took steps to protect their interests until the Courts should determine the rights of all concerned. Surely there is nothing in this that any reasonable person could object to. The people of Inyo county will give cordial welcome to all law abiding people who come here to engage in any legitimate business.

How a Consumer Sees It

All sides shall have an equal chance to state their case. Here is how the matter is seen by the consumer, a man who spends a good deal of money for farm products and is likely to spend very much more in the near future.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:—"Is it true?" is a question asked over an editorial in last week's issue of the INDEPENDENT. I will only notice the proposition (which will be answer to all), "There is no inducement for farmers to increase the area of cultivated lands, because greater production would only be increasing the quantity of unsalable products." It is true that times are dull, and that farmers have no money, but who is responsible for this condition of things if not the farmers themselves? In business, business men expect to carry more or less dead capital. They do not expect to sell to-morrow what they buy to-day. They lay in their stock for the season; if they sell it during the season they are satisfied with having done well. How is it with the farmers of Owens Valley? They complain of no market and no money and yet not one in ten have any surplus, and not one in twenty have to-day anything to sell to supply the home demand. They are afraid lest they should have two or three sacks of onions, potatoes, cabbage, beans, etc., more than they can sell when harvested, and in the latter part of the season everything has gone up so, from its scarcity, that those who would buy in the valley are compelled to go outside to get their supplies, pay one and a half cents per pound freight over and above the price of the article where it is raised; certainly that ought to be inducement enough for the farmers to raise more (not in price) produce, even if they should have a sack or two left over. They must not expect consumers to pay them a price equal to the cost of production, railroad freight two hundred and fifty miles, and a profit of the Dutchman's one per cent on the whole. The solution of the whole matter is: Raise enough for the home demand at a reasonable price. When that is done any surplus of anything you have raised can be used in fattening stock, producing better meat and getting better prices for it, for it will be worth more. But you will never have market or money so long as you sit with hands folded in mourning over "no market" when you have nothing to sell for which you are willing to take a reasonable price and thus keep the money here instead of going two hundred and fifty miles to purchase, pay for transportation, and lay the article here for less than you will sell for, even when you have it to sell.

CONSUMER.

Legal Quibbling

Absurd and ridiculous as much legal quibbling is perhaps the very worst ever heard of was offered in the Supreme Court by counsel for W. T. C. Elliott, on the application for a trial. One of the reasons urged why a new trial should be granted was that the complaint or information stated that upon a certain date Elliott stabbed and cut White, from which cutting and stabbing White died; but that such a statement did not show that White died from the cutting by Elliott. Counsel urged this point in all seriousness. In other words, Elliott stabbed him and he died forthwith, but in the eye of the law here is nothing to the fact to show that the defendant killed White at all. It is such arrant nonsense as this that brings contempt upon Courts and leads to distrust of legal processes, and often to mob violence. The brief also stated that everybody in Inyo county, including the officers, were either prejudiced against Elliott, or afraid to say a word in his behalf. This is not true. If Sheriff Gregg had been afraid to say a word in behalf of Elliott at the time of making the arrest there would have been no trial for the murder of White; and the subsequent proceedings would have had no further interest for Elliott. The Supreme Court gave counsel time to amend the brief.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.

FRIDAY, May 10th.

Quarterly reports of Auditor and Treasurer examined, accepted and approved.

A petition from the State Board of Trade for $1,000 for advertising was refused.

Bond of Mrs. Lewis approved.

The County Assessor was allowed a deputy for two and a half months at a salary of $100 per month.

Bill of John Barlow rejected.

Report of Overseer of Road Dist. No. 4 accepted.

S. J. McMurry allowed $85 for road work

A. W. Eibeshutz was authorized to procure rubber matting for Court House stairs and landings.

The Clerk was instructed to advertise for sealed bids for building a bridge across Owens River near Big Pine.

Ordered that Bishop School District bonds be issued to the amount of $7,000 bearing 8 per cent. interest.

The following claims were allowed:

J. D. Harger, per diem & mileage		$44	10
S. G. Sueden	" "	43	80
E. Robinson,	" "	30	30
J. J. Stewart,	" "	34	80

Whereupon the Board adjourned.

The Fort Pic Nic.

Old and young had a day full of pleasure at Camp Independence last Saturday. That occasion proved that a pic-nic can be made highly enjoyable instead of an intolerable bore, as most of them are. Miss Kohler is entitled to warm praise for the training of her pupils, that made so much of the pleasure of the pic-nic. The generosity that supplied, free of cost, to every comer, an abundance of strawberries and cream, cake, ice-cream and other delicacies deserves something more than mere formal thanks. The people of Camp Independence will be honored for their liberal support to the children's party. Not the least deserving of public thanks are Mr. Mairs and Mr. Levy. All day long their horses and carriages were given free of cost and kept busy conveying everybody who wanted to go from town to the pic-nic. Such kindness as this does not always receive the thanks deserved. As a rule service done to everybody is acknowledged by nobody.

Miners, Attention

There is now an opening for miners to get their ores worked at home. Low grade ore that will not bear the cost of freight can be worked at home at a profit. Heavy loss has heretofore been caused to our miners for want of machinery to save the sulphurets, a large proportion of which is found in most of our ores. This difficulty is now most thoroughly remedied by the concentrating machine in use at the Maxim Mill. After passing over the concentrator the tailings show entirely clear of sulphurets or metal of any kind. Miners who have ore to work or sell should communicate with the Lessee of the Maxim Mill, at Independence. See his advertisement.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, syrup of figs, under all conditions makes it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting upon the liver, kidneys and bowels.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Ores!

Ores!

Ores!

GOLD

SILVER

LEAD

ORES WORKED

Small lots received and worked as carefully as large lots.

The best machinery for concentrating sulphurets is in use and all the metal of any kind of ore is secured.

Ores that will not bear transportation from Owens Valley can be worked at a good profit at home.

Ores sampled, bought and paid for on delivery.

Address,

Lessee Maxim Mill,

Independence.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN

& CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods,

Groceries,

Clothing,

Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter,

Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.

Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN &

INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.

DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. H. Edwards,

—DEALER IN—

General Merchandise,

LONE PINE,

INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

THOMAS & HILL,

—DEALERS IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Essie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL.) P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o 51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,

Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.

Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.

Dated March 20 h, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,

Administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased.

A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.

Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Notice for publication of time appointed for probate of will.

Notice is hereby given that Monday, the twentieth day of May A. D. 1889, at five o'clock p. m. of said day and the Court Room of said Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo State of California, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Joel H. Smith, deceased and for hearing the application of Horace M. Smith for the issuance to him of letters testamentary thereon. P. H. MACK, Clerk.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Petitioner.

Dated May 1, 1889.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o4

Pioneer

Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.

Apply to

ROBERT O'NEAL

Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we consider no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.

feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 256 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S

Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL.

GENERAL MERCHAND

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing

Dry Goods, Ladies'

Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,

PEANUTS,

WALNUTS,

TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET. 117

SMITH'S STORE IS

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,

NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,

FLOORING,

FENCING,

RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,

sep14tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00

REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00

Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to

HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide—124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Overland, Mo., writes: "I cleared $21 last week with a Washer saved more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less than twice the money in celebration. If you will get up any amusement that will take so much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money in a year and cost as little, I could make at every house. If the people had to take the washers from under their wife and babies to pay for them, I think of the Washer I bought last summer. Yet it is the best machine ever invented by man." $5. We have just as good chances as Hapgood or any other day. $5. If you run short, you can not buy more for $10.

I will ship a sample to that desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent. the best machine in the world for saving labor, clothes and money. Pays capital as well as big money. Write for particulars.

J. WORTH, 1718 Franklin Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

DID IT ELECT HARRISON?

The following appeared in a Minnesota paper: "Members of the Democratic party have been using all subterfuges to account for their overwhelming defeat, and numerous are the causes alleged.

"I was talking with several of the vanquished on Fourth Street the other day, opposite a bill board, and one of the party exclaimed: "If it had not been for the closeness of the National Committee in the expenditure of money, we would have elected our man. The Republicans advertised their man like a circus." Several of the party remarked that no advertising was done except small announcements in the papers, and a few "hangers" on the dead walls.

"Hangers?" said our informant. "What do you call that but a circus poster?" Pointing to a twelve-sheet medicine poster on the bill board, bearing the cuts of Gen. Harrison and his grandfather.

"If the Democrats had advertised like that, Cleveland would have been re-elected."

The poster referred to was one of the familiar black and white Log Cabin Sarsaparilla posters sent out by an enterprising firm engaged in the manufacture of old log-cabin home-cures, under the name of Warner's Log Cabin Remedies, and among other equally valuable articles includes the famous Log Cabin Sarsaparilla, which is everywhere recognized as the best of all spring medicines and stands without a rival for the cure of all disorders which are the results of impure blood.

The spring time of the year is the season when the system needs renovation; the long winter has caused the blood to become filled with impurities.

There exists no better means to aid and strengthen the system at such an urgent period than the use of Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla, which speedily restores the blood to a pure and healthy state, which insures health and happiness.

The reputation of the firm putting out the medicine is above reproach, and is the same firm which manufactures Warner's Safe Cure the standard remedy for the cure of all those diseases peculiar to the kidneys as well as those which are the results of disease in those organs, and which has met with such phenomenal success for the past ten years.

We understand that the posters referred to made their appearance in many parts of the country sometime prior to the Chicago Convention which nominated Gen. Harrison as a candidate for the Presidency—hence the use made of the portraits of the Harrisons, father and grandson—was either the result of remarkable political foresight or in accordance with the historical association of the old Log Cabin with the name of Harrison.

DEATH BY ELECTRICITY.

Why It Is to Be Preferred to Executions by Hanging.

Now that New York officials may be called upon to execute the law requiring that condemned criminals shall be put to death by electricity a storm of opposition threatens, and all sorts of objections are urged, some of them impeaching the constitutionality of the statute. Complaint is made that the sheriff can not carry out the law, because he is not an expert electrician, and that those who are engaged in electrical pursuits will not make the proper machinery for the occasion; that the plans suggested are faulty, inasmuch as they contemplate causing death by applying the electrical current to the brain instead of the heart, and that the tortures of the condemned by the new method will be so horrible that, by comparison, slow strangulation by a rope is ecstacy.

Those who projected this reform probably anticipated just such opposition. Even in an enlightened and progressive country like our own, it is impossible to rid the public of a barbarous and unsightly custom, about which clings the cobwebs of ages, without incurring prejudice, ignorance and a little of the old spirit which lingers in every community long after it has ceased to be a live and potential factor. There may be difficulties to overcome in enforcing the law. In dealing with a matter like electricity, about which there is much to learn, the law-makers may not have gone into details as elaborately as would have been prudent, but that there should be such unconquerable obstacles as is pretended seems preposterous.

The sheriff need not be an expert in the first place. Hangmen in America are never experts, and yet they perform their duties as acceptably as their brethren across the water. A button will serve the purpose of a spring, and can be manipulated as easily. The numerous electrical companies in New York will provide all the paraphernalia if offered sufficient inducements. The felon is not executed for his own pleasure or convenience, but to deter others from committing crime, and the object of the law will be accomplished all the same, whether the current passes through his brain or his heart.

As to the tortures, they are purely illusory. No one who has died by electricity has returned to give an account of his sufferings and certainly during the brief space intervening between contact with the current and dissolution the victim has not been able to give much satisfactory data on the subject. Those who have recovered from an electric shock, like those who have been resuscitated after being in the water or being hanged, say that the process of coming to is infinitely more painful than that of dying.

But every large city in the world has had numerous illustrations of death by electricity. A workman climbs a pole and absently touches a wire. Down he drops as dead as a door-nail, without even the fraction of a moment to think of torture. In the same way a citizen drifts against a wire left carelessly hanging near the sidewalk, and lies on the pavement a mass of inanimate clay. He may or may not have tried to shriek, but if he did it proves nothing except his amazement at the blow which hurled him into eternity. Such momentary pain can scarcely be compared with the writhings of one who is hanged. If the New York officials are cornered they can use the electric light wires. One of the latter can be conducted into the felon's cell, and if they are as efficient in the cases of condemned murderers as when they tackle innocent and unsuspecting victims on the sidewalks the felons will scarcely have time to write out their sensations for the newspapers.—Baltimore American.

ALLEN GRAY

— OR, —

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

"It makes but little difference," he answered, with an oath. Turning upon Allen an eye which in the darkness blazed with the fire of an angry tiger, he said in a tone which trembled in its earnestness: "It would be better if you leave this country and never come back. Young man, you be very foolish, very rash not to have followed the advice of the village, and let the mystery of Turley's Point alone."

He wheeled about, taking the arm of Bertha, and was gone, leaving Allen gazing after them in wonder and amazement.

"Will wonders never cease?" he asked himself. "This strange mystery will drive me to madness, and how am I to solve it?"

He happened to think of the dagger which had doubtless fallen from his hand when Bertha had come so suddenly upon them, and thought he would take it, as it might prove a clew to this strange mystery. He stooped to pick it up, but it was no where to be found, it was gone. Where, now had it managed to slip away? Either the tall stranger or Bertha had taken the knife, and he was satisfied it could not have been the former. With all his soul on fire with jealousy, and torn and racked by a hundred conflicting emotions, he started down the hill toward the village.

"Oh, Bertha, Bertha, gone, left me without a word, after all I have done and suffered," he groaned, as he hastened to the village.

But Allen had schooled himself to bear his sufferings without a word of complaint, and next morning was in his office as usual. During his absence another issue of the paper had been published and circulated. He sat down at his desk and glanced over his mail. There were a few unimportant letters, one or two from old acquaintances, congratulating him on the success of his enterprise.

A smile curled the lip of the editor as he thought how far from success this venture in the newspaper business had come. To all inquiries about his absence he answered that he had been suddenly called away on business. Not a word of his strange adventure did he breathe to any one, and those who saw the young man sitting so calm and business-like at his desk never dreamed that he had come so near losing his life only the night before at the hands of the master of the stone house on the hill.

"Back again, are you?" said Miss Hopkins, with a smile on her shriveled face. "I am so glad you have come, for I really think I have a gem of a poem this time."

"What is the title?" Allen asked.

"Love's Young Dream," the old maid answered.

"Very touching indeed," said the editor, with becoming gravity, partially unconscious of what he was saying.

"Oh, sir, I have shed tears over it," said the ancient maiden, enthusiastically. "It was late in the evening, and tired of the toils of the day I had retired to rest, and as I lay on my bed thinking what I could do to advance the interests of the Western Republic—I am always thinking of you" she parenthetically added, looking very tenderly at him—"I was suddenly seized with a desire to write. I believe—yes, sir, I verily believe that a voice called on me to write that poem. The voice of fame—"

"Please read it, Miss Hopkins." No editor in his sober senses ever asks an author to read his or her productions, so the reader can imagine how desperate was the condition of Allen Gray.

"Now, Mr. Gray," said the old maid, with a feeble attempt at a blush which failed, however, to appear on her powdered cheek, "do not say it is splendid unless you really think so. You are such a person to flatter, especially young girls."

Allen was too deeply, too painfully annoyed by the complications in which he found himself to observe the coquettish manner of the poetess, and with no other object than gratifying an ambitious writer, he abstractly said:

"LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM," SHE ANSWERED.

"You write excellent poetry, Miss Hopkins."

"There, I knew it—"

"But let me hear your poem."

She unrolled her manuscript and proceeded:

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.
BY MISS LEETHY HOPKINS.

"So young, so gallant, brave and fair,
Dark gray eyes and auburn hair,
Sweetest treasure ever known,
Oh, my loved one, wert thou my own!
Would you ask me here to tell
When first I dreamed of love's sweet spell?
Should you ask me how I know
That this heart with love doth flow?
I would answer, I should say
On that happy, golden day,
When these charmed eyes first saw
That one whose will shall be my law.

"Go thou, to the song birds,
Speak to them of love,
Hear it whispered in the winds
Or the cooing of the dove—"

Allen, whose mind had really not been on the poem more than half the time, here asked her to whom she alluded.

"Oh, I won't tell," she answered, and another blush made a desperate effort to struggle through the rouge on her cheek. "Now I don't believe I will read any more to you."

"Leave it with me."

"Oh, not for the world."

"Don't you intend to have it published?" he asked, beginning to wonder why she had taken up so much of his time.

"No, no," she answered, holding the precious manuscript close to her heart. For a moment he gazed at her in astonishment, and then, before he was aware of what he was doing, remarked:

"You are a very remarkable girl."

Evidently putting a wrong construction upon his words and manner, she gasped:

"Oh, don't!"

Although Allen had read the history of that unfortunate gentleman, Mr. Pickwick, yet so much was he absorbed in the mystery of Turley's Point that he had only given a secondary thought to the poem, and still less to the conduct of the authoress, and wholly failed to discover the matrimonial twinkle in her eye, and was not caring to prolong the interview. He said:

"Very well, Miss Hopkins, if you do not wish me to use your poem I will not insist."

"Oh, well, then, you may have it, but I wouldn't give it to another person on earth," said Miss Hopkins, handing him the delicate little roll of manuscript.

"Are you partial to publishers?"

"Oh, hush!" and this time the blush managed to wash its way through. It is difficult to tell how far she would have gone, (for Miss Hopkins was arriving at an age that makes a woman anxious to marry, desperate), had they not been interrupted by a stranger.

It was a man, holding up the front of his flapping broad brim hat with one hand, while in the other held a horse-whip of the black snake kind.

"Whar's the editur?" he roared, in a voice of thunder.

"Oh, dear!" screamed Miss Leethy Hopkins, in a paroxysm of fear, springing up from the chair where she had been sitting and getting ready to faint.

"Whar's the editur?" the stranger again yelled, bringing down one foot with a stamp that made the building ring. "Show me that ar editur, I say—whar's the editur?"

"Oh, don't—don't—please don't," screamed Miss Hopkins, to whom a golden opportunity now seemed to open. She could immortalize herself and gain the love of this publisher at the same time. This was the invincible man with the horsewhip, come to demand satisfaction of the editor.

"I WANT TER SEE THE EDITUR."

Every body has heard of "the man with the horsewhip;" many editors have formed his acquaintance, and it is useless to say that this individual is thought by many to be an indispensable check to editors.

"Git out o' my way, gal—whar's the editur?" roared he of the horsewhip, dancing in his fury.

"Oh, don't, don't, don't!" screamed Miss Hopkins, wringing her hands and falling upon her knees before the enraged countryman. "Oh, spare him; spare him this time; for my sake spare him!"

"I won't do it, I won't. Whar's the editur? I'm er goin' to hosswhoop him, I don't keer of it's at a funeral!"

Allen, who had been standing cool and apparently unconcerned ever since the arrival of this stormy stranger, now spoke up for the first time.

"We will excuse you, Miss Hopkins," he said, as calmly as if some ordinary matter was under discussion. "Leave me with this man; he undoubtedly has some business to transact."

"Ye bet I hev. It's important, too, an' I'm anxious to git at it."

"We will excuse you, Miss Hopkins."

"Oh, I will faint!"

"Get out in the open air and you will feel better."

"But, oh, dear, I am so afraid——"

"No one intends harming you—excuse me, but I must be alone for a short time."

He opened the door as he spoke and Miss Hopkins, sobbing and simpering, left the office.

"Be seated, sir," said Allen to the infuriated farmer, who stood somewhat amazed that the editor did not quake and tremble before him.

"I want to see the editur," he bawled.

"You shall see him, but there is no need for you to be in such an extraordinary hurry. Be seated."

With a growl something very much like an oath, the man threw himself into a chair, and Allen, with amazing coolness, asked:

"Now, sir, what do you want to see the editor for?"

"I want to wear out this hosswhoop on him," roared the enraged husbandman, bringing the whip with a savage whack down upon the desk. "I am mad; I tell ye I am mad, and when I git riled I eat mountains."

"You are mistaken, sir; you are not half so mad as you think," Allen coolly remarked. "Tell me why you are mad?"

"That piece—that piece in yer paper about me—that I misrepresented, slandered and lied on Sam Herrin 'bout the corn knife." For the first time Allen now recognized the enraged man as George Leeper, his former correspondent from Billy's Creek.

"Well, Mr. Leeper," said Allen, folding his arms very quietly, "there was a misunderstanding between us on that matter, you know you told me it was all a harmless joke, while Sam Herrin says it was a malicious slander."

"Sam lied!"

"Well, he is the man you want to see then. I published your representation of the matter; and, at his request, published his, which was only just and right that the public may draw their own conclusions. Now, as to the editor for whom you are looking, you met him on your former visit, and he has not changed so much that you need fail to recognize him. But I really think the proper thing for you and Sam Herrin to do is to settle your disputes with yourselves and not be dragging them into the newspapers."

Having given this wholesome advice, the editor cooly turned to his desk and began writing. For several minutes George Leeper sat glowering about the office like a baffled tiger; then rising, he said:

"I want my paper stopped."

"Is your subscription paid?" Allen asked, taking up a large book and opening it.

"I paid half a dollar on it, an' I swa'r I won't pay a nuther cent. I don't want yer paper any more, nuther.

"It's against all rules to stop a paper until the subscription is paid in full."

Allen went on writing as if the violent dancing and cursing at his back did not disturb him. This subsided in a moment, and he heard the ring of a silver dollar on the desk at which he was writing, the door slammed spitefully, and the man with the horsewhip was gone. A terrible noise without shortly afterward attracted the editor's attention. He looked through the window and saw a man leaping, dancing and yelling on a hill-top about a hundred paces away, swearing he was the best man on dirt. It was the man with the horsewhip from Billy's Creek.

(To be Continued.)

The residence of the Postmaster at Haywards was invaded by a gang of tramps the other day, but he drove them away. The tramps subsequently "stood up" a teamster and relieved him of $2 50 and his watch.

Fred. Campbell committed suicide at Buck springs, near Peavine, Nev., Wednesday. Campbell was a Canadian, 27 years of age, and was formerly a Boston street-car driver. He shot himself through the head as he lay in bed.

A one-legged tramp known as Montana Jack, committed suicide by hanging himself in the Santa Clara jail Thursday morning. He had been in San Quentin Prison and frequently in the San Francisco and San Jose city prisons.

It is unlikely that the Navy Department will proceed to establish a naval station at the harbor of Pongo-Pango, in the Samoan Islands, until the Berlin conference concludes its work.

Gerome on Modern Art.

The famous French artist, Gerome, contributes the following to an article on himself in The Century: "You ask me about my method of teaching. It is very simple, but this simplicity is the result of long experience. The question is to lead young people into a straightforward, true path; to provide them with a compass which will keep them from going astray; to habituate them to love nature (the true), and to regard it with an eye at once intelligent, delicate and firm, being mindful also of the plastic side. Some know how to copy a thing and will reproduce it almost exactly; others put into it poetry, charm, power and make of it a work of art. The first are workmen; the second are artists. An abyss separates the mason from the architect.

"Today, in this epoch of moral and intellectual disorder, there seems to be a sovereign contempt for those who seek to elevate themselves, to move the spectator, to have some imagination; for those who are not content to remain fettered to the earth, dabbling in the mud of realism. It is today the fashion to which all the world sacrifices, because it is only granted to a few to have a well balanced mind, and because it is easier to paint three fried eggs than to execute the ceiling of the Sistine chapel.

"But all this will pass like a shadowy phantom and it need not make us uneasy."

TWO WINNERS.

Lucky Louisiana State Lottery Ticket Holders.

Butchertown, South San Francisco, is likely to become very popular, if its residents continue to be as fortunate as they have been in the past. One of the happiest men in this thriving suburb is Hans M. C. Mangels, who keeps a grocery store on the corner of Railroad Avenue and Manitoba Street. He is still a young healthy, married man, with a growing happy family about him, whose condition his good fortune will improve. He had for some time bought Louisiana State Lottery tickets, and a few days before the March drawing he resolved to try once more, and met with the success he had so often hoped for. He held a coupon of ticket 2887, and so won $15,000. He was paid last Thursday in full.

William Griffin, also a San Franciscan was the other lucky man in last week's drawing. He is a printer by occupation and has for some time past worked on the Guide at 521 Clay Street. "It was with the greatest difficulty," he said, "that I could be made to accept this ticket from a friend of mine at noon on the day of the drawing. I complained to him that the number was too small and didn't look like a lucky one. Appearances are very deceptive, however, as the result proved, for the little number 2887 was the means of enriching me to the extent of $15,000."

Both men are considered in every way deserving of the luck that has fallen to their share through the Louisiana State Lottery, and both are likely to make good use of the money.—San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle, March 17.

UNDESERVEDLY LAUGHED AT.

The unthinking are prone to make game of nervousness. Yet this is a very real and serious affliction, the harassing symptoms of which are rendered all the more poignant by ridicule. The stomach is usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve tonic and tranquillizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion, it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headaches, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these modify and ultimately disappear as the system gains strength from the great tonic. Dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, constipation and kidney complaints are subdued by the Bitters.

"Girls who use powder," says the Boston Courier, "Don't go off any quicker than those who don't."

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Cresent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Doland, D. T., has a lawyer named Kerns. Is he a descendant of John Bunyan?—[St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A WONDERFUL FOOD AND MEDICINE,

Known and used by Physicians all over the world. Scott's Emulsion not only gives flesh and strength by virtue of its own nutritious properties, but creates an appetite for food which builds up the wasted body. "I have been using Scott's Emulsion for several years, and am pleased with its action. My patients say it is pleasant and palatable, and all grow stronger and gain flesh from the use of it. I use it in all cases of Wasting Diseases, and it is specially useful for children when nutrient medication is needed, as in Marasmus."—T. W. Pierce, M. D., Knoxville, Ala.

The German word for hard is Schwer. But it is not hard to swear in English.—[Martyn.

DESIRES TO BEAR TESTIMONY.

Henry Thorne, Traveling Secretary, of the Y. M. C. A., writes from Exeter Hall, Strand, London, February 2nd, 1888:

"I desire to bear my testimony to the value of Allcock's Porous Plasters. I have used them for pains in the back and side arising from rheumatism and other causes, never without deriving benefit from their application. They are easily applied and very comforting. Those engaged as I am in public work, which involves exposure to sudden changes of temperature, will do well to keep a supply of Allcock's Porous Plasters in their portmanteaus."

The latest French remedy for debility of any organ is Dujardin's Life Essence. It is the product of years of experimental study, and is in daily use in the French hospitals, with great success. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

For Coughs, Asthma, and Throat Disorders, use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." 25 cts. a box.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FOR THE BLOOD.

S.S.S. TRADE MARK

Swift's Specific has cured me of a malignant breaking out on my leg, which caused intolerable pain. It was called Eczema by the doctors—four of whom treated me with no relief. I candidly confess that I owe my present good health to S. S. S., which in my estimation is invaluable as a blood remedy. Miss Julia DeWitt,
2227 N. 10th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Our baby when two months old was attacked with Scrofula, which for a long time destroyed her eyesight entirely, and caused us to despair of her life. The doctor failed to relieve her, and we gave Swift's Specific, which soon cured her entirely, and she is now hale and hearty.
E. V. Delk, Will's Point, Texas.

Send for book giving history of Blood Diseases and advice to sufferers, mailed free.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga

S. F. N. U. No. 356. New Series No. 15.

HOW I SAVED MY LIFE.

I was taken sick while at the dinner table with terrible distress in my stomach. Before this I had been hearty and strong. For fourteen days I kept getting worse, despite the efforts of two doctors, lost forty pounds, and was satisfied that I could live but a few days. My trouble was Stomach and Liver Complaint, resulting in an attack of bilious colic. At this time I saw Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., advertised, and sent for a bottle. I also sent for my physician, and told him that I was going to try the Favorite Remedy. He examined it and told me to use it three days and let him know the result. In the three days I walked four miles. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has saved my life.—W. S. Bitzer, State Mills, Ross Co., Ohio.

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

To the Editor:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and post office address. Respectfully,
T. A. Slocum, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

L. M. Walton and Phillips & Co.'s Tourist Sleeping Car excursions East. No charge for berths. For information, tickets, and location in cars, address
F. G. Hizh, 624 Market St., San Francisco.
Steamship Tickets to and from Europe at very lowest rates.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
—FOR—
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

DON'T BE A GULL!
Because a gull is a very foolish bird that will swallow anything you offer it. When you ask for "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" Smoking Tobacco, and the dealer wants you to try some cheap brand on which he makes a much larger profit. He is simply trying to "gull" you. He knows as well as you do that "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" is the most popular and the best Smoking Tobacco on the Pacific Coast.

A BIG SHOW
Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

The Buyers' Guide is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

I CURE FITS!
I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

CALIFORNIA ROSES!
Strong, well-rooted plants, all labeled, Assorted, 10 for $1.00. Geraniums, Fuchsias, Heliotrope, Begonias, Verbenas and Chrysanthemums in large variety. Good Healthy Plants, all Labeled, 12 for $1.00. All plants sent free by mail, and safe arrival guaranteed for Cash with order. Address, W. A. T. STRATTON Florist, Petaluma, Cala.

ORATORS say Piso's Cure for Consumption is THE BEST for keeping the voice clear. 25 cents.

WOVEN WIRE MATTRESSES AND IRON BEDS. Manufactured by W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St., San Francisco Cal. Send for Catalogue and Price List

LADIES! A SECRET YOU WOULD like to know, especially MARRIED LADIES of delicate health. Send stamp for full particulars of this great boon to women, sent in securely sealed letter. DR. GRAEME, box 1841, San Francisco, Cal.

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES.
Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. J. AITKEN, Manager, Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich

SINGERS who have used Piso's Cure for Consumption say it is BEST OF ALL. Sold everywhere. 25c.

KNABE PIANOS
It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.
A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 152 Post street, S. F.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

PRIVATE Information, either sex, sealed, free. Private Disease cured. Madrid-Paris Co., San Francisco Cal.

AGENTS are coining money with our new book. Write for circulars. Distance no hindrance. Empyreal Pub. House, St. Paul, Minn

BEST COUGH MEDICINE, PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.
It has permanently cured THOUSANDS of cases pronounced by doctors hopeless. If you have premonitory symptoms, such as Cough, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., don't delay, but use PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION immediately. By Druggists. 25 cents.

St. Jacobs Oil cures NEURALGIA
At Druggists and Dealers.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

Diamond Vera-Cura FOR DYSPEPSIA.
AND ALL STOMACH TROUBLES SUCH AS: Indigestion, Sour-Stomach, Heartburn, Nausea, Giddiness, Constipation, Fullness after eating, Food Rising in the Mouth and disagreeable taste after eating, Nervousness and Low-Spirits.
At Druggists and Dealers or sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent Stamp.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roenisch Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 205 Post Street, San Francisco.

SECRETS Free Masonary, Signs, Grips and Morgan's fate by mail on receipt $1. People's Pub. Co., St Paul, Minn

PEOPLES HOME SAVINGS BANK
JAS. K. WILSON Cashier. COLUMBUS WATERHOUSE President.
805 Market Street, cor. 4th St.
IN FLOOD BUILDING.
San Francisco, California
GUARANTEE CAPITAL, $300,000
Deposits from any part of the Pacific Coast States may be sent by registered letter, post office money order, bank draft or express.
The People's Home Savings Bank has exceptional facilities for safe, profitable and satisfactory investment of funds at good rates of interest.

Dr. John C. Spencer, Physician and Surgeon
Arzt und Chirurg.
OFFICE, 514 Sutter St, bet Powell & Mason, San Francisco, California.
RESIDENCE, Westminster Hotel, 614 Sutter St. one block above.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH, Carbolic Sheep Wash.
T. W. Jackson & Co., Mfg. Agents, 104 Market St.

IT MADE MOTHER STRONG

"My mother has been using Paine's Celery Compound for nervous prostration, accompanied by melancholia, etc., and it has done her a world of good. It is the only medicine that strengthens the nerves." G. H. Beers, Orbisonia, Pa.

"I am in my 6th year. Have been afflicted in several ways—could not sleep, had no appetite, no courage, low spirits. I commenced using Paine's Celery Compound, and felt relief from the third day after using it. I now have a good appetite and can sleep well. My spirits and courage are almost like those of a young man." S. C. Kinkaid, D. D., Gonzales, La.

Paine's Celery Compound

Strengthens and builds up the old, and cures their infirmities. Rheumatism, indigestion and nervousness yield quickly to the curative power of Paine's Celery Compound.

A Perfect Tonic and Invigorator, It GIVES NEW LIFE.

Paine's Celery Compound is of unequaled value to women. It strengthens the nerves, regulates the kidneys, and has wonderful power in curing the painful diseases with which women so often silently suffer.

"I am now 69 years old and have tried several remedies, but none had any effect until I used Paine's Celery Compound. I feel entirely different for the short time I have used it. I can walk nearly straight, sleep sound and well, and feel as though there was new life and energy coming into my whole system." H. Mylius, Cleveland, Tenn.

$1 per bottle. Six for $5. At Druggists.
Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.

DIAMOND DYES True to Name and Color. Nothing can Equal Them. | YOUR BABY will be rosy, plump and merry if given LACTATED FOOD.

AN HONEST DOCTOR,

finding his patient suffering from that most common of American maladies—Bilious Dyspepsia, or, in other words, from Torpid Liver, associated with indigestion, advised him to go to the drug store and get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery the world-famed remedy for such ailments.

Golden Medical Discovery acts powerfully upon the Liver, and through that great blood-purifying organ, cleanses the system of all blood-taints and impurities, from whatever cause arising. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the Kidneys, and other excretory organs, cleansing and strengthening them and healing their diseases. As an appetizing restorative tonic, it promotes digestion and nutrition, thereby building up both flesh and strength. In malarial districts, this wonderful medicine has gained great celebrity in curing Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Dumb Ague, and kindred diseases.

Copyrighted, 1888, by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors.

$500 OFFERED for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head by the proprietors of DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY.
SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness, difficulty of clearing throat, expectoration of offensive matter; breath offensive; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few of these symptoms likely to be present at once. Thousands of cases result in consumption, and end in the grave.
By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases. Only 50 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

THE BEST
CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY....MAY 25, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 50. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 25, 1889. WHOLE NO. 969.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 20

THE TITANESS.

[N. O. Times Translation from Jules Lermina.]

"I sent for you," said Paula, "because you are my best friend, the friend of my childhood. I sent for you to help me. It is now just three years since I became Frederic's wife. To my girlish fancy, that man, already spoken of as a master in science, was also a master of men—one whose will none could resist. He took possession of me with a single word; his gaze subdued me, and I felt myself helpless in the grasp of his will. But still, my weakness was proud of being able to lean upon such strength; I felt anticipation of joy in proudly submitting my own individuality to such an all-dominating force of intellect. But to-day things have changed. Frederic is kind; Frederic loves me; Frederic is the very best of husbands and fathers. Yet I live in fear—fear of everything—fear of him above all else. Could I only tell you why—were I even able to tell myself why; but this growing terror, that increases more every day and every night, is unbearable especially just because I can not explain it."

In spite of my endeavor to preserve at least an outward aspect of skepticism, I felt myself miserably ill at ease. And lowering my voice to a whisper, I questioned her very gently, becoming more and more alarmed by the answers received, which seemed to lend substantial form to the mysterious horror that hovered about us.

Now this is the substance of what she told me:

During the past six months—that is to say, since the birth of her child—Frederic, who had always borne himself as proudly as any wrestler who feels assured of an easy triumph, had suddenly become gloomy and depressed. What could have happened to the learned Frederic Wertheim, whose labors were already celebrated by the world's scientific academies? Of what enigma was he seeking the solution? What combat had he dared to engage in? Taciturn, he held his peace, and answered his wife's questions only by haggard glances—as though silently requesting her not to excite some painful memory that he wished to forget.

For days and nights together he remained locked up in a great conservatory, which he had had built at immense expense, in the further end of the park. Sometimes weeks would pass in succession without his entering the chateau. Or, if he came at all, it would be late at night when he entered his wife's chamber stealthily, on tiptoe.

She used to watch him when he believed her to be asleep. She saw him, sitting there on a chair, with eyes fixed in a stare, as if fascinated by some dreadful vision. An expression of unutterable horror contracted all his face. His whole frame shuddered; his hands, convulsively waving, seemed striving to push back some invisible enemy.

Then (Oh! she used to watch him well at such moments!) he would rise up suddenly at last with a gesture of iron determination, of triumphant will—and flee away. Going to the window Paula would see him running to the great hot-house, whose never-extinguished furnace glowed through the night like a beacon fire.

Frankly, boldly, she had questioned him. What was always going on there in that obscure portion of the park? Why was he so persistently obstinate in refusing to permit any one to enter the conservatory? With the old shudder of horror, he repelled her from him—roughly, harshly.

Then she sought to learn the truth for herself, by dint of a courageous hypocrisy. And she soon discovered one very strange thing. Every day Frederic ordered the steward to purchase several pounds of fresh meat for him; and this meat he carried into the hot-house every evening. But not the least remnant of any of this meat was ever found in the neighborhood of the hot-house.

What was he feeding? Was it some unknown and dangerous animal which he made it a special duty to nourish daily—some strange creature with whom he had resigned himself to live all alone, in the isolation of his scientific investigations? But, again, what was the great secret struggle going on—that struggle to which his mental revolt bore witness, above all in the hours of his nocturnal solitude?

Was he becoming insane?

This last thought pierced the tortured soul of Paula like the blade of a sword of ice.

She dared not interrogate him further; the more deeply his face became furrowed by strange anxieties, the more he kept himself away from Paula. And he wholly refused to seek repose at home, or to enjoy the relaxation of an affectionate conversation with her, during the intervals of his exhausting studies. Only at times she caught glimpses of him, wandering all alone behind the high shrubbery of the park walks, bareheaded, gesticulating as though talking to himself, and shaking his fists at the sky.

These and other strange facts Paula told me, and as she confided to me the history of her fears, I felt myself slightly reassured at last. After all, I thought, this change in Frederic is only a morbid condition—nervous over-excitement provoked by excessive mental labor. I had been his boy-friend, his fellow-student; afterward I had often listened to his ardent discourses, when, with a marvelous audacity, he plunged deeply into the abysses of Hypothesis. I knew him well; I was now a physician, and I had learned how to combat such troubles as his with success. Accordingly I reassured Paula as best I could; and feeling confident in my eloquence, and in my privileges, I went alone into the park in search of Frederic.

Night was approaching. But my former sense of fear had entirely passed away. I strode forward with a feeling of inexpressible pride in my mission of protection and salvation. And with each step I took in those crepuscular alleys, I felt the resolve of duty growing stronger within me.

Soon I perceived the hot-house of which Paula had spoken to me. It was an immense and admirably built conservatory—a series of interconnected pavilions of glass and iron, surmounted by rounded domes huddled close together, like the cupolas of a Turkish bath-house. Under the last faint gleams of daylight they glimmered like sheets of steel. The mystery was within. I was almost ready to laugh at my former fears. Ought I not to have remembered the exhausting, the torturing results of excessive scientific study.

Even as the thought came to my mind, I heard quick steps behind me, and turned hastily. In the deep penumbra of the shrubbery, I saw Frederic, or rather, I divined his presence, and I advanced boldly to meet him.

"Friend," I exclaimed, "do you not recognize me?"

He halted brusquely.

"Frederic," I continued, "don't you know me? I hold out my hand to you, and am astonished that I do not feel yours in it."

Then, as if guided rather by the sound of my voice rather than by the evidence of his eyes, he bent forward, looked at me, and said in hoarse broken tones, like the crackling of a great branch too roughly bent:

"You!—What do you want here? Begone!"

"Ah!—is this the way you receive me after so long an absence? Have you quite forgotten our old friendship?"

He seemed to hesitate—moved uneasily to and fro. I then noticed he was carrying a basket which seemed to contain something heavy.

"I can't stop now," he said. "Let me pass."

"Certainly," I replied, "you can pass; but you surely won't prevent me from accompanying you, so that we can have a pleasant little chat, like we used to have in the old days."

He laughed a strange, sneering laugh.

"You want to follow me, you!—ridiculous!"

"On my soul, you must be hiding something in that glass palace of yours—some creature that you are dreadfully jealous of."

With his free hand he caught me by the arm. And while I remained silent, he bent forward as if listening. I thought I could discern a strange sound, a sound like the creeping of a reptile.

"She is waiting for me!" he cried in a tone of ill-disguised terror, "I must go!"

"Hear me a moment," I prayed, "let us go together."

Yet another instant he hesitated. Then with a resolute gesture, he cried:

"Well, then, come! Perhaps after all you might be able to protect me, if—"

He did not finish the sentence. But as his hand touched mine, I felt it was cold as hardened snow.

Now it was he who was drawing me along. We reached the entrance of the hot-house. He took a key from his pocket and opened the glass door. And as I advanced, gropingly, unable to distinguish anything in the gloom, he suddenly pushed me back with violence.

"As your value your life," he whispered, "do not move."

In spite of my former confidence, I felt a strange terror creeping upon me. Again I heard the queer rustling noise which had fallen upon my ears a short while before. It was a sound of slow creeping—a sound as of paper moving over a marble surface.

And all of a sudden, without my having been able to perceive how it was done, a burst of blinding light filled the conservatory—and I shrunk back against the door, clinging to its iron framework, while every hair upon my head stood upright with horror.

In the center of the hall, all tapestried with fantastic plants, towered a creature, a nightmare, a hideous Thing—hydra, polyp, octopus—no man could have given it a name. It squatted there, enormous and horrible, upon the soil, in a sort of an immense basin filled with spongy mosses and vicious growths. It had the form of a colossal wineskin; and from the edges of it protruded huge and innumerable arms—at the end of each of which was a ball, a rotundity, green like a monster-eye. The body was green; the arms had a purplish tint, but as they became thinner to end in those atrocious green eyes, a sanguinolent red mingled with the green—a ghastly green as of corpses in putrefaction.

I shut my eyes, with a weird sickening at my heart.

But I still heard that creeping sound of which I spoke before; and I knew that it was the sound of all those arms being extended or contracted. And at last, surprised that I had not been seized by that Thing—so hideous, so mighty—I opened my eyes with a superhuman effort, and looked about me.

Frederic, livibly pale, had taken, from the basket he brought with him, a great piece of meat; and, with infinite precautions, straining himself on tiptoe, lest his hand might accidentally touch those hideous tentacles, he placed the flesh upon the extremity of those moving arms.

And suddenly, as if moved by a spring, the arms contracted, carrying the piece of meat backward to other and shorter arms which I then perceived for the first time, and which belonged to an inner circle of tentacles; and these again seizing the meat, handed it—(I can not use any other expression)—to other arms, still farther away, until it reached the center. Then all those arms folded themselves over the central spot to which the meat had been conveyed; and I beheld the morsel no more.

Quivering with terror, I looked at Frederic.

His brow streamed with sweat; his teeth chattered. The demoniac beast was now motionless, wholly absorbed in its monstrous work of deglutition.

"She eats!—she eats!" he cried. "The Titaness gorges herself!"

"Titaness!" I repeated with a sense of stupor.

"Ah! you know nothing!—you understand nothing!" he cried. "What—do you not recognize her? Look! look at her well! She is now tamed for the moment."

And in one sudden flash of comprehension, I perceived what that creature was.

It was a gigantic Drosera; it was the carnivorous plant cultivated to fabulous dimensions—a vegetable colossus—an unutterable creation; and I shrieked aloud its name!

"She will remain thus for an hour," said Frederic. "Ah! I know way you came to see me! They think I am mad—no; it is false! I mad—I! who by a miracle of perseverance, by a master work of selection, have succeeded in developing the Drosera to this awful size! Behold her—the monster! Soon she will again hold out her hungry arms to me; and I must nourish her—I must gorge her—or else—"

And he gazed about him in terror.

"Or else?" I queried.

"Listen," he said. "I will tell you my secret. You know with what ardor I studied the discoveries of Nitschke, of Warming, of Darwin, about those strange plants which are intermediary between the animal and the vegetable, which seize insects, entrap them, clutch them, beslime them, strangle them, and slowly digest them as food. Oh! I fully comprehended the consequences of these fantastic studies. I never doubted the truth for one single instant. I felt assured that the Drosera, the Dionæa, the Drosophyllum were neither more nor less than degenerate forms—you hear me well!—than degenerate forms of monstrous animals, whose frightful shapes lingered as traditions in the memory of primitive man—hydras, chimeras, dragons. All these forms have existed; human imagination never created anything; but partly by reason of climacteric adaptations of geological upheavals, these abominably hideous beings were deprived of their accustomed nourishment; and by virtue of a retrogressive atavism fell back into the condition of vegetables—immobilized, fettered to the soil by roots, because obliged to go back to earth for their nourishment, and thus become plants. But even as plants they still preserve that longing for carnivorous nourishment, that capacity for animal nutrition, which is the only vestige of their former life.

"Well, it was my ambition to reconstitute this atrophied being. I resolved that the plant should again be transformed into the beast. Oh! how many attempts I made in vain! But chance at last placed me in possession of an exceptionally huge Drosera; and I nourished it; I impregnated it with animal juices. Little by little it developed as I had hoped—a very triumph of deduction. The hydra, the dragon, lives again!

"Look at her now, my Titaness!—enormous, sublime! Behold her ferocious with a hunger which I can not satiate."

And at this moment he flung a new meal to a couple of enormous tentacles which were stretching toward him.

"But you do not know all," he continued in a lower voice. "If my Titaness were hungry (I guessed the fact long ago), at this stage of force and growth which she has reached, she would wrench herself free from the root which tethers her to the soil, below the mosses in that basin.

"And then, the execrable and victorious animal would escape from here—the monster would wander through the land, trailing her viscous enormity over the plain—and what is now the masterwork of my life would become my crime. And I should be accursed forever.

"She must never escape; I have resolved she shall remain in prison; and I am ever on the watch, fearful lest she might get hungry. Let me delay but a few seconds—let me arrive only a few minutes too late; and I know that she would break forth, and traverse the world like a monstrous octopus—devoring, destroying—threatening my wife, my child!

"Let her eat! let her eat! She must eat enormously in order that the desire to escape shall not come upon her."

And again I saw him drop whole quarters of meat. And through the fibres of the atrocious plant I could perceive the purple flow of blood digested in torrents.

Even at that instant, as I stood speechless, crushed by the intensity of my repulsion, the door of the conservatory, which I had imperfectly closed, suddenly opened.

And Paula appeared!

Her courage had proven stronger than her fear. Knowing that I was there, she had presumed to violate the secret of the hot-house.

"Frederic!" she screamed.

But a horrible cry responded to her appeal.

In a thoughtless backward movement, totally unconscious of his danger, Frederic had inadvertently laid his hand upon the tentacles of the Titaness.

And with ghastly quickness, all the hideous trunks of the monster had flung themselves upon that hand, seizing the wrist, drawing in the forearm.

Horror! I saw him caught by the irresistible suction; I flung my arms around his body; I strove with might and main to tear him from the frightful embrace of the Titaness, but the nameless creature was stronger than I.

My eye fell upon an axe lying near me on the ground.

"Strike at the foot! at the foot!" I screamed to Paula; "strike! hew! cut it through!"

I never knew whether she understood my words; but she obeyed them. Weak woman though she was, she used the steel weapon well, and struck so true that she severed the root of the plant below the mosses. The horrible thing seemed to make a supreme effort to rise up to fling itself upon us, and then, suddenly becoming powerless, it sank down heavily with a sound as of wet linen dropped on the ground. Simultaneously the tenacles loosed their grip, and I tore my poor friend from them.

And I saw (oh! hideous sight!) that his hand and wrist were only bloody pulp.

Paula had caught him in her arms.

He opened his eyes in a last spasm, fixed them upon me, and uttered only these words:

"Assassin! You have murdered the Titaness!"

And he fell back—dead!

I cared for Paula like a brother, and I adopted the child.

Negro Dialects on the South Carolina Coast.

[Charleston News and Courier.]

Not wishing to shock anybody's acoustical arrangements, but wishing to illustrate as nearly as possible the enormities of the idiom in question, we take the liberty of here producing some fragments of conversation in which our Tom is supposed to figure, and which is arranged, both as to spelling and spacing, with a careful eye to the preservation of its native pronunciation and manner of deliverance.

Master (meeting Tom in the field)—Good morning, Tom.

Tom (uncovering and bowing very low)—Morn maus 'ow you—do sa.

Master—Quite well, and how are your family?

Tom—Fambly-bout, teng God sa, cep'n de chillen, him ain so-berry well wid de feber sa.

Master—Sorry to hear it; are you doing anything for them?

Tom—I ba gediem some ile-enting, sa.

Master—Oil is scarcely the thing, I fear, Tom; come to the house at noon, I will give you something better than oil.

Tom—Berwell—maus tengful, sa; I comin; tengful, sa, tengful.

Having come to the house at noon as directed, Tom would be apt to accost his patron thus: "I banlayferdefisca."

Master—Very good, Tom; now which of the children are sick, and what are their ages?

Tom—Oliber and Katrin, allboterlem, sa; but Katrin him de sickis.

Master—Katherina the sicker, and their ages?

Tom—I coulda tell, sa, but Katrin, him de clis.

Master—And you don't know their ages?

Tom—No, sa; enty you hab em een de big book?

Master—Oh, yes; I keep all the births and deaths on record, but it will take me a little while to hunt them up. However, I will do so, and send you the doses later. Good-day.

Tom—Bye maus; tengful-sa; Gob blesse, sa.

Saying which, with many a bow and many a scrape, Tom would most probably take himself off in the direction of the "quarters."

While the Gentlemen Were at Dinner.

[Albany Journal.]

Speaking about hats reminds me of an incident that happened several years ago, when I was living at a fashionable boarding-house upon Broadway. It was rather a high-toned place and contained among its members as fine a lot of young ladies and gentlemen as you would care to meet. Well, one day in midsummer—and it was a terribly hot day, too—while we were all down at dinner a man entered the hall door, which was standing open, and gathering up the hats on the rack in a pile—there were about thirty of them, and some fine ones, too—he started down the front steps.

Before he reached the sidewalk he met a salesman who was a little late for dinner, and who asked him what he was doing with all those hats. "Why," said the fellow, "I'm a hat dealer just around the corner, and I'm going to clean these hats while the gentlemen are at dinner." "All right," replied the salesman, "take mine along and clean it up, too." What? Get them again? Not much. There was the biggest crowd of bareheaded clerks in that house you ever saw. And the one who saw the rascal lugging them all off and helped him, too, by giving him his own hat—well, we nearly thumped the life out of him.

The Next Popular Craze.

[Chicago Journal.]

Word comes from New York that the next popular craze is to be over equestrianism. Horsemen say that not less than three or four score of fair riders have left New York this spring to open "riding academies" in towns through New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England.

Die of the Franklin Cent.

The die from which the Franklin cent was made is now used as a paper weight in a hardware house in New Haven.

ELECTRIC TELEGRAPHY.

The Wheatstone System and Its Ingenious and Practical Inventor.

Prof. Wheatstone, of King's College, London, was one of the several persons who in 1837 claimed the honor of having invented the electric telegraph. He first applied for a patent for making the electro-magnet act at long distances. In July, 1837, wires were laid down from Euston Square to Camden Town Station, in London, and Prof. Wheatstone sent the first message to Mr. Cooke, his coadjutor in the work, between the two stations. The invention was immediately patented, both in England and America, and it is stated as a curious fact that the American patent granted to Wheatstone & Cooke is earlier in date by just ten days than the first patent obtained by Morse. Prof. Wheatstone has made many inventions and improvements in electrical machines. In 1830 he constructed the first electrical machine for sending several messages at once. The telegraph apparatus now used throughout Great Britain was invented by Prof. Wheatstone. We can not give the full details of its construction, but may briefly outline it thus: It includes a punching machine for producing the perforated strips of paper, a transmitting apparatus through which these strips are rapidly passed, and a receiving device which marks on another strip dots and dashes in ink. The punching machine will make the holes in three or even four strips at a time, and in the hands of an experienced operator will punch at the rate of forty words a minute. When the paper is prepared, it is run through the transmitter, which operates to establish a current whenever certain moving rods can pass through the holes and establish a contact, the currents being alternately positive and negative. If a succession of currents in reverse directions are caused to pass upon the line, the receiver at the opposite end will record a series of dots. To make a dash, one reversal of the current is missed; and, in brief, the function of the paper is to regulate the motion of the transmitter so as to produce reversal or missing of reversal, of the current at the proper moments, and thus cause the current to form, in its movement, dots and dashes. The speed is determined by the rate at which the receiver can receive, because the apparatus contains a controlling electro-magnet, which takes time to be magnetized and demagnetized, and hence, if the current reverses too quickly, the marks will run together instead of being separate and distinct. The maximum useful speed is about 130 words a minute on a short line. One strip of punched ribbon will do for any number of circuits, so that from a central station a single strip disseminates news to many places.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

DUTCH WIND-MILLS.

Structures That Seem to Sum Up the Whole Life of Holland.

In some way mills are among the most suggestive things in Holland; they seem to sum up the whole life of the country. It is hard to define the exact impression they produce; one almost unconsciously assigns to each mill an existence of its own, as if no mere machine could cause the swift rhythmical motion of the sails, that impetuous yet ordered cadence which seems to bring one into contact with the living forces of nature. It is perhaps this intimate association with nature which gives to the wind-mill its peculiar charm. The strong outline of the sails thrown up against a wind-swept sky carries the imagination from the city to the lonely fields, it suggests that poetry of solitude, even of desolation, which all painters since Rembrandt seem to have felt to be the distinctive note of the wind-mill. One of the most curious sights in Rotterdam are the wind-mills rising here and there out of the blocks of houses, standing like a countryman fresh from the field, and hedgerows in the midst of a crowded city. The Dutch mills almost reach the dignity of architecture. They seem to possess that curious happiness of design which is only reached by the conscious thought of a skillful architect, or else by the spontaneous working of nature. Every thing seems just right, just what it ought to be, no more and no less. The wind-mills at Dordt are used either for sawing timber or grinding corn, and the two types are very distinct. The timber mills start from a square staging, tapering upward, with gable wings at either end; at the top of this stage the four angles are chamfered back to receive the octagon of the mill itself and at this level a broad projecting gallery, upheld by timber struts, runs round the mill. The upper part is octagon, and usually covered with weather tiles or a soft velvety thatch, which sets off the sharply-defined lines of the sails and the great spars by which the top is moved. For some excellent reason the lines of the eight angles of the mill are not made straight but have a delicate concave curve. The Dutch builders always had a feeling for the value of a curved line in preference to a straight; the same instinct appears in the fleches to their churches, where the sides of the octagon spire usually have a slight curve on the face inward. The top of the mills which carries the sails is covered with thatch. It is more or less circular in plan, and of an indescribable but most effective form, such as only thatch could cover.—English Illustrated Magazine.

—A florist in England claims that a rose bush, which has been bearing white roses for more than thirty years, has suddenly changed, and now puts out only red roses. The only cause assigned for this is the enrichment of the surrounding earth.

DRESS IN FRANCE.

The Secret of French Ascendency in the Matter of Wearing Apparel.

Here lies the secret of French ascendency in the matters of dress; beyond all other nations France possesses the sense of the eternal fitness of things. Just run through the different grades of societies and note how the French adapt means to ends, how they understand the suitable. Here is a French peasant woman, with heavy stockings and wooden shoes or pattens, short skirt of some coarse material, loose blouse, a small flannel kerchief tightly pinned over the shoulders, and a handkerchief of some bright color holding her hair neatly in place. Look on that picture and then on this: Here is an English working-woman hampered in a large faded shawl, with a long, full skirt of thin, cheap material, edged at bottom with a flounce all tattered and torn, shod with a pair of cast-off boots, and to cap the climax, some lady's discarded bonnet trimmed with a faded flower or feather that have been dampened with fog till they look like the "fretful porcupine." A little higher, you get in England the factory and workshop girl with her ill-fitting coat reaching to the knee, with a dress that must have back drapery, though the quality of material may not run to more than one fold, with loud, broad-brimmed hat, shoes that are dirty and run down at the heel. In Paris you will see this "young person's" social equal tripping along in slippers suited to the weather, in plain full dress in tiny white cap and large spotless apron. Go up one wrung higher on the social ladder and you see in London small tradesmen's daughters or shop assistants, over dressed and tricked out in shabby finery. In France you find the same girl neatly dressed and with no head-covering in the street, for the beautiful real lace caps that have for generations passed from mother to daughter are not put on until years have crowned the head with gray. In short, the French know exactly what is suitable for any given occasion, for any given employment. They, unlike most other nations, with native instinct avoid what is mal a propos.—Philadelphia Times.

DOCTOR AND PATIENT.

A Relationship Which Many People Have Never Reflected Upon.

When I consider what the education of a doctor entails, what endless study and investigation, what patient labor; when I reflect upon the continual risks that he must take, the continual self-control that he must have, balanced by continual compassion; when I remember how he is ever contending in a face-to-face and hand-to-hand encounter with disease and death, I think that he should be an industrious and thoughtful, a brave and noble gentleman.

To the invalid he is more. He is the master-mechanic of what may be a very troublesome machine. He is the autocrat of the table and of the lodging, of raiment and exercise. His advent is the event of the day. His utterances are oracular, his nod Olympian. His learning is boundless, his wit irresistible, his goodness not to be disputed. He takes the responsibility of living off shoulders that tremble beneath it, assumes the battle with pain, and fights the sick man's duel for him. He condones the cowardice of shrinking nerves and puts them to sleep. He encourages and stimulates and bolsters the sufferer into shape again.

There is no relationship on earth like this between doctor and patient. He owns me, owns at least this arm he set when I was a boy, and these lungs whose every wheeze and sputter he recognizes as I do the voice of a familiar acquaintance. The mother who bore me has not so intimate a knowlege of my peculiarities, my penchants and antipathies; no friend, however faithful, is so tolerant of my faults or has such an easy way of curing them. He reconciles me to myself by a quieting powder, and starts me fair with the world once more.—Scribner's Magazine.

Why Oklahoma Is Coveted.

"I was down in that Oklahoma country three years ago," said an officer of General Miles' staff, speaking of the likelihood of a fight between the troops and the Oklahoma boomers. General Sheridan and General Miles went to Fort Reno to quiet a disturbance among the Cheyenne Indians, and I was in the party. It is certainly a beautiful region for the agriculturist, and it is no wonder the lands are coveted. The soil is rich and well watered, the country is a rolling prairie, the climate is mild and equable, the grass in summer is 'belly deep,' and two railroads are now built through the heart of the vast, unoccupied domain. Any thing can be grown there that will grow in Missouri or Arkansas. It would be the finest fruit country in the world. At Fort Reno peaches, pears and plums are raised which can not be equaled anywhere outside of California. The most magnificent corn I ever saw was raised in Oklahoma by the few half-breeds allowed to till the soil. There are splendid streams, the Canadian river and its north fork, which course through the land. There is no snow, very little frost and never a sign of a blizzard. It does seem a pity that such a superb agricultural region should be shut out from settlement and given over in perpetuity to a worthless lot of Indians, who can not use it even as a hunting ground."—San Francisco Examiner.

—"There ain't any blemishes about this animal?" asked the would-be purchaser of a cow. "No, she is all right; but I must tell you candidly that sometimes she kicks when she is being milked," replied the owner of the cow. "That's no consequence. My wife does the milkin'."

AN UNDERTAKER'S CHAT.

The Funny Side of an Otherwise Uncanny and Lugubrious Calling.

"There is a humorous side even to so solemn a calling as ours," said a city undertaker. "People rarely think of this phase of our work. The popular notion was, and to a large extent is, that our calling has something uncanny and grewsome about it. In a certain sense it has, but still it is replete with funny incidents and you will find few undertakers who have been long in the business who could not relate queer experiences.

"To begin with, we are constantly reminded in one way or another that we thrive on other people's misfortunes. As a matter of fact epidemics are a bane to us, for, while they mean busy times, they also mean more than the usual percentage of bad accounts. But still it is hard to rid a certain class of people of the notion that we weigh the probabilities of mortality, watch the weather prognostications, keep track of physicians' visits, are in league, or at least in sympathy, with quack doctors, bad plumbers and other public nuisances, and that we are opposed to improvements conducive to public welfare. If scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever or any other contagious disease breaks out you will hear people talking of the undertaker's quickened interest just as surely as you will hear plumbers mentioned in connection with severe weather. We really do hold an anomalous sort of position, but we do not—as I have often heard intimated—keep a list of the aged and consumptive, nor do contagions quicken our business instincts.

"And right here let me point out the popular fallacy. It is generally thought that contagious diseases are more prevalent and more fatal among the poor than among those who have comforts and good sanitary surroundings. A long business career in undertaking has convinced me that this is a mistake. The poor are more liable to such diseases only in the ratio of their larger families.

"Then the common idea that bereavement is a time when peculiarities and hobbies are laid aside is wrong. Personal whims and idiosyncrasies mingle in the strangest way with tender expressions of love and sorrow. Considerations of style, too, enter the minds of a large percentage of mourners. One thing is done on the basis of what people will think, another on the basis of what the deceased would have liked, and so on. Few undertakers, I think, would be so callous as to make light of any expression or request that is the outcome of genuine feeling, but nobody is more quick than we to detect the genuine from the forced or shammed. When we are supposed to pleasantly inquire after people's health with an ulterior purpose in mind, I don't know why we shouldn't have a little merriment over the humorous features of grave work.

"So far as people's follies and deference to fashion is concerned, it is a good thing for the undertaker that they exist. The profits of our business would be sadly interfered with if the masses were of more commonsense opinions and puritanic tastes. It is the non-essential and, if you please, the abnormal features of burials that give undertakers, and especially the manufacturers of undertakers' supplies, their leverage over the public. Trusts and extortionate prices would practically be out of the question were it not that people sought to perpetuate follies and carry style into the graveyard. Of course it isn't our place to dictate, and it would scarcely be businesslike to make suggestions against our own interest, but still I think that despite what has been done in the way of funeral reform many more steps could profitably be taken.

"There is another phase of our business that has a peculiar if not a positively humorous side. In pursuance of his work an undertaker will almost certainly become unnaturally solemn or in a measure a hypocrite. A certain deportment is deemed requisite, and that deportment isn't quite natural. Words of condolence are in order and expected, and they come. As might be expected they don't come spontaneously but in a more or less perfunctory way. The undertaker is not as solemn as he often looks. He has on hand a fund of condolence and a stock of well-approved phrases that is often positively grotesque, and upon the way in which he uses this stock in trade he soon learns depends much of his success."—Chicago News.

—An exchange asked if waltzing is wicked. Some waltzing is. When a man steps on his partner's dainty little feet every other second, does not keep time with the music, attempts to hop while his partner glides, digs his hand into the middle of her back, involves his extremities in such a maze of confusion that he can't tell his right foot from his left, bumps his knees into his companion, and collides with every couple that comes near him, it must be admitted that waltzing is wicked. How fortunate it is for some men that they are not born quadrupeds. If they have so much difficulty managing two legs, how much more fearful and wonderful would their dancing be with four legs to absorb their attention.—Waterbury Republican.

—It is now given out in Boston that the cremationists have lost 15 per cent. of their strength in the last year, and it is believed that another year or two will finish them.

—A Chicago man claims to be living on eight cents a week. Nothing is said of the father-in-law he is probably living on also.—Buffalo Express.

TRAINING WILD BIRDS.

How It Can Be Done Without Caging the Feathered Beauties.

Some years ago I lived with my family in a suburb, a home where birds of many species abounded. The house was surrounded with forest trees, and the birds built nests and reared their young unmolested. My daughter, who was then a girl of ten years, took special enjoyment in feeding the birds by casting out crumbs from the table. She never frightened them, but always moved slowly, and manifested great gentleness and kindness toward them. By the walk from the front door to the street was an evergreen bush. In this a pair of robins built their nest about four feet from the ground. By this nest I daily passed and repassed, taking care not to disturb the bird which was hatching out her young. Many times a day my daughter approached the nest, but cautiously avoided disturbing the bird. So familiar had her presence become that the robin would sit on her nest till almost touched by my daughter's hand. When the young were hatched, then her delight was unbounded, and she began to feed them crumbs from the table and worms which she searched for in the yard and garden. Between the care of the parent birds and that of my daughter, the nestlings fattened and grew with rapidity. Soon the little ones recognized my daughter's presence, and opened wide their voracious mouths for the dainty bits she had provided for them. When they were full-fledged and ready to leave the nest they submitted to being handled and caressed without resistance, and would follow her around the yard as chickens follow the mother hen. If the pair, there were two of them, were up in the trees, she would call, "Robie! Robie! Robie!" and they would fly to her as readily as chickens. Not only would they follow my daughter, but they soon became attached to me, and would often come at my call and perch on my hand or knees, and swallow the earthworms which I had dug for them. They continued with us on terms of perfect friendship for about six weeks. Cold weather came on, and they left for a warmer clime and we saw them no more.—William D. Butler, in the Swiss Cross.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—The man who lends his influence rarely gets it back.

—Politeness is the most efficient aid in the world to strengthen a good name or to supply the want of one.

—If we did but know how little some enjoy the greatest things they possess, there would not be so much envy in the world.

—It is in love as it is in religion; the man with a new goddess is ready to offer up the old idol as the first burnt offering.—Once a Week.

—Prejudice is the conjurer of imaginary wrongs—strangling truth, overpowering reason, making strong men weak and weak men weaker.

—There is nothing in the world so toilsome as the pursuit of fame; life concludes before you have so much as sketched your work.—Bruyere.

—It is not always the man who looks the wisest that knows the most, but most people don't know this, so that it will pay you to look just as wise as you possibly can.—Somerville Journal.

—Really there is much to be thankful for in this country that has food in abundance, enough of material comforts, and, in the main, freedom from pestilence and the horrors of war.

—Don't think that a man is a genius because he wears long hair. True genius brings plenty of work to both tonsorial and editorial shears, for the much-quoted man can always afford to be clipped.—Puck.

—A faithful and true friend is a living treasure, inestimable in possssion, and deeply to be lamented when gone. Nothing is more common than to talk of a friend; nothing more difficult than to find one; nothing more rare than to improve by one as we ought.—Lavater.

—I have never been in a hurry; I have always taken a plenty of exercise; I have always tried to be cheerful, and I have taken all the sleep that I needed. These were the rules followed by the late Rev. James Freeman Clarke, and he outlived and outworked most of those who began life with him.

—Irresolution is a worse vice than rashness. He that shoots best may sometimes miss the mark, but he that shoots not at all can never hit it. Irresolution loosens all the joints of a State; like an ague, it shakes not this nor that limb, but all the body is at once in a fit. The irresolute man is lifted from one place to another, so hatcheth nothing, but addles all his actions.—Anon.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,
(Poisonous.)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO.
SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.
Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY MAY 25, ...1889

The attempt made by Ben. Butler to fasten the charge of cowardice up on Admiral Porter excites some surprise and a good deal of contempt for Ben. in the minds of men who saw the courage of the brave old sailor put to the test on several occasions. Several instances have already been related by men who served with Admiral Porter during the war, all of which could be told only of a brave man. Here is another incident: It will be remembered that in the summer of 1862 Admiral Farragut made an attack on Vicksburg and carried a portion of the fleet up the river past the city. The other part of the fleet was under the command of Porter and the duty assigned to that part was to engage the Confederate batteries and keep their fire from the vessels that were passing up the river. Admiral Porter was on board the Octorara; the writer was on the same vessel and an eye witness of his conduct during the engagement. The fleet got under way before daybreak and at once a terrific fire was opened on both sides. For a distance of three or four miles a stream of fire poured from the high bank a short distance back from the river and the guns from the fleet sent back a torrent of shot and shell. The air was filled with lead and iron till it seemed as if a hat could not be thrown up without being hit with some kind of missile. The Octorara was a gunboat of the double end pattern. Admiral Porter took his stand on the hurricane deck when the fleet began to move. When the fire opened he ordered the vessel into the thickest of it and kept her there until Farragut had got above Vicksburg with his ships and out of range of the Confederate batteries. Soon after daylight, and when the fire was heaviest, Admiral Porter asked for a cup of coffee; it was brought to him where he stood on the hurricane deck; he took the saucer and cup in his hands and stood as calmly sipping the coffee as though it were rose leaves instead of bullets, shot and shell with which the air was filled. Men who saw Admiral Porter under such circumstances though at first they may feel a little indignant, will in the end laugh at Butler when he says Porter is a coward.

Corporal Tanner recently made a speech in Tennessee in which he urged that all the States that passed the ordinance of Secession should make provision for the men who were led into the war against the Union, and who are now old and poor. This is just and reasonable; when States bring the calamities of war upon their citizens those who are disabled by wounds or by sickness contracted in service should be provided with food, clothing and shelter.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, syrup of figs, under all conditions makes it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting upon the liver, kidneys and bowels.

BUDDING GRAFTING, TRANSPLANTING

Having had many years experience in the care of trees and vines in this and other States and Territories, I thoroughly understand Budding, Grafting, Transplanting and the treatment of diseased trees and vines, and only need a trial to convince you of my fitness. Prices reasonable. Apply at this office.
CHAS. F. CUSACK,
j 12-tf Independence, Cal.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—
PIANOS & ORGANS

☞ If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to

Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the
KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH
Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

Ores! Ores! Ores!

GOLD
SILVER
LEAD
ORES WORKED

Small lots received and worked as carefully as large lots.

The best machinery for concentrating sulphurets is in use and all the metal of any kind of ore is secured.

Ores that will not bear transportation from Owens Valley can be worked at a good profit at home.

Ores sampled, bought and paid for on delivery.

Address,
Lessee Maxim Mill,
Independence.

Wheeler & Wilson
Sewing Machine.
New No. 8.
"THE BEST!"
Sales Made on Installment Plan.
Old Machines Exchanged for.
Farm Produce Taken in Payment.
This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really
First-Class Machine.
Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.
I. H. MULHOLLAND, Agent.
Independence, Cal.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.—FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to—FLEMING Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
☞ Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n4761f

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad
These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.
THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING : BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.
Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

I. O. O. F.
REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 391, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.
B. RHINE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

$93 Sewing-Machine FREE to at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return, we ask that you show what we send, to those who call at your house, and after 3 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out; before patents run out it sold for $93, with the attachments, and now sells for $50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City,
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.
Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.
All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.
JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo
Freighting Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.
Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,
BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c
Postmaster and Deputy Co Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.
Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.
A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & Co., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.
In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & Co., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.
COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address
MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors,
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.
Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.
Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:
Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th
JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.
Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 29 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.
J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Independence Hotel.
Independence Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.
FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Free Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
☞ NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED. ☜
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
☞ All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones, Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2-pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.
CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED
About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery. Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
CROCKER BROS., Props.
sep1-tf

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
C. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.
Horseshoeing .....$2.50 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Deep SEA WONDERS exist in thousands of forms, but are surpassed by the marvels of invention. Those who are in need of profitable work that can be done while living at home should at once send their address to Hallet and Co., Portland, Maine, and receive free full information how either sex, of all ages, can earn from $5 to $25 per day and upwards wherever they live. You are started free. Capital not required. Some have made over $50 in a single day. All succeed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R
TAKING EFFECT
Sunday, May 12th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House.....	11 00 a. m	5 50 p. m.
Dayton	11 30 a. m.	5:10 p. m.
Wabuska	1:25 a. m.	3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 05 p. m.	11 25 a. m.
Luning	6 25 p. m.	10:05 a. m.
Soda Springs.....	7:35 p. m.	9:05 a. m.
Belleville.....	8:45 p. m.	7:00 a. m.
Candelaria.....	Ar. 9 20 p. m	Lv. 7:10 a. m.
	No. 3.	No. 4.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville.....	8 10 a. m.	5:25 p. m.
Benton	11:40 a. m.	1:25 p. m
Bishop Creek	1:50p. m.	12:00 a. m.
Alvord.....	2.35 p. m.	10 00 a. m.
Independence.....	4 10 p. m.	8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine.....	5 00 p. m.	7:40 a. m.
Keeler.....	Ar. 5 40 p. m.	Lv. 7.00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. & R, which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (35 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜
☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
for California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, MAY 25.....1889

DIED.

MOREHOUSE—At Bishop, May 16, 1889, Stephen G. Morehouse, aged 15 years, 11 mos. and 9 days.

Given & Ingalls are always ready to buy farm produce at market rates.

Mr. C. A. Levy came down from Bishop last Monday and is staying in town.

Mr. J. J. Gunn came in from Darwin on Wednesday and is staying in town a few days.

Miss May McAfee arrived at Independence last Monday on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Eldred.

Miss May Shepherd expects to start for Los Angeles in a few days to visit relatives there.

Miss Jennie Yandell, of Bishop, was visiting friends at Camp Independence during the week.

Schobers' team passed through Independence last Saturday with a load of freight for parties at Bishop.

The News, published at Hawthorne, is defunct. The editor, in the last issue of paper, says he quit because of dull times.

Mr. P. W. Forbes was down from Bishop early in the week on Superior Court business connected with the will of the late Joel H. Smith.

Mr. Raymond, of Coyote Holes, has gone to Boston. His father died recently and left some property and he went to look after the matter.

Heavy or light harness made to order or repaired promptly. Saddles of all styles. A large stock always on hand. Send to J. E. Dunlap, at Bishop.

Mr. L. F. J. Wrinkle went down to the Soda Works at Keeler last Wednesday. He had with him a number of men who are engaged to work there.

Messrs. W. A. and J. B. Lamar were up from Cottonwood at the end of the week. They are steadily going ahead with improvements at Cottonwood.

Mrs. Diaz, Manuel Diaz and Miss Delfina Diaz arrived home at Lone Pine at the end of last week. They had been visiting with relatives at San Jose for some months past.

At Lone Pine Angelo Rossi has some young olive trees planted; they are making good growth and give promise of doing well. These are the first olive trees planted in Owens Valley.

Los Angeles people are highly jubilant over the assured extension of the Utah Central railroad to a connection with their city. This extension will be of immense benefit to Los Angeles.

As the result of Sheriff Eldred's persistent rustling among the sheep men the amount of sheep license tax collected up to Thursday noon was $3,400. The entire amount collected last year was $2,600.

The people of San Diego are hugely tickled because sardines have been discovered in the sea near their city. We would like to send them a sample lot from Owens Valley, and we don't brag about them, either.

In 1860 the number of cattle in the United States for each 1,000 inhabitants was 814. Now the proportion is about 700 head to each 1,000 people. It is evident that the price of meat, and consequently of cattle, must increase.

An abundant supply of oil is found at Puente, near Los Angeles. Many wells have already been bored and in every case oil in good paying quantity has been found. This is of vast importance to the city, as the oil makes cheap fuel.

Vast quantities of orange seeds have been planted by orchardists in Los Angeles county to get young trees enough to supply the demand. A remedy has been found for the destructive white scale and orange orchards will be extended as rapidly as possible.

Last Monday evening a farewell party was given at Mairs' Hall to Mrs. Blair and her daughter, Miss Maud Cook, who are about to start on a trip to England. The affair was a complete social success. The attendance was large and everybody had a pleasant time.

The winter term of the Camp Independence school has closed. The teacher, Miss Annie Kohler, of Napa, has given excellent satisfaction. Miss Kohler intends returning to Napa, and anticipating her departure a farewell social is tendered her by her many friends.

Fresno will offer a purse of $20,000 for a horse race, to come off in November. The winner will get $15,000, second horse $3,000 and third $2,000. The entrance fee will be 10 per cent. It is supposed that the race will be free for all and the amount offered will be certain to attract many of the best horses in the country.

D. W. Wyles, of Kearney St., San Francisco, is in the valley with a large assortment of improved pebble spectacles and eye-glasses, with pereoscopic convex ground lenses. He will guarantee satisfaction in all cases and fit all ages and conditions of eyes. Mr. Wyles has gone to Menache and will visit the towns of the valley about the first week in June.

A Chicago paper says that within the present year a shipment of Angora goats was made to that city and slaughtered for meat. It was very favorably received, the meat from the young animals being pronounced excellent mutton, with a suggestion of venison flavor. Chicago will be a big market for the meat.

Dr. Woodin has planted three thousand California walnut trees on new ground near Independence Station, on the line of the Eastside canal. He intends to graft or bud these with other varieties of walnuts. He has also set out a great many grape vines, mostly for raisins. So far all are doing well.

Dr. L. W. Allingham, formerly of Ontario, Canada, arrived at Independence last Sunday. The Doctor has filled several positions of much importance in the medical profession. He has a number of diplomas from leading colleges where he studied medicine and surgery. He intends to locate and practice his profession at Bishop Creek.

Salt Lake & Los Angeles.

A map has been received showing the proposed route of the Utah Central road from Pioche toward Los Angeles. After leaving Pioche the road, as shown by this map, will run southwest until it crosses a low range of mountains and enters Paranagat Valley. It runs down this valley to a gap in another range of hills, where it passes into Ash Meadows. At the head of the Meadows the road runs close to Mormon Well; and from there to Panamint Valley, passing through the upper end of Death Valley. At the nearest point, in Panamint Valley, the road would be about forty-five miles distant from Darwin. The route passes down Panamint Valley and out on the Mojave desert near Granite Spring, Grapevine and El Paso, and thence direct to Mojave. The men at the head of this concern assert very positively that the road will be pushed to Pioche next fall and then through to Mojave without loss of time. They understand that if they come within forty or fifty miles of Keeler the Darson and Colorado road will be extended to connect with their road. As this concern is really the Union Pacific nothing better for our country could be done in the way of a railroad. Such connection would open the way for us, not only to San Diego and Los Angeles, but also to Chicago, St. Louis and the whole East. It would also give us the best possible route to San Francisco. There is sufficient reason to believe that the Union Pacific Company mean business, and will push the road through; it is also tolerably certain that the C. & C. road will connect with this road as soon as it reaches a suitable point.

A Real Statesman.

Senator Stewart is pushing hard to have a school for Indians built by the National Government in Nevada. He has got the matter so far ahead that as soon as the District Attorney reports on the title to the land where the school will be located advertisements for bids for the erection of the buildings will be at once published. This is but one of many projects the Nevada Senator is pushing ahead; and all of his measures are worthy of a great statesmen. His plan for the irrigation and reclamation of desert lands is one of the grandest and most beneficial ever proposed. If carried out as he intends it will add to the population of the Pacific Coast more people than we now have in the entire United States. Compared to such public service as this the showy triumphs of the leaders of armies sink into utter insignificance. The greatest Generals "Leave many a sweet babe fatherless, and many a widow mourning." But the work of such men as Senator Stewart multiplies happy homes and extends all the blessings of civilization to countless numbers of people. The ambition that prompts such work is truly noble and is deserving of the blessings, not the curses, of mankind.

Mining Notes.

Nothing is being done at the mill at Panamint. A few men are taking out ore in the neighborhood on their own account but the Surprise Mining Company is doing nothing.

Mr. C. Anthony has several men at work over at Riley taking out ore.

Fitzgerald & Gunn are getting out ore right along from the Minnietta and other mines at Lookout. They are also shipping ore steadily from the old dumps of those mines. The process of concentrating the ores from the dumps is quite successful; on an average seven tons from the dumps are reduced to one and this pays well for labor and transportation. The process of reduction is on the same plan as the old rockers used by gold miners in the early days.

Four or five men are employed at the Lucky Jim mine, at Darwin. They are taking out ore right along. Mr. J. A. McKenzie, owner of the mine, is at San Francisco.

Mr. J. Wilson has several tributers taking out ore in Lee District. Some of the ore is very rich, running up into the thousands of dollars per ton.

The ore body lately found by Dunphy & O'Keefe at Cerro Gordo is developing the features of a bonanza. Appearances indicate that it may turn out as big an ore body as that found in the Union mine, of which this is an extension. If it should yield even a quarter of the product of the Union mine it will make millionaires of its fortunate owners.

Successful.

While our farmers are constantly complaining of dull time and want of market it is in order to remind them frequently that last year one of our farmers realized $1,200 from six acres of orchard. This man takes good care of his fruit trees and sends his fruit to market neatly packed and in good condition. He never ships any but perfect fruit. Every year he has orders far beyond what he can fill. He has lately set out twenty-five acres of young orchard, most peach and apple trees. If farmers would succeed they must raise what people want to buy. First class fruit land with water can be bought in Owens Valley at prices ranging from twenty to thirty dollars per acre; in any other part of the State such land could not be bought for less than five times these prices; and here all kinds of fruit sell for far higher prices than anywhere else in the State.

Wigginses.

When the Conklin Brothers exchanged their cattle for horses plenty of comment was not wanting that they had made a poor bargain. It was said that "the horses are as wild as deer; they can't be kept inside of any fence; they will leave the pasture the first day and go back to the range," and a thousand other other troubles were predicted. None of these troubles have been experienced; the animals give not the least trouble and show no disposition to leave their new pasture. The commonest kind of fence is enough to keep them enclosed; they are fat, hearty and contented. Already forty colts have been dropped since the mares were moved to Blackrock and all are doing well. A horse of three years old is worth three times as much as a steer of the same age and costs no more to raise. The horse can be taken to market at any time but the steer can not, and often his owner can't sell him at any price. Then it is a fact that Owens Valley is much better suited to horses than to cattle.

A Live City.

A letter from a prominent citizen of Los Angeles, a banker, says that building is going on more extensively than ever. The writer says: "If you could drive about the city to-day you would think a fresh boom had struck us. Everywhere new buildings are going up; many of these are being built by our shrewdest and most conservative men A great deal of capital is being invested by Eastern people. I confess I am astonished myself at the enterprise and energy evident everywhere; and what confidence this shows in the permanent prosperity of the city." The Chamber of Commerce is doing grand work for Los Angeles, and consequently for all Southern California. Several new railroad enterprises are in hand and with good prospect of success for all of them.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John John A. Hannah, Judge.
TUESDAY, May 21.

Estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased—Horace M. Smith appointed Executor. Appraisers—J. B. Chamberlain, James Shaw and W. H. Powers.

Dangerous Predicament.

Sheriff Eldred was out collecting sheep license and last Tuesday stayed over night at the residence Mr. James R. Moffatt, at Georges Creek. His saddle horse was picketed near the house and during the night got frightened. Mr. Moffatt heard the animal making a commotion and got up to look after him. The horse was running around with the picket rope dragging on the ground and Mr. Moffatt made a leap to catch it; he alighted with one of his feet in the loop at the end of the rope and at the same instant the horse bounded away again, dragging Mr. Moffatt after him. The ground was plowed and after running a short distance the animal stopped an instant and snorted. Quick as thought Mr. Moffatt got his foot clear of the rope; though bruised and abraded severely he was not dangerously hurt. The horse went through several wire fences and came to Independence; he is badly cut by the wire.

Something must have hugely tickled old Mother Earth last Sunday morning down about San Francisco; she shook as though bursting with laughter. Perhaps she was laughing at the good people who imagine that the City can be freed from the rule of Boss Buckley.

Young men are in big luck—that is all of them who were not at that church festival in Connecticut where thirty-four persons were poisoned and killed by eating ice-cream. Should any fellow's girl now dare to hint that she likes ice-cream he can at once silence her, at least on that subject, by this awful example. As the darkey said "It's an ill wind that blows nowhar."

In June a line of steamers will be established between Yokohama and San Diego. The arrangement has been made between the Atchison Railroad Company and the Oriental Steamship Company. This is one of the many great enterprises now under way that will make all the wonderful progress in the past of Southern California seem but as a faint beginning of its far more wonderful future.

Another auction sale of land belonging to the Haggin ranch, in Kern county, was held last week. About 5,600 acres have been sold. Prices ranged from $17.50 to $65 per acre. The average price was $31.18 per acre. Including town lots the sales so far have realized $174,648.75. Most of the buyers were strangers in Kern county. Many thousand acres more wil be offered for sale.

The marble quarry is opening out better with every advance made. Mr. Luce writes as follows: "We are getting along slowly here having been short handed for a month or more. But we are opening one of the finest ledges that was ever uncovered. It is taking longer to get uncovered than we anticipated, but it will be all I ever expected it to be when it is opened. No limit to size, quantity and quality of blocks."

East from Mojave an artesian well is being bored. A young man who was employed hauling water to the well had his leg broken by a kick from a horse. Doctor Allingham had just arrived at Mojave when word was brough of the mishap. He went and put the broken leg in proper condition for healing. The case was of more than usual difficulty as a piece of bone was knocked out by the blow and in bandaging the leg an opening had to be left over this place. At last report the young man was getting alon, all right.

Nearly a year ago Mr. Danley Coffer with his family passed through Independence on his way to Ensenada, in Lower California, where he expected to go into business and stay. Last week he got back here with his family. He does not give a favorable report of the country. He says Owens Valley is the best country he found since leaving Lassen county, where he formerly lived, and intends to make his home here. At present he is staying with his brother-in-law, Mr. S. A. Dunsmore

The Kern county Californian of recen date contains an interesting article on olive culture. It is stated that one thousand dollars per acre is the average return for every year. It requires less care, less drudgery and less skill than do any of the fruits that are even half so profitable. The crop is almost an absolute certainty and each tree produces abundantly. The great hindrance to olive culture is that it requires ten years to get a tree in bearing from a cutting. Any land and climate suitable for grapes will produce olives profitably, though they will thrive on land that will neither support grapes nor anything else, often enriching it wonderfully.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Notice to Contractors

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Trustees of Union School District, of Inyo county, State of California, until June 17, 1889, for the material and erection of a Frame school House at or near the Half-Way House in said school district and in accordance with the plans and specifications in the hands of the clerk of said Board of Trustees.

Bids will be opened at the Half-Way House at 2 o'clock p. m. of Tuesday, June 18, 1889, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids received.

The party or parties to whom the above contract is let will be required to give a good and sufficient bond to be approved by said Board in the sum of $500, conditional on the faithful compliance with the terms thereof.

JOHN KISPERT,
FRED ALBERS,
W. L. HUNTER,
Trustees of Union School District.
Georges Creek, May 23, 1889.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 14th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 24th day of June 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUCE, Secretary.
Office—205 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods,
Groceries,
Clothing,
Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter,
Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL) P. H. MACK, Clerk.

(ENDORSED.)

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o 51

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of HENRY JAMES HARTSHORNE, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator at his residence at the Bishop Creek Hotel, on the east side of Main street, in the town of Bishop Creek, Inyo county, California.

HERBERT C. HARTSHORNE,
Administrator of the estate of Henry James Hartshorne, deceased.
Geo. M. Gill, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated March 20th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN B. WHITE, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, administrator of the estate of John B. White deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of A. R. Conklin Esq., in the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo.

A. N. BELL,
Administrator of the estate of John B. White, deceased.
A. R. Conklin, Attorney for Administrator.
Dated at Independence, March 23, 1889.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Notice for publication of time appointed for probate of will.

Notice is hereby given that Monday, the twentieth day of May A. D. 1889, at five o'clock p. m. of said day, and the Court Room of said Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, State of California, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the will of said Joel H. Smith, deceased and for hearing the application of Horace M. Smith for the issuance to him of letters testamentary thereon.

P. H. MACK, Clerk.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Petitioner
Dated May 1, 1889.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

(ENDORSED.)

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o-4

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL
Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.,
Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 256 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you.
Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.
Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully
Equal to the Best.
Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.
A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

GENERAL MERCHAND

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
AT
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
AND AT
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.
SPRATT & CREASER,
sep1 tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.
JOHN C. EVANS, Sweetwater, Mo., writes: "I received and after trial a Washer never saw so hard labor and money in my family as in any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on my farm and know this labor in cultivation. If you will send us any instrument that will take as much labor of mine as the Washer takes of the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more, I could sell one at every house. If they had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it."
JOHN B. DODGE, JR., jeweler, Nonant, Ills., writes: "You ask what I think of the Washer. I bought instead of Christmas. Yes, it is the best machine ever invented by man. Yes, We have had good dinners on Monday ever since the day. Yes, If you run short, you can not buy more for glass."
I will ship a sample to show, defying any agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best machine in the world for saving labor, clothes and soap. Pays capable agents big money. Write for particulars.
J. WORTH, 2719 Franklin Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

VIVID WRITING.

A little descriptive piece entitled "Over the Guns," from the Detroit Free Press, of which we give a paragraph, reminds us that great advertisers, like H. H. Warner & Co., proprietors of Warner's celebrated Safe Cure, might get a hint from it.

Here is the paragraph:

"Shoot to the right or left, over the guns or under them. Strike where you will, but strike to destroy. Now the hell surges down, even to the windows of the old farm-house—now back under the apple trees and beyond them. Dead men are under the ponderous wheels of the guns, mad devils are slashing and shooting across the barrels. No one seems to know friend from foe. Shoot, slash, kill and—

"But the hell is dissolved. The smoke is lifting, shrieks and screams grow fainter, and twenty or thirty living men pull the dead bodies away from the guns. Three hundred dead and wounded on the single acre. They tell of war and glory. Look over this hell's acre and find the latter." And in just as deadly a strife, though noiseless, are men falling at our right and left to-day. Is it war? Yes, war of the blood. Blood loaded with poison through imperfect kidney action. And is there no power to stop this awful slaughter? Yes, Warner's Safe Cure, a tried specific, a panacea that has brought life and hope to hundreds of thousands of dying men and women.

Be enlisted therefore, in the great army of living men and women who have been rescued from disease and premature death, and be eternally grateful that the means of life can so easily be yours.

THE FARMER'S GARDEN.

What a Well-Known Agricultural Editor Has to Say About It.

At the recent farmers' institute in Albany, Dr. Hexamer, an expert gardener of long experience, now editor of the Agriculturist, gave a grand talk on the "Farmer's Garden." Here are some of his good points: To the mind of the average farmers the garden is a nuisance, and on most farms, this is true. A small plot inclosed by a fence or wall, too small to do any of the work of cultivation by horse-power the only work ever done there is on rainy days, when it's too wet to work in the field. The average value of all the field crops in the country is not much above fifteen dollars per acre. But who can begin to estimate the value of a good garden where all variety of fruits and vegetable are grown? And the home market of the family table will take them all at highest prices. To the old chestnut of so many farmers that "the press of more important work on the farm" makes it impossible for them to have a good garden, the Doctor replied: "Take an acre of your best land, and devote it to garden purposes; plan the planting so that the horse and cultivator can be made to do most of the work, and then hire a man just to take care of the garden. Those of its products that are used in the family will more than pay his wages, any surplus can be sold and be turned to a clear profit, while fully two-thirds of the man's time can be devoted to general farm work, thus giving extra labor without cost."

I am satisfied the doctor is right, for a friend of mine having a half-acre city lot bought his fertilizers, hired the land plowed, and planted thereon twenty-six dollars' worth of plants and seeds. He kept an account of all money paid out for labor, plants, seeds, manure, etc., for five years, and charged his family at market rates for all fruits and vegetables consumed. He told me that this half-acre paid him a profit of $150 annually. And such a half-acre should be on every farm. The family will appreciate it, and it will help largely to reduce the butchers' and grocers' bills.

Ask the busy, hard-working farmer who has a very poor garden or none at all, simply because he has so much else to attend to, what he is working so hard for, and the answer will be, "to make a living;" that is, producing crops to sell, that he may have cash to pay his taxes with, keep up ordinary repairs, and purchase food for self and family—which, of course, is right and proper. Yet, when he can be made to realize that three acres of ordinary farm crops will have to be grown and sold to bring money enough to purchase food products equal in value for his family table to what he can purchase in one half-acre garden, the complete garden will find its place on every farm, even if other things must be neglected. What a mistake to grow and sell crops at wholesale and then turn around and take the cash and buy at retail for our family when so much can be produced at home.

—Rev. Augustine Francis Hewit, who succeeds Father Hecker as Superior-General of the Paulist Fathers, was born in Connecticut sixty-eight years ago. He is of a literary turn of mind, and has written many books. Associated with him is Father Deshon, who was at one time looked upon as Father Hecker's probable successor.

—When "Our Mutual Friend" appeared it was enthusiastically reviewed in the London Times by the late Mr. Dallas. Dickens was so pleased with the article that he gave to Dallas the MS. of the story, the critic metaphorically clasping it to his heart and protesting that he would never part with the precious thing. A little while after he sold it to Mr. Childs for twelve hundred and fifty dollars.

—Gladstone was invited by a Western editor to contribute an article on "Washington." The English statesman declined in the following words written on a post-card: "I am much honored by your letter. But I can not act upon it. Washington is a noble subject. I studied him forty years ago with love and admiration. But it is not in my power now to renew the study, and I should not like to profane the theme by thin and slovenly work."

—Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, the London preacher, receives an average of 500 letters a day, and he employs three secretaries to answer the communications which come to him from all parts of the world. The enormous revenues of his church, or "Tabernacle," are entirely devoted to the various philanthropic movements in which the reverend gentleman is interested, as the ample income derived from his books and sermons is more than sufficient for the needs of himself and family.

ALLEN GRAY

— OR, —

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

CHAPTER XVI.

A DESPERATE DETERMINATION.

Allen smiled. The man from Billy's Creek had cultivated his ill-temper until he was enabled to fly into a passion on the slightest notice. Some men do this, apparently, for no other reason than to make themselves miserable.

Growing tired of the silly fellow's antics, the editor turned to his desk and tried to bury himself in his business. But notwithstanding the many exciting and ludicrous events, his mind was not wholly won away from the mystery which seemed to be really blighting his life, and kept his thoughts from business. In his busiest moments, amid the most exciting events, the cry: "In Heaven's name spare him!" rang on his ear. The sweet, sad face of the mystic girl, whom he could not but love, seemed always before him, pleading with her large blue eyes for relief.

"Who are you? Who are you?" he asked himself again and again as the vision rose before his mind. Ten thousand tormenting fiends seemed constantly aggravating him with their doubts and fears.

"I will know the worst," he declared to himself. "If I have to beard the lion in his den, I will know all."

The stranger from Billy's Creek was forgotten, so wholly was Allen absorbed with thoughts of the stone house on the hill. The rustic bully had grown weary with cursing and striking the air, and, as no one seemed to dispute his title to be "the best man on dirt," he left the village, to carry to his friends a wonderful story of how he had made the editor quail.

The editor, meantime, sat in oblivion of his existence, when he was startled by a sob. Looking around, he was not a little surprised to see Miss Lecthy Hopkins standing just within the door.

"Why, Miss Hopkins, are you here?" the wondering editor asked.

"Ah, are you hurt?" she sobbed, hysterically.

"No," he answered, in astonishment.

"Oh, I—that is—sir—I was afraid that violence had been done you," gasped Miss Hopkins, sinking into a chair.

"I assure you that I am uninjured."

"But he looked so furious!"

"There is little danger in looks."

"And I had such a dread of him."

"He is gone now, and can do you no injury," said the editor, misinterpreting the old maid.

"Oh, Mr. Gray, I—I would not have had him injure you for the world, and we were talking so pleasantly, too, when he came in."

"So we were," returned Allen. "I believe we were talking about the mystery of Turley's Point, were we not?"

"No, no—oh, you rogue, you know about what we were talking," said Miss Leethy, wiping her eyes and blushing profusely behind her handkerchief.

If he comprehended Miss Hopkins he did not pretend to, but in a cool, even voice said:

"I was going to ask you something about that old house on the hill."

"Don't you know it is a forbidden topic?"

"Yes, generally it is," he answered, with a sigh. "It is not every one that I would talk with on this subject, but as we have occasionally exchanged confidence on other subjects, we might on this."

"Oh, of course." She managed to blush quite profusely now, and coyly pinching at the folds of her dress, gathered them down into narrow plaits.

"I thought you would be willing to tell me all you knew about the matter."

"Oh, yes."

She sighed and gave him a glance from the corner of her eyes.

"What is the name of the man who lives in the stone house?" Allen asked, without noticing her look or making an effort to translate it.

"Some say it's Collins, but he has a great, big French name, something like De Collieur, which they say is his real name, and that he took the name of Collins in place of it, because it is easier to pronounce."

"How many have they in family at the rock house?"

"That is very difficult to ascertain. Some say there are several, others that there are not many. They have a good many servants, but, as all talk French, no one can find out any thing from them."

"Did it never strike you that there is a great deal of romance about this singularly mysterious old house on the hill?"

"Yes, sir, it has," she answered; "and I believe that it would be an excellent theme for a story."

"It might. What do you know of it?"

"Oh, not much."

"How long have you known that tall, dark-whiskered man?"

"I don't know him at all."

"You mean you have no formal acquaintance?"

"No, sir."

"How long since you first saw him?"

"Three or four years ago."

"Had he been here before that time?"

"I have heard that he had. He has been living at the old stone house on the hill, at short periods, for several years."

"I believe you said that a young lady was once seen within those walls?"

"Yes, sir; that was only a few months ago. I have heard that she was seen again within the last few days. Some one discovered her sitting on a rustic seat beneath an old oak, at a spring on the hillside, between the village and the rock house."

"Who is she?"

"No one knows. She seems to be an additional mystery. It is generally supposed that she is the daughter of the dark-whiskered master of the stone house."

"She has no resemblance to him whatever," interposed Allen.

"You have seen her then."

"From the description I have had of her, she has no resemblance to him."

"No; yet parents and children are sometimes very dissimilar."

"Do you think she has lived there long?"

"No, sir, she can not have been there more than a few months at most," answered Miss Hopkins. "She was never seen about the place until recently."

"Have you ever heard of any children being seen or heard there?"

"No, sir."

"Do you think there are any?"

"There are none. They would find it impossible to keep a child within those great walls so quiet and silent that it would not be seen or heard by some one," answered the school-teacher.

"Does that dark-whiskered man make frequent trips away?"

"I suppose he does—it is seldom, however, that any one ever sees him go away or come back. For weeks at a time he is not seen, and then we know he is away from the old house on the hill. Then all of a sudden he is discovered walking about the big house, or even coming to the village, but making the acquaintance of no one. Some people think that he is the chief of a banditti and goes away to his rendezvous occasionally. Then there is an old mother Tiffin who believes in witchcraft. She says he is a wizard, and that the strange sights seen and strange voices heard there so often are the result of his wild incantations and invocations of the evil spirit. I have heard people say that they have heard screams, shrieks and wild, demoniac laughter from within that old house, which almost froze the blood in their veins."

Allen, having witnessed some of those strange sights and heard some of those mysterious noises, did not think that she was exaggerating them in the least. But his strong common sense told him that there was nothing supernatural in all he had seen and heard. It could all be very easily accounted for if properly understood. He was not so much interested in the house and the mysterious sights and sounds emanating from it as in the beautiful, mysterious Bertha.

"Do you know any thing of the young lady?" he asked.

"No, sir," she answered, curtly, while an expression flitted over her face which he could not understand, unless it was a tinge of jealous fear.

"Did you ever hear any thing about her?"

"Only what I have told you," she answered. "She has never been seen but twice."

He could have told much more of the great stone house on the hill than any one knew had he chose to do so, but he determined to keep his counsel to himself.

The conversation began to drag, and as was growing late, and she considered the young editor free from any further danger at present, Miss Leethy Hopkins left the office. Allen's face was convulsed with mental anguish, and, striking his desk with his fist, he said:

"This has gone far enough. Be it life or death, misery or happiness, Heaven or hell, I will probe that mystery—I will know all before another sun rises. I will go to the tall stranger and demand an explanation, even if he shoots me dead on his doorstep. Death is preferable to another night of misery and doubt."

With this desperate resolve fresh on his lips and engraven in his heart he seized his hat, and leaving Toby to close the office, left the village and hurried up the old disused road to the great stone house on the hill.

CHAPTER XVII.

HOW TURLEY'S POINT DEFEATED HERSELF.

When Allen Gray reached the house on the hill, instead of going around it as he had done on former occasions, he walked directly up to the great front gate and tried to enter it; but it was locked.

His first thought was to scale the wall, which he could have done by going to the rear, but seeing a servant in the front yard he called to him.

"I want to see your master," he said.

The servant, who understood some English, shook his head, saying:

"Ze monsieur gone—ze monsieur gone. Mons eur no come—no come bon jour monsieur!" And turning about, went away.

Allen waited a long while at the gate, hoping he would see some one else to whom he could appeal. Darkness came over the earth, and he was at last forced to leave. Slowly and sadly he turned about and went down the hill, his head bowed in thought.

"After all, am I not a fool?" he said. "Why need I care? What can she be to me?" But it was folly for him to attempt to drive her image from his mind; it had been indelibly stamped upon his heart and could never be effaced. She had been no coquette seeking conquests; she had made no advance nor evinced any boldness, even when visiting him by night, to have him take the little boy to Frenchtown.

She seemed to have been reared in seclusion and taught to look upon every one as an enemy. It was only the direst necessity that induced her to trust him on that occasion.

"I will banish her from my mind," he resolved, and for weeks made heroic efforts to do so. He was partially aided by the petty annoyances, which, like the sting of hornets, tended to divert his mind from greater suffering.

It was only a week after his unsuccessful visit to the great stone house that he was interrupted one morning by the abrupt entrance of Mr. Tom Simmons.

"I want to know the truth from you!" cried the excited Simmons.

"Do you mean to insinuate that I have been telling you falsehoods?" demanded Allen, angrily.

"No—no—I don't; but I want to know all of it now."

"Tell me what it is you want to know,

"I WANT TO SEE YOUR MASTER."

and you shall know all of it?" said Allen with considerable spirit.

"Do you intend supportin' me for the Legislatur'?"

"I have signed, sealed and delivered a contract to do so, and I certainly will."

"Are you goin' to support Gen. Strong?"

"Not for Representative."

"For any office?"

"Yes."

"What?" roared Tom Simmons.

"For sheriff."

"Is he runnin' for sheriff?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you tell me sooner? Have ye published my announcement yit?"

"It is set up, and will appear with the next issue?"

"Change it. Put me in for sheriff. I wouldn't hev the Legislatur' if I could get it. I'm goin' to run fur sheriff."

"But remember your contract—you were to run for the Legislature."

"I tell ye I don't want it. I've got ye pledged in writin' to support me, an' I'm agoin' to run fur sheriff an' bust him up or die."

"But look at your contract and see if you can. Don't you see that if you refuse to run for Representative and declare yourself a candidate for any other office, that you forfeit to me the sum of one thousand dollars?"

"It's a trick; ye've set up a job on me," cried Tom Simmons, furiously. "I'll not stand it."

"You have signed the agreement."

"But you wasn't to work for Strong."

"Nothing was said about whom I should or should not support for any other office. With my paper and influence I was to support you for the Legislature, and that was all."

Tom Simmons, the ambitious politician Turley's Point, left the office scratching his head in perplexity and wondering how he was to get even with his enemy, Strong. He was not so anxious to be elected himself as he was to beat Strong. He had only got one block from the printing office when he saw his enemy entering it.

"There, now he's goin' in there to lay plans to bust me up; I know it," said Simmons.

Allen had scarce got rid of one of the Turley's Point politicians, and turned again to his desk, when the door of his sanctum opened and Mr. Strong burst in.

"I swar, things hev got to come to a focus!" he roared, in a fury.

"Very well, sir, let them focus," said Allen, somewhat spiritedly. "What is wrong?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Louisville Courier-Journal declares that the colored people of the South have a mania for going to the Postoffice 365 days in every year, except leap year, when they go 366 days, and inquiring for a letter without ever getting one.

—A Todd County (Ky.) couple were recently married after having been engaged a quarter of a century. During twenty-two years of the time the gentleman never once missed calling to see his bride-elect Sunday.

—A gentleman in Craig County, Va., named Brickey, has three children whose names are, respectively, Jailey Green Bird Mayflower Brickey, Oregon Texas Georgiana Brickey and Molina Truxilla Eutaw Sebilia Tootater Brickey.

—While William Jackson, a Chicago roofer was sliding down a roof a distance of forty-five feet, he had time to tell a fellow workman that he owed three debts and had the money in his trunk to pay them. Then he reached the eave and went to his death on the frozen earth.

IN GREAT LUCK.

How Geo. Lowber and Four Friends Struck it Rich in The Louisiana State Lottery.

The Item reporter found George Lowber at his home, 1936 Bainbridge St., last evening, and said: "I understand you were one of the fortunate ones last month."

"Yes," answered Mr. Lowber, who is a good sized young man and a good humored one, too. "We had a one-tenth of ticket No. 2,887 in the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery."

"And you got a prize?" interrogated the reporter.

"Yes, sir; it drew $30,000."

"Have you gotten the money yet?"

"Oh, yes, we got that very promptly without any trouble. We just gave our ticket to the express company for collection and got a draft on New York."

"How did you come to go into the lottery, Mr. Lowber?" asked the repoiter

"Oh, I don't know," was the answer, smilingly given. "We knew about it, and thought, I suppose, that we might just as well try it for fun, but, of course, we believed that we might win something, too."

"I notice you always say 'we,' Mr. Lowber. Was there any one in with you on this ticket?"

"Oh, yes, there were five of us in it. We are all old associates, companions and friends; all young men and all hard working men. We each had an equal share in the ticket. My brother was one of us."

"Going to buy a house now, I suppose?"

"No, I don't think any of us will buy houses. Nearly all are working men. One is a carpenter, another a plumber, and so on. These two, the carpenter and plumber, are talking of using the money to start themselves up in business. I think that a good idea.

"We first saw that our ticket had won a prize in the Item the day after the drawing. Of course, we were a happy crowd that night. It was a great piece of good luck."—Philo. (Pa.) Item, March 29.

AN OLD LAND MARK.

Among the old land marks of San Francisco, and around which nothing but pleasant memories cling, is the PACIFIC BANK. No depositors can say they have lost money in this staunch institution. It stands at the head of all that is just and right, and has become a synonym through twenty-five years of continued prosperity, of all that is solid, substantial and reliable in a financial sense.

A Connecticut man appointed to office would be a persona grata to the state at large.—Hartford paper. A kind of a wooden nutmeg grata rather, eh?—Washington Critic.

For an Irritated Throat, Cough, or Cold, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy. Sold only in boxes.

No remedy for sexual debility has ever been found that equals Dujardin's Life Essence. It restores feeble powers and invigorates the whole system. A simple trial will convince the most sceptical. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FULL WEIGHT PURE

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alum. Sold only in Cans.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK, CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

WHY YOU SHOULD USE
SCOTT'S EMULSION
OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES.

It is Palatable as Milk.
It is three times as efficacious as plain Cod Liver Oil.
It is far superior to all other so-called Emulsions.
It is a perfect Emulsion, does not separate or change.
It is wonderful as a flesh producer.
It is the best remedy for Consumption, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Wasting Diseases, Chronic Cough and Colds.

Sold by all Druggists.

S. F. N. U. No. 357. New Series No. 16.

SAFE AND EFFECTIVE.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the safest and most effective remedy for Indigestion, Irregularity of the bowels, Constipation, Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, Malaria, or any disease arising from an impure state of the blood. They have been in use in this country for over fifty years, and the thousands of unimpeachable testimonials from those who have used them, and their constantly increasing sale, is incontrovertible evidence that they perform all that is claimed for them.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless and safe to take at any time.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

A restaurant at West Chester, Penn., announces imported frogs from Europe.

UNDESERVEDLY LAUGHED AT.

The unthinking are prone to make game of nervousness. Yet this is a very real and serious affliction, the harassing symptoms of which are rendered all the more poignant by ridicule. The stomach is usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve tonic and tranquillizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion, it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headaches, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these modify and ultimately disappear as the system gains strength from the great tonic. Dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, constipation and kidney complaints are subdued by the Bitters.

Indiana sleeping-car companies are taxed 4 per cent of their gross earnings.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromaticcards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Russian tea at $4 a pound is the kind used at afternoon receptions in New York.

HAPPY RECOVERY.

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout N. Y., at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my kidneys, from which I never expected to recover. My physicians said I had Bright's disease. Later I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember that day—I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never had a return of the disease, and though I am over sixty years of age I am vigorous and strong, as I was in my prime. What physicians and the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did; it stayed the disease and made me a well woman.—Mrs. Emiline P. Mazner, Burg Hill, O.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

It is claimed that Pittsburg is now the cleanest of all the large Western cities.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will sent free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
—FOR—
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

Having for the past four or five years been troubled with pimples and blotches on my face and body, and finding no relief in any of the chemically prepared soaps and medicines prescribed for me by physicians, I concluded to try your S. S. S. remedy, and have found great relief in the same, four bottles clearing my skin entirely. I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are in the position that I have been in. You can use this letter and my name as a testimonial to the merits of the S. S. S. remedy.
Very truly yours, ALFRED P. ROBINSON,
320 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.
☞ Send for our books on Blood and Skin Diseases and advice to sufferers, mailed free.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

DON'T BE A GULL!

Because a gull is a very foolish bird that will swallow anything you offer it. When you ask for "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" Smoking Tobacco, and the dealer wants you to try some cheap brand on which he makes a much larger profit. He is simply trying to "gull" you. He knows as well as you do that "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" is the most popular and the best Smoking Tobacco on the Pacific Coast.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again, I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

HAIRY FACES! M. Graham's Depilatory Paste is guaranteed to remove hair and check its growth. $1.50 by mail. Send 2c stamp for book "How to be Beautiful." MRS. GERVAISE GRAHAM, "Beauty Doctor," 21 Powell St., San Francisco.

OPIUM and MORPHINE ANTIDOTES. Dr. Weatherby's Antidotes, in use 17 years. Special Morphine Habit Cure also. Correspondence Confidential. Call on or address J. L. AIKEN, Manager, Room 28, St. Ann's Building, San Francisco.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

KNABE PIANOS. It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments. A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 132 Post street, S. F.

PRIVATE Information, either sex, sealed, free. Private Disease cured. Madrid-Paris Co., San Francisco, Cal.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

St. Jacobs Oil Cures STIFFNESS. Stiff Neck, Soreness
AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

Diamond Vera-Cura FOR DYSPEPSIA.
A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION AND ALL Stomach Troubles Arising Therefrom.
Your Druggist or General Dealer will get Vera-Cura for you if not already in stock, or it will be sent by mail on receipt of 25 cts. (5 boxes $1.00) in stamps. Sample sent on receipt of 2-cent stamp.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.
Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roemish Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 203 Post Street, San Francisco.

SECRETS Free Masonary, Signs, Grips and Morgan's fate by mail on receipt $1 People's Pub. Co., St Paul, Minn.

WELL DRILLS FOR EVERY PURPOSE. Sold on Trial!
Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large, illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by
F. C. AUSTIN MANUF'G CO., 167 & 169 Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

BIG G Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mf'd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio. Trade Mark $1.00. Sold by Druggists.

I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease.
G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.
We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction.
D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill.

R. H. McDonald PRES'T. E. V. McDonald, CASHIER. ESTABLISHED 1863. Oldest Chartered Bank on the Pacific Coast. PACIFIC BANK. Capital Stock $1,000,000.00. Surplus $700,000.00. Av. Resources $4,500,000.00
Returning thanks for past favors, we respectfully ask a continuance of the same and solicit accounts of Individuals, Firms and Corporations.
R. H. McDONALD, President.
San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1, 1889.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS
RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND.
Original, best, only genuine and reliable pill for sale. Never Fail. Ask for Chichester's English Diamond Brand, in red metallic boxes, sealed with blue ribbon. At Druggists. Accept no other. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are a dangerous counterfeit. Send 4c. (stamps) particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return mail. 10,000 testimonials from LADIES who have used them. Name Paper.
Chichester Chemical Co., Madison Sq., Phila., Pa.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH, Carbolic Sheep Wash,
T. W. Jackson & Co., Mfr. Agents, 104 Market St.

A BIG SHOW
Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite, and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

ASTHMA CURED
GERMAN ASTHMA CURE
Instantly relieves the most violent attack, and insures comfortable sleep. NO WAITING for RESULTS. Being used by inhalation, it acts in immediate, direct and certain, manner, and is the result in all curable cases. A single trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00 of any druggist, or by mail. Sample Free for stamp. Dr. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

ANY ONE CAN DYE A Dress, or a Coat, Ribbons, Feathers, Yarns, Rags, etc. DIAMOND DYES. Any Color FOR TEN CENTS and in many other ways SAVE Money, and make things look like NEW, by using DIAMOND DYES. The work is easy, simple, quick, the colors the BEST and FASTEST known. Ask for DIAMOND DYES and take no other.
For Gilding or Bronzing Fancy Articles USE DIAMOND PAINTS. Gold, Silver, Bronze, Copper. Only 10 Cents.

Baby Portraits.
A Portfolio of beautiful baby pictures from life, printed on fine plate paper by patent photo process, sent free to Mother of any Baby born within a year. Every Mother wants these pictures; send at once. Give Baby's name and age.
WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., BURLINGTON, VT.

Cleanse the System
DO IT NOW
With that most reliable medicine—Paine's Celery Compound. It purifies the blood, cures Constipation, and regulates the liver and kidneys, effectually cleansing the system of all waste and dead matters.
Paine's Celery Compound
combines a true nerve tonic and strengthing qualities, reviving the energies and spirits.
"I have been troubled for some years with a complication of difficulties. After trying various remedies and not finding relief, I tried Paine's Celery Compound. Before taking one full bottle the long troublesome symptoms began to subside, and I can truly say now, that I feel like a new man. Digestion has improved, and I have gained ten pounds in weight since I have commenced taking the Compound."
HONESTUS STEARNS, Fairhville, Vt.
$1.00. Six for $5.00. At Druggists.
WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington, Vt.

AFTERNOON TEA.

Said Mrs. G. to Mrs. D.
('Twas o'er a cup of fine Bohea):
"Our pretty hostess yonder,
Has gained in looks surprisingly;
She seems as well as well can be!
What is the cause, I wonder?"

Said Mrs. D. to Mrs. G.
"She's changed indeed, but then, you see,
She put aside objection,
And tried that famous remedy,
Which did so much for you and me—
Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

For "run-down," debilitated and overworked women, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is a potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to Women; a powerful tonic and nervine, it imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, nausea, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness. It is carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee of satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Copyrighted, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets
THE ORIGINAL LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Purely Vegetable and Perfectly Harmless.
Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, cheapest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels. 25 cents, by druggists.

THE BEST
CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY....JUNE 1, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 51. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 1, 1889. WHOLE NO. 970.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 20

A REAL GHOST.

It was during one of my annual business trips to the west that I had occasion to stop over a few hours at Loderville, where two or three small customers needed attention. My business with them was somewhat delayed, so that I had a few minutes to reach the station, only to learn that the train had just gone. The last car, in fact, was disappearing around the curve, and winked a red eye at me from the rear platform, while from between the distant hills the locomotive shrieked back its derision at my discomfiture. I was out of breath and out of temper, and there was no train until 10 o'clock the next morning. So I picked up my valise, and got into a shabby stage, inscribed with tarnished gilt letters, "Loderville House."

The supper was good. But this adjective, though applying well enough to the main body of the repast, does but scant justice to the desert. This crown and glory of the meal was a pie, a mince pie, compounded by the landlady herself. When I think of the worse than worthless immitation of this noble American dish that flaunt at every railroad restaurant, and appears unabashed at first-class hotel tables, invading even the sacred domain of home, to impose upon the digestion of the very elect, and then recall the memory of this magnificent pie with its delecious depths and delicately blended flavors, I do not wonder that my prudence forsook me. Forgetting that pie at night never agreed with me, and that mince pie never did, I swallowed section after section, regardless of consequences.

After supper I looked over the local newspaper, and examined the county map hanging on the wall, and then sat down before the fireplace and listened to the gossip of the idlers who are the invariable attaches of every village tavern. There was much discussion concerning "crops," and the coming election, together with the doctrinal unsoundness of Parson Wobley, and the worldly-mindedness of Mrs. Parson Wobley. Then the misdeeds of certain moonshiners was an absorbing theme.

By and by, a long and melancholy-featured young man made his way in between the chairs. His brow was dark, as were his eyes, and his hair was also dark and long. Though scarcely speaking a word, I recognized him at once as the village genius. He did not come in from outside, but apparently lived in the house. Then a dozen greetings went up from the circle, and another familiar apparition was framed in the doorway. Sam Lawson, I may as well call him, Sam at any rate was his name, village historian, annalist, and authority for every local happening twenty miles around. Without care, and without hurry, he slouched leisurely in, and stretched his long limbs in the seat which was promptly made for him before the blaze. It took him a long time to answer, in his slow, deliberate fashion, all the questions which were put to him. He had been up the milk-crik way a helpen' Widder Baker for a spell. Pulling a little package from his pocket, he said: "Gentlemen, there's some articles in this paper which many of you well remember, though its nigh on to thirty years sence the owner of them was amongst us. I allude to the late Judge Jedwood."

"Judge Jedwood!" chorused twenty voices at once. "What about him? Tell us!"

"You all well know, gentleman," continued Sam, unheeding the clamor, "how the judge stopped three days at this hotel before proceedin' on his last journey to the other side of Ball's mountain. Nobody, excepting them as hadn't ought, knew that he carried $500 in gold sewed up in his clothes when he set out on hossback. Old Daddy Appleton was the last who seen him ride into Baker's Notch. Not a soul ever see him ride out."

Here a sunburnt farmer broke in. "Why, that there Notch has been haunted ever sence. I don't care as how Parson Wobley says it's onscriptural to believe in ghosts. Don't ketch me round that there again after dark, I can tell ye," he pursued, with much energy. "I knowed I see a spook the night I druv home from Cap'n Beasley's."

"Guess it was some of Cap. Beasley's sperrits then," retorted one of the younger skeptics.

"Sperrits or spooks, I don't want to see no more of 'em. Didn't Jim Safford, who was tuk up on suspicion, move away from the Notch because he never could look out of his window nights without a seein' a white figger of the judge, swallow-tail coat, brass buttons, and all, a standin' out in the woods."

Here a curious light appeared in the eye of the Genius, and I was relieved to see him almost disappear behind the chimney jamb.

"Gentleman," resumed Sam, impressively, "allusion has been made to the blue coat with the brass buttons which the judge always wore. Them ten buttons with the American eagles on 'em—you all remember 'em, I dare say."

Everybody who was old enough did.

"Them ten buttons," Sam continued, "were always polished up bright, and looked like gold pieces. They don't look so any more, for here they are," and he unrolled the paper.

The excitement following this disclosure was quite indescribable, and the ten mildewed, rusty disks of metal were eagerly passed from hand to hand amid questions and exclamations. The faint outlines of an eagle were imperfectly traced on each one. Everybody implored Sam to explain, which he did, as soon as they gave him a chance.

"Waal, you see, Widow Baker's grandsons were a stoppin' up at the Notch farm, and I tell ye, when it comes to raisin' the devil generally, it would be putty hard to find the beat of them ere two youngsters. Yesterday they was a-playin' down at the crik, and all to wanst they set up a screech, and up they cum through the brush yellin' and howlin' as if a tribe of injuns were behind 'em. I was a choppin' wood, and I looked up and see the boys runnin' like mad, and smoke comin' up from the Hollow.

"'What have you been up to now, you young varmits,' says I, 'a settin' fire to the wood again?'

"'Oh, it's wusser nor fire,' blubbered little Pete, and then howled again.

"'Waal, come along then,' said I, shoulderin' the axe; 'anything wusser than fire and Injuns must be putty bad.'

"I walked down to the little crik that runs through the Notch, and there, sure enough, at the end of a big tree that lays across it the boys had kindled a fire. Waal, gentlemen, my knees did knock together a bit, when I see, right in the middle of that fire, a skull grinnin' at me through the flames. Then I see that the tree, where it was burned away, was all holler, and inside was full of the bones of a skeleton. All to wunst I remembered Judge Jedwood and the brass buttons on his coat, and I scraped around till I found every one of them ere ten buttons jess as you see 'em."

It took a long time for the company to settle down after this, and then every incident of the great Baker Notch mystery was recalled, and every theory regarding it was reviewed, proved, and disproved many times over. After all the bones and the buttons were not likely after thirty years to bring the murderers to justice. It was growing late; some of the company were already moving, so I concluded to go upstairs to bed. Out of the warmth and light, I passed through the dark hallway, and heard the moaning wind through the distant trees, and thought once more of the musty sheets on the bed. My room, a sort of cavern, in a distant wing of the building, with its one dim kerosene-lamp, was anything but cheerful. Alone in the stillness my conscience awoke and reminded me of those wedges of mince pie. And then the story of the skeleton in the flames began to assume grotesque forms in my imagination. Fumbling in my vest-pocket for my watch key, I drew out not the key, but something hard and rough which sent a thrill through every nerve in my right arm. It was only one of the judge's buttons which I must have absently thrust into my pocket. My watch had run down—an ominous incident—and it had stopped at the very hour when they said the judge had left the hotel. These gloomy fancies made me anxious to get under the bedclothes; if only I had not eaten the pie. There was my brandy-flask, but, unluckily, it was empty. It was too late to stumble downstairs through the dark, to replenish it at the bar; everybody was certainly in bed by this time. I rummaged in my valise for something to read, but finding only a pack of cards, and sat down and played two games of solitaire on the bed. Then a strong odor filled the room. My lamp was going out, and there was nothing for it but to throw off my clothes and jump into bed.

I can not say how long I had been asleep—it might have been two hours, perhaps—when I became conscious that somebody was in the room. It was too dark to see anything distinctly, and I only knew that the door was open on account of the strong draught which blew from that direction. Positive as I was that somebody was approaching the bedside, I felt powerless to stir, though remembering with horror that the murdered official had passed in this hotel, perhaps in this very room, his last night on earth. With a great effort, however, I rolled over, and to my unspeakable terror, beheld the white and vapory form of a man, of about fifty years of age, it seemed, bald-headed, chin-whiskered, and wearing an antique dress-coat, with ten button-holes, but no buttons. My ghostly visitor did not, at first, seem to regard me with any ill-will, until his attention became fixed upon something lying in the corner. It was one of his own buttons. With a threatening gesture the apparition advanced to the spot where I lay, and though fear had nearly paralyzed me, I made a mighty effort for the ghostly conflict. There was a shudder and a shock, and then—then I found myself on the floor, not in my own room at all, but outside in the hall. Mince-pie, somnambulism, nightmare, I said to myself, as I groped along to my room, with that feeling of relief which one has when awakening from a bad dream, and almost ready to laugh over my combat with a ghost in a dress-coat. Outside, in the night, the elements were at war; the hosts of wind and rain which I had heard from afar in the evening were sweeping around the house. After much groping about, and trying of many doors, I at length found a knob which yielded, and turned it quickly. Now I could sleep in peace until morning, was my consoling thought, when I looked up, and there, in the farthest corner of the room which I had entered, it stood, not distinct, as before, but barely defined in the darkness. Then came a crash which shook the earth and sky, and the room blazed for an instant, and was black again. A great wind smote me in the face, and the apparition itself seemed suddenly to advance. This was no dream I very well knew, as I slammed the door, hearing a crash behind it, and ran wildly down the hall, and through the first open door that I came to. Providentially, the room was mine, and, leaping into bed, I dived into its very bowels, as it were, where I slept until morning.

It was late when I awoke. A warm square or morning sunlight lay on my coverlid, while earth and air, cleansed and freshened by the rain seemed to laugh at my gloomy nocturnal visions. A rusty old brass button lay harmlessly in the corner. I dressed myself and went down-stairs, where everything wore a commonplace and every-day aspect. I began to suspect my senses. Perhaps the second specter, like the first, was only a dream, and had no other foundation than the pie-dish; but no, this could not be. The landlord was not about, and Lawson had disappeared. I heard one of the hostlers laughing at the mention of Sam's stories. I ate my breakfast alone—an excellent one—and grew more doubtful concerning my apparitions. The whole thing was only a nightmare. I would worry myself no more about it. And with this comfortable after-breakfast skepticism, concerning all spirit-world manifestations whatever, I was met in the passage-way leading from the dining-room by the sallow, long-haired Genius of the night before, who beckoned me mysteriously aside into the parlor.

"What do you want?" I demanded impatiently, sitting down on a hair-cloth sofa, under a large steel-engraving of Washington crossing the Delaware. The Genius closed the door behind him.

"You have beheld it," he said, in a sepulchral voice.

"Beheld what?"

"A vision, a similitude of the great and mighty dead," and the genius glared at me rather fiercely.

"Yes, I have," said I, sharply, a good deal startled in spite of myself. "I laid it to the mince pie."

"Mince pie! Oh, what has that gross compound in common with spiritual creations?" And the Genius wrung his hands.

"The pie was good," said I, stoutly. "But look here Mr. Raphael——"

"Smith," said the artist.

"Well, Raphael Smith, then, you seem to be posted in this matter; tell me about the ghost I saw last night, the second one I mean, when I got into the wrong room?"

"Impious man! the first to venture unbidden into the presence of my creations," and Raphael scowled again.

"Well, I didn't stay long," said I, deprecatingly.

"Long enough to complete the work of ruin. Look you," he grasped, clutching my arm. "By your foolhardiness, to use ordinary language, you involved me in great pecuniary loss, and I now claim, as a slight compensation, the sum of $5,000."

"And will you," said I, with considerable astonishment, "be kind enough to explain, in very ordinary language, the meaning of this very extraordinary demand?"

"Know then," said Raphael, "that I am a sculptor, and live in this hotel. In one of the rooms above is my studio."

"Good."

"I had just completed a plaster model for a statue of the late Judge Jedwood, which was intended to adorn the public square of this town. My price was to have been $5,000. Last night, you, ill-starred man, dared to burst open my studio-door, and the strong draught of wind caused thereby blew over my work, and completely destroyed all my work of months."

"Oh, what I saw, then, was a real ghost, after all. Well, I own to being pretty well scared. Your art affected me very powerfully."

"Don't jest," replied Raphael, grimly, "nor yet delay the paltry pecuniary compensation."

I was not without experience in dealing with geniuses. Had the statue been ordered by the town, or anybody in it? Well no, not exactly. He couldn't say that it had, and he further was obliged to admit that no disinterested parties had seen the work to judge its merits. Then he reluctantly allowed that the landlord might come in and arbitrate between us; and so the upshot of the whole matter was, that the $5,000 was whittled down to $500, and the $500 melted into $50, and finally a $5 bill, with the promise of a future order, should my native hamlet ever conclude to erect an effigy to her most distinguished citizen, proved sufficient to mollify the injured artist.

A barrow-load of the late Judge Jedwood's remains, in plaster, was being wheeled out the back way when I left. On top of the heap of arms, legs, fingers, etc., lay a round bald head, with a nose and one plaster eye attached. I thought for a moment, as I passed, that a chalky smile overspread the fragmentary features at the terror which they had inspired the night before.—J. C. Joy in Tid-Bits.

A More Practical Interpretation.

A young negro in the south had been converted and at once wanted to preach. His elders thought he was not fitted for the important work; but he well-nigh staggered them by relating a vision in which he had plainly seen the letters "G. P. C.," which could mean only: "Go Preach Christ." A white-haired negro preacher slowly arose and told the ambitious young brother that while he had, no doubt, seen the letters in a vision, he had failed in the interpretation. They probably meant: "Go pick cotton," or "Go plant corn." This settled the matter. A preacher in the New York conference, when the story was told a few days ago, remarked to a friend sitting near: "I wish we had men in our white conferences sharp enough to explain away as satisfactorily the arguments by which our young incompetents try to convince the committee that they have been called to preach the gospel."—New York Tribune.

A Disregard of Sanitary Rules.

The Southern California Practitioner does not consider the Chinaman a healthful element in society. It says: "Chinamen, with their opium joints, their universal habit of using tobacco excessively, their intemperance, their contagious diseases, their leprosy, their parsimonious ways of crowding together in small sleeping appartments, their lack of the good influence on health that is exerted by wife and home, their filth, their utter disregard of all sanitary and hygienic rules, their cold-blooded, heartless neglect of each other when sick or wounded, and their continuous nightly round of dissipation, have long been a serious menace to the health of every city on the Pacific coast."

The New York Medical Journal adds that about the same thing can be said of the lower class of Italians and of Russian and Polish Jews which are now being poured upon the eastern shores.—Chicago News.

How to Strengthen the Memory.

To cultivate the memory, Mr. F. W. E. Green, an English physiologist, recommends: "Concentrate your attention, classify and condense, make associations, substitute letters for figures, and localize your ideas."

The Much Dreaded Grizzly Bear.

Of all the known plantigrades (flat footed beasts) the grizzly is the most savage and the most dreaded, and he is the largest of all, saving the presence of his cousin the polar bear, for which, nevertheless, he is more than a match in strength and courage. Some specimens measure 7 feet from tip of nose to root of tail. The distinctive marks of the species are its great size; the shortness of the tail as compared with the ears; the huge flat paws, the sole of the hind foot sometimes measuring 7 1-2 by 5 inches in a large male; the length of the hind legs as compared with the fore legs, which gives the beast his awkward, shambling gait; the long claws of the forefoot, sometimes 7 inches in length, while those of the hind foot measure only 3 or 4; the erect, bristling mane of stiff hair, often 6 inches long; the coarse hair of the body, sometimes 3 inches long, dark at the base, but with light tips.

He has a dark stripe along the back, and one along each side, the hair on his body being, as a rule, a brownish yellow, the region around the ears dusky, the legs nearly black and the muzzle pale. Color, however, is not a distinctive mark, for female grizzlies have been killed in company with two cubs, of which one was brown, the other gray, or one dark, the other light; and the supposed species of "cinnamon" and "brown" bears are merely color variations of Ursus horribilis himself.—G. O. Shields in Harper's Magazine.

The Chinese Empress' Pastime.

The empress regent of China is one of the most remarkable women of the age. Not content with directing the intricate policy of the most populous empire in the world with wonderful cleverness and sagacity, she has now entered the ranks of competitors for the light weight championship of the Celestial empire. Attired in a sort of bloomer costume, she takes daily lessons in boxing from an old cunuch. Her appearance at the age of 50, in short skirt, hitting out at her venerable preceptor, and occasionally receiving punishment herself, must be comical to the last degree, and the reports on the matter form the subject of a most disrespectful merriment on the part of the almond eyed denizens of the Chinese metropolis. The empress regent was a concubine of the Emperor Hien-Fung, on whose death she was appointed to act as co-regent with the dowager empress during the minority of her son, the late Emperor Tung-Chi.

With unusual ability she has guided the policy of the empire through the troublous times which have resulted from the opening up of the country to foreign trade, and has so conducted affairs as to have brought the nation to an infinitely higher degree of prosperity and tranquility than it enjoyed when she took up the reins.—Hong Kong Times.

No Inspiration of the Bottle.

"In a conversation with Read," said Mr. Grafton to the writer, "I once ventured to say, 'Read, did you take nothing but a pot of black tea into your room when you invoked the muse for "Sheridan's Ride?"' To my surprise, in a most placid, unexpected manner, he said: 'I took nothing else but that. Let me confess to you a fact: I can do nothing with the pen unless I am clear headed. I know,' he continued, 'that poem, with its faults, came from no inspiration of the bottle. I would like, however, to have corrected some of those faults, but Bayard Taylor advised me not to allow the least change or emendation, but to let it stand as written.' The wisdom of this advice insured its acceptance, and, if I mistake not, it now stands word for word as the muse gave it, nothing to add or subtract.

"Mr. Read also said this to me: 'They may talk what they choose about Byron, Burns, Poe and others writing so finely under the influence of drink, but I don't believe a word of it. If the tongue does wag, the brain will lag when much drink has been indulged in, for then I have discovered I am just about as dumb as a Princess bay oyster.'"—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Hay Fever an Aristocratic Malady.

The oldest note of national, personal and sexual superiority I ever heard of is susceptibility to hay fever. In Dr. Morell Mackenzie's admirable monograph on this complaint and its treatment, I find that among races, the English and American; among classes, the upper and cultivated; and of the sexes, the male sex, are especially susceptible to hay fever. In the north of Europe it is almost unknown. It is rare in France, Germany, Italy and Spain; whereas in England it is frequent, and in America prevalent. Again, 99 per cent. of its martyrs are of the upper class, while agricultural laborers, who are most exposed to the causes of the complaint, are least subject to its attacks. Lastly, the male sex is more liable to it than the female, in the ratio of three to one. Wherefore our susceptibility to hay fever "in reality affords matter for self congratulation, as indicating our superiority to less favored peoples in culture and civilization."—London Truth.

A Pretty Indian Legend.

A pretty Indian legend is current here this season. Chautauqua means "the place of easy death," and report says this is how the lake secured its name. An Indian maiden, mourning over the death of her lover, wandered away from her people seeking a poisonous root. In a secluded spot on the lake shore she found it, partook freely and lay down to await death. The poison created delirium and a burning thirst. Her lover seemed to come to her and offer fresh, cool water, yet when she reached out her hands for the grateful draught he vanished. She dragged herself to the edge of the lake, and stooping over to cool her parched lips in the waves, she saw her lover beneath the water holding up his arms to her. Joyfully she threw herself into the water and was never seen again.—Chautauqua Cor. New York Tribune.

It was supposed that the flagship Cumberland, when she was sunk by the Merrimac, had $100,000 in coin in her safe for the payment of the fleet. Many attempts have been made to recover the safe, and as much as $60,000 has been expended in the effort, it is said. Lately a New Haven wrecker succeeded in raising the safe, but on opening it only $49 in coin was found. The paper money it may have contained had dissolved or disappeared.

THE APACHE.

From the awful desolation of the Llano Estacado
I have traced my red dominions with your blood upon the sand;
You may see its current tinging through the tawny Colorado—
Are you mad that you imagine I shall stay my lifted hand?
I defy you and I hate you! Do you threaten me with death!—
Me, whose fervid spirit surges with the centuries' hot breath?
Turn and ask this flaming desert, it has lain forever so;
It has scorched the helpless mesa with its seething overflow;
Molten, pitiless, remorseless—ask it if I fear to die!
I am one with this—immortal—and the bloodshot suns of years
Burn with my soul, as ages they have burned this alkali;
I shall be again the desert—what have I to do with fears?
You shall die, I shall clasp you to my heart with hot embrace,
Whispering words of awful vengeance in your pallid, speechless face.
—Lippincott's Magazine.

HANDSOME CHILDREN AS MODELS.

A Metropolitan Photographer Tells About One of the Tricks of the Trade.

"The latest catch is in advertising for handsome children as models. Every mother naturally thinks that her baby is the prettiest one alive. When the idea is presented to her mind of not only having her beautiful baby pictured as a model, to the envy of all other mothers, but of actually being paid for that joy, it fascinates her. In less time than a cow could turn a hand spring she has fixed upon the large sum she will demand, and of course receive, for permitting her baby to be photographed, and has even settled how the money shall be expended for baby's further adornment and comfort. Then she goes to the photographer who wants models, and his fine work begins. Mothers have to be treated in various ways, but the operator is a chump who can not take a picture of any decent looking baby so that, with a frame of judicious 'taffy,' its mother will be pleased.

"If the subject has got a little beyond babyhood his job, that far, is all the easier, for all children are graceful and unconsciously put themselves in pretty attitudes. It is only the mother's attitude that has to be changed. From one who has come to get money, she must be transformed to one who has come to leave money. So the model market is already supplied fully, greatly to the operator's regret, because a more beautiful child he never, etc., etc., or the proprietor of the gallery unfortunately out and the operator has no authority, to his infinite sorrow, for a more charming infant he never, etc., etc.; or it will be a question that must be carefully considered before decision between another baby and this one, but there can be little doubt that such a lovely baby as this, etc., etc.; or if the mother is one that seems to require rough medicine, her baby, though a good average, will not do for a model, owing to certain imperfections, slight, perhaps, but nevertheless apparent to an artist's eye. All the while there is the negative, a very good presentment of the blessed baby, making its own appeal with mute eloquence to the mother.

"The end of it all is, of course, that, whether from hope or pride or cunning expectation of influencing selection, or spite, or just because she wants them anyway, the mother orders a dozen of baby's pictures. The fact is that no photographer really wants child models. Very few children of actual value for such service—like the little Fernandez, who was thoroughly trained for it—are obtainable, and there is no such demand for their pictures as used to exist. And it is very hard to take children's pictures—particularly those of babies—unless the operator has a peculiar talent for it, combining with a natural love for children and patience with them, a rare magnetism for controlling them and exceptional skill in instantaneous photography. When he possesses all those qualifications he has as much of that sort of work as he can do, and needn't advertise for child models.—New York Sun.

Pictures by Electric Light.

The taking of pictures by the electric light caught a good many curious customers while it was fresh, but the novelty soon wore off. Besides, even at the best, it was a very considerably more expensive process than operating by sunlight and did not leave the margin of profit that would be necessary to make it profitable. You see, the person who has a picture taken pays not only for that picture but for the time the photographer has to wait for somebody to come and have a picture taken. So, to make business better, either the profit upon each picture must be greater, or the number of pictures taken must be increased. Photography by the electric light, as a matter of popular service, helped in neither way, unless in very exceptional cases. Those who patronized that method would have had pictures taken anyway, and simply chose that for curiosity's sake, and, the cost of production being greater, the operator was little, if any, bettered, except, perhaps, by the advertising notoriety he got.—New York Sun Interview.

A Punishment for His Audacity.

The American dies from overwork and anxiety. When he is 5 years old he begins school with the determination to be at the head of the class. He will outrun, outjump, and lick any boy of his size. He enters upon a condition to strain that is perpetual. As he goes on it gets worse. He must be in politics at 20, rich at 30, great at 40, and if he measurably succeeds he is decaying at 50, and dead at 60. He ought to be dead. It is a fitting punishment for his audacity and his steady violation of the laws of nature.—Chicago Times.

Ireland's Supply of Workable Coal.

The explored coal beds of Ireland, according to the latest bluebook, contain about 200,000,000 tons of workable coal, chiefly anthracite.

COLORED GLASS.

How Costly Tints Are Produced in the Process of Its Manufacture.

The church, in calling the arts to its aid, has not neglected the painter. Poet-poets have supplied requiem and mass, canticle and chant; architects have planned temples which it has taken centuries to complete and whose stately columns and pinnacles represent millions of money; but not at all behind this display of genius comes the work of the magicians in colors. In fact, it would be easier perhaps to replace any cathedral in Europe than the masterpieces of painting which some of them contain. A large share of this sensuous adjunct of church adornment is found in the windows. Coloring glass was a few years ago almost reckoned one of the lost arts. But within the last three decades such improvements have been made that experts declare the modern glass equal in beauty to the antique. And not only to the purpose of church adornment is colored glass relegated at present. On the contrary, the great æsthetic wave which has carried taste and beauty into the adornment of the modern home has borne colored glass upon its crest. The jugglery of art has conjured it into all sorts of lovely shapes and combinations, until one might search New York over and not discover a fine house without colored glass. It is really a misnomer to speak of painted or stained glass. For all the colors, save yellow, are produced in glass while in the process of manufacture. The oxide of chloride of silver applied in the proper way to colorless glass will produce its different shades of yellow. The cheaper windows are made of "rolled cathedral glass." The process of making a window of colored glass is apparently simple enough, but the artist will appreciate the many difficulties in the way. First the "cartoon" is drawn. From this the "cutting pattern" is made, giving the outlines for the various pieces of colored glass. These sections of glass are at first pinned in their places, and the "leading" is laid around them to hold them firmly where they should remain. To give the exact shade, one color is laid upon another, sometimes two or even three tints being necessary, and, as the light passes through them, the blending of the hues gives the desired color. In former years what were termed "massive-colored" glasses were generally used. At present hues are often conveyed by covering a body of pure flint glass with one or more thin coatings of intensely colored glass. To produce the different colors, various minerals are employed. Ruby red, for instance, is created by a fusion of oxide of gold, and "ancient red" by protoxide of copper. The art of making these colors was revived by Englehart, of Zinsweiler, in 1828. Azure blue is secured by the use of copper. The addition of oxide of cobalt gives cobalt blue. To obtain amethyst or purple, it is necessary to use oxide of manganese and a little nitre. Common yellow topaz arises from the employment of powdered charcoal. Gold topaz requires the use of oxide of uranium. Other tints are procured as follows: Common orange, iron ore and manganese; dark violet, peroxide of manganese; brown violet, add a little oxide of iron; increase the iron, it will become a fine yellow, used for gold thread in woven glass; green, protoxide of chrome, or a mixture of antimony, glass and oxide of cobalt; emerald, copper scales and iron ore, or the oxides of nickel and uranium; black, peroxide of manganese, oxide of copper and of cobalt; soft white enamel, opaque, arsenic and antimony; hard white, tin and lead putty. Hyalith is a black glass so hard that it may be used to contain boiling liquids. It is made by the use of slag of forges and charcoal dust. It is brilliant and susceptible of high polish. The Romans made glass of transparent colors—blue, green, purple, amber, brown and rose; of opaque, white, black, red, blue, yellow, green and orange. The blue shades were extremely rich and varied. Their green, purple and crimson are often very fine, and, in their combinations, imitations of onyx, porphyry, granite and agate are frequently produced which far surpass anything made at present in the opinion of connoisseurs. The analysis of this glass, as given by Von Minntoli, show the use of the oxides of lead, copper or iron in combination with silica, alumina and lime, these materials alone in different proportions forming opaque red, green or transparent blue. They also used cobalt sparingly for blue, gold for rose color, manganese for violet, and oxides of tin for white and orange.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

Editors in Russia.

A fact highly characteristic of the Russian press will be found in the social position of the 272 responsible editors who form the press staff of the two Russian chief cities, St. Petersburg and Moscow. Of these 272, no fewer than 51 per cent. are military or civil officers, 36 of whom rank very high in the social world, being Generals, privy councillors, and even State councillors; 65 editors are field officers or civil service officers of the same high rank; 37 are superior officers in the military or civil service, and 23 are noblemen, but not in the services.—N. Y. Star.

—A new coloring in nature is the "toboggan complexion," consisting of deep red on the cheeks and carmine on the ears and nose.—Chicago News.

—Brown—"Hello, Jones! How's your wife?" Jones (a little deaf)—"Very blustering and disagreeable again this morning.—Peck's Sun.

CELTIC NAMES.

Macs, O's, Murphys and Sullivans Residing in Our Four Principal Cities.

The relative numbers of Celtic inhabitants in the four principal cities of the Union must be a matter of interest to every Irish nationalist. To find out such a matter with absolute certainty would be well nigh impossible; but by means of the directories of the cities, about the Celtic population of which we desire to speak, a very close approximation can be made as to the Irish element they contain. We had recently an opportunity of examining the directories of the four principal American cities—New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, and Boston—and took the trouble to count the number of columns of each directory that contained the most common and numerous Irish names, and the results are very interesting. It will invariably be found that whenever there are the most O's and Macs, and the most Murphys and Sullivans, there is the largest Irish population; for the names Murphy and Sullivan, and names which begin with O and Mac, are the most numerous among the Celtic race. The prefix O should, by right, be retained before the names Sullivan and Murphy, but in most cases it has been discarded.

The number of names in the columns of the directories of the four cities mentioned is very nearly the same and will average about eighty. The following table gives the number of O's and Macs, Sullivan and Murphys in the four cities mentioned:

	Columns.
NEW YORK.
Names beginning with O	42
Names beginning with Mac	138
Sullivans and Murphys combined	24
Total columns	204
PHILADELPHIA.
Names beginning with O	28
Names beginning with Mac	176
Sullivans and Murphys combined	15
Total columns	219
CHICAGO.
Names beginning with O	13
Names beginning with Mac	71
Sullivans and Murphys combined	28
Total columns	112
BOSTON.
Names beginning with O	30
Names beginning with Mac	91
Sullivans and Murphys combined	31
Total columns	153

From the foregoing it will be seen, contrary to the general belief, that Philadelphia is absolutely and that Boston is relatively the most Celtic of American cities. The population of New York is, in round numbers, 1,300,000, Philadelphia 900,000, Chicago 700,000, and Boston 400,000. Philadelphia, about one-third less in population than New York, has fifteen more columns of Celtic names; but Boston, in proportion to its population, is the most Celtic of all. If New York were as Celtic as Boston its directory would have about 550 columns of O's, Macs, Sullivans and Murphys, instead of 204; and if it were as proportionately Celtic as Philadelphia its directory would contain about 300 instead of 204 columns of the Celtic names mentioned. Chicago is relatively and absolutely the least Celtic of the four cities. It is about as populous and a half as Boston, but its directory contains only 112 columns of the prominent Celtic name against 152 in the Boston directory. We use the term Celtic instead of Irish, because a considerable minority of the names beginning with Mac are Scotch rather than Irish. Boston, then, is in proportion to its population the most Celtic and the most Irish city in America.

The case of Philadelphia is curious. It is said to contain a smaller foreign-born population than any of the great cities of America, and this is probably so; yet, with the exception of Boston, it is relatively the most Celtic of the four cities. This is explained by the fact that long ago—as far back as the time when what are now known as the United States were British colonies—there was a vast tide of emigration from Ireland to this country, and the greater part of it was directed to Pennsylvania. The difference between the Irish element in Boston and Philadelphia is that in the former city it is new and in the latter it is old.

When one remembers that the prefixes O and Mac have been dropped in very nearly half the names that originally had them, and also that about fifty per cent. of Irish names have been either translated or so changed that it takes some one even more trained than a savant to recognize them in their mutilated American forms, he is astonished at the immensity of the Irish element in America, and marvels how it came to pass that the million and a quarter of people that Ireland contained only two hundred years ago have grown to an inconceivable multitude that have spread absolutely over half the earth.—Chicago Citizen.

—Doctor—What ails you, sir? Patient—I don't know, doctor. I have such a buzzing sound in my ears all the time. Would you like to look at my tongue? Doctor—No, never mind. Bring your wife around some day. I'd like to look at hers.—Yonkers Statesman.

A new metalloid called "Germanium" has been added to the lists of elements, making the sixty-seventh.

Begin your web, and God will supply you with thread.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,
(Poisonous.)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO.
SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.
Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
DITOR & PROPRIETOR
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY, JUNE 1 1889

The action of the English Government in building forts on Puget Sound is not a matter in which the people of the United States can afford to be indifferent. The polite language used in State papers and by diplomatists means nothing; the talk about similarity of language, literature and religion is very nice at dinner parties, but that is all it is worth. England is a mighty power and its strength is due to commerce and manufactures. It has become an instinct with the English people to fear and hate all nations that interfere with their trade and commerce. Englishmen who are unable to read, and who have no more idea what political economy means than a dweller in Central Africa who had never been out of his native jungle, know enough to hate most heartily all other nations who are building up manufactures such as they are engaged in. From the days of Alfred the Great, when England first began to build up a navy, till the present hour England has never let slip an opportunity to deal a blow at all commercial rivals. Protestant England united with Catholic Spain to destroy the commerce of Protestant Holland. The deadly hatred of England against Spain was not caused by difference of language or religion but had its origin in the commercial rivalry of the two nations. The centuries of horrible misrule in Ireland was the necessary consequence of the fact known to the English people that if let alone Ireland would soon become a great manufacturing and commercial nation. The Catholic noblemen of England have ever been as bitter enemies to Ireland as their Protestant brethren. On the revocation of the edict of Nantes thousand of Frenchmen were welcomed in England, not because they were Protestants, but because they were skilled manufacturers and could teach Englishmen their arts. Long before that time the Catholic Flemings had been just as cordially welcomed in England when they went there to establish the manufacture of woolen goods. It was the determined efforts of England to prevent the American Colonies from building up manufactures and a commerce that led to the Revolution. The same cause brought on the war of 1812. It was the hope of destroying the commerce of the United States that moved England to cordial sympathy and support of the rebellion. When there is not a chance to destroy the commerce of other nations by war English Statesmen levy the last penny of tax the people can bear to subsidize steamships and railroads and enable English companies to drive their rivals out of business. At the very first opportunity England would cover the sea with armed ships to destroy the commerce of America; and there is not a strait in all the seas of the world through which an American vessel might pass but England would, if she could, build a fortress there to sink her. It is not a question of race; of language, literature, or religion; it is with England purely a matter of business to destroy or inflict all manner of possible damage on commercial rivals. The policy and habits of a thousand years become instincts with men. There is no flag but the stars and stripes against which the guns of the new fort on Puget Sound would ever be fired; and the the people of the United States have a right, the right of self protection, to enquire why they are built.

At the last session of the Legislature an act was passed which determines that fruit trees and vines are "growing crops" and therefore exempt from taxation. In violation of this law Assessors in some, if not all the counties of the State, are now assessing fruit trees and vines. For this violation the Assessors are not to blame but the State Board of Equalization. That body assumes to be superior to the Legislature and has ordered the Assessors to disregard the law. To tax fruit trees and vines is illegal and payment of the tax should be resisted. The Board of Equalization is a legacy from the Sandlot and Dennis Kearney. It was instituted to "cinch corporations" and became their tool from the hour it was organized.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS

—AND TO—

Cleanse the System Effectually,

—SO THAT—

PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

Ores!
Ores!
Ores!

GOLD
SILVER
LEAD
ORES WORKED

Small lots received and worked as carefully as large lots.

The best machinery for concentrating sulphurets is in use and all the metal of any kind of ore is secured.

Ores that will not bear transportation from Owens Valley can be worked at a good profit at home.

Ores sampled, bought and paid for on delivery.

Address,

Lessee Maxim Mill,
Independence.

Wheeler & Wilson
Sewing Machine.
New No. 8.
"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.
Old Machines Exchanged for.
Farm Produce Taken in Payment.

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND,
Agent.
Independence, Cal.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of Dr. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE
And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.—FLEMING BROS., PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to—FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO Extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDIS

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAI

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

☞Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n47tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS

SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.

And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing

When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN RECEILT,

—And a large—

SWIMMING : BATH

Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,

—AND—

Board by the Day, Week, or the Month

MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RHINE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

$95 Sewing-Machine FREE

To at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who call at your home, and after 2 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out, before patents run out it sold for $95, with the attachments, and now sells for $15. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City.
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS,
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.

All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.

JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo
Freighting
Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.

Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS
Edition of Scientific American.

A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.

In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & CO., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.

COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address

MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors.
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.

WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELUICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 29 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax-Collector.

Independence Hotel.
Independence, Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Free Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.

Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.

☞All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURKHARDT

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones Monuments,
Italian and American
Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & Co.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.

IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE
GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.

S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale
Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

CROCKER BROS., Props.
sep1-tf

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—PIANOS
& ORGANS

☞If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to

Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

NORMAN
HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. L. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, May 10th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House	11 00 a. m		5 50 p. m.
Inyoton	11 30 a. m.		5 10 p. m.
Wabuska	1 25 a m		3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 05 p m.		11 25 a. m.
Luning	6:25 p. m.		10:05 a. m.
Soda Springs	7:05 p m.		9:05 a. m.
Belleville	8 45 p. m.		7:40 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar.	9.20 p. m	Lv.	7:20 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—		No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8 10 a. m		5:25 p. m.
Benton	11:40 a m		1:35 p. m
Bishop Creek	1 50p. m.		11:00 a. m.
Alvord	2:05 p. m		10:00 a. m.
Independence	4 10 p. m.		8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5 00 p. m		7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar	5 45 p. m.	Lv.	7.00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (35 miles); Loudy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞Customers supplied on all points ☜
☞Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜

Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.

Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.

FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.

DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.

Matched and Dressed
Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—

The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.

All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JUNE 1 1889

MARRIED.

THOMPSON—WAFATON—At Bishop, May 18, 1889, by Rev. Andrew Clark, Mr. Wm. E. Thompson and Miss Annie L. Wheaton.

BORN.

VARNEY—At Round Valley, May 6, 1889, to Mr. and E. C. Varney, a son.

ROBERTS—At Round Valley, May 15, 1889 to Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roberts, a daughter.

BUNNEY—At Bishop, May 22, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Bunney, a daughter.

Sheriff Eldred has collected $4,000 sheep license tax.

Mr. C. Anthony was up from Darwin at the beginning of the week.

Farmers about Independence are cutting their first crop of alfalfa.

Matlack has reduced the price of horse shoeing. See his advertisement.

School Superintendent J. H. Shannon was in town a couple of days this week.

Mr. W. A. Bolinger of Chrysopolis spent a few days this week at Levys Hotel in town.

Fresh drugs and medicines of all kinds; send your prescription to H. E. Wright, Bishop.

V. G. Thompson sold out his business at Mojave recently and returned to Independence.

Miss Addie Lewis arrived home last Friday evening from a visit of several months at San Francisco.

The school at Independence will reopen on Monday for a short term of one month. Miss Kohler will teach.

The Elliott case was argued and submitted some two weeks ago. The Supreme Court has 90 days to decide.

Mr. Israel Luce, of the marble quarry, has gone to Sacramento. He intends returning about two weeks hence

Mrs. L. Wood and her children have gone on a visit to San Francisco, where they will stay several weeks.

Copies of the plans and specifications for the proposed new school house in Union school district can be seen at the County Clerk's office.

Mrs. Olds and her daughter, Miss Nettie Olds returned to their home in Round Valley at the end of last week, after a visit of several months in Michigan.

A. R. Conklin, Esq., got home last Monday evening from a visit to San Francisco. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss M. Conklin, who had spent the winter in the City.

H. M. Yerington, D. A. Bender, Archie Farrington and State Senators Williams and Boyle, of Nevada, were at Keeler at the end of last week. They were looking after mining interests.

Enos & Mairs have sent their cattle to Menache. Along with their own are a few small lots belonging to other parties, making the whole band number about two thousand head.

Last Thursday night Inyo Lodge No. 301 I. O. O. F. elected the following officers for the ensuing term: J. W. Murphy, N. G., E. Robinson V. G.; P. H. Mack, Secretary and J. D. Blair Treasurer.

Sam Chalmers says he has located a mill site in Deep Spring valley and also water enough to run a two thousand stamp mill. He has built a dam and ditch and now nothing is wanting but the mill.

Mrs. Sallie M. Bell has sold her place at Big Pine; the buyer is Mr. R. H. James, at present a citizen of Arkansas. Mrs. Bell will keep possession of the place til next winter, when Mr. James expects to arrive.

Three or four Corsicans got into a row at Darwin recently. They used knives and shooting irons but nobody was hurt. Probably they were too drunk to shoot or cut straight. The principal actors in the fracas have left the county.

The Enterprise says Paley invented crockery glazing. The Editor has got glazing and theology badly mixed. Paley was an Englishman and a good theologian, and a judge of "puddins." Palissy was the crockery man and a Frenchman.

Report is current that a large building will soon be erected at Citrus to be occupied as a store for general merchandise. Every body expected that sooner or later a store would be opened for the accomodation of settlers along the Eastside Canal.

Three months ago there were plenty of empty houses in Pioche, Nevada. Now every house is occupied and rents are high. So says the local paper. Doubtless the change is chiefly due to the fact that the Utah Central road will soon be built to Pioche.

Mulberry trees planted by W. L. Hunter at Georges Creek three years ago have a crop of berries this year. The trees make a good shade and wind-break and are very easily raised. A young vineyard of raisin grapes is doing well; Mr. Hunter obtained the cuttings from Fresno.

Gus. McGovern got to Independence on Monday with a big load of freight. Part of the goods were for each town from Lone Pine to Bishop. The teaming business is now thoroughly organized and teams leave and arrive the different towns regularly. Small lots of freight will receive just as careful attention as large ones.

The party given last Friday evening in honor of Miss Kohler was attended by very many friends. Miss Kohler made friends of all who met her during her stay at the Fort. At midnight the company were treated to supper at the Norman House and Landlord Mairs had everything good that could be obtained.

The Reno Gazette stated that Senator Steward with the Senatorial Committee on Commercial relations with Canada were coming on a tour along the Carson & Colorado road to take a look at the country. If the Senators would come down into Owens Valley they would see such mountain scenery as they will not find elsewhere on their trip.

A Vast Enterprise.

A leading citizen of Utah, whom the editor of this paper met at Los Angeles, writes as follows:

MR. C. MULHOLLAND. Dear Sir:—Agents of two railroad Companies visited me here and a third wrote me a very encouraging letter, inviting me to come to Salt Lake and confer with eastern capitalists; they were already organized and incorporated to build west from Salt Lake City. The first was called the Sioux City & Los Angeles Railroad Company. Last week another was incorporated called the Utah, Nevada & California Railroad Company. These companies have consolidated. I gave both companies my views of the country I had passed over between here and Los Angeles and told them of the connection you desired to make with Owens Valley and the reasons you gave for it before the Chamber of Commerce at Los Angeles. In their incorporation papers they set forth that they will take the route I have marked out in Utah and Nevada and pass through Inyo county, San Bernardino, Los Angeles and on to San Diego. They stated that they would begin surveying from this point immediately; I believe they intend building your "connecting link," and I will encourage them all I can. Two weeks ago the Utah Central, with Charles F. Adams at its head, filed its incorporation papers to extend the Utah Central through this place via Pioche, Nevada; Ash Meadows, and thence through Inyo and San Bernardino counties to Los Angeles. They were down here to see my coal and pronounced it the best of any opened up in this section. They said they would begin work on their road within two months. The coal field in this region is about twenty miles wide and probably one hundred miles long. Much of it will be very difficult of access and some of it may be inaccessible. On the southeast the coal lies within forty feet of the surface. The coal improves in quality as we penetrate the vein. Analysis gives now 54 per cent. fixed carbon while on the upper part of the dip it does not carry more than 40 per cent., and this is the average quality of the coal used in Utah, and as near as I could judge about the same quality as that imported into California. I have secured the best point on the vein from which to build a branch to the main railroad; this branch will be about seven miles in length. I own rails sufficient to build twenty miles of road, two locomotives, flat cars, dump cars, scales for weighing loaded cars, buildings, turn-tables, tools, &c. &c. There is plenty of good land here but water is limited a the season when it is most needed. No attempt has yet been made to find artesian water. It is generally believed here that there are at least two veins of coal in this region, one over the other. One vein is nine feet thick and the other six. We have not yet opened both veins near enough together to prove their separate character. The nine foot vein, so far as we have worked into it, shows well. In one section of 640 acres this vein would yield about 8,000,000 tons of coal. If taken out at the rate of 1,000 tons per day, and working 300 days each year, twenty-six years would be necessary to exhaust one section. If there is another vein of six feet, and as I believe, a third of three feet, a section would last over fifty years and then there would be plenty more adjoining. The President of the Chamber of Commerce has informed me that Los Angeles uses about half a million tons of coal each year. This is over 1,500 tons per day. Then there would be other places to supply; San Bernardino, San Diego, and your own Inyo county. Over 1,000 tons of coal per day are taken from Wyoming through Utah to San Francisco. Our coal is 800 miles from San Francisco by way of the new railroad and the Southern Pacific; the Wyoming coal is carried over 1,000 miles. This would give us the San Francisco market. The Southern Pacific uses about 700,000 tons each year. No other producers could compete with us in supplying that demand. Our coal trade will be immense. * * *

Yours sincerely,

The foregoing will give some idea of what will follow the building of the new railroad. One result in particular is certain; Los Angeles will rapidly grow into a great manufacturing city and all places connected with it will share its prosperity.

Another New Road.

The Utah Central is not to have undisputed control of the trade of Los Angeles. The Herald says still another railroad company has been incorporated in Salt Lake to build to Los Angeles. It is to be known as the Utah, Nevada and California Railroad. The capital stock is $20,000,000 of which $650,000 has been subscribed, and ten per cent. of this has been paid into the Treasurer's hands. The subscribers are Francis Tiernan, W. S. McWilliams, F. E. Goodlander, all of Fort Scott, Kansas; R. L. Walker, A. B. De Bost, Chas D. Moore, all of Topeka, Kansas; and J. G. Jacobs, of St. Paul, Minnesota. It is quite time to do something at this end of the line. The beginning of a new transcontinental railroad is all that is needed here to put a full stop to quiet times and to usher in an era of real progress and prosperity. The work can be begun if our people will go about it like business men.

The Right Way.

In reply to an article in the INDEPENDENT the editor of the Carson Tribune admits that he never was in Inyo county and that he formed his opinions of the state of affairs here from the report of others. He says he will now study to get all the facts for himself direct, and then comment on those facts. This is just what we want; when an honest and intelligent man shall fairly and carefully study the affairs of our county, and will without bias or prejudice give his opinion of the country and people we may be much gainer thereby. No offense should be taken if errors are discovered in our ways of doing business, and those errors pointed out in plain language. If we are wrong the sooner we are set right the better, and no more valuable service can be done us than to set our mistakes clearly before us and tell us the remedy. We sincerely hope the editor of the Tribune may do this for us and he will find that the people of Inyo county will aid him freely in getting at all the facts necessary to a thorough understanding of the whole case.

Among the blessings that science has bestowed upon mankind, not the least valuable is that which supplements the failing powers of the eyes. A pair of good spectacles is of more value than diamonds or pearls to one whose sight is failing. Mr. D. W. Wiles of San Francisco is now in the Valley and has a large stock of the latest improved spectacles and eye glasses. He has the necessay apparatus for fitting all eyes and conditions of sight. A novelty in spectacles is slightly tinted lenses, that afford a most agreeable relief to those who have much reading and writing to do. Mr. Wiles can arrange lenses to suit those peculiar unfortunates whose eyes are not matched, one eye needing a lense of much greater magnifying power than the other. He will be at Big Pine today, and at Bishop on Monday.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

MONDAY, May 25th.

Hoffman vs. Hoffman—Clerk's entry of Defendant's default.

WEDNESDAY, May 28th.

Estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased—Letters testamentary therein issued to Horace M. Smith.

The Owens River Canal

For some three years past work has been going forward on the Owens River Canal. The extent of this enterprise is not generally known and the magnitude of the undertaking can only be understood by an examination of the work and the country to be irrigated. In company with Mr H. H. Spear, the Superintendent, a trip was recently made to the head of the canal, the entire line of the ditch being followed. The water will be taken from the river at a point about ten miles west by north from Bishop, where the stream runs through a deep, narrow canyon. For a distance of several miles the work has been exceedingly hard. The canal is taken along a side-hill so steep that the detritus is barely at rest and covered with huge boulders and rocks, what little soil there is being in many places of cement so hard that blasts were necessary to move the ground at all. It was only by exceedingly hard labor and an unusual amount of pluck that the work has been accomplished. Mr. Spear has a contract for completing the canal to the Claussen ranch, a distance of nine mile from the headgate. The hardest portion of the work has already been completed and the finishing will be comparatively easy. Of the ultimate value of the work there can be no question. The ditch is taken out at the highest practicable point in the Valley and consequently will cover all the land now watered by other ditches. It is now generally conceded that the most valuable land lies closest to the foothills because of its adaptability to grape culture. All experiments in grape growing have been most successful and this will in time become our staple crop. The canal stock is owned by citizens of Bishop. The success of the undertaking is purely a question of labor and energy; there is no syndicate, the owners being comparatively poor men who wish to make homes for themselves. The Owens River Canal Company offers exceptionally good inducements to settlers, as stock can now be had at the actual cost already expended, as shown by the Secretary's books. Stock will not be sold, however, in sufficient quantity to enable any syndicate to obtain control of the work, as the enterprise is not intended for speculative purposes but to give intending settlers an opportunity to secure homes. Mr. Spear is an energetic, persevering man and the success of the enterprise is completely assured.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, syrup of figs, under all conditions makes it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting upon the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The people of Pioche recently held a public meeting and adopted resolutions against the illegal importation of lead ores from Mexico. These ores are now brought into the country free of and compete with our own ores. Mexican miners are paid about three bits a day and if our own miners are willing to work for such pay we need not object to the importation of Mexican ore.

The people of Bishop turned out like good neighbors to attend the Odd Fellows' celebration at Independence. Now the people of Independence are determined to show equal good feeling by attending the Fourth of July celebration at Bishop. Preparation is being made to have two days fun for everybody and all who attend will have a good time.

Last fall Mr. W. L. Hunter sowed a few acres of rye near his house at Georges Creek. Chickens frequented the ground all winter; early in the spring the grain came up thick and excellent pasture for brood mares; now there is a heavy crop of rye nearly ripe. This grain should be more extensively grown; it is valuable feed for horses and makes the earliest green food for brood mares.

Mr. F. McIver brought a lot of African buckthorns and planted them along the Eastside Canal this spring. They are making fine growth and appear to be admirably suited to the soil and climate. This buckthorn makes a first rate fence, is easily and cheaply grown and makes a good windbrake. Mr McIver intends to grow large quantities of the plants for sale.

Memorial day appears to be changing from an occasion of honoring the memory of the Union, and becoming a day when the graves of departed friends or relatives are decorated with tributes of affection and respect. In many cemeteries where no soldiers are buried many graves on that day now bear those tokens of remembrance that were alone bestowed upon the last resting places of soldiers when Memorial day was first instituted.

Reno had a $250,009 fire last Sunday afternoon. The insurance is reported at $125,000. The fire broke out in the old Theatre, south from the Depot Hotel. That building was destroyed. The principal business row fronting on the Central Pacific railroad was saved. It is asserted that the fire was caused by some one starting a fire in a stove with kerosene. No one but an idiot or a criminal will use kerosene for kindling a fire; and if these only could be the victims the more fires kindled the better.

Everybody who wants to know the history of the great Comstock lode should send to F. Boegle, Virginia City, for a copy of the book just issued. The author is the well known Dan De Quille and his history gives all the important facts of the discovery and working of the great ledge, as well as a good deal of useful information about the State of Nevada and adjoining parts of California. An error appears in the book where the population of Bishop, Inyo county, is given at 250. It is really five times that figure and is the largest town in Inyo county.

E. H. Edwards,

—DEALER IN—

General Merchandise,

LONE PINE,

INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.

Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.

DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2 25 for Cash.

For particulars, call and see W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,

—DEALERS IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE,

BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of (SEAL) the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff o 51

Notice to Contractors

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Trustees of Union School District, of Inyo county, State of California, until June 17, 1889, for the material and erection of a Frame School House at or near the Half-Way House in said school district and in accordance with the plans and specifications in the hands of the Clerk of said Board of Trustees.

Bids will be opened at the Half-Way House at 2 o'clock p. m. of Tuesday, June 18, 1889, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids received.

The party or parties to whom the above contract is let will be required to give a good and sufficient bond to be approved by said Board in the sum of $5,000 conditional on the faithful compliance with the terms thereof.

JOHN KISPERT,
FRED ALBERS,
W. L. HUNTER,
Trustees of Union School District.

Georges Creek, May 23, 1889.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 14th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 24th day of June 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUCE, Secretary.

Office—205 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o-4

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.

Apply to ROBERT O'NEAL, Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor. feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 250 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,

Independence, Cal

GENERAL MERCHAND

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing, Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries & canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S STORE

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,

NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER.

sept1tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00

REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00

Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to

HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over the country, with or without team.

JOHN C. EVANS, Stockbridge, Mo., writes: "I used up and above that a Washer saved more hard labor and money in a large family of any Rocker and Mover that ever was put on any farm with less than more in calculation. If you will put up any instrument that will take much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and move as money as it does and cost as much, I could sell one at every house. If I had had to take the leathers from under their wife and holler for the."

JOHN R. DODGE, JR., Jeweler, Norman, Ind., writes: "You inform me I think of the Washer I bought last summer. It is the best machine ever invented by man. Yes. We have just as good chance on Monday as any other day. Yes. If you can place you can not beg one for $10."

I will ship a sample to the first ordering an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best selling article in the world for saving labor, clothes and money. Papers have agents bite money. Write for particulars.

J. WORTH, 1715 Franklin Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

LOST IN THE STORM.

One of our local editors clipped from a leading magazine extracts from a vivid description of a western blizzard which we have taken the liberty to publish and at the same time suggest to H. H. Warner & Co., the proprietors of the celebrated Warner's Safe Cure, the feasibility of taking therefrom an extract for the introduction of one of their telling advertisements. The following is the description:

"At the close of a dark day in January a solitary horseman wends his way across the open prairie in one of our western territories. He passes at long intervals the lone cabin of the hardy frontiersman. Two or three old settlers, of whom he has inquired the way, have warned him that a storm is approaching, and one of them, with true western hospitality, urges him to find shelter in his cabin for the night. But he declines the proffered kindness and urges his tired horse forward. * * * The sky grows suddenly dark. * * * He decides to seek shelter. * * * The storm increases in its fury. * * * The rider dismounts to warm his fast chilling limbs. * * * Can scarcely breathe. Blindness comes on. Drowsiness steals over him. The end is near. * * * He is lost in the blizzard."

There is no doubt that the terror which seizes the bewildered traveler is similar to that which overcomes one when he learns that he is suffering from an advanced Kidney Disease, and is informed that he is in the last stages of Bright's disease. At first he is informed that he has a slight kidney affection. Later he begins to feel tired. Slight headache. Fickle appetite. Failure of the eyesight. Cramp in the calf of the legs. Wakefulness. Distressing nervousness. Rheumatic and neuralgic pains. Occasionally pain in the back. Scanty, dark colored fluids, with scalding sensation. Gradual failure of strength.

Any of the above symptoms signify Kidney Affection, but he is told that he is all right. His physician treats him for symptoms and calls it a disease, when in reality it is but a symptom of Kidney trouble. He may be treated for Rheumatic or Neuralgic pains, heart affection, or any other disease which he is most susceptible to. Finally the patient has puffing under the eyes, slight bloating of the ankles and legs. His physician may inform him that it is but the accumulation of blood in his ankles for want of proper exercise.

The bloat continues and reaches his body.

Then he is informed he has dropsical troubles, and is tapped once or twice. He notices it is difficult to breathe owing to irregular action of the heart, and finally is informed that he has a slight attack of Bright's Disease. Soon his friends are notified that his is an advanced case of Bright's Disease, and that he can live but a short time. His honorable and dignified physician asks for counsel. It is too late. Still he sticks to the old family physician, and the physician knows and has known from the beginning that the patient has been stricken with death for months, for he knows full well that the profession acknowledge they have no remedies for the cure of Kidney Disease.

At last the patient suffocates—is smothered—and dies from dropsical trouble. Or perhaps the disease may not take the form of a dropsical tendency, and the patient dies from apoplexy, paralysis, pneumonia or heart trouble. Or it may take the form of blood poisoning. In each form the end is the same. And yet he and his friends were warned by the proprietors of the celebrated remedy known as Warner's Safe Cure, of the lurking dangers of a slight Kidney affection.

The newspapers have published the dangers. Columns of facts have been printed of men dying from advanced Kidney Disease or Bright's Disease. His friends and physician look around with horror and regret for seeming neglect, but he is lost. He did not heed the warning that a storm was approaching. He declined the proffered hospitality, and recklessly went forward into danger. He struggled manfully for a time, but his strength failed, he grew gradually weaker and he was lost to the world. Not in a blizzard, but from the terrible malady which is almost daily occurring in every community, and which is doctored as a symptom instead of what it is,—a mortal disease unless properly treated.

Human Bones and Gold.

An old prospector went over on the Smith river late last fall, starting from Drain. While there he was hurt in the hand by an elk, and, during a short search for a place of refuge among some rocks on the side of a canyon, he found an opening behind a thick bunch of brush, which he entered and lit a little fire to make some tea. Imagine his surprise on looking around to find the bones of three men and an old rusty pick, the handle of which had rotted away. The pick suggested they had been mining. The old prospector took some earth from the floor and found, after panning out, considerable gold, but as there seemed to be none in other parts of the cave, it must have belonged to one of the men. No clothing or other thing was found. "Then," said the narrator, "I tried panning out the earth in the creek near by, and got about seventy-five cents, but as my grub was giving out and winter set in, I returned up the river to Scottsburg, and then to Drain, but will go back again next summer.—Portland Oregonian.

—A little Moslem child accounted for the preference for the Christian religion by saying: "I like your Jesus because He loves little girls." With unerring instinct she had seized upon at least one of the great differences between the two religions.

—By educating our daughters they will get more out of life, have broader views; it is not how long we live, but how well life is; it should not be reckoned by the number of days and years we live, but in the manner we improve what we have.—Mrs. Watson.

—If you want to have good companions about you, don't be afraid to count good stories among those good companions. They can teach you some thing, can turn your heart toward better things and induce you to a nobler and truer life.—Robert Collyer.

—The American Missionary Association supports 17 schools with 38 teachers among the Chinese. Of the 1,131 pupils 136 are professing Christians. They have 5 churches among the Indians, with 397 members, with 1,091 children in the Sabbath-school. They have 18 day-schools, with 580 scholars.

—A resident of Santa Cruz, Cal., recently found a two-headed snake about a foot long. The heads were distinctly separate and both were perfect. The heads were little over an inch in length. When aroused the snake would throw a forked tongue out of each head simultaneously, as if they were one.

ALLEN GRAY

—— OR, ——

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

"I've heerd yer gwine to support Simmons."

"I am."

"What, arter ye obligated yerself to me?"

"I support you for sheriff, and him for the Legislature."

"Is he running for the Legislatoor?"

"Yes."

"Hev ye published my announcement yet?"

"It will appear this week."

"Change it."

"Why?"

"I'm not gwine to run for sheriff. I'm gwine to run for the Legislatoor."

"But remember your contract."

"What contract?"

Allen drew the written agreement from his pigeon-hole in his desk and read it to he angry Mr. Strong.

"But, then, I didn't know he was gwine to run fur the Legislatoor," persisted Strong. "Now thet he is, I'm gwine to beat him, I don't keer a cent what it costs me."

"If you run for any other office than sheriff, you will forfeit to me one thousand dollars," said Allen, very earnestly.

"Thunderation!"

"Your contract says so," and he called his special attention to it.

"It's a trick, ye two hev set up a trick on me, that's all thar is o' it."

"No, it's me ye set up a job on," said Tom Simmons, at this moment entering the office somewhat abruptly. Mr. Strong wheeled about and glared furiously at him. Allen, now quite thankful that the two men were together to vent their spleen upon each other, stood with folded arms and a smile on his face to see what would be the result of the meeting.

"You heah!" roared Strong.

"You here?" yelled Simmons.

"Yes, an' I'm agwine to beat you."

"I'm agoin' to see ye laid in the shade ef it busts me to do it."

"Ye've allers been a crossin' me, Tom Simmons. Yer one o' the kind t' allers be in a feller's track. It war a mighty sorry piece o' timber they made ye out ov any way."

"Jest say what ye please, I'm agoin' to beat ye, George Strong, ef it runs me fur the Legislatur' to do it."

Then Strong swore that he would beat Simmons, and vowed that he would rather be defeated any day than see his enemy elected.

"Gentlemen," said Allen, coolly, as he stood leaning against his desk watching the angry men, "my support has been promised to both of you and you shall have it. It would be a feather in our cap to have both Sheriff and Representative from our village. I come here in the interest of Turley's Point, and to that end I am working."

"D'ye think ye kin help Turley's Pint, by sendin' him to the Legislatoor?" asked Strong.

"I do."

"Then sink Turley's Pint."

"Would it help our town by electin' him sheriff?" roared Simmons.

"Of course."

"Then let 'er bust."

"Gentlemen, so long as you entertain such hostile feelings there will be little hope for the advancement of our town. If you wish to effect any thing here, and to build up a thriving commercial center, you must stop this combatting each other; put your shoulders to the wheel and go to work in earnest for yourselves, for each other and for Turley's Point."

"Me work for him! Never!" roared Simmons.

"Think I'm agwine to gin him a boost! Not much," said Mr. Strong.

"But I shall hold each of you to a strict observance of the contracts you have signed. You shall each of you run for the offices to which you were selected in the beginning, and I will support both."

"I'd rather be beat a thousand times than see him elected," cried Strong, as he left the office. In language equally as forcible Simmons gave vent to his feelings, as he retired also.

"I think I begin to see the cause of some of the trouble with Turley's Point," said Allen, as he stood on the front porch of the building gazing after the two receding figures going in different directions. "The town is made up of antagonistic rings and cliques. Every man here would rather die himself than see some one else prosper. They have taken prosperity by the throat and are throttling her."

The sun beamed lazily down upon the sloping roofs of the houses scattered along the narrow valley and hillsides. The store buildings were distinguished by their square fronts and painted signs. The usual crowd of loafers were gathered about the stores and saloons and were sitting on the porches or counters. The floors were well-worn and rotting, while from the damp warerooms at the rear one could inhale the damp air issuing from decaying vegetables. There was an air of dullness about the little village, as if it had been stifled by the thick atmosphere of hate.

"No wonder that Turley's Point is on the downward road," said Allen. "With such a class of citizens as these there is little or no hope of it ever reviving."

Summer passed, and as the time for the election drew near the heated contest among candidates became greater all over the country. Unkind words were uttered by men who should have been friends. Hopes rose and fell as the tide of political conflict went on. Allen pursued his established course of independence, supporting the Republican for the Legislature and the Democrat for sheriff. He became the mark for many sharp retorts from other newspapers, and was accused of riding two horses at once—horses that were certainly going in different directions. As the contest became more heated many came to him to induce him to give up one of the candidates, but he stated he was pledged to both, and, having the interests of Turley's Point at heart, could not be swerved from his course.

His determination alone prevented Simmons and Strong from withdrawing to defeat each other. Candidates from other parts of the country were nominated, a Democrat from Bentonsville was put in nomination for Representative, and a Republican from another village put in nomination by his party for sheriff, against Mr. Strong.

The fight waxed hot. No slander was too vile, low or unreasonable for Simmons to fall upon his fellow townsman, Mr. Strong, nor could Mr. Strong conjure up in his fertile imagination any thing too base to fall on his fellow townsman, Simmons.

Allen appealed in vain to their reason, assuring them that they were ruining each other, and destroying all the hopes of Turley's Point. Each swore he would sink Turley's Point to beat his opponent.

It was useless for Allen to advocate the interests of the Turley's Point candidates when they were doing all in their power to ruin each other. Every good word he spoke for them was flatly denied. The local hatred which had blighted Turley's Point seemed to culminate in wild rage on election day. At ten o'clock in the forenoon it had became dangerous to be out.

Drunken, burly ruffians were parading the streets to the terror of all good citizens. Half a dozen brawls raged during the day, and black eyes and bloody noses became a common sight before evening.

The young editor, disgusted with the people, the town and the election, remained in his office all day. When returns came in from all the townships he was not surprised to learn that both the Turley's Point candidates were badly defeated.

CHAPTER XVIII.

"THAT CAN NEVER BE."

Simmons and Strong found the bitterness of personal defeat somewhat sweetened by the knowledge that their enemy had gone down with them. Morose, gloomy and ill-natured, each went moping about the streets, cursing his own ill-luck, and wondering what blight had come over their town that it could not be saved from inevitable ruin. Allen Gray had come at last to realize that Turley's Point was doomed, and all his endeavors to save it were worse than useless.

"I will give it up," he said to himself, as he sat at his desk one day. "It is no use to try to do any thing for these foolish people while they are so blindly jealous and envious of each other. If a stranger comes here to purchase property or engage in business he is discouraged. I will sell out the paper and go to other fields where I shall have more favorable surroundings."

But property in Turley's Point was not a ready sale, and he could find no one bold enough to venture to take the editorial helm of the Western Republic.

During the summer just passed Allen continually hoped amid the heat of political conflict and a failing business to entirely forget all about the stone house on the hill. But as the weeks rolled on he found the image of one of the inmates of that mysterious building becoming daily more fixed in his mind and more and more a part of himself. Try as he would it was impossible to efface that image from his memory.

He had taken frequent strolls to the stone house, but not a soul was to be seen. It seemed as utterly deserted as if on an island which had been uninhabited for ages. The fountains were dried up, and weeds were growing in the garden.

"They are all gone, taking that blighting, withering mystery with them!" said Allen, a few days after the election, having returned from a stroll to the top of the hill. "I will forget her—I will leave the neighborhood, and, in other fields, amid different scenes and people, begin life anew."

As autumn advanced he made vigorous efforts to dispose of the paper, but without avail. Summer seemed to linger in the lap of winter, and those days of ripening fruit and golden harvest were continued longer than usual.

One evening when the moon shone brightly from a cloudless sky, and the landscape seemed more lovely than by day, Allen decided to take one more stroll. His many afflictions had taught him to love solitude. Miss Leethy Hopkins, in her efforts to capture the young editor, was growing desperate, frequently driving her victim to the solitude of the forests where, free from her sickening nonsense, he could commune with nature at his own sweet will.

SHE WANDERED DOWN TO THE OLD DESERTED ROAD.

In no place was he more secure from intrusion than on the quiet hill-top where the old mansion, like some vast castle, was set up as a guard for the village. Allen went straight up the hill to the front gate, intending to sit down on the stone steps and enjoy a few moments' reflection free from the cares and annoyances of the world.

But when he reached the gate and glanced through the iron bars, he was astonished at the transformation. The moon was bathing the scene in a flood of mellow light. All signs of neglect were removed, and flowers were blooming and fountains so long dry and silent had found their voices again and were laughingly gushing out the brightest sparkling water. The air seemed full of life and gladness.

From an open window came the strains of a piano. Allen was entranced at the French air that floated on the evening breeze from the window of the house. Even as he listened enraptured the music ceased, the door opened, and a slight form, with a light shawl thrown over her shoulders, came down the white-pebbled walk to the gate. Allen instinctively shrunk back so as not to be seen.

Crouched in the shadow of the wall he was again thrilled at sight of that angelic being who had seemed to become a part of himself. Bertha opened the gate, and, drawing the silk shawl about her shoulders, passed down the old turnpike humming a plaintive air. Her head was uncovered, and, her wealth of golden hair hung loosely about her shoulders, was made the sport of the breeze.

"Where is she going?" he asked himself. Slowly he rose, following her. He could not give any reason for his course, save that he was impelled by some inward impulse.

Had he conquered his heart? Certainly not, for now that he was near her again those same strange wild emotions which had so completely taken possession of him before were all revived with ten-fold power.

Still humming the plaintive French air, she wandered down the old long-deserted road, until she came to the path which led to the spring. Following, Allen soon saw her seated upon the old rustic seat. Behind a large square stone, which ages ago had tumbled down from the bluff above, he stood and gazed at the lovely creature who seemed to be a domesticated dryad, that had stolen away for a few moments to her native haunts.

This was an opportunity not to be neglected, something seemed to whisper in his ear, and he felt at the same time a wild, almost irresistible, desire to rush from his concealment, cast himself at her feet, and vow that he would never rise until his love was returned. He waited long enough to get full control over his feelings, when he went boldly forward to her side.

She rose with a little exclamation of surprise, and said:

"Mr. Gray, are you here? I had almost lost hope of ever seeing you again."

"Did you wish to see me?" he asked.

"I did. I wish to thank you for your noble act—for so kindly obeying my request."

"Say nothing about it. It was a simple service I rendered you, and one which should be forgotten."

"Yet one I will never forget, Mr. Gray. I would be ungrateful indeed were I to forget that, at my request and for me, you risked your life."

"Have you any objections to me sitting here at your side?" said Allen.

"None whatever. There is no other seat, and you must have become weary climbing the hill."

"How is the little boy?" he asked, sitting himself at her side.

"He is well."

"Does he like to stay there?"

"He can be happy nowhere else."

For several moments Allen sat thinking that he was fully repaid for all he had endured on that journey.

"Was I pursued?" he at last asked.

"No, sir, you were not."

(To be Continued.)

—Yee Hing was recently buried in a Pittsburgh (Pa.) cemetery as a Christian. He was probably the first Celestial in America whose funeral rites were unaccompanied by the peculiar formalities of a strictly Chinese burial. —Pittsburgh Chronicle.

—Henry Gwaltney dug into a mound near Wakulla, Fla., recently and found a skull that must have belonged to a giant. The under jaw was particularly large, being twice the size of an ordinary man's, and none of the teeth was missing from either jaw, and but one showed any signs of decay.

—George Boss, of Baltimore, Md., and Justus Rose, of Granville, Mass., were both heroes of the war of 1812. The first was a fifer in the Columbia artillery at the battle of North Point. He died a few days ago, aged ninety-three years. The latter served all through the war as a drum major, and recently, when he died, was also ninety-three years old.—Baltimore Sun.

—Fifty years ago Isaiah Hoyt became superintendent of repairs at the Boston & Providence railroad shops at Rumford. He married Miss Bishop very soon after. He has held the place with the railroad ever since, and on the fiftieth anniversary of his superintendency the company gave him a check for five hundred dollars and his employes gave him a gold watch. A few days later he and Mrs. Hoyt celebrated their golden wedding, and then the presents were numerous and valuable. Mr. Hoyt does his work to-day apparently as well as ever.—Boston Herald.

—A six-year-old girl in Cincinnati inadvertently drank a quantity of concentrated lye, which caused a stricture of the throat. No nourishment could be taken by the child in a natural manner. As a dernier resort the family physician performed the operation of gastrotomy, a very rare surgical operation, and one seldom successful. An opening was cut in the stomach of the child through which food was placed. The operation was successful, and the child had almost recovered when she had an attack of measles and died.—

TWO LUCKY MEN.

How a Printer Tried to Dodge a Small Fortune.

Some time before the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, Wellington A. Griffin of the Guide newspaper, 5:1 Clay street, San Francisco, contracted with an agent for a ticket. The coupon was not forthcoming at the appointed time, and he procured one from another source.

On the morning of the drawing Griffin was walking toward his office. The rain was falling in torrents. As he approached Montgomery street he espied the agent of whom he had promised to buy a ticket. Griffin, however, being short of money, pretended not to see him, and continued on his way.

"Hi, there," shouted the agent.

Griffin hoisted his umbrella on the lee side and still plodded on, deaf to salutation. The agent then ran after him, and asked if he did not want the ticket.

"I have no money," said Griffin.

"Well, you asked me to keep a ticke for you, and it will be thrown on my hands," said the agent.

"If you'll trust me till Saturday," said Griffin, "I'll take it."

The ticket was taken at 11 o'clock, and by 3 in the afternoon Griffin found himself in the possession of a fortune, having won $15,000. The agent wishes now he had not met Griffin.

Hans M. C. Mangels, who owns a half interest in the grocery, on the corner of Railroad avenue and Manitoba street, like many others in this city purchases Louisiana State Lottery tickets occasionally, and when an agent came to him a few days before the last drawing, on March 12th, he bought a coupon of No. 2887.

On the evening of the 12th the agent again appeared and asked him if he had his coupon safe. On being answered in the affirmative, the agent said:

"Well, keep it safe, for it is worth $15,000."

Mr. Mangels whi'e naturally very much elated over the matter, takes it quietly, and will be careful with his suddenly acquired wealth.

"I expect to enlarge this business," he said, "and then my wife and I will take a trip to the old country and about Europe. She wants to see Germany, for she has never been there, and I shall gratify her wish. That was the best investment of a dollar I ever saw."—San Francisco (Cal.) Call March 30.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches" will relieve Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, and Throat Diseases.

The free public libraries of Iowa are one of the notable marks of the State's development.

The country is flooded with poor imitations of "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut Smoking Tobacco."

Are you feeble in health? Try Dujardin's Life Essence. You will find your strength restored, and instead of depression of spirit, you will feel the energy of youth. It will act well in both old and young. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

The creation of the monkey shows that Nature, in spite of earthquakes, seal, glaciers and other evidences of a serious disposition, is not wholly without the sense of humor.—[Puck.

"CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED."

Dr. J. S. Combs, Owensville, Ohio, says: "I have given Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites to four patients with better results than seemed possible with any remedy. All were hereditary cases of Lung disease, and advanced to that stage when Coughs, pain in the chest, frequent breathing, frequent pulse, fever and Emaciation. All these cases have increased in weight from 16 to 28 lbs., and are not now needing any medicine."

Try Germea for Breakfast.

Old Time Smokers

Who know a good thing when they see it, cannot be fooled by a poor imitation of the well-known "Seal of North Carolina" Plug Cut Tobacco.

Bear in mind that the genuine "Seal" costs you no more than the many trashy plug cuts that some dealers carry.

See that you get the Seal of North Carolina, and you will smoke no other tobacco.

RELIABLE TESTIMONY.

Among those who testify to the merits of Allcock's Porous Plasters are Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, Hon. Sam'l J. Randall, Cyrus W. Field, Jr., Hon. James W. Husted, Charles D. Fredricks, Henry King, Manager Seaside Sanitarium, Hon. E. L. Pitts, Gen. F. B. Spinola, George Augustus Sala, Marion Harland and Sisters of Charity, Providence Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Beware of imitations, and do not be decieved by misrepresentation. Ask for Allcock's, and let no explanation or solicitation induce you to accept a substitute.

New religions are to be judged, not so much by the men who make them, as by the men they make. —[Joseph Cook.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

As oysters are swallowed when they are opened, so is the frank man taken in when he tells his plans to rogues.

UNDESERVEDLY LAUGHED AT.

The unthinking are prone to make game of nervousness. Yet this is a very real and serious affliction, the harassing symptoms of which are rendered all the more poignant by ridicule. The stomach is usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve tonic and tranquillizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion, it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headaches, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these modify and ultimately disappear as the system gains strength from the great tonic. Dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, constipation and kidney complaints are subdued by the Bitters.

A MOTHER'S LOVE SAVES HER TEN-YEAR OLD CHILD.

My little girl, ten years of age, had Bright's disease. Her ankles, feet and eyes were terribly swollen. Four of our best physicians attended her, but her life was despaired of. A mother's love surmount all difficulties, and I determined to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. Bright's disease! How happy I am that I determined upon this course—for one by one the well-known symptoms of the disease left her. Words fail to express my gratitude, and I cannot too earnestly recommend the Favorite Remedy. Her recovery was entirely due to the Favorite Remedy, which was the only medicine taken after her case was abandoned by the physicians—Mrs. Laura A. Kempton, West Rutland, Vermont.

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

To the Editor:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy free to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. Slocum, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD

Some years ago I was thrown from a horse in McLennan county, and received a frightful wound on one of my legs. For more than a year I was unable to walk. The wound ulcerated and refused to heal, and every one thought I would have to submit to amputation. S.S.S. was commended, and I used it freely, and I shall never get through thanking S. S. S. for saving my leg, and restoring me to perfect health. Garland Wilson,
Palestine, Texas, July, 24, '88.

Send for treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases; mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

A BIG SHOW

Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey. Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

CALIFORNIA ROSES!

Strong, Well-Rooted Plants, All Labeled, Assorted, 10 for $1.00. Geraniums, Fuchsias, Heliotrope, Begonias, Verbenas and Chrysanthemums in large variety. Good Healthy Plants, all Labeled, 12 for $1.00. All plants sent free by mail, and safe arrival guaranteed for Cash with order. Address, W. A. T. STRATTON, Florist, Petaluma, Cala.

$75.00 TO $250.00 A MONTH can be made working for us. Agents preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1009 Main St., Richmond, Va. N. B.—Ladies employed also. Never mind about sending stamp for reply. Come quick. Yours for biz, B. F. J. & Co.

DR. C. W. MOORE,
Consulting Physician,
Nucleus House, San Francisco.
CAN BE CONSULTED BY LETTER.

Pacific Record of Medicine and Surgery; the Best Medical Journal on the Pacific Coast. C. W. Moore, M. D., Editor and Proprietor, San Francisco, California.

FINE RUBBER STAMPS at agents' prices. All kinds of Pen and Pencil Prints, name and address, 25c.; Self Inker Prints, also business, 50c. complete. Circulars 2c. Western Novelty Co., 1327 Clay St., San Francisco, Cal.

L. M. WALTERS' Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car Excursions to Chicago and Boston, Without change of Cars
Leave San Francisco
May 2nd, June 13th, July 11th,
" 16th, " 27th, " 25th,
" 30th. For locations in these cars, rates, tickets and full information, address—L. M. WALTERS, 624 Market Street, San Francisco.

STEINWAY. KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roenish Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

ORATORS say Piso's Cure for Consumption is THE BEST for keeping the voice clear. 25 cents.

AGENTS are coining money with our new book. Write for circulars. Distance no hindrance. Empyreal Pub. House, St. Paul, Minn.

M. L. BRITTAN,
Write your wife, 827 19th street, San Francisco, Cal.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN
IT CONQUERS PAIN.
Relieves and cures RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, Sciatica, Lumbago. HEADACHE, Toothache, Sprains, BRUISES, Burns and Scalds.
At Druggists and Dealers.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

KNABE PIANOS
It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.
A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 132 Post street, S. F.

I CURE FITS!
I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH, Carbolic Sheep Wash.
T. W. Jackson & Co., Mfg. Agents, 104 Market St.

PEOPLES HOME SAVINGS BANK
JAS. K. WILSON, Cashier.
COLUMBUS WATERHOUSE, President.
805 Market Street, cor. 4th St.
IN FLOOD BUILDING.
San Francisco, California.
GUARANTEE CAPITAL, $300,000
Deposits from any part of the Pacific Coast States may be sent by registered letter, post office money order, bank draft or express.
The People's Home Savings Bank has exceptional facilities for safe, profitable and satisfactory investment of funds at good rates of interest.

Dr. John C. Spencer,
Physician and Surgeon
Arzt und Chirurg.
OFFICE, 514 Sutter St. bet Powell & Mason, San Francisco, California.
RESIDENCE, Westminster Hotel, 614 Sutter St. one block above.

HAIRY FACES! M. Graham's Depilatory Paste is guaranteed to remove hair and check its growth. $1.50 by mail. Send 2c. stamp for book "How to be Beautiful." Mrs. Gervaise Graham, "Beauty Doctor," 214 Lovell St., San Francisco.

Spring Disorders

Shattered nerves, tired brain, impure blood, debilitated system, all are the natural outcome in the Spring. A medicine must be used, and nothing equals Paine's Celery Compound. We let others praise us—you cannot help believing a disinterested party.

Brigadier-General W. L. Greenleaf, Burlington, Vt., writes: "I have used Paine's Celery Compound on several occasions, and always with benefit. Last spring, being very much run down and debilitated, I commenced taking it. Two bottles made me feel like a new man. As a general tonic and spring medicine I do not know of its equal."

"I have used two bottles of your Paine's Celery Compound, and it has given entire satisfaction as an appetizer and blood purifier." T. L. Berner, Watertown, Dakota.

Paine's Celery Compound

is prescribed by physicians, recommended by druggists, endorsed by ministers, praised by users, and guaranteed by the manufacturers, as a spring medicine which will do all that is claimed for it. Use it this spring, and see how quickly it tones you up.

Purifies the Blood.

Full accounts of wonderful cures made by Paine's Celery Compound after other medicines and the best physicians had failed, sent free. There's nothing like it.

$1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.
Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.

Color Anything any Color. Simple, Durable, Economical. IT IS EASY TO DYE WITH DIAMOND DYES 36 Colors, 10 cents each.

THE FRIEND'S ADVICE.

"Don't give up, my poor, sick friend,
While there's life there's hope, 'tis said;
Sicker persons often mend;
Time to give up when you're dead."

"Purer, richer blood you need;
Strength and tone your system give;
This advice be wise and heed—
Take the G. M. D. and live."

"These letters stand for 'Golden Medical Discovery' (Dr. Pierce's), the greatest nutritive, tonic and blood-purifier of the age."

"You have been told that consumption is incurable; that when the lungs are attacked by this malady, which is scrotula affecting the lungs and rotting them out, the sufferer is past all help, and the end is a mere question of time. You have noted with alarm the unmistakable symptoms of the disease; you have tried all manner of so-called cures in vain, and you are now despondent and preparing for the worst. But 'don't give up the ship' while Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery remains untried. It is not a cure-all, nor will it perform miracles, but it is guaranteed to benefit or cure Consumption, if taken in time and given a fair trial, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

Copyright, 1888, by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors.

$500 REWARD. So confident are the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy of their ability to cure Catarrh in the Head, no matter how bad or of how long standing, that they offer, in good faith, the above reward for a case which they cannot cure. Remedy 50 cents, by druggists.

THE BEST CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY....JUNE 8, 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XX. NO. 52. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 8, 1889. WHOLE NO. 971.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

Bowser Speaks Slightingly of His Wife's Business Methods, but——

I wanted to send off for a lady's fashion magazine, and on a dozen different occasions I begged of Mr. Bowser to write the letter and send off the money. He kept promising and neglecting, man like, but one evening he said:

"Give me the name of that magazine and I will get a letter off to-morrow."

"It's gone," I answered.

"Who sent it?"

"I did."

"Humph! Do you mean to tell me that you wrote a business letter?"

"I do. I ordered the magazine and sent in a year's subscription."

"What did you write?"

"Oh, in the usual form."

"And chucked the $2 into the letter, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, that's about what I should expect of you. You'll never see either money or magazine again."

"I won't! Why?"

"Because, in the first place, it stood just as good a chance of going to some machine shop as to a magazine office, with your style of directing an envelope; and because, secondly, if some postoffice official doesn't steal the money, they will gobble it at the end of the route and swear they never got it. Mrs. Bowser, you are as simple as a child."

"But it may come all right."

"Yes, and we may discover a box of gold in the back yard. There's but one way to do business."

"How's that?"

"See this P. O. money order for $33? I am going to send that to Boston to-morrow, It will go straighter than a crow, and there is no cause for worry. However, it's useless to try to learn a woman how to do business."

Three or four days went by, and then he suddenly inquired:

"Have you heard from that magazine, Mrs. Bowser?"

"Not yet."

"I suppose not. When you do hear please let me know. After forty or fifty experiences of this sort you may learn how to do business."

Two days later he asked me again, and I was then able to show him a letter acknowledging receipt of the money, and a copy of the magazine.

"It seems to have gone through," he said as he handed the letter back, "but that was owing to Providence. Probably the parties had heard of me and hesitated to defraud you for fear I'd raise a row."

"What about the order you sent off, Mr. Bowser?"

He jumped out of his chair and turned pale and gasped:

"By gum! but I'd forgotten about that! I ought to have had an acknowledgment three days ago.'

"Can't have been lost, eh?"

"N-no."

"It was the only proper way to do business, wasn't it?"

"Of course it was, and of course it got there all right. I'll probably get a letter to-morrow."

When the morrow came I asked him if he had heard from his order.

"Not exactly," he replied, "but I am certain that it got there safe."

"But they ought to acknowledge it."

"Y-e-s."

"There is but one way of doing business, Mr. Bowser. When I send off money I receive an acknowledgment of its arrival. You are sure you sent it?"

"Sure I sent it? Do you take me for a lunatic, Mrs. Bowser?"

"But it's so queer."

"I don't see anything so queer about it. I wrote again two days ago, and I shall have a letter to-morrow begging my pardon for the delay."

A letter arrived next day. I saw by Mr. Bowser's perturbation when he came home that something was wrong, and he finally handed me the letter. It read:

"No postoffice order has been received from you. Please do not try any more chestnuts on us."

"But you did send it," I protested.

"Of course I did."

"Directed your letter all right?"

"Certainly."

"Stamped and posted it?"

"Look here, Mrs. Bowser, you talk as if I didn't know enough to get aboard a street car and pay my fare!"

"But it's so queer. There is but one business way of doing business, Mr. Bowser. After forty or fifty experiences of this sort you may learn how to do business."

He glared at me and was too insulted to reply. He went to the postoffice and made complaint, and for the next two weeks that lost order was the topic of conversation. The officials sought to trace the letter, and Mr. Bowser made affidavits to this and that, and the hunt was still going on when, in dusting off his secretary and straightening up his loose papers, I found a letter sealed and addressed to the Boston firm. I had no doubt it contained the missing order. I quietly handed it to Mr. Bowser as he came up to dinner, and his face turned all colors before he could open it.

"Mr. Bowser," I said, "you men folks have curious ways of doing business. It is sing"——

"I'd like to know how this letter got here!" he demanded.

"You left it here, of course."

"Never! Because I scolded you about your careless way of sending off money, and because you wanted to get even with me for it, you took this letter from my pocket and detained it. Mrs. Bowser, this is the last straw to the camel's load! Do you want alimony or a lump sum?"

Next day he was all right again, and he even stopped at the sale and brought me up half a dozen pairs of gloves.—Detroit Free Press.

He Betrayed Himself.

Manager—I'm very sorry, Mr. Clark, but I'm afraid you won't do as my stage manager. I can't have a man who's had no experience.

The New Stage Manager—What makes you think I've had no experience, sir?

Manager—Why, I noticed that you took off your hat to the leading lady when you came on the stage this morning. [He left at the end of the week.]—Judy.

"I AM TOO OLD."

A Protest Against the Tendency of People to Surrender Activity.

In every human being we have the successive phases of growth, maturity and decadence of the powers of the body. Older writers divided the different ages of man after the following manner: Infancy, including the first five years of age; youth, from five to twenty-five; adult age, extending from twenty-five to thirty-five; middle life to fifty; old age to the sixtieth year, after which the individual entered upon extreme old age. From this physiological division of life into its various eras has arisen a tendency to an arbitrary regulation of the affairs of life, which tends to lessen the sum total of work accomplished and results in detriment to the individual.

It is within the memory of not a few of us when public opinion put a cap and spectacles on a woman and knitting in her hands and retired her to a corner by the fireside as soon as she had won the honorable title of "grandmother." The change that has taken place is abundantly illustrated in a recent novel, which makes "Baby's Grandmother" a most interesting, captivating and charming heroine. There is, however, need for a still greater change in this respect. Many cripple their forces and reduce their physical power by withdrawing from various forms of mental and physical activity with the oft-repeated excuse, "I am too old." The old proverb, "Never too old to learn," should be taken literally.

Mothers who have been kept from intellectual enjoyments because of the care of large families should, when the young birds have flown from the nest and left them with a lonely leisure, turn their thought to the acquaintance of languages, the study of art, history, science or literature. It will seem strange to those who have not kept up the habit of study after leaving school to begin again, but after a little perseverance there will come a greater interest and delight than that experienced in the careless school days, when study was only accomplished because every body else studied, and it was a matter of routine. The life of the mind is not to be measured by years. Time is a false standard of measure for it.

A grief which comes upon one in a moment will contain the crushing agony of centuries. One week for one person is crowded with experiences which would not come to another were he to live cycles of centuries. Ask the soul its record of events, find out its gamut of feeling, and you will know whether its possessor is in youth, adult life, middle aged or old and decrepit. It is within the power of every one to keep the mind young and active; the law of evolution is applicable to it, but the law of dissolution will not so surely hold sway unless you continually say "too old, too old," and consent that—

"The soul shall have her earthly freight,
And custom lie upon it with a weight
Heavy as frost, and deep almost as life!"

—Home Maker

PRESIDENT BARNARD.

A Man Who Won a High Place by His High Qualities.

The story of President Barnard, of Columbia College, who retires after a long life spent in the noblest labors, furnishes one more proof that the cause of men's weal or woe is not in their stars, but in themselves.

Is there no such thing, then, as good luck? Oh, yes, and President Barnard has had his share of it; but the good luck that is best worth having waits until the right man for it comes along.

When the war broke out in 1861, he was the honored president of the University of Mississippi, an institution of much promise, in which he was deeply interested, and in whose service he expected to spend his life. A native of Massachusetts and a graduate of Yale, he had been for twenty-four years a resident of the South, always employed in her colleges as professor or president, and always enjoying, in a high degree, the esteem and confidence of the communities in which he dwelt.

The guns that fired upon Sumter emptied the University of Mississippi of all its students and most of its teachers. The president of the institution, known to be a Union man, was left, not merely without occupation, but without a safe abiding-place, such was the frenzy of excitement that prevailed, and he was strongly advised by his friends to withdraw from the State until better times. With much difficulty and some danger he and his wife made their way to Washington.

He was then fifty-two years of age, and his possessions were chiefly of the kind that a man stows away under his hat and buttons up under his coat. He had a head full of knowledge and a heart full of goodness, but no great amount of money in his pocket. He found employment in the office of the Coast Survey, having a rare gift in mathematics, and he set up his frugal house-keeping in a house much of which he could scarcely furnish.

Before the war closed he was chosen President of Columbia College, in the city of New York, an office which he has held with eminent success for twenty-four years. It made no difference his being a stranger to almost every Northern circle and coterie. The native qualities of the man appeared at once, and his upward pathway was smoothed for him by friendly hands.

"I am a clerk in the Coast Survey," he said to Mr. McCulloch in 1861; but he was the same urbane, friendly and accomplished man as in 1864, when he signed himself President of Columbia College, and it was the high quality of the man that gave him the high place.—Youth's Companion.

—A man may foot a bill without kicking.—Boston Courier.

THE EUCALYPTUS.

Some of the Remarkable Properties of a Beautiful Australian Tree.

Some years ago, when a mail steamship line was established between San Francisco and the Australian Islands, enterprising persons sought to transfer some of the wild products of the latter region to California soil. One thing attracted the attention of the admirers of nature, and that was the eucalyptus tree, which formed 99 per cent. of the forest vegetation of Australia. This tree grows very rapidly in that country, with a straight stem reaching commonly 250 feet in height, and having a circumference of several feet at the base. It was believed that as this tree produced a great mass of leaves, it could be utilized for shade as well as ornamentation, if the soil of the Pacific States should be found suitable to its growth. The experiment was tried, and slips of the Australian forest giant transferred to California, where they soon took root and thrived in the prolific soil of the Golden State. The tree was found to furnish honey to bees and in this way alone the foreigner was soon ascertained to be a valuable addition to the honey-giving products of that now extensive honey-producing State. It was ascertained that the eucalyptus globulus, or blue gum, could be further utilized as a remedy for marsh and other fevers. So valuable, indeed, is it that it will destroy and feed upon the animalcules of marshy regions and help to eradicate mosquitoes by destroying the food on which they exist. Its value by being efficacious in such fevers has given to the tree among many persons, especially the Spanish-Americans, the name of the "fever tree," and it is, therefore, somewhat revered by the natives of the Spanish-American countries along the Pacific coast. The tree produces an essential oil which is valuable, and a resin like the resin of cinchona. An extract made from the tree yields a substance capable of neutralizing strong acids and forming crystalline salts. The leaves, dried and powdered, have been found useful as a medicine for certain maladies, and the bark and wood have been utilized for the same purpose. But the discovery of the most remarkable use to which this tree can be put was the result of an accident a couple of years ago. The eucalyptus tree had flourished on California soil, and had been employed as an ornament and shade tree in many of the cities and settlements along the Pacific coast. It will be remembered that for a long time past engineers all over the country suffered from scale forming in their boilers and from corrosion. About a couple of years ago Mr. George Downie, the proprietor of a flouring mill at Salinos City, Cal., was in the habit of filtering water in an oil heater, in order to free it, as far as possible, from the mineral qualities that formed scale in his boiler. Chemical compounds supposed to prevent the formation of scale had been used without effect, and Mr. Downie resorted to the filtering of water as a partial preventative. His process was to run the water through the heater and let it drain through straw. One day he happened to be out of straw, but as the leaves from one of the eucalyptus trees which stood near the mill were handy, he employed them instead. To Mr. Downie's surprise, the formation of scale in the boiler stopped and that which was already there began to be removed. He thought it well to continue his experience with the eucalyptus leaves, and, on proving the result, informed others what he had discovered. In a very short time the leaves of the eucalyptus tree fell into general use among the engineers on the Pacific Coast for removing scale from all boilers and for preventing corrosion.—American Analyst.

FUNCTION OF CITIES.

Great Municipalities as Representatives of National Life and Characteristics.

Great cities are essential to the development of any important or influential national life. They gather into themselves the resources of the nation, and so organize its stores of wealth, its enterprise and the results of its genius and culture, as to render each efficient in promoting the common good. They are the centers of power. Without the facilities which through them are afforded for commerce and manufactures, without their aggregations of capital, their business systems and institutions, and their fostering care of art, science and literature, it would seem impossible that there could be any civilization or progress.

These great municipalities are the exponents of the national advancement in mineral wealth, in commercial importance and influence, and in all forms of intellectual and moral culture. In times past they have been the agencies through which civil and intellectual freedom have been conserved, even if they may not be credited with having been the nursery in which liberty was cradled. They constitute the medium through which we must study many of the most important and interesting phases of history, and are the sources of all the greatest enterprises of the world.

So thoroughly do cities become representative of national life and characteristics, that it is frequently said that London is England, Rome is Italy and Paris is France. In a less comprehensive but nevertheless very important sense it might properly be said that New York represents America, Boston stands for New England and Chicago for the great West. A thorough acquaintance with either of these great cities is equivalent to knowing well the people by whom they are surrounded.—F. P. Crandon in Popular Science Monthly.

TOASTMASTER HARKER.

HE HAS HEARD MORE AFTER DINNER SPEECHES THAN ANY OTHER MAN.

His Reminiscences of Distinguished Diners. Charles Dickens Was a Ready Speaker. Brought Out the Prince of Wales—Dining 5,000 Doctors.

"Are you still the city toastmaster?"

"No. I gave up my post some time ago, but I am the queen's bailiff at the central criminal court, and am one of the oldest servants of the corporation."

"How many dinners have you put through in your official capacity?"

"Four thousand and ninety."

"Most of the great speakers you have heard take something to keep their voice in trim?"

"Well, Disraeli, for instance, always had his butler behind him with a bottle of egg and sherry, which he had ready mixed. Mr. Gladstone, I have noticed, takes sherry, but no egg. The Prince of Wales, he likes hock and champagne. The Duke of Edinburgh, his servant always brings his special brand with him—a Russian champagne."

ALL THE CROWNED HEADS.

"Well, Mr. Harker, you have certainly heard more after dinner speeches than any man living. Will you offer some criticisms?"

"Well, I suppose Charles Dickens was as ready a speaker as I ever heard. The words flowed out like a stream, but he was not what I call a good after dinner speaker, because he was so interesting that you wished he would go on forever. Now, that don't do for me, you know, for I have to stand by with the watch."

"The 'stop' watch, eh?"

"Yes; I've stopped Mr. Gladstone before today." This in a confidential whisper.

"You don't say so."

"A fact. When he is too long I have spoken into his ear, 'T-i-m-e, sir! t-i-m-e,' and then he slacks up. With ordinary men I say it to the 'chair,' not to let the room hear me, you know. I never stop a man at a charity dinner. It doesn't do."

"Is the Prince of Wales a good speaker?"

"A glorious fellow. If I had only a sovereign in the world and he wanted it, he should have it. Why, I brought him out in '63, and stood behind him many a time and oft. Does he speak from notes? Not in speaking of himself, never. He has a slip of paper to show the order of the toasts, that's all. What's his favorite dish? Well, he likes dainties en caisse, en papillot, larks, lobsters, oysters. He is very fond of those."

"Well, now, who are the most famous people you have attended?" Mr. Harker looked hurt and his fingers fumbled irritably with his white tie as he proceeded:

"Why, nearly all the crowned heads in Europe. The queen, to begin with. Then I brought out the Prince of Wales in 1863, and all his brothers and his sons, the emperor of Austria, the late czar and the present czar, the late Emperor Frederick, the Emperor Napoleon—why, I remember swearing in the late emperor of the French as a special juryman at the Old Bailey when he was nobody. Did he serve? Just like anybody else. He had to serve by the law of the land.

COACHING THE PRINCESS.

"Then I claim to be the person who first induced the Princess of Wales to make a speech in public. I was standing behind her, a good many years ago, it was at a charity dinner or luncheon, and her speech was going to be read by her secretary. I ventured to say: 'If your royal highness would only say a word yourself it would make all the difference,' and she did. The Baroness Burdett-Coutts, too, I induced to speak when she opened Columbia market."

"Well, you heard about your successor who couldn't pronounce Massachusetts? What is the most difficult name you ever had to tackle?"

"The Madagascar envoy's. They were cautious. 'Riandriandrianivo,' as near as I can remember it," said Mr. Harker. 'Rain and rain and dry again,' as Punch called it. The biggest number I think I ever did was 5,000 foreign doctors who dined at the Guildhall, and they said I didn't make one mistake."

"What preparation had you for your onerous duties?"

"In 1844 I shipped with Sir John Ross for the Antarctic expedition. We wintered twice in 76 degs. south; then we went to China, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, getting remounts for the regiments engaged in the Indian mutiny. I had joined the commissariat then. I came home in the fifties, and served through the Crimean war."

"Any wounds?"

"A bullet in my leg, a gun carriage crushed my ribs, and a slice of my chin cut off with a saber. Pretty tough, eh? I have twenty-six medals and orders, and my collection of autographs is not to be beaten, I think, for I have 600 cabinet portraits of all the famous men and women for thirty years past, with autographs attached."

"By the way, what are your fees?"

"Two guineas for a city dinner and ten guineas if I travel."

"And your uniform?"

"Well, evening dress as often as not now. In the good old days I wore a beautiful velvet dress, with knee breeches and silver decorations, which cost £200. But the city can't spend money like they used to do. They are watched by the newspapers."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Some Curious Misnomers.

Arabic figures were invented by the Indians, not by the Arabs.

Dutch clocks are not of Dutch, but German (deutsch) manufacture.

Irish stew is a dish unknown in Ireland.

Baffin's bay is no bay at all.

Catgut is the gut of sheep, not of cats.

Down is used instead of a-down and utterly perverts its meaning. The Saxon dun is a hill, and a-dun is its opposite, a descent. Going down stairs really means going up stairs. We ought properly to say "going a-down."—Detroit Free Press.

ARTIFICIAL FERTILIZERS.

Great Improvements in Them During the Past Thirty Years.

Among the other titles to distinction which the Nineteenth century is hereafter to enjoy, one will be found in the fact that in that age agriculture first began to be pursued in a systematic manner with the aid of scientific research. Manuring with the products of the barnyard is a very ancient art, but the resort to the mine for fertilizers is substantially an invention of our own times. Chemists first told the farmer the cause of the frequent speedy exhaustion in the grain producing powers of the soil; it has fallen to the geologist to show whence may be obtained the phosphatic element which is the most quickly exhausted of all the elements of plant food in process of cropping.

Although artificial fertilizers are practically the invention of the last thirty years, the industries connected with their manufacture now demand a capital of about $100,000,000, with an annual product of about that amount, and the volume of the industries is increasing more rapidly, perhaps, than any other art which pertains to mining. The use of artificial fertilizers grew out of the trade in guano. These heaps of bird dung were first made use of by the Peruvians. The account of Garcilasco de la Vega, published in 1604, relates that the Peruvians in the Twelfth century used guano beds as a source of fertilizers. Of such importance did they esteem the material of these beds that the penalty of death was imposed by the early Incas upon any one found killing the birds which made these precious deposits.

For many years the guano beds of the western coast of South America and other similar deposits within the tropical region supplied the demands of our gardens. As the supply of these guanos approached exhaustion and the price increased, the skill of chemists and geologists showed the manufacturers where to find and how to treat deposits of mineral phosphates in such a manner that they might substantially serve to replace the manures of animal origin. In bulletin No. 46, of the United States geological survey, Dr. R. A. F. Penrose, Jr., now assistant state geologist of Texas, has given an important treatise on phosphate deposits, and although his report mainly concerns the phosphates of North America, it gives a synoptic account of the known beds of this nature in all parts of the world. The report makes it plain that only a small part of the deposits of this nature are yet known to us.

The process of discovery of these valuable resources is now, and for a long time will be, slow, and this for the reason that the material occurs in forms which are unfamiliar to the public or even to the ordinarily trained prospector who seeks for mineral resources. In most cases the material appears either in the form of greenish crystals or in the shape of nodular masses looking much like claystones. In neither of these shapes is it likely to attract general attention. In fact the great deposits at Charleston, S. C., had been in view for a century or more. Concretions of cerne phosphate were dug up in the ditches of the rice fields and condemned as worthless until after the war, when a native chemist, once a man of fortune, but brought to need by the havoc wrought upon that country during the rebellion, groping about to find some means of mending his resources, analyzed the rejected stones. As the result of his inquiry they became the very foundation of the commercial prosperity in his state.—N. S. Shaler in Boston Herald.

Curiosities of Natural Gas.

One writer asks whether it is safe to bore the earth too much. He assumes the earth to be a hollow sphere filled with a gaseous substance called by us natural gas, and he thinks that tapping these reservoirs will cause disastrous explosions, resulting from the lighted gas coming in contact with that which is escaping. Earthquakes, he says, are probably caused by vacuums created by the outflowing gas. He compares the earth to a balloon floated and kept distended by the gas in the interior, which, if exhausted, will cause the crust to collapse, affect the motion of the earth in its orbit, cause it to lose its place among the heavenly bodies, and falls in pieces.

Another writer thinks that boring should be prohibited by stringent laws. He, too, thinks there is a possibility of an explosion, though from another cause. Should such a disaster occur, "the country along the gas belt from Toledo through Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky will be ripped up to the depth of twelve or fifteen hundred feet, and flopped over like a pancake, leaving a chasm through which the waters of Lake Erie will come howling down, filling the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, and blotting them out forever."

Still another theorist has investigated the gas wells with telephones and delicate thermometers and he announces startling discoveries. He distinguished sounds like the boiling of rocks, and estimated that a mile and a half or so beneath Findlay the temperature of the earth is 3,500 degs. This scientist says an immense cavity exists under Findlay, and that here the gas is stored; that a mile below the bottom of the cavity is a mass of roaring, seething flame, which is gradually eating into the rocky floor of the cavern and thinning it. Eventually the flames will reach the gas, a terrific explosion will ensue, and Findlay and its neighborhood will be blown skyward in an instant. Such are some of the theories gravely propounded in respect to this new fuel.—Professor Joseph F. James in Popular Science Monthly.

Appropriately Named.

A physician of this city received the following letter recently: "Dear Sir—Today is Wednesday. I have freckles, and am going to a party Saturday. Send me something that will remove them by then, and oblige, Miss Mary Gall." The doctor thought the signature corresponded well with the request, and sent the young lady his regrets, "to be taken before meals three times a day."—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Fruit or Meat.

The food which is most enjoyed is the food we call bread and fruit. In all my long medical career, extending over forty years, I have rarely known an instance in which a child has not preferred fruit to animal food. I have many times been called upon to treat children for stomachic disorders induced by pressing upon them animal to the exclusion of fruit diet, and have seen the best results occur from the practice of reverting to the use of fruit in the dietary. I say it without the least prejudice, as a lesson learned from simple experience, that the most natural diet for the young, after the natural milk diet, is fruit and whole meal bread, with milk and water for drink.

The desire for this same mode of sustenance is often continued into after years, as if the resort to flesh were a forced and artificial feeding, which required long and persistent habit to establish its permanency as a part of the system of every day life. How strongly this preference taste for fruit over animal food prevails is shown by the simple fact of the retention of these foods in the mouth. Fruit is retained to be tasted and relished. Animal food, to use a common phrase, is "bolted." There is a natural desire to retain the delicious fruit for full mastication; there is no such desire, except in the trained gourmand, for the retention of animal substance. One further fact which I have observed—and that too often to discard it, as a fact of great moment—is that when a person of mature years has, for a time, given up voluntarily the use of animal food in favor of vegetable, the sense of repugnance to animal food is soon so markedly developed that a return to it is overcome with the utmost difficulty.

Neither is this a mere fancy or fad peculiar to sensitive men or over sentimental women. I have been surprised to see it manifested in men who were the very reverse of sentimental, and who were, in fact, quite ashamed to admit themselves guilty of any such weakness. I have heard those who, gone over from a mixed diet of animal and vegetable food to a pure vegetable diet, speak of feeling low under the new system, and declare that they must needs give it up in consequence; but I have found even these (without exception) declare that they infinitely preferred the simpler, purer, and, as it seemed to them, more natural, food plucked from the prime source of food—untainted by its passage through another animal body.—Richardson in Longman's Magazine.

Oiling the Shears.

Standing in a prominent hardware store the other day, the Stroller watched a lady purchase a pair of shears. She decided upon the size and style desired and tried four or five pairs, rejecting them all because, she said, they "squeaked." But she was finally suited with a pair that didn't "squeak" and went her way. As the accepted pair happened to be one of those first refused, the salesman was asked how the metamorphosis was effected. "That," said he, "is one of the very simplest secrets of the man who sells shears. Observe this." He picked up a pair of scissors which "squeaked" wofully when worked. Then he ran his thumb and forefinger thoughtfully down the side of his nose and rubbed them over the scissors, which came together as gently and noiselessly as though saturated with oil.

"That's all there is of it," he said. "You see, there is always a little oil collected in the corners on the outside of your nostrils. Scrub your nose as hard as you will, the oil will be back there in five minutes. So when a customer comes in, tries a pair of shears and complains that they squeak and come together hard, we can oil them up and make them run smooth without exciting suspicion. What was the oil put on the nose for? To help the hardware man out, I suppose. But then what I have told you is a good thing for all nervous people who don't like squeaky shears to know."—Chicago Journal.

At the North Cape.

At Tromsoe, the sheltered capital of northern Norway, our steamer remained just long enough to allow us to visit an interesting encampment of Lapps, and their reindeer in the neighborhood. The company we visited had pitched their tents on the side of the mountain, and about a dozen or more seemed to live comfortably enough in a space we might portion off for so many hens and chickens. Both men and women were remarkably short, seldom more than four feet high, with eyes wide apart, and flat, expressionless faces.

They wore reindeer garments, with leather boots up to the knee, and bright colored hats in form of sou'westers on their tangled locks. At our request the men called loudly to the Lapp-in-chief, who was waiting for a summons upon the hills to bring down his herd of reindeer, and very soon the cries of the dogs and the rattling of the horns of the deer were to be heard, as the beautiful creatures answered to the call of their master and bounded down the hillsides toward us. The patriarchal Lapp, after we had made a few vain attempts at exchanging courtesies, signified he expected a handsome donation for his trouble, and on saying "good by," we noticed that the Norwegian sailors who accompanied us each gave his coin in turn, it being considered unlucky to part with a Lapp without offering some small gift.—Temple Bar.

Oil of Birch Costs Money.

Recently there was sent from Norwich to New York five two gallon tin cans filled with oil of black birch, which was manufactured in Bozrah by John Miner. It is worth $80 a gallon, and the five cans contained 158 pounds of oil, valued at $800, or a little over $5 a pound.

Black birch trees do not yield oil as the maple trees run sap. There is work in getting the tender twigs, and labor in the process of extracting the oil. One ton of twigs yields just three pounds of oil, and it took nearly fifty-three tons of twigs to yield the ten gallons. This oil is used in giving the wintergreen flavor to confections of all kinds.—New London Telegraph.

—"Old Mr. Skinner is a very charitable man, isn't he?" "Oh, yes; of course. But if he ever casts his bread upon the waters you bet he expects it to come back a sardine sandwich."—The Hatchet.

—Managing Editor—"I think we can stand another minion editorial." Writing Editor—"What, minion yet? Well, I'll write you a daisy." Managing Editor (faintly)—"No bouquets, please."—Washington Critic.

—Farmer—"I didn't have any money for the paper, so I thought I would bring you in a load of turnips." Editor—"Yes; that's as good to me as the money. Er—before you go, Mr. Hayseed, there's a little matter I'd like to speak to you about." Farmer—"Well, what is it?" Editor—"You don't want to buy a load of turnips, do you?"—Judge.

—Mrs. Bullion—"I'm afraid, Mary Ann, that you are inclined to be extravagant." Mary Ann—"Me, extravagant, is it? Sure yez are mistaken." Mrs. Bullion—"You burn too many candles." Mary Ann—"Me, burnin' candles? Divil a wan!" Mrs. Bullion—"That's very odd. As I passed the kitchen door, when the butcher's young man was here last night, I am sure I heard him speak to you about your taper waste."—America.

—Napier's famous dispatch from India announced his victory in one word: "Peccavi"—which is, by interpretation, "I have Scinde." Very much of the same kind was General de Bourmont's message to the French War Minister in 1830, when the Dey of Algiers escaped him after being taken: "Perdidi Diem"—"I have lost a Dey." It is said that Drake, when the ships of the Armada turned their sails sent to Elizabeth the word "Cantharides"—that is, "The Spanish fly." This last is probably a fable.—Temple Bar.

—Clara—"Oh, mother, we had such fun at the party! Young Smith proposed that he and I should go through a mock marriage ceremony—just in fun, you know; and it was too funny for any thing. Afterward, some of the older people who heard of it said we were really married; but we're not, are we?" Doting Mother—"Of course not. Besides, young Smith couldn't support a wife if he had one." "Oh, it wasn't that Smith. It was the other Smith, from Gold City, the one who owns a bonanza mine, you know." "Eh? That Smith! My dear, a marriage like that before witnesses is binding."—N. Y. Weekly.

Stepping-Stones to Success.

Learn your business thoroughly. Keep at one thing; in nowise change. Always be in haste, but never in a hurry. Observe system in all you do and undertake. Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well. One to-day is worth two to-morrows. Be self-reliant; do not take too much advice, but rather depend on yourself. Never fail to keep your appointments, nor to be punctual to the minute. Never be idle, but keep your hands or mind usefully employed, except when sleeping. Use charity with all; be ever generous in thought and deed; help others along life's thorny paths. Make no haste to be rich; remember that small and steady gains give competency and tranquillity of mind. He that ascends a ladder must take the lowest round. All who are above were once below.—N. Y. Ledger.

Swindling "Saints."

In a suit recently entered in the Supreme Court of the Territory of Utah in chancery the fact was developed that one of the infamous practices of a corporation in existence until March, 1887, under the title of "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints," was to impose upon the credulity of unsophisticated foreigners and obtain from them such money and valuables as they possessed, ostensibly to be held in trust, and keep it for the private use of the so-called saints of the church. In the above suit the petitioner, one Carl P. Carlson, through his attorney, was allowed his full claim, some five thousand dollars with interest thereon, and an order was made upon the receiver of the defunct corporation for the amount.

He Disappointed His Friends.

There were a dozen men on the car who saw Mr. Blank waiting on the crossing ahead, and one of them remarked:

"Now you see if he don't lead right off by saying what an open winter this is."

Blank stepped aboard, entered and greeted half a dozen people, and, while all were holding their breaths, he said:

"Gentlemen, what a cool summer we had last year!"—Detroit Free Press.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon, mixed with 80 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 150 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied, a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip,
(Poisonous.)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO.
SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.
Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
DITOR & PROPRIETOR
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY, JUNE 8 1889

The calamity that has fallen upon Pennsylvania is dreadful beyond all power of words to describe. The loss of life has been fearful; Governor Beaver telegraphed the President that from five to ten thousand people had been swept into eternity. Such awful loss of life makes loss of property seem a trifling matter, though millions of dollars worth of all kinds of property were destroyed in this terrible visitation. The storm that worked all this destruction raged over parts of the States of New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia. The greatest loss of life and property at any particular locality was caused by the bursting of a large reservoir near Johnstown, Pennsylvania. Now that it is proposed to build large reservoirs for water storage in our own State and in Nevada a lesson should be learned from these fearful misfortunes in other States and the utmost care should be taken to build the dams in the most substantial and approved manner; and not only so, but they should be located with a special view to escape liability to injury by sudden and great rushes of water, because it is just such rushes that in nearly every instance causes the bursting of dams. While pitying our afflicted fellow citizens we should feel thankful that we live in a country where such awful visitations are unknown.

If any proof is needed that some changes should be made in our laws regulating immigration it is furnished in Pennsylvania. Wretches going about the ruins of homes caused by the terrible calamity stealing everything they could carry away is enough to fill with indignation the mind of every American citizen. But when to this is added the still greater crime, that these brutes robbed the bodies of the dead, and even cut off the fingers from the hands of dead women to secure rings on the rigid fingers, disgust and abhorrence are then added to anger against such monsters. It is some consolation to know that such barbarous work was done only by men who are not of the English speaking races. We would not permit vermin or disease infected animals to be brought into the United States; surely there is still better reason for excluding all such ferocious, cruel and greedy wretches as these robbers of the dead in Pennsylvania.

An Important Work.

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 1, 1889.

To the Medical Profession:—The various medical associations and the medical profession will be glad to learn that Dr. John S. Billings, Surgeon U. S. Army, has consented to take charge of the Report on the Mortality and Vital Statistics of the United States as returned by the Eleventh Census.

As the United States has no system of registration of vital statistics, such as is relied upon by other civilized nations for the purpose of ascertaining the actual movement of population, our census affords the only opportunity of obtaining near an approximate estimate of the birth and death rates of much the larger part of the country, which is entirely unprovided with any satisfactory system of State and municipal registration.

In view of this, the Census Office, during the month of May this year, will issue to the medical profession throughout the country "Physician's Registers" for the purpose of obtaining more accurate returns of deaths than it is possible for the enumerators to make. It is earnestly hoped that physicians in every part of the country will co-operate with the Census Office in this important work. The record should be kept from June 1, 1889, to May 31, 1890. Nearly 26,000 of these registration books were filled up and returned to the office in 1880, and nearly all of them used for statistical purposes. It is hoped that double this number will be obtained for the Eleventh Census.

Physicians not receiving Registers can obtain them by sending their names and addresses to the Census Office, and with the Register, an official envelope which requires no stamp will be provided for their return to Washington.

If all medical and surgical practitioners throughout the country will lend their aid, the mortality and vital statistics of the Eleventh Census will be more comprehensive and complete than they have ever been. Every physician should take a personal pride in having this report as full and accurate as possible to make it.

It is hereby promised that all information obtained through this source shall be held strictly confidential.

ROBERT P. PORTER
Superintendent of Census.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

$85 Solid Gold Watch. Sold for $100, until lately the best $85 watch in the world. Perfect timekeeper. Warranted. Heavy Solid Gold Hunting Cases. Both ladies' and gents' sizes, with works and cases of equal value. One Person in each locality can secure one free, together with our large and valuable line of Household Samples. These samples, as well as the watch, we send Free, and after you have kept them in your home for 3 months and shown them to those who may have called, they become your own property. Those who write at once can be sure of receiving the Watch and Samples. We pay all express, freight, etc. Address Stinson & Co., Box 010, Portland, Maine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

Ores!
Ores!
Ores!

GOLD
SILVER
LEAD
ORES WORKED

Small lots received and worked as carefully as large lots.

The best machinery for concentrating sulphurets is in use and all the metal of any kind of ore is secured.

Ores that will not bear transportation from Owens Valley can be worked at a good profit at home.

Ores sampled, bought and paid for on delivery.

Address,

Lessee Maxim Mill,
Independence.

Wheeler & Wilson
Sewing Machine.
New No. 8.
"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.
Old Machines Exchanged for.
Farm Produce Taken in Payment

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND, Agent.
Independence, Cal.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of Dr. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.—FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to—Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC

☞ Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n17tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RHINE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

$93 Sewing-Machine to at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who call at your home, and after 3 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out, before patents run out it sold for $93, with the attachments, and now sells for $15. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

FREE FREE FREE

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City.
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 29 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - - Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS.
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.

Free Bus To and From The Cars.
Free

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
☞ NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED. ☜
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.

Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.

☞ All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURKHARDT

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones, Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to

JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.

IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.

S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.

New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.

☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

sep1-tf CROCKER BROS., Props.

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—PIANOS
& ORGANS

☞ If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to

Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.

New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.

☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, May 10th, 1889.

STATIONS.		From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
		Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....		11 00 a. m		5 50 p. m.
Dayton		11 30 a. m.		6 10 p. m.
Wabuska		1 25 a m		3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne		5 05 p. m.		11 25 a. m.
Luning		6:25 p. m.		10:55 a. m.
Soda Springs.....		7:35 p m.		9 05 a. m.
Belleville.....		8:45 p. m.		7:45 a. m.
Candelaria.....	Ar.	9.20 p. m	Lv.	7:10 a. m.
		No. 3. Leave—		No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville.....		8 10 a. m		5:25 p. m.
Benton		11 40 a m		1:35 p. m
Basalt Creek		1 500, m.		12:00 a. m.
Alvord.....		2:35 p. m.		10 00 . m.
Independence.....		4 10 p. m.		8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine		5 00 p. m.		7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar	5 45 p. m.	Lv.	7 00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜
☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜

Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sep1 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free.Ut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JUNE 8 1889

BORN.

KEOUGH—At Bishop, May 27, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Keough, a son.

CHAPMAN—At Bishop, May 29, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Chapman, a son.

Mr. A. Diaz was up from Lone Pine on Tuesday.

Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz has returned from San Francisco.

A. Cohn & Co. Bishop, will fill all orders for ground feed or grain.

Mr. T. J. Goodale of Fish Spring was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. N. Rhine has gone to San Francisco on a business trip.

Al. Staudinger came up from the marble quarry Thursday morning.

District Attorney Gill has been in Bishop during the week on legal business.

The State fair of Nevada will begin at Reno Sept mber 30th and continue five days.

Harness of all kinds; saddles of every style; repairs promptly done. Send orders to J. E. Dunlap, Bishop.

Several families from George's Creek and Lone Pine will go up into the Sierras next week to camp and fish.

P. H. Mack, County Clerk, left town last Tuesday for San Francisco. He is expected home early next week.

Max Skinner brings ten tons of ore to Keeler at each trip from Lookout. Five days are required to make the trip.

Mrs. Rafael Diaz, of Lone Pine, was in town during the week on business connected with the final settlement of the estate of her deceased husband.

Sheriff Eldred made quite a long trip this week into the heart of the Sierras hunting up bands of sheep. He was accompanied by a guide.

Mr. Israel Luce has returned to the Marble Works. He employed a number of marble workers while in San Francisco and they are now at the quarry.

All kinds of drugs and medicines, prescriptions of all kinds carefully filled. Toilet and fancy articles. All goods, drugs and medicines best quality; send orders to H. E. Wright Bishop.

After thorough trial we can confidently recommend the spectacles offered by Mr. D. W. Wiles. His give the clearest and best vision of any we have tried, and are the easiest on the eyes for steady use.

A lot of ore was worked at the Maxim Mill this week for M. Dooley. It was taken out near Bishop and netted about forty dollars per ton in gold. Dooley was well pleased with the way his ore was worked.

The Stevens canal is now proving its value. The life-giving water is making fields of grain and alfalfa along the line of the canal. An abundance of water can be supplied as fast as land can be prepared for its use.

On Friday of last week two witnesses in a suit to establish title to land were examined in the United States Court at Los Angeles. One of these witnesses was aged 110 years and the other 120 years. They were both Mission Indians.

Gus. McGovern brought in the biggest load of freight yet hauled since the teams started. He had on twenty two thousand pounds, with fourteen animals in the team. Ad Smith got in last Saturday with a big load of freight from Mojave.

H. M. Yerington and wife, Colonel Frye and wife, D. O. Mills, Senator John P. Jones and several others have gone on a trip to Alaska. They intend to visit most places of interest along the coast, and will probably be gone about six weeks.

Messrs. R. B. Taylor, R. W. Beckerton and W. C. Morton, of South Riverside, San Bernardino county, have located ten mines in Death Valley. The notices were recorded this week. Mr. Taylor is President of the Citizen's Bank at South Riverside.

An election for School Directors was held here last Tuesday. There were many candidates, several of them self appointed. O. I. Mairs and J. D. Blair were elected. Doctor Blair had already served one term; he took much interest in the school, gave a good deal of time to the care of the building and ground, and though he did not seek the office yet his re-election was a well deserved compliment.

J. W. Murphy has just bought a new stock of goods in the blacksmithing line. He is prepared to do all kinds of work in the way of repairs on wagons and carriages of every variety. Every kind of farm implement or machinery repaired on short notice. He has reduced the price of horse shoeing to two dollars per set. He is still at the old stand on Edwards street, opposite the Court House. See his advertisement.

A recent issue of the Mining and Scientific Press contains a long article on cancer. It asserts very positively that a practitioner in San Francisco is now curing, and has already cured thoroughly many cases of this dreadful disease. It is stated in the article that the use of the knife in cancer is worse than useless, and hastens the death instead of prolonging the life of the patient.

The Supreme Court by a recent decision has established two points of importance to farmers. One point is that a farmer is not bound to protect his land by fence. Consequently damage can be recovered for injury done to unfenced crops by stock. The other point is that if a barb wire fence is made and stock injured by coming in contact with it, the owner of the fence is liable for the damages unless the fence is constructed as the law requires.

The northern part of California, Oregon and Washington Territory are increasing rapidly in population and wealth. The vast resources of that region in lumber, coal, and wheat and the vast fishing resources lately discovered; the furs and mining resources being rapidly developed in Alaska, all these sources of wealth are being rapidly developed, and a great stream of population is setting steadily in that direction. Any two of the resources named would make a country rich and prosperous; but when all are found the growth of the country can not fail to be rapid.

The Modern Moses' Rod.

Producing something to sell is the first essential of prosperous growth in any community. Food enough to sustain life may be got by the lowest class of savages; but for maintaining civilized communities there must be a surplus of commodities produced by one part of the people that another part wants. It is on the exchanging of products, whether grown, manufactured or mined, that all modern civilization rests, and civilization progresses or is retarded as the facilities for this exchange are good or bad. At or near great seaports and along the lines of railroads wealth rapidly increases and with wealth comes schools and colleges and all the arts and refinements that raise numan beings to higher conditions of life, and lifts them out of the brutal habits and cruel practices of the barbarian. It is true that wealth suddenly acquired often proves a curse to the possessor by giving him the power to wallow in sensuality, to indulge in senseless extravagance, or to gratify other impulses of a mean or brutal nature. But such result is due to the uncivilized character of the possessor alone. In the hands of a Peabody or a Cornell, a Lawrence or a Hopkins, a Cooper or a Stanford, the possession of great wealth becomes a public blessing, shedding the light of civilization among their fellow creatures, as the sun sheds life and light to all the system of which he is the centre. Any one of these men is enough to justify all men in efforts to acquire wealth by all honorable means, and more than enough to outweigh the bad example of those whose souls are possessed with the mere greed of accumulation; a greed as cruel as death, as unsatiable as the grave. This is a digression; what was intended in this screed was to urge the fact that in Owens Valley we cannot send farm products to distant markets; if we would be prosperous we must have home market. The only commodity we can send away and get coin in exchange is ore; and it is the opening of mines and producton of ore alone that will make home market. Consequently prospectors and miners should be given all possible aid and encouragement in the prosecution of their work. There is no direction in which merchants or farmers can so well afford to take a little risk as in supplying prospectors or mine operators with what they must have in order to continue their work. When the miner is successful he scatters money with lavish hand; no trade so valuable to the merchant as his; and if he fails it is only the loss of a little flour, bacon and beans, and perhaps a plug of tobacco or a little snake remedy. Stick to it and support the prospector and he will bring us prosperity; his pick is the magic wand that will smite the rock and make the life giving stream flow out.

Gross Carelessness.

For several days this week a big stream of water has been allowed to run in the road between the town and the railroad. The road has been cut in deep gullies and in places is impassable, so that teams are forced to turn into the sagebrush and make their way as best they can. One stretch of road that was levied up through a quagmire is almost ruined. It will cost considerable money to repair the damage. This expense should not fall upon the tax-payers; it is bad enough that they should be put to inconvenience and loss of time—to say nothing about temper; that they should have to run the risk of broken wagons, and even broken bones, but altogether too bad that they should have to pay for the damage done through gross carelessness. The Road Overseer says it is not his fault; he lays the blame on Alexander Clark and says he notified Clark in good time to take care of the water but the notice was not heeded until much damage had been done to the road. The matter should be inquired into and whoever is to blame should be made to stand the cost of repairs.

Inyo Academy.

Closing Exercises for the Year 1888-89.

FRIDAY, June 7th, 8 p. m.
Lecture, "Modern Philology,"....
Rev. E. McEvers.

SATURDAY, June 8th, 8 p. m.
Lecture, "Anglo-Saxon Race."

SUNDAY, June 9th, 11 a. m.
Special Sermon to Students.....
Rev. G. W. De La Matyr.

SUNDAY, June 9th, 8 p. m.
Annual Address, "A successful Life,"....
Rev. E. W. Van Deventer.

MONDAY, June 10th, 8 p. m.
Declamations.....First Years' Class.

TUESDAY, June 11th, 2 p. m.
Annual Meeting of Trustees.

TUESDAY, June 11th, 8 p. m.
Educational Meeting....Various Speakers.

WEDNESDAY, June 12th, 8 p. m.
Closing Exercises....Second Year's Class.

Everybody cordially invited to attend.

A Mistake.

An item is going the rounds to the effect that the closing of the St. Elmo Hotel in Los Angeles is caused by a general depression of business in the City. This is a mistake; the St Elmo was at one time a leading hotel and had a good business; but during the past two or three years the city has grown so rapidly away to the southward that the house is now far from the business centre; several new hotels have been built in better locations and these now get the patronage formerly given to the St. Elmo. Instead of the closing of this house being an evidence of dull times in Los Angeles, it is proof of the rapid growth of the City. TheIco House, another hotel at one time as well patronized as the St. Elmo, was closed sooner, for the reason that it is further away from the new business centre; at last report this house was likely to be leased to Chinese.

Meteorological Summary for May, 1889
Keeler, Cal.

Mean barometer .....29 819 inches.
Mean temperature .....68°
Highest temperature.....96°
Lowest temperature.....36°
Mean daily range of temperature.....34°
Mean dew point, 35°
Mean relative humidity 31 per cent.
Prevailing direction of wind, S.
Maximum velocity of wind, direction and date, 36 miles N. W. 8th.
Precipitation 0.06
Number of cloudless days..... 19
Number of partly cloudy days..... 10
Number of cloudy days..... 2
Dates of Frost, light on 6th.

D. C. GRUNOW,
Private, Signal Corps.

Looks Like Business.

Under the above caption the Los Angeles Herald of last Saturday says: "The best indication that work on the Salt Lake road is to be commenced was seen yesterday, for three construction engines passed through town bound for the Carson & Colorado road. The Southern Pacific officials had been advised that they were being sent up to commence work in this direction." The statement that the engines were bound for the Carson & Colorado road is evidently a mistake. Doubtless work on the Salt Lake road will be pushed from both ends and probably the engines were bound for the point of connection with the Atlantic & Pacific road.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.
WEDNESDAY, June 5th.

Estate of John Henry Meyer, deceased—Fritz Meyer appointed Administrator of the estate.

Man Killed At Belleville.

Last Sunday Bode Allen was shot and mortally wounded at Belleville Nevada, by F. H. Warner, of Midas, Nevada. Allen died on Tuesday morning. The shooting occurred on the depot platform, just after the arrival of the north bound train from Candelaria. There were a number of people at the depot at the time; yet strange to say no eye witnesses can be found who saw the commencement of the affair. It seems that Warner had an assigned bill against Allen; and arriving at Belleville on Saturday evening — the day before the shooting — saw Allen unloading some ore He concluded that the ore belonged to Allen and went to Candelaria that evening, and next morning returned with a constable to serve a writ of attachment. The Constable was about to attach the ore when Allen remonstrated, saying that he had only hauled the ore for M. M. Comstock, of Belleville. It seems that some hot words grew out of this explanation, and the shooting followed. Warner fired the first shot; the bullet struck Allen in the left side, below the heart; it hit a rib and ranged forward. Allen fell backward, but raised himself with his left hand, drew his pistol with his right hand and fired several shots rapidly at Warner, who was fast making his escape. None of these shots took effect, however. Allen was put on board the train, made as comfortable as possible, and taken to Hawthorne for medical treatment. On his arrival at Hawthorne a doctor examined the wound and pronounced it mortal. Allen lingered in life till 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. Deceased was son-in-law to Mr. John Swindelle, Hotelkeeper, Belleville, and leaves a young widow and child. He was aged about thirty five years; a native of Missouri and had been in Nevada a long time, engaged in mining, teaming and wood cutting with varied success. He was always regarded as a peaceable citizen, and his death is regretted by all who knew him. Of Warner not so much is known around Belleville; he hails from Nye County, Nevada; and some who knew him there speak highly of him. He had a lease of a mine near the Indian Queen and made some money lately. He is now under arrest at Candelaria, awaiting a preliminary examination, and is nearly frantic with grief over his deed. Allen was buried at Hawthorne Wednesday; the funeral was largely attended.

The New Borax Works

Conn and Trudo have their borax works in Saline Valley in working order and are making borax. In fact they have already made a great many tons. They have eighteen crystalizing tanks, each of a capacity of one thousand gallons. Three tanks are emptied each day, and the yield from these is about two tons of borax. In very warm weather the yield might not quite reach that amount, as the borax does not crystalize so well as in cool weather. The crude material is first boiled, the boiler having a capacity equal to three of the crystalizing tanks, and the solution is then run into them and allowed to stand six days The borax accumulates on the sides of the tanks, which are made of zinc, and on plates of the same metal suspended in the liquid. Seven of these plates are used in each tank. The borax is put in sacks direct from the tanks and is then ready for shipment From the works to the railroad at Alvord the distance is fifty-five miles. Within a few hundred yards of the works is an Indian settlement. The Indians have long practiced gardening and a little farming. The climate is so favorable that vegetables grow the year round. In March water melons are ripe. Beyond doubt oranges would thrive well there; but the Indians have never made any effort to grow them and no whites have ever done any farming or gardening in the valley. It is a very important matter to the owners of the borax works and their workmen to have a plentiful supply of fresh vegetables so near at hand. The borax marsh has an elevation of about five hundred feet above the level of the sea. The Inyo mountains rise like a wall close to the works and attain an elevation of about eleven thousand feet above sea level. This is one of the grandest stretches of mountain scenery in the state.

Bees Idling

Bee keepers at Independence say that their bees are making very little if any honey. The hives appear to be healthy and full of bees, but for some unknown reason the insects are not gathering honey. Mr. Muth-Rasmussen keeps a hive on platform scales and he says that during the whole week it has not increased in weight to exceed one pound.

No Market

Funny features of the "no market" cry are constantly cropping out. Last Tuesday an Indian took one hundred dozen ears of green corn into Cerro Gordo and in short order sold the lot at fifty cents a dozen. Somebody please tell us where else in the State a farmer can get half a dollar a dozen for green corn.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, syrup of figs, under all conditions makes it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting upon the liver, kidneys and bowels.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN
& CO.
—DEALERS IN—
General
Merchandise.
—ALL KINDS OF—
Farm Implements
—AND—
--MACHINERY--
Farm Produce
—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods,
Groceries,
Clothing,
Etc., Etc.
—DEALER IN—
Grain, Butter,
Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN &
INGALLS.
—DEALERS IN—
FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.
Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2.25 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home.
and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
We order only First Class Goods
THOMAS & HILL.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.
(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]
SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.
Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.
ORIGINAL SUMMONS.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff o 51

Notice to Contractors

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Trustees of Union School District, of Inyo county, State of California, until June 17, 1889, for the material and erection of a Frame school House at or near the Half-Way House in said school district and in accordance with the plans and specifications in the hands of the Clerk of said Board of Trustees.

Bids will be opened at the Half-Way House at 2 o'clock p. m. of Tuesday, June 18, 1889, and the Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids received.

The party or parties to whom the above contract is let will be required to give a good and sufficient bond to be approved by said Board in the sum of $5,000 conditional on the faithful compliance with the terms thereof.

JOHN KISPERT,
FRED ALBERS,
W. L. HUNTER.
Trustees of Union School District.
Georges Creek, May 23 1889.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 14th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 24th day of June 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUCE, Secretary.
Office—205 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.
(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]
SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.
Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.
ALIAS SUMMONS.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o4

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL.
Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

O The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. 256 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,500 illustrations—a whole Picture Gallery. GIVES Wholesale Prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These INVALUABLE BOOKS contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy FREE to any address upon receipt of 10 cts. to defray expense of mailing. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries and canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain
Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117
SMITH'S STORE
The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.
SPRATT & CREASER
sept 1tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

AGENTS WANTED for the MISSOURI STEAM Washer

Active, honest persons all over country, with or without team.
JOHN C. EVANS, SPARTA, Ills., writes: "I cleared up and that a Washer saves more hard labor and money in a large family than any Reaper and Mower that ever was put on any farm with less cost and care in cultivation. If you will get up any agent amongst the will tell you much labor off of men as this Washer takes off the women, and save as much money as it does and cost no more. I could sell one anywhere I have had to take the feathers from under their wife and babies to pay for it. I think of the Washer I bought last summer. 1st. It is the best invention ever invented by man. 2d. We have just as good clothes on Monday as any other day. 3d. If you run short, you can not buy ours for $."
I will ship a sample to this, desiring an agency on a week's trial on liberal terms. A thousand per cent the best selling article in the world for saving labor, clothes and comp. Pays handsome big money. Write for particulars.
J. WERTH, 1710 Franklin Ave., St. Louis.

"THE SWELLING SEA."

The birds of the north flew onward,
The lichen its odor shed;
The crescent moon was pale
As a water lily—dead—
Torn from its parent stem and floating
For weeks on its watery bed.

The northern light burned brightly,
The circle was broad and low;
The rays were like whirling pillars of fire,
With green and crimson glow.

The dying man lay in his hut—
"Oh! where shall we bury thee?
Shall we bury thee on the mountain
Or under the swelling sea?

"Shall we bury thee on the mountain,
In the eternal snow,
Where the spirits of the mists shall dance
While thou liest still below?

"Or wilt thou be sunk in the sea—
The blue and swelling sea?
The birds of the tempest shall whirl above,
And the seals play merrily."
He mournfully smiled and whispered low.
"In the sea, the swelling sea."

—From the Danish.

Never Saw a Railroad Train.

"Do you see that long, lank girl with the pink calico dress and blue knit jacket, standing over there?" said a station agent in a country town not far from Pittsburg the other day.

"Pretty tall? Yes, she's about 23, and this is the first time she ever saw a train of cars. Talk about enlightenment; how's that?

"I know the whole family. They live over here in the country, about seven miles. I went over there to get some butter the other day, and I swear I thought I had been transferred back to colonial times. Bare floors, rafters all bare, home made linen on the table, home made towels, home made dresses on the girls, home made cheese and ham and eggs for dinner; everything home made; even the old gentleman wore a vest of homespun.

"One of the girls, nearly 23, has never seen the cars nearer than a mile, and never was in a city. And yet they are intelligent and contented to live within their gates, utterly oblivious to the great world outside, and eat, work and sleep in the same way that their father and father's father had before them. Great world, isn't it?"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

How a King Used to Go to Bed.

First, a page took a torch and went to the wardrobe where the bedding was kept. The articles were brought out by the keeper to four yeomen, who made the bed, while the page held the torch at the foot. One of the yeomen searched the straw with his dagger, and when he found there was no evil thing hidden there he laid a bed of down on the straw and threw himself upon it. Then the bed of down was well beaten and a bolster laid in its proper place. Then the sheets were spread in due order, and over these was laid a fustian. Then came a "pane sheet," which we now call a counterpane. Finally the sheets were turned down and some pillows laid on the bolster, after which the yeomen made a cross and kissed the bed where their hands were. And then an angel carved in wood was placed beside the bed, and the curtains let down. After this a gentleman usher brought the king's sword and placed it at the bed's head, and the whole was then delivered into the custody of a groom or page, who watched it with a light burning until the king retired to rest.—Cleveland American Union.

He Was Not Even the Devil.

The small boy is a terror when he has an inquiring mind. Such a boy strolled into an editor's room the other day, and at once proceeded to down the patient man at the desk.

"Are you on the paper?" asked the boy.

"Yes."

"What do you do?"

"Write for it."

"Write all the time?"

"Yes."

"Don't do anything else?"

"No."

"Just wait for somebody else to do something, and then write about it?"

"Yes."

"Um!" ejaculated the small boy, with a look of deep disgust, as he walked off.

The toiler at the desk did not laugh. Never before had he felt so small and mean. He had been made to see himself from a new and original point of view.—Atlanta Constitution.

IN GREAT LUCK.

How Geo. Lowber and Four Friends Struck it Rich in the Louisiana State Lottery.

The Item reporter found George Lowber at his home, 1936 Bainbridge St., last evening, and said: "I understand you were one of the fortunate ones last month."

"Yes," answered Mr. Lowber, who is a good sized young man and a good humored one, too. "We had a one-tenth of ticket No. 2,887 in the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery."

"And you got a prize?" interrogated the reporter.

"Yes, sir; it drew $30,000."

"Have you gotten the money yet?"

"Oh, yes, we got that very promptly without any trouble. We just gave our ticket to the express company for collection and got a draft on New York."

"How did you come to go into the lottery, Mr. Lowber?" asked the reporter

"Oh, I don't know," was the answer, smilingly given. "We knew about it and thought, I suppose, that we might just as well try it for fun, but, of course, we believed that we might win something, too."

"I notice you always say 'we,' Mr. Lowber. Was there any one in with you on this ticket?"

"Oh, yes, there were five of us in it. We are all old associates, companions and friends; all young men and all hard working men. We each had an equal share in the ticket. My brother was one of us."

"Going to buy a house now, I suppose?"

"No, I don't think any of us will buy houses. Nearly all are working men. One is a carpenter, another a plumber, and so on. These two, the carpenter and plumber, are talking of using the money to start themselves up in business. I think that a good idea.

"We first saw that our ticket had won a prize in the Item the day after the drawing. Of course, we were a happy crowd that night. It was a great piece of good luck.—Phila. (Pa.) Item, March 29.

SUCCESSFUL BANKING.

It is an easy time to judge of the standing of a banking house by the men who manage it. We give for the benefit of the public the names of the directors of the PACIFIC BANK, of San Francisco: Dr. R H. McDonald, Capt. J. M. McDonald, H Mabury, R. H. McDonald, Jr., C. W terhouse, W. A. Grade, A. K. Stevens, J. J. Bowen, and Frank V. McDonald, which is all the reference any bank should give.

ALLEN GRAY

—OR,—

The Mystery of Turley's Point.

"DO YOU BLAME ME?"

"I—I thought I was, and yet there was no direct proof of it."

"Every precaution was taken to prevent pursuit, and every precaution taken in case you were pursued; but, thanks to Providence, our precautions in that direction were unnecessary."

"How did he learn of my return?"

"I do not know, Mr. Allen—but let us not talk any more of that. Grateful hearts will ever hold you in sacred remembrance for your noble self-sacrificing actions. I can not thank you enough. I wish I could repay the debt of gratitude I owe to you."

"I would rather you would not mention it."

"I will not, then. You want to go away from Turley's Point?"

"How did you learn that?"

"I judge so from your editorials, and I have seen your press and material advertised for sale in other papers."

"You have rightly guessed my motive,' said Allen, sadly. "Turley's Point has been a disappointment to me and the business a sad failure."

With a sigh she answered:

"Turley's Point has been a great disappointment to more than yourself. It has been the rock on which my bark of hopes went down."

"What do you mean?" Allen asked, gazing wonderingly into the sweet, beautiful face. "You, who have scarce been in the village, how has it wrecked your hopes?"

"By Turley's Point I include the house on the hill, and there some of the darkest days of my life have been spent. I have formed no acquaintances here save yours, and from the first time I met you I felt that you were a brother. A real brother could not have been kinder than you have been, and for your noble conduct I shall never cease to be thankful."

For a few moments Allen's emotions got the better of him. At last, regaining in part his self-control, he determined to dare all and know the worst, and in a voice of forced calmness said:

"I wish I could be more than a brother to you."

"No, no, do not mention that," she said, her face very pale, yet she was not excited. "I did not come here expecting to meet you," she went on, "but since by chance we have met, I am glad of it. Your faith in myself has convinced me that you are superior to others. But, while I admire you, I can never be more than a friend, a very dear friend, a sister if you will, but nothing more."

"Oh, Bertha—Bertha! in Heaven's name don't drive me mad!" he groaned, in the bitterest agony. "Don't you know that I love you?"

"I have feared it," she answered.

"Feared it?"

"Yes, feared it from the very first."

"Why need you fear honest love? Oh, Bertha, Bertha, do not drive me away in utter despair. I have tried to forget you; but I can not. If you do not love me now, give me some hope, say that you will love me in the future and become my wife."

"Oh, Heaven, that can never be!" she wept violently, wringing her hands.

"It can; it shall be," cried the frenzied Allen, seizing one fair plump hand and raising it to his lips.

"You know not what you say, I am already married!"

He dropped the hand and staggered as if he had received a blow.

CHAPTER XIX.

A STARTLING REVELATION.

"Now you despise me, don't you?" said the pale beautiful woman, in a voice so sad that it fell like a funeral wail upon his ear.

"No, no, I can't say that!" Allen groaned. "How could I have been so deceived?"

"Do you forgive me?"

"Yes, yes, for Heaven knows it has not been your fault!"

"I will ever be a sister to you, Mr. Gray, and as you saved the life of my little brother at the risk of your own, I shall ever hold you in grateful remembrance." Like one stupefied, Allen stood leaning against a tree, gazing at her and half believing that it was all a dream. At last he said:

"Who is your husband? That dark whiskered man?"

She nodded her head in answer. She was weeping softly.

"Great Heaven! He her husband!" He was more than twice as old as she, and there was nothing congenial in their natures.

She rose to go, but, putting out one hand, he gently touched her arm, and in a voice of stony calmness said:

"No, no, madame, do not go yet; it is time that I should have an explanation. I have been buffetted about by the varying winds of fortune, till I have grown weary of it; let me know the whole truth—all of this mystery, and if I have any honor in my soul, I will keep your secret."

She was weeping softly.

"Do you blame me?" she asked again.

"No; you have perhaps never given me any cause to believe you were single, save when you called yourself Bertha Collins. I supposed that you were Miss Collins.

"My English name is Collins, the French is Collieur, or De Collieur. My life has been such a sad one that I do not know as it would interest you. However, as you have befriended me, if you insist on knowing all, you shall."

Allen was seemingly as calm now as if he had been in his office transacting some ordinary business. His face might have shown some faint signs of the agony that was torturing his soul, but could not have conveyed any thing like an adequate representation of the sufferings he was enduring.

He calmly bade her sit down, and re-took his place at her side.

"Mrs. Collins, regard me as your brother," he with an effort said—"as a brother very far away—one whom you will perhaps never see again, but one who will never blot your image from his memory. This has, indeed, been a sad romance, but it is almost over. The curtain will soon descend between myself and hope forever, but before it falls on the final act I want the key to this sad drama. That mysterious stone house on the hill has been a puzzle to Turley's Point for years. What is in it? Is it a prison-house for people, a home for the insane, or a place wherein the fiends assemble for incantations and unlawful rites?"

"It is all," she answered, her face deathly white.

"Tell me all about it."

"I will," said the pretty creature, with a deep-drawn sigh. "Colonel Collins, as he is known among his few English acquaintances, inherited the stone house on the hill from his father, who built it a great many years ago. When first erected it was intended to be the home of the old monsieur, but his wife would not live in it. My mother was a French woman and my father an Englishman. There were but three children in our family, a brother seven years older than myself and the little boy whom you remember taking to Mlle. Camille in Frenchtown. Three years ago my father was alive, and we were a happy, prosperous family. Colonel Collins, who had been living alternately in France and America, a sort of an adventurous life, came to our house in Dayton, O., where father was at the time known as one of the wealthiest merchants in the city. I felt a peculiar distrust of the man from the first moment I saw him, but father and mother, on the contrary, seemed fascinated with him.

"My mother, like myself, felt an instinctive repugnance toward her countryman. He so ingratiated himself into the good graces of my father that somehow—I never knew—in a few weeks he had complete control over his business affairs. My poor brother, falling into the snares set for him, was led to the gaming table, which brought about, among other sins, forgeries that in a few months ruined our family. I can not enter into the full details and horror of the few months that followed.

"To add to them, no sooner had Colonel Collins gained complete control over the destinies of every member of our family, than my father and only protector, died. Before his death Colonel Collins proposed matrimony to me, and, knowing that we could not live happily together, I refused his offer.

"With mother and my little afflicted brother I left our home in Dayton, and come West to my aunt Mlle. Camille, in Frenchtown. We were very proud, and resolved to keep our degrading misfortunes to ourselves. My older brother remained behind, hoping to save someting for us out of the wreck of our once handsome fortune, though mother and I had in our own names property, the income of which would be ample for our wants. We little dreamed that in coming to Frenchtown we were nearing the rendezvou of the man whom we dreaded above all others. Aunt Lucile was glad to receive us, and offered us a home with herself as long as we would accept it. I intended teaching music, or securing a position as a governess, and we thought we could once more be happy. My little dear brother never seemed so happy as he was with my aunt, who doted on him.

"One night there came a knock at the door, and my brother, wild-eyed and haggard, was admitted. He had only time to explain that he was charged with forging a check on Colonel Collins and was now flying from the vengeance of the law, when the door opened and Colonel Collins himself entered. Tortured by fears and harrassed by a man who was scarce less than a demon, my poor brother was seized with convulsions, and for days his life was despaired of. Colonel Collins informed me that unless I became his wife my brother, regardless of condition, should be dragged to prison. This would kill both him and my mother, and frightened, horrified and unconscious of the awful step I was taking without consulting any one, I consented. I dared not appeal to an officer to protect me from this man; for, believing my brother to be a criminal, officers of the law were men most to be dreaded.

"I have but a faint recollection of my marriage—just as if it was a frightful dream. When I came to realize that I was his—almost soul and body—I resolved that I would make him as good a wife as I could without loving him, and determined to protect my family. He had us secretly conveyed to the stone house on the hill. There we have lived, he holding as a constant menace over me the destruction of my mother and insane brother, who are inmates of that house. While I do not love my husband, and was forced into marriage with him, yet as God is my witness I have made him as good a wife as he would let me, and I shall live and die loyal to my marriage vows. He wanted mother and I to assign over to him the property we hold in our own names, but this we refused to do, determined to save it for my afflicted brothers. He flew into such a rage at our diobedience that we feared he would do my little dumb brother some harm, or send him away where we should never see him again. It was then that I, for that child's sake, dared make the visit to you and enlist your sympathies in him, as you remember. You may think it unwomanly, immodest, but if you could realize what was at stake you would overlook the imprudence of the act. At my aunt's the little boy was among loving friends, while at the old stone house on the hill he was not only miserable but in constant danger of being taken away from us, where we should never see him again."

"Mrs. Collins, your conduct on that occasion is quite praiseworthy, instead of meriting censure," assured Allen, "but why do you live with such a monster? The law will give you a divorce."

"I am a Catholic," she answered, "and neither does my religion or my conscience approve of divorces. No, sir, my little brother is safe from his persecutions, my insane brother can not live long and mother and I will endure rough usage and imprisonment until death shall release us from bondage. She will not leave me, for she thinks my burden would be doubled if she was not here to share it. I promised, although under duress, to live with him until death do us part, and I will keep that promise."

Allen's head was bowed upon his hand. At last, with a troubled sigh, he asked:

"What is his motive for this strange conduct. Is he an outlaw, as has been charged?"

"No, sir; he is a strange man, law-abiding in the common acceptation of the term, but self-willed, cunning and unscrupulous in the accomplishment of his designs. In his cold, selfish way he loves me, but his is a love to blight rather than bless. His extravagance has frequently pecuniarly embarrassed him, and it is at such times that he does not scruple at any means to try to force from mother and I our property."

"What are those strange sights and sounds seen and heard at the stone house on the hill?"

"No doubt the reports of them have been greatly magnified by persons believing the place haunted. The lights are made by a peculiar magic lantern with which my insane brother some times amuses himself. His shrieks and laughter, which has driven so many horror-stricken away, are but the ravings of a mad-man. You know all, Mr. Gray," she said, rising. "It is not proper that I remain longer. Regrets that we had not met sooner are useless—it is useless for us to think of each other at all. Allow me to thank you for daring what you did. My husband was very angry at you for thwarting him, and he would have killed you at that time if he could."

"Did he abuse you for it?"

"Not more than he has on other occasions."

"Was he jealous."

"Oh no, he knew that my motive was only to thwart him, and save my unfortunate little brother Claude. Now, farewell! I go back to my mother and duty! God approves this sacrifice. I am sorry that I am forced to complain of my husband, and this story told for the first time shall never be repeated. I shall remember you in my prayers—but—but—we must never see each other again—farewell."

She sobbed bitterly. Allen took her hand, reverently touched it to his lips, and, unable to utter a word, wheeled about and left the scene.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

It is a good thing to be able to let go th less for the sake of the greater.

The PeeWee Hat.

There's hats—'nd then, ag'in there's hats,
As you a'ready know;
There's hats 'at's made for comfort
'Nd there's hats 'at's made for show;
There's them 'at's low 'nd squatty,
'Nd, then, there's them 'at's higher—
'Nd you kin see a job lot,
Jest by lookin' at our choir.

There's them 'at's high 'nd crooked,
Jammed in 'nd skewed awry—
The durndest shapes 'nd fixin's
All p'intin' to the sky;
You wouldn't know they wuz hats,
Excep' for bein' on a
Girl fixed up all scrumptious—
Like she wuz a preemy donna.

There's jest one little peewee hat
'At sets close on the head,
'Nd all made out of feathers like-
A-glintin' blue 'nd red;
It's mighty peert 'nd snuglike,
'Nd takin'—yes, you bet!
But 'tisn't much on pein' warm
'Nd keepin' off the wet.

There's just a nothin' to it
'Cept its beauty 'nd its grace,
A-snuggin' close as it kin git
To jest the purtyest face
'At's in the hull caboodle
O' the girls 'at's in the choir—
I only wish 'at I wuz it
'Nd could get jest as nigh 'er!

—Chicago News

WIT AND WISDOM.

—The fruit of a man's life is the test of his character.

—A calamity is always the better borne for not being previously dwelt upon.

—People with ugly dispositions may say some sharp but not clever things.—N. O. Picayune.

—Dr. Johnson used to say, that where secrecy or mystery began, vice or roguery was not far off.

—We can not all be as wise as Solomon, but we can all stop pretending that we are.—Somerville Journal.

EXPAND THE MIND

By seeing as much as you can of the world. But ere you set out either as a tourist, commercial traveler or emigrant—whether you go by rail, steamship or steamboat, provide yourself with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which the traveling public recognizes as the finest medical safeguard and preventive of sea sickness with which any one journeying by land or water can be provided. It furnishes to the western pioneer adequate protection against malaria, rheumatism, and those disorders of the bowels which miasma tainted water beget. Its sedative effect upon a stomach perturbed by the rocking of a ship is truly magical, and it is a capital appetizer and nerve invigorator. Excellent is it for biliousness and kidney inaction, and it counteracts, in a remarkable degree, the effects of fatigue, physical or mental. After wetting and exposure in inclement weather, it should be used as a preventive.

"How is it you had so few deaths on your hands, doctor?" "That's easy enough. When I find I have a bad case I order the patient to take a trip abroad."

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Faun of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above lithe with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburg, Pa.

EVERY SYMPTOM GONE.

Probably no disease inflicts so much continuous pain as Rheumatism. Over no single complaint has Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., won more curses than Rheumatism. By it does the agonized patient can once more use his limbs and feel from past years of pain.

Mr. Frank Strait, a well-known merchant of New Hamburgh, N. Y., says: "I suffered tortures from Sciatic Rheumatism. My case was a very bad one and none of the means taken gave me relief. I use Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., am entirely rid of every symptom of my trouble. Only three bottles brought about this wonderful result. It has built me up and been of great benefit to me in other ways. I heartily recommend it to other sufferers.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

A good way to reduce the Treasury surplus would be to employ a plumber or two on the White House drains. It would work like a charm.

DYSPEPSIA AND CONSTIPATION.

Henry B. Archer, Receiver of Taxes of the City of Yonkers, N. Y., says of BRANDRETH'S PILLS:

"For the past ten years I have been using BRANDRETH'S PILLS for self and family. We find them a sovereign remedy for indigestion and constipation, taking one or two every night for ten days. They are also admirable blood purifiers, perfectly harmless but exceedingly effective as a cathartic. I first used them myself, particularly for biliousness and dyspepsia. They relieved me in two weeks. I cheerfully recommend them.

The Commissioner of Pensions labors under one great disadvantage, so his friends say. He can't kick when anybody interferes with him.

HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches." Sold only in boxes.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

"However could you think of falling in love with such a homely fellow? His figure is something awful." "Yes, but he has a lovely one at the bank."

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your reader that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl St., New York.

Dujardin's Life Essence is rich in nerve-producing elements. It promotes secretion in granular structures, and supplies nervous waste. Hundreds have been restored to health by its use, and it can only be appreciated by a trial. Price, $1.50 a bottle. All druggists.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND HYPOPHOSPHITES.

Almost as Palatable as Milk.

So disguised that the most delicate stomach can take it. Remarkable as a FLESH PRODUCER. Persons GAIN rapidly while taking IT.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is acknowledged by Physicians to be the FINEST and BEST preparation of its class for the relief of CONSUMPTION, SCROFULA, GENERAL DEBILITY, Wasting Diseases of Children, and CHRONIC COUGHS.

Sold by all Druggists.

FULL WEIGHT PURE

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

MOST PERFECT MADE.

DR. PRICE'S DELICIOUS FLAVORING EXTRACTS

NATURAL FRUIT FLAVORS

Used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the Great Universities and Public Food Analysts, as the Strongest, Purest and most Healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alum. Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts, Vanilla, Lemon, Orange, Almond, Rose, etc., do not contain Poisonous Oils or Chemicals.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO., New York. Chicago. San Francisco

Sleepless Nights

"For nearly a month I was not able to sleep, but after using PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND for two days, insomnia fled and strength returned." E. G. SMITH, Claussen, S. C.

"I have taken only a part of a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and it has entirely relieved me of sleeplessness, from which I have suffered greatly." MRS. E. AUTCLIFF, Peoria, Ill.

Paine's Celery Compound produces sound and refreshing sleep. A physician's prescription, it does not contain one harmful drug. Like nothing else it is a guaranteed cure for sleeplessness, if directions are faithfully followed. $1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists. WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO., Burlington, Vt.

"For a long time I was so nervous and worn out that I could not work. I tried many medicines, but none gave me relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound, which at once strengthened and invigorated my nerves." HARLEY SHERMAN, Burlington, Vt.

Paine's Celery Compound

quickly quiets and strengthens the nerves, when irritated or weakened by overwork, excesses, disease, or shock. It cures nervousness, headache, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, melancholia, and other disorders of the nervous system.

Tones up the Shattered Nerves

"For two years I was a sufferer from nervous debility, and I thank God and the discoverer of the valuable remedy, that Paine's Celery Compound cured me. Let any one write to me for advice." GEORGE W. BOUTON, Stamford, Conn.

DIAMOND DYES Original and only reliable. Beware of poor Imitations. LACTATED FOOD Agrees with Weak Stomachs. Best for Invalids.

HEALTHFUL EXERCISE.

Only a few months ago these romping, rosy-cheeked lasses were puny, delicate, pale, sickly girls. By the aid of Dr. Pierce's world-famed Favorite Prescription, they have blossomed out into beautiful, plump, hale, hearty, strong young women.

"Favorite Prescription" is an invigorating, restorative tonic and as a regulator and promoter of functional action at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, it is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is carefully compounded, by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. It imparts strength to the whole system. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Copyright, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

The cleansing, antiseptic and healing qualities of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy are unequaled. 50 cents.

THE BEST

CLOTHING

For Men and Boys at

"THE HASTINGS,"

Lick House Block, San Francisco.

MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co

27 Years in present location.

R. H. McDonald PRES'T. F. V. McDonald CASHIER

ESTABLISHED 1863.

Oldest Chartered Bank on the Pacific Coast.

PACIFIC BANK

Capital Stock $1,000,000.00.

Surplus $700,000.00.

Av. Resources $4,500,000.00.

Returning thanks for past favors, we respectfully ask a continuance of the same and solicit accounts of Individuals, Firms and Corporations.

R. H. McDONALD, President.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1, 1889.

A BIG SHOW

Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry Fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite, and Hardware, Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 22 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

WELL DRILLS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE.

Sold on Trial!

Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by

F. C. AUSTIN MANUF'G CO.,
167 & 169 Lake St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

ESTABLISHED 1862.

F. H. HAMMER,

—WHOLESALE—

Produce Dealer

—AND—

Commission Merchant,

215 and 217 Davis St., - S. F., Cal.

When Shipping anything to this Market let me handle your business.

Quick sales and prompt returns on all Consignments. Write for Weekly Price Current.

Member of San Francisco Produce Exchange and Call Board.

Grain Bought and Sold on Margins. Money Advanced on Shipments.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH

PENNYROYAL PILLS

RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND.

Original, best, only genuine and reliable pill for sale. Never Fail. Ask for Chichester's English Diamond Brand, in red metallic boxes, sealed with blue ribbon. At Druggists. Accept no other. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are a dangerous counterfeit. Send 4c. (stamps) for particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return mail. 10,000 Testimonials from LADIES who have used them. Name Paper.

Chichester Chemical Co., Madison Sq., Phila., Pa.

The New Baxter Engine, Rope and Twine Machinery, and Manufacturer of Binder Twine, etc.

This engine is made with all latest improvements from 1 to 15 H. P. and has a record unsurpassed in the history of steam motors. Every engine is provided with all economic and safety appliances known, and are warranted in every respect. Every description of Rope and Cordage, Twine and Bagging Machinery. And also manufacturer of Jute Bagging, Hemp and Flax Binder Twine, etc. Send for circulars. Please mention this paper. Address,

JOSEPH C. TODD,
36 Dey St, New York.

The Oldest Medicine in the World is probably

DR. ISAAC THOMPSON'S CELEBRATED EYE-WATER.

This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century. There are few diseases to which mankind are subject more distressing than sore eyes, and none, perhaps, for which more remedies have been tried without success. For all external inflammation of the eyes it is an infallible remedy. If the directions are followed it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. For sale by all druggists. JOHN L. THOMPSON, SONS & CO., TROY, N. Y. Established 1797.

L. M. WALTERS' Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car Excursions to Chicago and Boston, Without Change of Cars

LEAVE SAN FRANCISCO

May 2nd, June 13th, July 11th,
" 16th, " 27th, " 25th,
" 30th, For locations in these cars, rates, tickets and full information, address—L. M. WALTERS, 604 Market Street San Francisco.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gulder, Roenish Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

The BUYERS GUIDE is issued March and Sept. each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

ASTHMA CURED

German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief, in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

KNABE PIANOS

It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.

A. L. BANCROFT & CO.,
132 Post street, S. F.

HAIRY FACES! M. Graham's Depilatory Paste is guaranteed to remove hair and check its growth. $1.50 by mail. Send 2c stamp for book "How to be Beautiful." MRS. GERVAISE GRAHAM, Beauty Doctor," 21 Powell St., San Francisco.

POWDERED 98% CAUSTIC SODA, TREE WASH, Carbolic Sheep Wash.

T. W. Jackson & Co., Mfg. Agents, 104 Market St.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 Free. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY.....JUNE 22, '89

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 2. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 22, 1889. WHOLE NO. 973.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

SCENES IN MOROCCO.

Why the Ardent Imagination of Orientals Is Exalted By Religion.

In a sordid vestibule, whose walls are covered with torn matting, the jailer smokes his pipe filled with kiff, that slightly opiated plant which takes the place of tobacco in these parts. Three women, draped in their haik, are weeping near a grated opening in the prison door; and in the interior darkness a human face is scarcely discernible. As we approach, the women stand aside, and a lean arm is passed through the grating and stretched toward us suppliantly, without a word being uttered. I put a silver piece in the hand; immediately one of the women takes the money and hurries away toward the town, doubtless to buy bread. I look through the grating, and distinguish a vast foul-smelling and somber room, without air, in which are human forms crowding and crouching, with the noise of chains, and the lamentable and sinister murmur of words uttered in a low voice. The criminals in this prison are perhaps none but people accused of possessing a few douros which they never even saw, and who are now waiting in the horror of this black hell until the efforts of their parents or the charity of some traveler like myself shall help them by degrees to make up the sum of their ransom!

In presence of such misery as this one can understand how the ardent imagination of these nations is exalted by religion, and how they seek in religion comfort, consolation and hope of a justice hereafter which will compensate terrestrial woes by celestial joys, and requite their sufferings in chains and dungeons by the delights of paradise. One can comprehend these peoples attaching themselves with fierce faith to their belief in God and in a future life, and being proof against the atheistic skepticism which hovers over the Western world. They have need of God more than the citizens of Europe; they want a Master and a Judge above their earthly judges and masters.

I wished to see also the man under whose authority these victims groan, and I saw the Pasha. In an Arab portico he is seated on a carpet cross-legged, motionless, clad in white woolen. He is fingering the ebony beads of a chaplet, and in the midst of his prayers he seems to be listening attentively to the story of a tall soldier, a black-faced Hercules, who is perorating with a profusion of gestures and much volubility as he points to a poor fellow crouching at his side in a posture of terror that does not even dare to take the form of a prayer for mercy. What can he hope for? The least possible number of lashes, the least number of days or of months to live in irons, the smallest tale of douros to redeem his life. He does not even try to defend himself against the soldier's charges. In his Oriental fatalism he waits with resignation.—Benjamin Constant, in Harper's Magazine.

TRUE POETRY DEFINED.

Prof. Rice Attempts to Contradict Some Prevailing Notions.

Prof. Thomas R. Rice, the head of the department of English at Columbia College, delivered an instructive lecture on "Shakespeare's Dramatic Construction." A great drama, he said, is made up of two elements; first, emotion, and second, action. The problem of dramatic poetry is to convert an emotion into an action, and in showing this Prof. Rice used "Othello" as an example of the perfect English drama. He also gave some useful hints regarding the composition of poetry as follows:

"The true theory of poetic art, the poetic movement in all ages and among all peoples, is the movement of the human spirit bound in the fetters of its acts. These fetters are the rules of poetic construction. To affect to be outside of them is to be essentially unpoetic. To break the law is to produce discord and ugliness; to obey the law is to produce a poem. As the kind of poetry becomes grave and thoughtful, the laws of poetry become not only more difficult to understand, but also more difficult to apply. Expand the ballad into an epic and even the genius of Milton stumbles, even the art of Virgil fails, in applying at all points the laws of narrative poetry. Expand the song into an ode and the world, having brought forth one Pindar, seems unable ever again to appreciate or to apply the highest laws of lyric expression. But there is one kind of poetry that in the strictness, the goodness, the majestic force of its compeling and restraining laws goes even beyond the epic art of Virgil, even above the lyric art of Pindar. Dramatic poetry as fashioned into a system by Sophocles, and, under changed conditions, perfected by Shakespeare, reaches its results by obedience to such laws of form and movement as tax the mind to the uttermost. To understand these laws rightly and to apply them successfully is a feat that has been accomplished by hardly a half dozen of the greatest poets."—N. Y. Tribune.

Daudet, speaking of M. Renan, with whom he is on intimate terms, said recently: "What a fine intellect and what a pity it should be imprisoned in such a huge and unwieldly frame, it is so revolting to one's ideal!"

Professor Mommsen, having found it impossible to procure in Germany or England a sight of certain books and MSS. he is specially anxious to study, went to Paris to consult them at the Bibliotheque Nationale.

Edward Eggleston was recently described as "a southron of the ante-bellum, large planter type, a man with a soft, sweet voice, and English filtered through generations of tidewater Virginian ancestors down to its present vernacular."

A THRILLING STORY.

How Mr. McSwyny's Friend Concluded a Strange, Romantic Tale.

"Speaking of flash literature reminds me of an incident which occurred some time since in connection with a deceased friend of mine," said Bryan McSwyny yesterday. "The person alluded to was a man of genius. I will not mention his name, because of his family connections. He was engaged in writing a serial story for a well-known weekly paper of the 'Snake-Eyed Bob, the Bully of the Woods' order. The story had run so long that the publishers were getting tired of it, and they wrote to my friend telling him to bring the story to an end in the next installment. He did so in the following unique manner:

"'The balloon rose slowly from the foot of the cliff, bumping along the face of the rock as it did so. Angelina, frightened at the prospect of the perilous journey ahead when the balloon was one thousand feet from the ground, jumped recklessly out upon a shelf of rock which projected from the face of the cliff. Frenzied with fear Algernon followed his love at the risk of breaking his neck, and the balloon sailed away and left them in their precarious situation. There the lovers were one thousand feet from the top of the cliff and an equal distance from the bottom. Algernon seated himself beside the lovely maiden and clasped her to his heaving bosom in a passionate embrace. Slowly the sun sank behind the western hills. Its expiring rays lit up the forms of the lovers, oblivious of their awful position. The shadows deepened and night fell like a black pall upon the scene.

"'"Will you always love me, Algernon?" said Angelina.

"'"Till death, darling," was the reply.

"'THE END.'

"Well," continued Bryan, "letters began to arrive at the office of publication asking such fateful questions as these: 'What became of the lovers? Did they dry up and blow away? Did the buzzards feed upon the form of the lovely Angelina? Did they fall off the cliff and smash into pieces at the foot? Did a bowlder roll over the edge of the cliff and crush them? Did the birds of the air bring food to the lovers? Did some one let a rope down from the top of the cliff and pull 'em up? For Heaven's sake, what became of them?'

"These letters accumulated so fast in the office that the publishers became alarmed and wrote to my friend, asking him to write another installment of the story, which he gladly did, the concluding sentences of the last chapter being as follows:

"'The long night passed slowly away with leaden tread. The eastern sky began to flush with the first beams of morning light.

"'"Are you awake, dearest?" whispered Algernon in Angelina's shell-like ear.

"'The white curtains over the beautiful eyes slowly lifted, and the musical voice replied in a faint whisper:

"'"Yes, darling, but I'm very hungry."

"'"By the gods," replied Algernon, springing excitedly to his feet, "you shall have food! For see, dearest, the balloon approaches."

"'It was indeed as Algernon had said. Outlined against the fleecy clouds, by straining those eyes of heavenly blue, Angelina could see a faint speck about as big as a door-knob. The speck gradually grew larger as the two lovers gazed hungrily upon it, now taking upon it the dimensions of an orange, then swelling out as large as a cocoanut, until it drew within their sight and assured them that they could not be mistaken; it was indeed their long-lost balloon. Then their fears were excited anew by seeing the balloon sway as it was struck by a current of air. Clasping her hands around Algernon's neck, Angelina exclaimed in agony:

"'"Oh, darling, the balloon is going away!"

"'"Wait, love," said Algernon, soothingly; "another blast may strike it."

"'It was indeed so, as Algernon had said. A favoring gale from Heaven, it seemed, directed the balloon toward the cliff again, and in a miraculous manner it was wafted against the face of the cliff. As it came nearer and nearer to their resting place Algernon said, in a husky whisper:

"'"Now, Lena, my hearts love, jump when I jump."

"'They jumped and clung like spiders to the netting until Algernon had descended to the car. Then, like the hero he was, Algernon rescued his darling one from her perilous position and laid her upon the floor of the car. She was resuscitated by a drink of life-giving brandy, which Algernon found in a hamper, and an hour later was pleasantly engaged in viewing the diversified landscape, over which the balloon sailed like a swallow in its flight.

"'Higher and higher the balloon rose until a band of Indians who were watching it saw it gradually fade away against the empyrean blue of the sky until it dwindled down to the size of an apple, then faded away until only a speck like the head of a pin remained, and then was lost in the shadowy realms of space.

"'THE END.'

"Well, what did the publishers say this time?"

"Oh," replied Bryan with a smile, "they simply discharged my friend, that's all."—Chicago Mail.

A SERMON TO PARENTS.

How Children Are Made Imperfect Physically and Mentally.

A child comes into the world as the great preparatory field from which it is very soon to emerge into the boundless beyond. It is taken from the womb and thrown into a cradle. It is doped and dosed with something to deaden it to sleep and stagnate its blood. It is denied fresh air, pure water that goes to help make a pure physical system. It is left unfed hours upon hours when its stomach is empty and its physical system is worried by want. It is neglected when it wants food, water or care. It is helpless in the hands of those who torment it with pins, bandages, yanks, jerks, sharp words and fault-finding, till the growing mind finds itself in hell instead of Heaven.

As the child grows on in years, its mind, ever on the alert, as it seeks for information of some kind, it detects its parents in hundreds of petty falsehoods and learns to lie. It experiences cruelty and becomes cruel. It is abused and learns to abuse in return. It is cuffed, slapped, kicked, yanked, jawed, scolded, worried and hung upon the outer walls as trash, when it is the only thing on the place that is to accompany its parents into the beautiful beyond. It listens to profanity and vulgarity, and becomes vulgar and profane. It is lied to in all manners of direct and indirect ways by its parents, and thus learns to consider falsehood as a pleasure or necessity, or both. It is not turned to the beautiful, as is the work of the glassmakers, but is left to get up and out of darkness as best it can. It is fed with food that does not nourish, and its body becomes the home of ailment, malady and disease. Then, when it has a headache, a stomach-ache, a blind eye, a deformed foot, a blemish, or weak, deformed spot, it is taught that God made it so, when God never yet made an imperfect human being. Every physical imperfection is the protest of nature against ignorance, carelessness and indifference to results.

Every mentally-imperfect child is the result of the carelessness and neglect of its parents and the public. Impure food, deleterious fluids, improper care, lack of paternal love, pernicious reading matter that distils dirt into the young mind, all injure and unfit it for the future. Men have no business to have land, horses, cattle, wives or children until they can properly care for what they have, and the most valuable of all they have is their children. Why is it that we do not all try to treat them and their mentalities in a proper manner? Good father and good mother, is not a child better than a horse, a cow, a hog or a farm?—"Brick" Pomeroy, in Advance Thought.

THE MOON'S REVOLUTION.

Why We Have Need to Be Devoutly Grateful for Our Sate lite.

If we could take a bird's-eye view of the portion of the solar system containing only the sun, the earth and the moon, we should see the sun moving with rapid pace through the vast regions of space, taking with him the earth and the moon. We should see the earth revolving round the sun, taking with her the moon. We should also see the moon revolving round the earth, her motion round both sun and earth causing her to move in an irregular curve, always concave to the sun.

We could then realize as no words can describe how exceedingly complicated is the motion of the moon in her orbit, and admire with reverent awe the heavenly harmony that prevails even in this small portion of the material universe. For it must be remembered that our majestic sun is but a shining point, seen from the nearest fixed star, and our earth and moon are invisible to the suns of space.

The moon revolves around the earth from any fixed star to the same star again, in twenty-seven and three-tenths days, completing periodic or sidereal revolution.

The earth meantime has advanced in her orbit, and the moon requires more time to complete a revolution in regard to the sun, bringing sun, moon and earth into line, and making the time from new moon to new moon again twenty-nine and a half days. This is called a lunar month, lunation or synodic period.

The moon is often considered as of little consequence in the economy of creation. But what would the earth do without her? She is our minister and companion. If she were blotted from the skies there would be no tides of any amount, no silver crescents hanging in the golden West, no glorious full moons flooding the sleeping earth with soft lights and shadows, and no total eclipses of the sun, the most sublime phenomena on which mortal eyes rest.

We have need then to be devoutly grateful for our satellite, for her position in the heavens, for the short period of her revolution, and for all the blessing that follow in her train. Her movement round the earth is but one short chapter in the complex history of our nearest and most intimate celestial neighbor.—Youth's Companion.

—One of the most satisfactory wax finishes for wood is made by boiling a quarter of a pound of white wax with one ounce of pearl-ash and one quart of water. It is to be stirred while boiling, the stirring being afterwards continued until cold. The composition is to be applied with a paint brush, after which the surface is rubbed until dry with velvet plush

JEWELRY TRADE TRUSTS.

A Dealer Tells How the Business Is Affected By Monopolies.

In recounting the difficulties of the jewelry business a dealer said: "It would seem that manufacturers were bent upon minimizing the expenses incident to the personal adornment of the fair sex. If not this, they are shrewd enough to tighten the coils of monopolistic power chiefly about those articles that are in demand for their utility as well as for their beauty. At any rate, there is no trust among the manufacturers of jewelry proper, but the makers of watches and silverware practically seek to dictate the minutia of our business in so far as those articles are concerned. In such articles as rings, brooches, pins and trinkets there is a generous rivalry among manufacturers, which has tended to be beneficial both in enhancing quality and in reducing cost. The man who buys jewelry to-day of a dealer who does not demand an exorbitant margin of profit pays pretty nearly a normal price for what he gets.

"With articles of utility, however, the matter is different. For four years the watch trust has been growing in power, and most dealers, especially the proprietors of small stores, have been made to feel its influence. Most of us had our profits greatly reduced and not a few have been run out of the business. I will venture to say that when the Merritt anti-trust bill was introduced into the House there were few jewelers in the State who were not wishing it would pass, so as to bring the needed relief. The American Watch Manufacturers' Association and the Jobbers' Association, by a system of rules and a policy of suspensions and boycotting, have held an iron hand over us to such an extent that the amount of our purchases, the places at which we deal, the rates at which we sell, the discount we allow and even the time we sell on are dictated to us. Retail jewelers are forced to buy of the jobbers unless they can make a first purchase of $5,000 net and buy at least $20,000 worth of goods during the year. If they can make such purchases they are regarded as jobbers and can profit by the manufacturers' prices, and jobbers are discountenanced and expelled from the trust if they sell at a lower rate of profit than 25 per cent. In short, the whole purpose of the trust is to keep up prices and secure patronage to the members of the trust. In doing this the smaller dealers are frozen out remorselessly.

"In the matter of silverware, the trust, I think, is not so iniquitous. There are few styles in the market, however, which are not in some way or other covered by monopolies. That is one of the great reasons why novelties in silver come so high. It is one of the latest fads for young ladies to decorate their dresses with all sorts of fancy pieces, the styles of which are constantly changing and the prices of which are consequently far beyond the actual value of the goods. With watches the cases and the movements alike come under the power of the trust, but with silverware it is only the designs that the trust has control of. While I think that watches and silverware are much lower than they used to be, I am certain that the minimum price consistent with good workmanship and quality is not yet reached, and that it would be vastly for the benefit of the public, as also for the dealers in jewelry, if some scheme could be devised or law passed by which competition could have its natural influence and we dealers be freed from leading-strings."—Chicago News.

THE COMMON HOUSE FLY.

When and Where It Breeds and How It Passes Through the Winter.

The common house fly (Musca domestica) is one of the most widely distributed insects, and yet very little is known of its life history. Prof. Packard, in his great work, "Guide to the Study of Insects," says: "No one has traced the transformations of this fly in this country." He then proceeds to copy a few lines from a European work in regard to the form of the larva, but the information given in regard to its early stages is meager and unsatisfactory. Figuier, in his magnificent illustrated work, "The Insect World," after briefly describing the house fly says: "Every one knows how annoying it is toward the end of summer, and especially so in the south of France during the hot season." But he gives no information in regard to its habits, where it breeds or lives in the larva or grub state. We have also consulted a number of entomological works published in this country in recent years without discovering any additional information in regard to the life history of the house fly. It is supposed, however, that the females deposit their eggs in all kind of filth or decaying vegetables and animal substance, where they hatch, and the grubs feed until they are transformed into reddish-brown pupæ, from which the perfect flies issue during the warm weather in summer and autumn. Whether the eggs laid late in the season pass the winter safely or after becoming grubs remain half or wholly dormant until spring is at present unknown. But as house flies are found in their perfect state in houses and other buildings during the winter, it may be that the entire summer broods are the progeny of those few individuals carried over from one season to the next.—N. Y. Sun.

—One traveler who never bothers about having his trunk checked: The elephant.

CROCHETING LACE.

Weaving the white thread in and out
With the shining little hook,
And as I watch you, darling,
With your earnest, steadfast look,

I think of your life, my darling,
Which is only just begun,
And while you are crocheting
These thoughts in my brain have been spun.

A space, then a block, my darling—
A block of solid work;
'Twill be so in your life, little daughter;
There's many a place to shirk.

But I pray there be more blocks, darling,
For solid work wears the best;
But full and smooth may you finish it, dear.
If so it seemeth best.

But work with a will, my darling,
Keep the thread still pure and white,
And the hand that guides you, my darling,
Will finish the work aright.

—Harriet Tremaine Terry in Atlanta Constitution

Prince Battenberg's Romantic Career.

Not yet 30 years of age, mind you, and yet Prince Alexander of Battenberg has experienced all the dark days and crossings in life that any young man can ever hope to carry. A soldier of fortune, he passed from the Prussian to the Russian ranks, and without friends and few prospects was so sweetly smiled upon by Dame Fortune that by and by he sat on a throne of his own in a foreign land. Of course the Bulgarian crown was not exactly an ideal one to wear, but for a person whose most ambitious dream could never have been more than to retire at the end of his career as a general, to pass his old days in some German castle home on half pay, it was a good deal. However, in a few short years, after tasting the sweets of power, the grand captain of heroically gained battle fields learned the ingratitude of a people and found his royal joys exhausted. Next he knew the distress of exile; then he picked up acquaintance with the delightful temper and sarcasm of an English queen, and finally, at the house of a kinsman in Darmstadt, met an opera singer of the third rank and fell in love. With a little more patience, perhaps, he might have been the brother-in-law of a mighty monarch, but he had had enough of the vanities of this world, and wishes to choose for wife a good little creature with whom to lead a tranquil and quiet life hereafter.—Paris Cor. New Orleans Picayune.

Jay Gould's Daughter Nellie.

Miss Nellie Gould, the great financier's eldest daughter, probably has more independent property than any other unmarried woman in America. She is her father's favorite, and every year he gives her presents of stocks and bonds which amount up into the hundred thousands. He takes great pains with her investments also, with the result that her fortune grows apace every year. Added to this, her mother, who had a fortune of several millions, left the greater share of her property to Nellie, so that she is estimated to be worth over $6,000,000. Her life has been passed in the quietest way, and, though she is but 20 years of age, her mode of existence is as quiet and humdrum as though she were forty. The big Gould mansion rarely sees any festivity, and an awning up in front of their door would throw the neighborhood into a panic of excitement. Her mother's failing health has been partly the cause of this, for Miss Gould was not only her devoted attendant and companion, but was also the head of the household and bore its whole responsibility. They have a box at the opera, but they are not very regular attendants, and the only place in which she is frequently seen is the Presbyterian church of which she is a member. She interests herself in charities also, and in half a dozen summer homes for sick babies and poor women.—New York Letter.

Decline of Steamboating.

Very large steamboats are no longer built on the Mississippi, so that but few of the class which were once so common are now seen on the river. The burning of the White, Richardson and Kate Adams wiped out the three last of the great floating palaces of the lower Mississippi. Their places have never been filled, and there is no incentive to build any more of the same sort. They were immense boats for passenger traffic, and as fine as the ocean steamers. But the railroads made them unprofitable. During the last two years of their service they lost money, because they could not get the passenger trade. The railroads had entered their territory and deprived them of the principal source of income. The boats are now forced into narrow channels, and must go where the railroads cannot reach. Hence they navigate in small streams, which were formerly despised, and where large boats could not go. This state of affairs requires shallow keels and light draught. Small, swift vessels are now used where the competition is close. The palace of the era of the '70s has passed out of existence.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Girls as Piano Makers.

A curious evolution is said to be taking place in Tom Scanlan's New England piano manufactory, in Boston, among the working forces of that establishment. This gradual change which is occurring is that from male to female employes, and to such an extent that not only is it said that the majority of actions made in this factory are turned out by girls, but they have also been introduced into the varnish department, where girls and women are actually doing the varnish work on piano cases. The state of Massachusetts has a reputation for its great number of female workers, who are engaged at a great many industries usually attended to by men, but this is the first case, if true, where they have been employed in a piano factory to do the laborious varnishing of piano cases.—New York Star.

Millionaire Prussians.

Americans are not the only people in the world who enjoy big incomes. A report presented to the Prussian landtag on personal taxation for 1889 discloses the fact that Herr Krupp's income for last year was 4,380,000 marks, or, say, nearly $1,500,000, while Rothschild comes next, admitting an income of only a few thousand dollars less. It may interest the Universal Peace society to know that one of these gentlemen derives his income from the sale of implements of war, and the other from loaning money to nations that want to fight.—Boston Herald.

A Fruitless Appeal.

Prodigal Son (feelingly)—Father, I'm in hard luck again. Debts of honor, you know. The boys are down on me and I come to you for—for—a—a—succor.

Obdurate Father (freezingly)—Waste no words, young man. I've nothing but advice to give you. Go to those dear "boys" and, in the delightful vernacular with which you are familiar, inform them that the old man cannot be worked for a sucker.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Signs of Inebriety.

Young Waiter (at a medical dinner)—Them doctors use a lot of wine, but I spose they kin stand it.

Old Waiter—Dunno about that. I'm thinkin' they're getting pretty tight already.

"They don't look so."

"No, but they're beginnin' to agree."—Philadelphia Record.

FORMATION OF ISLANDS.

THEIR CREATION DUE TO VOLCANIC ERUPTIONS AND OTHER CAUSES.

Scientific Information Not Given in the Geographies—Islands Which Have Been Blown Up from the Ocean's Bottom. Detached Pieces of Land.

Your ordinary text book of geography, "as she is written," talks barely and baldly about the size of countries, their boundaries, their rivers and lakes, capes and head lands, their populations, their religions and their chief products. These are all facts, no doubt; but they are facts which resemble pearls destitute of any string whereby they may be converted into a necklace and thus made useful and ornamental both. My belief, therefore, leads to the assertion that we should become more scientific—but not thereby less popular—in our geographical teaching in schools; and this very subject of islands shows the way of reform. Science, in this sense, dives below the bare facts of the text books, and seeks to give reasons for these facts. It places itself in the position of an expositor and expounder of the manner in which our world and its affairs have come to assume their existing order.

DUE TO VOLCANIC ACTION.

Geographically, all islands are regarded as of much the same constitution. They are detached masses of land, surrounded by sea, and differing, to the mind of the schoolboy or schoolgirl, chiefly in size. Australia is a big island; Madagascar is not so big, and from Ceylon onward to Mauritius or the Azores there are found all degrees and gradations of magnitude. This, with a few details about the quarters of the world in which islands exist, and with some ideas about products and peoples, complete the geographical knowledge of the average man and woman.

Science takes up the matter where commonplace geography ends its story. It asks, first of all, what islands really are, and how one island differs from another. As a result of its investigations, science soon discovers that islands may be divided by their nature into two distinct sets or classes. Of these two divisions, the first includes islands which can lay claim to that title from the first day of their existence, in that they have never formed part and parcel of any larger mass of land. Thus we first distinguish the so called "volcanic" islands, which, like the Azores, have been thrust up from the sea depths by volcanic action, to form detached masses of land existing, it may be, many miles from a continent or mainland.

Then comes a second class of islands which are called "continental," because, whatever their size, form or situation, we can prove them to be geologically part and parcel of a bigger tract of land. They are separated and disjoined fragments, so to speak, of a larger land mass. Under this head are to be included many islands we know. The British islands are simply detached parts of the European continent; just as Trinidad is a fragment of South America; or as the Malay archipelago represents the broken up land which, once upon a time in its hale and solid state, connected Asia and Australia. Even New Zealand and Madagascar are continental islands in their way, although the exact dates of their separation may be very hard to trace in the mists of geological time.

THE DIFFERENCE SCIENTIFICALLY EXPLAINED.

Having thus succeeded in distinguishing between islands which, like St. Helena, the Azores, the Galapagos and so forth, represent the eruptions into the earth's outside mass of volcanic matter, and those which, like Britain, Trinidad and the West Indies, are really the detached pieces of large land tracts, it behooves us to inquire further into the history of each group. They are separated from their mainlands, it may be, by abysses of ocean. On the other hand the continental islands have, relatively, shallow seas separating them from their nearest continents.

Witness, to prove this statement, the German ocean, the English channel, the sea between Trinidad and America or the general depth of the seas around the Malayan Islands. We find a test not only of the nature of an island in the depth of the seas around it—apart from its rock structure—but in the case of the continental islands we can assure ourselves of the length of time they have been separated from their mainlands by having regard to the same matter of ocean deepness.

The Azores, as volcanic islands, are thus separated from Portugal by sea varying from 2,000 to 2,500 fathoms. Within a short distance from the islands themselves the sea is about 1,000 fathoms deep; within 300 miles it is 1,800 fathoms, and soon deepens to 2,500. With the Bermudas the case is similar; some 450 miles off we reach the sea bottom at 3,825 and 3,875 fathoms. St. Helena has sea of 2,860 fathoms deep between it and Africa, some 1,100 miles off. Contrariwise, the sea around our own shores is comparatively shallow; but, as I have remarked, whenever a continental island shows, like Madagascar, a deep channel between it and its main land, the story such depth tells us is one of long detachment from the mother country.

PLANT AND ANIMAL LIFE.

So far, islands have shown us that geologically their history is interesting in respect of the marked variation between the two classes. Not less interesting is the additional evidence about islands which their animals and plants have to tell. Whence, let us ask, have detached islands, like the Azores, obtained their animals and plants? Upraised from the sea bed, as have been these islands, their living population must have been derived from other and previously peopled lands. This supposition is confirmed by our finding that on the Azores we discover no animals or plants—excluding those of man's introduction—which are not found on the Portuguese coast. The rabbits, weasels, mice and a single kind of lizard found in the Azores are importations.

The birds which, of course, can fly over the intervening sea, are those of Europe; such also are the insects, and such, again, are the plants. In a word, there is nothing about the animals and plants of the Azores which we cannot explain by reference to their European origin. Then also, on such detached islands, we cannot expect to find native quadrupeds or frogs; for these animals will not face and brave a long swim in the sea. In a word, it is precisely those animals and plants which have ways and means of conveyance over tracts of sea which people these distant islands and come to live and flourish thereon.

Very different is the case with our continental islands. Here the animals and plants are those of the adjacent mainland, altered and modified only in so far as the length of the separation of the islands indicates and allows. Our British animals and plants are those of the continent, and the life of Trinidad is that of South America, because there has been no time, practically, for change. But in Madagascar, Australia and New Zealand, as islands long separated, each from its mainland, we find living things utterly unlike the great land mass from which each island was derived. Thus it is that together geology and biology teach us much about islands of which geography takes no heed.—London News.

REVISED FIRST READER.

Four Practical Lessons Not Taken from the Sunday-School Weekly.

LESSON I.—Ann and Eliza were two girls of the same age and lived next door to each other, and they looked so much alike that people often took them for twins. But while they resembled each other in looks they were unlike, alas! in spirit and conduct. If Ann's mother spoke to her she always answered in the politest manner, and was ready to do any work asked of her. But if Eliza's mother asked her to go over to Mrs. Henry's and borrow her flatirons, or go over to Mrs. Jackson's and get her quilting-frames, the girl would toss her pretty head and scornfully reply:

"But I don't h-a-v-e to!"

When Ann was eighteen years of age she could knit, sew, make bread, split wood, hoe corn or put a diamond-shaped patch on the south side of her father's trousers with a deftness that excited universal admiration. But Eliza was far, far different. She spent much of her time at the museum and theater, read all the latest novels, used seven kinds of camphor-gum on her face and hands, and bragged of mashing over twenty boys. While Ann's father and mother patted her on the back and said that her goodness would surely be rewarded, the parents of Eliza went out into the wood-shed and wept scalding tears and declared that life was not worth the living.

But, ah! how little do we know what a year may bring forth! One day, a year later, Ann was married to a blacksmith who was too lazy to sweat, and who had to borrow two dollars to pay the preacher. Three days later it was known that Eliza had eloped. She didn't stay eloped, however, but at the end of a week returned to her father's house to say:

"Old chap, I have married a Chicago banker worth half a million, and if you want $25,000 to start a grist mill here is the dross!"

Therefore, the good are always rewarded ten times over, while the wicked can not hope to escape punishment.

LESSON II.—"Shall we go to the zoo to-day, papa?"

"Not to-day, my son!"

"But they have just received a kangaroo from Australia."

"That's no draw, my child. Let us stand here on this corner and observe those females who have crowded No. 5 feet into No. 3 shoes, and we shall get the kangaroo business free gratis."

LESSON III.—"Who is that man, father, and why do the people take off their hats to him?"

"He is a steamboat captain, my boy, and navigation has opened for the season."

"But is a steamboat captain a great and good man?"

"He is a great man, at least in the spring. When he stands on the bridge of his vessel and rings his little bell to slow up, to stop her, to back, to go ahead, to work her to port, to wind her bows to starboard, to come into dock, President Harrison's night-shirt wouldn't make him a pocket-handkerchief."

LESSON IV.—"Does the tramp smile?"

"Yes—a sad, weary smile."

"Did he make a mistake in going around to the rear of that house?"

"Very likely he did. He found a bull-dog under the step and the woman of the house decorating a bedstead with a feather dipped in a solution. It was a combination he could not beat."

"And the dog—"

"Oh, the dog wouldn't have tackled him but for the woman, and the woman wouldn't have said any thing if the tramp hadn't remarked that spring weather always thawed 'em out."—Detroit Free Press.

Chicago in the Soup.

Housekeeper (in Kansas City)—I don't want nothin'.

Peddler—I am not anxious to sell. I only stopped to remark that Chicago, where I've been peddling, can't hold a candle to Kansas City.

"Don't believe it kin."

"No, indeed, mum; Chicago is goin' to the dogs, fast. People there are awful poor, while in Kansas City I find every body is just rollin' in wealth, and real estate's a boomin'. Fast trains from Kansas City to New York won't stop at Chicago in another year."

"What have you got to sell?"

"Soap. Something new. Only one dollar a cake."

"I'll take two."—N. Y. Weekly.

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon, mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep, at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(Poisonous.)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.
CATTON, BELL & CO.
SUCCESSORS TO FALKNER, BELL & CO.
Office, 406 California St. and Wool Agency Warehouse, cor. 6th and Townsend Sts.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

C. Mulholland,
DITOR & PROPRIETOR
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY, JUNE 22 1889

The whole career of man or woman may be determined by impressions received in childhood. This is not a mere possibility, but an established fact; and being so it is of the utmost importance that parents should look closely to the characters of school teachers. Multitudes of school children spend more time in direct contact with their teachers than with their parents. The mind of a child is as sensitive to impressions, and as retentive, as a photographic plate is sensitive to light. Instances have been known where the characters and habits of teachers were such that men hardened to the ways of the world would shrink from them in disgust. And yet these very men will let their little ones come under the influence and example of these very teachers without uttering one word of protest. The parent who would instantly kill the snake or dog that endangered the life of his child, will tamely and stupidly submit to have that child put under the control and influence of a teacher who will dull its mind, brutalize its character, and ruin soul and body. There is no position where cleanness of life, dignity and nobility of character, are more absolutely necessary than that of a school teacher; and yet teachers are not seldom chosen without any investigation of character at all; nor is this the worst; teachers are employed who are notoriously the slaves of the worst vices. This is a monstrous cruelty and injustice to children. Herod's slaughter of the innocents was mercy compared to putting them in contact with men whom to come near is contamination. Holmes, with equal wisdom and wit, said that to make a gentlemen we must begin with his grandmother; there is no better place to begin with the grandmothers of gentlemen than in the school room, and no better way than setting before her the example of a gentleman; and none but a gentleman should ever have charge of a school. It has been urged as a reason for employing certain teachers, that "they must make a living." The children might say, like the frogs in the fable, "It may be fun for you but it is death to us." Better far for the public to support men who are unable to earn a living in any other way, than to send them into the school room to pollute and brutalize children by their evil example and by their vice-besotted and stupefied minds. Everywhere a far higher standard of moral character, as well as scholarly attainments, is demanded in school teachers, and this demand is in good part due to the influence of such institutions as the Academy at Bishop.

It is said that the action of the Union Pacific Company toward building a road from Utah into California is stirring up the Central Pacific Company to get a road from Ogden to the East. It is alleged that the two companies have always been a little jealous of each other and are ready to become rivals at any time for overland business. The more roads are built the better; every additional outlet to the States and Territories, and every mile of new road built in the State will develop new resources and increase the population and wealth of the State. No country can prosper without railroads; and all parts of all countries prosper in proportion to the railroad facilities afforded them. The men who build the railroads are the promoters of all the blessings of modern civilization, for every advantage of civilization follows the building of railroads.

To Dispel Colds
Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys to healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them take Syrup of Figs.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

Ores!
Ores!
Ores!

GOLD
SILVER
LEAD
ORES WORKED

Small lots received and worked as carefully as large lots.

The best machinery for concentrating sulphurets is in use and all the metal of any kind of ore is secured.

Ores that will not bear transportation from Owens Valley can be worked at a good profit at home.

Ores sampled, bought and paid for on delivery.

Address,

Lessee Maxim Mill,
Independence.

Wheeler & Wilson
Sewing Machine.
New No. 8.
"THE BEST!"

Sales Made on Installment Plan.
Old Machines Exchanged for.
Farm Produce Taken in Payment.

This is the best opportunity ever offered to get a really

First-Class Machine.

Several have already been sold here, and in every instance have given the greatest satisfaction. Anyone desiring to examine the machine will please call at the INDEPENDENT Building.

I. H. MULHOLLAND, Agent.
Independence, Cal.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of forty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.
FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to FLEMING Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC

☞Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n476tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.
B. RHINE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

$93 Sewing-Machine FREE to at once establish trade in all parts, by placing our machines and goods where the people can see them, we will send free to one person in each locality, the very best sewing-machine made in the world, with all the attachments. We will also send free a complete line of our costly and valuable art samples. In return we ask that you show what we send, to those who may call at your home, and after 3 months all shall become your own property. This grand machine is made after the Singer patents, which have run out before patents run out it sold for $93, with the attachments, and now sells for $50. Best, strongest, most useful machine in the world. All is free. No capital required. Plain, Brief instructions given. Those who write to us at once can secure free the best sewing-machine in the world, and the finest line of works of high art ever shown together in America. TRUE & CO., Box 740, Augusta, Maine.

INTENDING ADVERTISERS should address
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
10 Spruce Street, New York City,
For SELECT LIST OF 1000 NEWSPAPERS
Will be sent FREE, on application.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.
Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings
Furnished.
All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.
JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo Freighting Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,
BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer In GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.
Postmaster and Deputy Co Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.
Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.
A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & CO., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.
In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & CO., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.
COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address
MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors.
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.
Shaving, Hair Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 12th
"	February 9th
"	March 16th
"	April 13th
"	May 11th
"	June 8th
"	July 12th
"	August 10th
"	September 7th
"	October 5th
"	November 2nd
"	December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.
J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Independence Hotel,
Independence Cal
H. LEVY, Proprietor.
FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM.
APARTMENTS.
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Daily Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
☞ NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED. ☜
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39½ SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
☞ All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones, Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.
One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,
Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)
Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2-pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery. Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
☞Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in fact, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
sept-tf CROCKER BROS., Props.

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—
PIANOS & ORGANS
☞If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to
Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
☞Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, May 10th, 1889.

STATIONS.		From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
		Leave—	Arrive—
Mound House		11 00 a. m.	5 00 p. m.
Dayton		11 30 a. m.	5 10 p. m.
Wabuska		1 25 a. m.	3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne		5 05 p. m.	11 25 a. m.
Luning		6:25 p. m.	10:05 a. m.
Soda Springs		7:35 p. m.	9 05 a. m.
Belleville		8:45 p. m.	7:45 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar.	9:20 p. m.	Lv. 7:10 a. m.
		No. 3.	No. 4.
		Leave—	Arrive—
Belleville		8 10 a. m.	5:25 p. m.
Benton		11:40 a. m.	1:35 p. m.
Bishop Creek		1 50p. m.	11:00 a. m.
Alvord		2:35 p. m.	10 00 a. m.
Independence		4 10 p. m.	8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine		5 00 p. m.	7 40 a. m.
Keeler	Ar	5:45 p. m.	Lv. 7 00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salisbury & Co's tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Dowieyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜
☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law,
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JUNE 22.....1889

BORN.

CHURCH—At Independence, June 16th 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Church, a son.

W. T. Grant and Ed. Walker are in town

Bridge contractors see notice in another column.

Rawson's new mill is running out lumber at a rapid rate.

Mrs Ida Decker was up from Lone Pine some days this week.

Mr. John Lucas was up from Lone Pine at the beginning of the week.

The Carson mint is to be started coining July 1st. The mint has been idle four years.

Miss Sarah James has got home again after a stay of some months at Virginia City

The fruit crop about Independence is excellent; there will be plenty of all kinds of fruit

Miss Laura McMurry came down from Big Pine last Sunday on a visit to friends at Independence.

Mrs. W. S. Enos and children went north Thursday morning on their way to Yolo county on a visit.

Mr A. Stecker got the contract for building a school house at George's Creek. His bid was $1890.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McKenzie have returned to Darwin from a visit of several weeks to San Francisco.

Miss Grace McAfee came down from Bishop last Monday on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Eldred.

Miss May Shepherd has gone to Los Angeles on a visit to relatives. She is likely to stay some months.

The collection of sheep tax made by Sheriff Eldred up to the beginning of the week amounted to $4950.

Mrs. J. C. Hawley, who has been at San Francisco for some time, has returned to her home at Cerro Gordo.

Rev. C. L. Logan, Principal of the Academy at Bishop, preached at Lone Pine and Independence last Sunday.

[illegible] left Independence Thursday morning for San Francisco. It is not expected that he will return here.

John Baxter is first at Independence this season with ripe apricots and apples. He has peaches nearly or quite ripe.

A great mining suit will begin at Bridgeport, Mono county, next Tuesday. The contest is between the Bulwer and Standard Companies.

Hon. P. Reddy arrived at Hawthorne yesterday on his way to Bridgeport. He is engaged as counsel in a big mining suit now pending there.

David Davis was killed last week in the Raymond and Ely mine at Pioche, Nevada. He was cleaning out an old winze and got caught by falling rock.

Miss Ella and Miss Jennie Bell of Big Pine, have gone on a visit to Arkansas. They went out with Mr. Collins last Tuesday by way of Mojave.

Mr. A. O. Collins has gone to Los Angeles to bring home his two daughters who have been in that city for some time past. He went by way of Mojave.

Mr. A. R. Bell has shut down his flouring mill for the season. Many repairs and improvements will be made in preparation for grinding the new crop.

Jonathan K. Dennison, a well known citizen of Mono County, died at his home at Bridgeport on Monday of last week. He had been in poor health a long time.

Henry Melone and C. F. Miller are opening up a placer claim at Fish Spring that prospects big. They have a tunnel nearly completed into the pay dirt and will soon begin taking out pay.

One more trust is needed and it should be a big one; viz. to trust prospectors with grub and other necessaries till they make a strike. This is a trust that the newspapers won't howl against.

Nine prospectors are at work at Fish Spring. All of them are getting out ore that will pay them good wages. One man an Italian, is opening up what every indication of being a valuable mine.

Last Monday in the Superior Court Maria Hoffman was granted a divorce from C. L. Hoffman. The ground for granting the decree was desertion and failure to provide. Geo. M. Gill was attorney for plaintiff.

Attorney R. S. Miner has been very sick since last Fall. He was at San Francisco but his physicians ordered him to return to Bodie. The Chronicle-Union says he arrived at Bodie recently and has been steadily improving since.

A "Miner" expresses himself very kindly over an application of "Moses' rod". The kind words are duly appreciated. It was heartfelt feeling, as well as knowledge of the value of the work of "Miner" that prompted the application of "the rod."

Many buildings are being torn down and taken away from Gold Hill. The Enterprise says the Imperial hoisting works, the Rhode Island mill and the Mount Vernon House were all recently demolished and the lumber and other material taken away.

[illegible] and Manuel Diaz are making a shipment of several tons of ore from the San Lucas mine. This mine is on the East side of the Inyo mountains, not far from Cerro Gordo. The ore has always been the richer in silver than any other mine along the range.

The Reno Gazette says: The INYO INDEPENDENT, one of our best weekly exchanges has entered upon its twenty-first volume. Should the resources of the INDEPENDENT'S field continue to improve the time will not be far distant when Brother Mulholland will be warranted in publishing a daily.

Good finds of ore are becoming quite frequent of late. Rose & Daley have a claim near the Maxim mill. Last week they went prospecting, and after a few days work struck a body of quartz that shows up well in gold. The ledge comes to the surface for a long distance; the location is very convenient and the mine offers every facility for working. If the pay ore holds out—and there is every indication that it will—Rose & Daly will make money right from the start, and everybody hopes they may.

How Prospectors Were Injured.

All the judges of mines who have ever visited Inyo county agree that no other region on the Pacific Coast offers such evidence of mineral wealth. Every old prospector who has ever gone into the Inyo range has become fascinated with the country, as evidences of rich ledges abound everywhere. The slightest search in the range never fails to result in finding plenty of specimens of good ore. And yet with all this evidence of abundant riches few miners succeed in making much more than fair days pay, and many have failed to do that. Perhaps an explanation of this discrepancy between prospects and results may be found in the following facts: Very recently samples of tailings from worked ores have been gathered up in various parts of the county and carefully assayed at Virginia City and San Francisco. These assays show that the tailings carry from nineteen dollars to twenty-seven dollars and thirty cents per ton. This is a prodigious loss, and every cent of it is dead loss to the miner. There was no intention on the part of those who worked the ores to rob the miners; the metal is yet in the tailings and no one has gained by it. The loss was caused by sheer ignorance in some cases, and by pig-headed stupidity in others. But the loss to the miners and the injury to the mining interests was not the less severely felt. In any other region of the State the discovery of ores that would carry such amounts of gold as these tailings would cause a wild excitement and a big mining "boom" would be the result. Much of the ore that produced these tailings netted to the miners from forty dollars per ton upward. Where such rich results were obtained no careful scrutiny was made of the tailings. Many ledges in Owens Valley carry a very high percentage of sulphurets. This is especially true of ores about Fish Springs. The owners of the ores worked them in arastras and had no appliances for saving the sulphurets, therefore the loss was inevitable. A beginning has already been made of a better method of working these sulphuret ores and in future the loss will be reduced to an insignificant amount. The change will redound to the benefit of prospectors and the great improvement of the mining interests of the county.

Important Mining Matters.

For some time past vague rumors have been current of important mining transactions at the lower end of the Valley. It is now publicly known that Archie Farrington and others have got control of the Union group of mines at Cerro Gordo. This group is credited with having yielded about thirteen millions of dollars in the flush times. For several years past good ore has been taken out steadily by parties working under lease. Cost in the meantime tunnels winzes and levels were allowed to cave in, and the mines are reported to be in such condition as will require a good deal of expense to put them in thorough working order again. It is said that Mr. Farrington and his partners have secured the mines to work for one year, with the privilege of purchase at a certain price at the end of that time, or sooner, if they decide to buy. These parties have abundant capital and will put the mines in thorough working order and will open up new ground. No one who knows the ground has any doubt but that there are ore bodies there as rich as were found in the flush times. The opening up of the Cerro Gordo mines will employ a large number of men and will give immense impetus to mining all along the Inyo range. The ore body recently found by Dunphy & O'Keefe is said to be five feet of solid silver-lead. This gives all indications of being an immense ore body. It is in the continuation of the old Union ledge. Unfortunately a law suit is likely to grow out of this find. Joe Diaz an old miner, claims an interest in the mine, which Dunphy & O'Keefe refuse to recognize. Diaz has gone to San Francisco to consult with Mr. Pawley another interested party, and to get legal advise. Hon. P. Reddy is owner of one-third of the claim with Dunphy & O'Keefe; so if law is resorted to the other claimant of an interest in the mine won't get it by whistling for it but will have to clearly prove his right, and he should. Mr. Farrington will take possession of the Cerro Gordo mines on the first of July and work will be begun at once.

Suicide

D. S. Kinney, an old resident of Mono County, committed suicide last week. The Chronicle-Union says he shot himself to death at the ranch of Mrs. H. Boone, better known as the Stewart Ranch, just north of town. He had been sick for years, and his ailments being incurable he in a fit of despondency, put an end to his existence by placing the muzzle of a Henry rifle in his mouth and shooting himself through the head. It was noticed during the evening that he was not rational, and at bedtime he resolved to sleep in a spare room and wanted two of his little boys to sleep with him, but as they had gone to bed his wife objected to their being disturbed, so he retired to the room alone and in a moment or two shot himself and died almost immediately. He left a note thanking his friends for their kindness, and said his sickness and troubles had been such that he had decided to put an end to himself. The deceased was a son of Mrs. J. C. Murphey and brother of Geo. C. Kinney of Bishop, and of Mrs. H. Boone, of this place and had resided here since boyhood, with the exception of a few years he lived in Oregon, having returned from there last Fall. He left a wife who is the daughter of Mrs. D. M. Walters, of the Willows, and four young children, besides his mother and a large family circle, to mourn his sudden departure. The funeral took place at 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and was one of the largest ever attended in this town. Mr. Kinney was born in Yolo county, and was about 35 years of age, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Refunding County Bonds.

For several years past there has been a good deal of talk about refunding County bonds at a lower rate of interest, and more than once efforts were made to accomplish this end; but in every case the efforts failed. Mr. P. H. Mack, the County Clerk, went to San Francisco recently to try what he could do in the matter. He succeeded in arranging for replacing the bonds at five and a half per cent. interest per annum. The present rate is seven per cent. per annum. The saving to the tax payers would be about eleven hundred dollars each year. It remains to be seen if there be any legal obstacles to refunding the bonds. The Supervisors will consider subject at a special meeting on the 31 of July.

Narrow Escape.

Ex-Sheriff Morgan, of Mono County, had a narrow escape from death last week. The Chronicle-Union says he was preparing to put in a set of timbers on the 400-level of the Standard Con. at Bodie, a cave occured which buried him. James Orton his working partner, was near at hand, and at the risk of his life, as the caving continued, rescued Mr. Morgan, who was found to have had his right leg broken obliquely about 6 inches above the knee. His body and head were badly bruised. He was at once removed to his residence, where Dr. D. V. Goodson set the leg and gave him every attention. He is getting along as well as can be expected

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

MONDAY, June 15th.

Hoffman vs. Hoffman—Plaintiff granted a divorce.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, California, will be held at the Court House at Indepence California, on Wednesday, July 31, 1889 at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of opening and examining proposals for the building of a bridge across Owens River near Big Pine; also for the appointment of two members of the County Board of Education, and for considering the matter of refunding the bonded indebtedness of Inyo County.

Interesting To Miners.

An interesting experiment was made a few days ago at the Maxim mill. Mr. J. J. Gunn had several sacks of crushed silver-lead ore run through the concentrator. The metal was entirely freed from all sand or other matter and was saved in a clear condition. Mr. Gunn regards the experiment as completely successful, and is satisfied the kind of concentrator in use at the Maxim is just what is wanted in the Darwin and Lookout districts.

The Lessee of the Maxim mill has bought a large quantity of tailings at Fish Spring from Jas. McCarty and others. A concentrator has been moved over from the mill to Fish Spring and is now working the tailings. This wonderful little machine can be loaded on to a wagon and hauled about like a sewing machine; it can be run with almost as little power as a sewing machine, and the amount of work it can do must be seen to be believed. The tailings at Fish Spring carry a very high percentage of sulphurets—more than any other in the county—and will pay big when concentrated.

A party of strolling Italians made amusement on the street yesterday for all the children in town with four bears and two monkeys. The bears "danced," i.e., hobbled on their hind legs, and wrestled with the men. There are two men two women and a number of children in the party, and all are importunate beggars. All of them could say very distinctly "eet ees money dat make a de bear dance."

It is so great a privilege to be an American citizen that one who possesses that right should value it as he does the honor of his wife or mother; and his love for American institutions and his solicitude for America's welfare should be as true and constant as the most devoted sons and husbands feel for beloved mothers and wives. The man of foreign birth, who after becoming an American citizen, shows by his acts that he did so for no other reason than that he might with greater safety engage in plots connected with the politics of other countries, is utterly unworthy of the honor of American citizenship. Americans may and always will, sympathize with all oppressed people who are struggling for freedom, and to these will never refuse such help as an American can give without violating the laws of his own country, or committing such acts as might embroil his own Government in war with other nations. The American citizen who will act contrary to all this is a traitor to his country and unworthy the rights and privileges of citizenship. If the men who murdered Cronin in Chicago are American citizens, this foul crime proves they are utterly unworthy that distinction; and if they are members of a secret association that would sanction such a crime, that association should be crushed out of existence on American soil. Unpunished crime is a menace against free institutions. The plea always offered for the establishment of despotism is that it is necessary for the prevention or punishment of crime the free governments are unable to control. No cause is ever helped by crime. Patriots and lovers of liberty will not associate or work with criminals. It is not for love of liberty in Ireland or anywhere else, that such crimes as the murder of Cronin are committed; but to cover up the crimes of fraud and robbery committed by men who use the plea of helping Ireland as a cover under which plunder may be secured just as the dress of a policeman may be used by a burglar that he may with more facility commit a robbery.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Board of Equalization.

The Board of Supervisors will meet as a Board of Equalization on Monday, July 1st, 1889, to examine the Assessment Book and equalize the assessment of property in Inyo county and will continue in session until such business is completed.

Ranch for Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I offer my ranch for sale, consisting of 320 acres. Situated about three miles from Independence in a southeasterly direction. It is nearly all under fence. There is about 30 acres of orchard and vineyard, a portion of which is bearing. Undisputed water right. For price apply on the ranch to

J. W. SYMMES.

Independence, Cal., June 13, 1889.

Notice to Contractors

IN PURSUANCE TO AN ORDER OF THE Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, duly made on the 10th day of May, 1889, notice is hereby given that sealed bids for the construction of a bridge at a point on the Owens River near Big Pine, will be received by said Board up till 12 o'clock m. of July 3d, 1889, and that said bids will be opened between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day. Said bridge to be constructed of similar material and of similar form and plan to the bridge now crossing the Owens River near Laws, on the Carson & Colorado railroad. Bids to be sealed in envelopes and marked "Bids for Bridge," and addressed to the Clerk of the Board. The Board reserving the right to reject any and all bids.

P. H. MACK, Clerk.

Dated June 17th, 1889.

Notice to Contractors

IN PURSUANCE TO AN ORDER OF THE Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, duly made on the 10th day of May, 1889, notice is hereby given that sealed bids for the construction of a bridge at a point on the Owens River, near Big Pine, according to the plans and specifications of said proposed bridge, now on file in the County Clerks office of said county, will be received up till 12 o'clock m., of July 30, 1889; and that said bids will be opened between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day. Bids to be sealed in envelopes and marked "Bids for Bridge," and directed to the Clerk of this Board. The Board reserving the right to reject any and all bids. P. H. MACK, Clerk.

Dated June 17th, 1889.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MA HINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods,

Groceries,

Clothing,

Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter,

Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.

Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS,

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.

DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2.25 for Cash.

For particulars, call and see

W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,

DEALERS IN

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to ROBERT A. DUNN, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the Plaintiff in the above entitled action and giving to said plaintiff the custody of the minor children, Wallace Dunn and Elsie Gertrude Dunn, also for counsel fees, alimony and general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief in said complaint demanded.

WITNESS my hand and seal of the said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 6th day of February, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL) P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie J. Dunn, Plaintiff, vs. Robert A. Dunn, Defendant.

ORIGINAL SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff o 51

NOTICE TO STOCKMEN.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, owners and occupants of lands lying under and in the vicinity of the East Side Canal, to all stock raisers and ranchmen having loose stock running at large, that the law entitled "An Act to protect growing crops, growing in the County of Inyo," approved March 28th, 1872, will be strictly enforced against all animals found trespassing upon the lands owned and occupied by us, between the 15th day of March and the 15th day of November of each each year. (Signed.) F. M. IVER,

DR. S. BISHOP,
PERSIA H. BISHOP,
L. L. WOODIN, M. D.
WILL H. GRAHAM,
J. H. PARISH,
H. J. ROBINSON.

Dated June 10th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOEL H. SMITH, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Executor, at Bishop, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the County of Inyo State of California.

HORACE M. SMITH,

Executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Dated at Bishop, Cal. June 10th, 1889. o-5

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d15-tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o-4

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Boggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.

Apply to

ROBERT O'NEAL

Bishop Creek.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.

feb12tf

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

E. H. Edwards,

—DEALER IN—

General Merchandise,

LONE PINE,

INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA

BELL'S Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,

Independence, Cal.

GENERAL MERCHAND

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing

Dry Goods, Ladies'

Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,

PEANUTS,

WALNUTS,

TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S STORE

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE

—AT—

PALMER & REY'S

ADVERTISING BUREAU!

405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.

—AND AT—

PALMER & REY'S

Pacific States Advertising Bureau

46 Tribune Building,

NEW YORK.

Where Advertising Contracts can be made

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,

FLOORING,

FENCING,

RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER.

sept-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00

REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00

Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for Circular to

HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps)

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County, California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 11th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 24th day of June, 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUGE, Secretary.

Office—205 Front Street, San Francisco.

ENORMOUS FORTUNES

Notwithstanding the enormous fortunes accumulated through the use of printer's ink, large sums of money are annually wasted in ineffectual and unremunerative advertising.

The merits of a really valuable commodity properly portrayed in the columns of an influential and widely read newspaper, like this will speedily become generally known and appreciated, while the returns reaped by the advertiser will be like those of the wise husbandman who "planted his seed in good ground, wherein it bore fruit and brought forth, some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty."

The wording of an advertisement is an all-important matter.

Clearness, attractiveness, brevity and sincerity must characterize any announcement intended to catch the public eye and appeal to public confidence. An advertisement inserted in a London journal a few days ago brought instant and multitudinous replies accompanied by an almost unlimited supply of bank notes, simply because it touched the chord of nature which makes all mankind akin. Its simple pathos and self-evident truthfulness appealed to every heart.

The advertiser sought for a lost relative, and, giving his name, said: "I am ill and friendless. My last half crown is expended in paying for this advertisement. Write me at"—(giving the address). As already stated, nearly every one who read the announcement hastened to relieve the necessities of the sufferer—a real sufferer in this case, though many swindles are perpetrated in the divine name of charity.

Thus it is with a really meritorious commodity or preparation; if its virtures be properly and truthfully set forth in the public press, its success is prompt and certain.

On the other hand, the public is quick and unerring to detect deception and charlatanry; and, accordingly, no amount of "puffery" will force a vile nostrum into public esteem and patronage. Untold sums have been sunk in vain efforts to advertise into popularity so-called medical preparations which did not possess the virtues or properties claimed for them.

Valuable medicines, however, like Warner's Safe Cure and Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla, carry their own best commendation in their power to cure the particular diseases for which they are a specific.

They require no labored panegyric to convince the people of their power and efficacy, for they have been tried and found perfect.

Nature's remedies, by their own intrinsic merits have conferred a lasting boon upon mankind, and they have secured an enviable reputation and unlimited sale throughout the civilized world.

FOR HOMELY WOMEN.

Mirrors That Will Make Their Faces Look Handsome.

"It is true," said a dealer in mirrors, "that none of us know exactly what manner of men we are. The mirror does not enable us to see our outer selves as others see us. Only the finest mirrors approach perfection of surface. The best are made of plate glass, but if you happen to look into a large mirror you discover that the straight lines and right angles of a room appear all awry. The reflection most nearly true to the object reflected is obtained perhaps from a hand mirror made of plate glass or from a metalic mirror of moderate size.

"Great pains are taken to insure a true surface in plate glass, but few mirrors long in use have a surface in a single plane. A slight defect distorts the image. I have seen homely women look almost handsome in a mirror by reason of a defect in the surface that remedied a bad feature. It is not difficult to sell such mirrors to ladies who need a flatterer near at hand.

"Here is a mirror that illustrates what I have said," continued the dealer, taking down a circular glass inclosed in a stout frame, which was provided with a handle. The listener, looking in, beheld an odd distortion of his own features. One eye appeared higher than the other, one cheek bulged as if swollen with toothache and the whole countenance was caricatured.

"Look steadily for a minute," said the dealer, and he began to turn the mirror slowly. As he did so the features reflected engaged in a sort of kaleidoscopic dance. For no two seconds was the face the same. While this was going on the eyes of the gazer felt as if they were being twisted out of their sockets, and before the mirror had made a full revolution the performance had become very painful.

"Feels odd, doesn't it?" said the dealer. "Now, that mirror is a scientific toy. Its surface is cast purposely in several planes. One eye is reflected in one plane, the other in a different one, and the bulging cheek in still another. The pain to the eye was caused by the effort to adjust the vision to the constant change of plane presented by the revolution of the mirror."—N. Y. Graphic.

LITERARY LIGHTS.

Kate Field is writing a novel based on the horrors of Mormonism.

Justin H. McCarthy, M. P., the younger, is to publish a novel which he calls "Dolly."

Browning's work was recently defined as "a dictionary with the meanings of the words left out."

Frederick Harrison calls one of Mrs. Margaret L. Wood's poems the "very dead march of pessimism."

Dr. Amelia B. Edwards is the only woman ever invited to lecture before the Peabody Institute of Baltimore.

Sabine Baring Gould is about to publish a collection of Devonshire songs, which he has been compiling for several years.

Bessie Chandler, the poet, is Mrs. Leroy Parker, a daughter of the late Admiral Chandler of the United States navy.

Professor J. S. Blackie says that while he is working he never uses any alcoholic stimulant, nor stimulant of any other kind.

Grant Allen, whose health has not been good of late, is spending the winter in Italy, amid the artistic treasures of that land.

Professor Bryce has gone to India to live on the northwest frontier for a time to make a thorough study of the Afghan question.

Robert Louis Stevenson has presented to King Kalakaua a rare golden pearl, accompanied with a little poem describing the gift.

Rhoda Broughton, the English novelist, lives in a little old house in a little old street at Oxford, with a walled garden filled with roses.

Mor Jaka, the leading Hungarian novelist, in his time has published some 200 volumes, to say nothing of trifles in novelettes and short stories.

Marion Crawford's father was Thomas Crawford, the sculptor, and his mother was the sister of the late Sam Ward and of Mrs Julia Ward Howe.

PUBLICATION OF LAWS.

How Blemishes Are Often Engrafted Upon Our Statute-Books.

The laws are published in various forms. They are first published separately in sheet form, as "slip laws," as soon as possible after being received by the bureau and numbered in the order of their receipt. When so published the slip laws are given to the editor of the laws (a competent person elected from the legal profession by the Secretary of State and privately employed for that purpose), who notes marginal references to previous legislation, arranges the acts and resolutions by "chapters," and prepares a suitable index; and under his editorial care at the end of the session of Congress, they appear again in pamphlet form as "session laws." Lastly, at the close of a Congress, the laws of each session are gathered by the editor into a single volume and bound as "Statutes-at-Large." The numerous readings given to the printed "proof," and the careful comparison with the text of the originals, effectually guard against discrepancies. The manner in which the department performs its duty is thoroughly creditable; the manner in which Congress dismisses its own work is, in many instances, absolutely disgraceful. Some of the rolls received at the department are disfigured by erasures, interlinications and blots, by errors in orthography, capitalization and punctuation, and by hieroglyphic mangling that suggest the "masterpieces" of school-boy art. These and more serious imperfections, once placed upon the parchment roll, are law. However glaring the blunder, however mischievous the distortion or omission, the State Department is powerless to add a connecting dot or stroke. Mistakes made by Congressional enrolling clerks have undone legislation accomplished by Congress after hours of debate. An item of half a million dollars for public purposes was bodily left out in the enrollment of a recent appropriation act; and the substitution of a comma for a hyphen in transcribing a tariff measure some years ago caused a loss to the Government of thousands of dollars before the error was detected and further loss arrested by the passage of another act. These are but specimen cases. It is humiliating to think that a sleepy or incompetent clerk should be able to frustrate the legislative will of a Nation, and startling to reflect on the opportunities for fraud by deliberate tampering with the public rolls. Blemishes enough are engrafted upon our statute-books by the legislators themselves, in the shape of careless or unwise enactments; surely, if we can not always have clear statesmanship, we should have at least clear penmanship in the parchment record of our laws. The blame, like the remedy, rests with Congress.—Edmund Alton, in St. Nicholas.

PEANUTS FOR INSOMNIA.

Bishop Lyman Says That a Half-Pint Dose Daily Effects a Cure.

Dr. Theodore B. Lyman, Episcopal Bishop of North Carolina, has written the following letter to the Raleigh Daily News and Courier:

"I think I have made a very valuable discovery, and I am anxious that others should also enjoy the benefit of it. For nearly two years I have been suffering greatly from sleeplessness at night. I have tried a great number of proposed remedies, some of which have helped me a little, but not for any length of time. A little more than a fortnight ago, while staying at the house of a friend in the country, my good hostess brought into the parlor, quite late in the evening, a bountiful supply of peanuts. As I am very fond of them, when they are not too much cooked, I ate quite freely of them, and soon after retired to bed. I found the next morning that I had enjoyed the best sleep I had experienced for over a month. I attributed this at once to the peanuts, and determined to try them again the following evening. I did so, and also drank a glass of fresh, sweet milk after I had finished the peanuts. That night I slept still better, and now, for a fortnight, I have partaken of the peanuts and milk every night, and have not only slept remarkably well, but have also fully recovered from a slight attack of indigestion which had troubled me before. I now find that peanuts, carefully roasted and not overdone, so as to be at all burnt, are surely a remedy for sleeplessness and also for that form of indigestion which produces sleeplessness.

"There is a popular impression that peanuts are indigestible, but I have never found them so unless they were too much roasted or had been roasted many days before. When too much cooked or when stale they certainly are indigestible, but when carefully roasted and fresh they promote digestion. They should be eaten shortly before going to bed, and not more than a half pint should be taken. They should be roasted before they are shelled, and shelled only as they are eaten. A half pint of shelled nuts would be too many. I commend this remedy with great confidence to those who are afflicted with insomnia, particularly if indigestion is in part the cause of it. The peanut is a very valuable article of food when carefully roasted and partaken of in moderation. I hope none of my readers will imagine that I have started a peanut farm, and am wishing to create a boom in that article, but I shall be rejoiced if what I have written should be the means of bestowing on any others the great benefit which I have derived from this simple agency."

—Girls would rather sing soprano than alto because it is higher-toned.

Why She Removed Her Hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins at the theater.

Mr. S.—What are you doing?

Mrs. S.—I'm going to take off my bonnet and hold it on my lap.

"I never saw you so considerate of any one's pleasure before."

"Umph! You needn't think it's that. I'm the only woman in the house that hasn't got a new spring bonnet, and you ought to be ashamed of it."—Chicago Herald.

SUBSTITUTE FOR GLASS.

The Numerous Advantages of the So-Called Wire-Wove Roofing.

The introduction of a material combining all the advantages of glass with none of the corresponding disadvantages arising from its brittleness will be hailed with interest by every class of the public, who suffer daily in one form or another from the fragile nature of the article it is now sought to supersede. The transparent wire-wove roofing, which is translucent, pliable as leather, and unbreakable, has for its basis a web of fine iron wire, with warp and weft threads about one-twelfth of an inch apart. This netting is covered on both sides with a thick translucent varnish, containing a large percentage of linseed oil. The process of manufacture is conducted by dipping the sheets into deep tanks containing the composition until the required thickness is obtained; the sheets are then dried in a heated chamber, and after being stored for some time till thoroughly set, are ready for use. The sheets can be made any color desired, and range from amber to pale brown. The roofing is very pliable; and bending backwards and forwards without any injury, readily adapts itself to curves or angles in roofing. The new material is not only waterproof, but is unaffected by steam, the heat of the sun, frost, hail, rain, or indeed atmospheric changes of any kind. Being a non-conductor, buildings, winter-gardens and similar structures remain cool in summer and warm in winter. Owing to its lightness as compared with glass—only half a pound per square foot—considerable economy in the iron or timber framing designed to carry it can be secured, whilst saving in carriage is obtained in addition to safety.

Turning now to the question of cost. Wire-wove roofing is more expensive in first cost than ordinary glass; but the many advantages, both in erection and maintenance, already set forth will, in the opinion of those interested in the question, more than counterbalance the primary additional outlay. A material that requires no glazing, can be cut with scissors and fixed with zinc nails, is an economical object. For churches, passages, staircases, special colored varieties to simulate glass similarly prepared are manufactured. Both the Admiralty and War Office have availed themselves of the advantages to be derived from the employment of the new roofing material; whilst it may be added that the Royal Aquarium at Westminster is entirely covered with it.

A list of the many and varied uses to which the wire-wove roofing may be applied would be a long one; amongst others, may be mentioned: Roofs of cotton mills, explosive and other factories, workshops of all classes, breweries, printing-works, railway stations, exhibitions, cricket pavilions, lawn-tennis courts, verandas, porches and covered ways, boathouses, engine-room skylights, conservatories, ferneries, garden-frames and summer-houses, kiosks, stables, loose-boxes for horses and cattle, barns, cowhouses and shepherds' houses, pheasantries, poultry-runs, fowl-houses and kennels, skylights, markets, schools, laundries, portable buildings, temporary structures, hospital and military huts, and all other buildings requiring to be light and dry.—Chambers' Journal.

BENEFICIAL INSECTS.

Entomological Information for Horticulturists and Gardeners.

At a recent meeting of farmers in Iowa, Mr. C. P. Gillette, speaking of entomology for the horticulturist, said: "It is utterly impossible to definitely draw the line and say just how much entomology the horticulturist or farmer should know. There is no limit to the information that one might gain in the study of insects that would be a benefit to him in devising methods of prevention and remedy. I shall not go outside of what may be called the essential knowledge to successful warfare against our insect foes.

"The horticulturist should be able to distinguish injurious from beneficial species. The majority of insects are vegetable feeders, but there are a great many that feed upon or within the bodies of other insects, causing them to die. These latter are called predaceous or parasitic, and in the main are beneficial, as they destroy many injurious forms. When the lice have been mostly eaten from a plant by the lady beetles, the orchardist, finding many of the latter and few of the former, naturally attributes the damage to the beetles, and proceeds to destroy all that he can find. Nature's check is in this way removed, and the lice increase again and the injury goes on perhaps worse than before. It is not at all uncommon for entomologists to receive these little friendly insects from farmers or fruit growers who report them as doing much damage to some tree or plant.

"The lady beetles, or lady birds, as they are often called, are among the most beneficial of our predaceous insects. Their food consists almost entirely of plant lice and the eggs of insects and they should always be protected. Nearly every one knows these insects in their adult state. They are rather small and are shaped much like a Colorado potato beetle, and are usually decorated with bright white or black spots. Who has not said when a child, Lady-bird, Lady-bird, fly away home? Two other very beneficial insects that I can only mention are the larvæ of the Syrphus flies and the beautiful lace-winged Chrysopa. These are most commonly found in colonies of plant lice, of which they devour large numbers."

—Two young men who keep bachelors' hall in Heard County, Ga., went home late the other night. As they were about to enter the house they heard a low, gurgling sound, which so frightened them that they ran half a mile to a neighbor's house. A party from there armed themselves with axes, scythes, pitchforks and other deadly weapons and returned to find that the noise had been made by a dog that was choking to death on a bone.

A FAMOUS INSTITUTION.

What It Is, Where It Is, and How Conducted.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—[Special to The Omaha Bee.]—Many thousands scattered over this great country, from its extreme eastern to western, northern to southern boundaries, are waiting and watching to-day to learn if the wheel of fortune may not bring to them that grand capital prize of $600,000, which is a little less than one-fourth of the immense sum this day distributed by the Louisiana State Lottery Company.

Circumstances so order that I make the Louisiana State Lottery the basis of my first communication from this city, believing that it will prove interesting to your readers, as picturing one of the institutions of the State of Louisiana, which is the main support of that celebrated Charity hospital, that welcomes the poor and friendless stranger as readily as the needy at home, and cares for all alike.

When your correspondent received instructions to proceed southward, New Orleans being the objective point, he remembered that this being his first visit to the Crescent City, it would be well to arm himself with letters of introduction to some of the most prominent and distinguished of her citizens. He was particularly favored by being brought into contact with the Hon. G. W. Nott, postmaster; Col. Page Baker, managing editor of the Times-Democrat; Mr. P. O. Fazende, of the well-known banking house of Fazende & Seixas, as well as other leading citizens, and during a short formal conversation, the principal points of interest—to a stranger—were suggested by Mr. Fazende, saying he would at once order his carriage and drive me through the city. As we neared the corner of St. Charles and Union streets my escort said, pointing to a handsome, substantial looking structure, three stories high, "There is the home of the Louisiana State Lottery Company, and, by the way, to-morrow is the appointed day for the mammoth drawing, in which over $2,000,000 is to be distributed, and the first capital prize is $600,000. You should attend the drawing by all means and on no account fail to visit the company's offices." Then it was I learned what an intense interest was taken by the people of all grades in society, not only in the city of New Orleans, but throughout the State and surrounding States, in this wonderful institution, which, as may not be generally known to the readers of The Bee, is not only the only legalized one in this country, deriving its original charter from the State legislature in 1868, but in 1879, by act of the State constitutional convention, was incorporated as a part of the new constitution formed by that body, and this act endorsed by an almost unanimous vote of the people of the State, and the people of New Orleans and Louisiana have never had reason to regret that action.

From 1868 to the time of the adoption of the new constitution, the company contributed over $500,000 in support of the public schools, and since that time, (1879) have set aside a yearly fund of $40,000 for the use of the Charity hospital heretofore mentioned, besides its more than princely support of all other institutions, charitable and otherwise, in the city and State. In fact, Mr. Fazende told me that good and charitable deeds were not confined to the company as a whole, but individual members are foremost in contributing liberally from their private means, for the encouragement and success of schemes that conduce to the interest and welfare of the city and State. The officers and directors of the company are among the most popular, respected and leading citizens, and the commissioners, who oversee superintend and manage the drawings, are those old generals of the confederacy, loved and revered by the South, Generals Jubal A. Early and G. T. Beauregard. These two gentlemen have no interest whatever in the company, as General Early told your correspondent in conversation after the drawing to-day, and the company have neither voice nor vote in the manner or management of the drawing proper. Thus is provided a perfect safeguard—if such were for the time being necessary—for the patrons of the lottery, thoroughly divorcing the management of the company from the management of the drawing.

And now a few words as to the details of the company's management.

Armed with a letter of introduction, your correspondent visited the offices on St. Charles street and was courteously received by Dr. M. A. Dauphin, the president, who requested his general manager to escort me through the several departments and explain the methods of conducting their vast business.

The building is a handsome three-story granite front structure, built and owned by the company, and devoted exclusively to their own uses. The general office on the first floor, presents at first sight the appearance of a large banking house. It was crowded with people eagerly waiting their turn to purchase—what each individually hoped, would prove the lucky number that would draw the capital prize of $600,000. In the several departments there are perhaps over one hundred clerks employed, and one peculiar, yet necessary feature of the assignment of them is, that they are in pairs at desks, so arranged that they face each other; this is for the purpose of acting as a check on the mutual errors of each other.

Here in one apartment to a large force of clerks is assigned the duty of opening and stripping the letters received by every mail, one set opens them, another set verifies the contents with the letter, another set assorts them according to the nature and value of the enclosure; to another set is confided the care of such letters as call for some special numbers, or enclose money for some future as well as present drawing, which must be laid aside for the present, to be taken up and attended to after the regular mail that involves no "outside methods" has had attention. Another set fill orders for the tickets, which are verified and "O. K'd" by another set. Another set records alphabetically the name and address of every sender of a letter, (and if an ordinary currency enclosure, registered letter, money order, postal note, express package or draft) in a book especially for each corresponding remittance, with date, month, etc. Another set addresses the envelopes to each patron or correspondent and another verifies these directed envelopes with the recorded list referred to above. Yet another set sees that the order is properly filled as required by the letter of request, and that the ticket or tickets paid for are with the return letter or acknowledgment before being placed in the envelope for mailing. In fact, to state it at once in brief, the letter received unopened passes through some fifteen of sixteen different sets of clerks—each paired, to verify each others work, before the letter of acknowledgement containing the ticket is finally placed in the envelope and mailed.

It appears to be a complex system at first sight; in reality it is simple, but thorough and perfect in its working. There is no possible chance, apparently, for error of any kind.

Another department that presents a busy appearance is the mailing and folding department of the prize list. Here a force of clerks is engaged addressing envelopes, from the recorded list of correspondents, for before the sun sets on the day after the drawing, to every patron is mailed a list of the prize numbers. System, thorough system, in every detail is the shibboleth of the management, and were it not so it would be utterly impossible to manage the enormous business that must be transacted day by day in the building. To facilitate the work, and prevent any loss of time as well as to maintain discipline and secure the employes from possible outside temptations, the company, at their own expense, furnish a first-class lunch to all their clerks, at stated intervals during the day—one-half only at a time repairing to the restaurant or dining room fitted up in the rear of the main office on the first floor. They are allowed from twenty minutes to half an hour, when they return to their several stations and the other half repair to the lunch room. Thus the work ever goes on during the day and a perfect and systematic control of it is maintained by the chiefs of the several departments.

Happening to be in the president's private office about 10 o'clock on the morning of the drawing, your correspondent had the pleasure of meeting that old veteran of the confederacy, General Jubal A. Early, one of the commissioners, who comes down once a month from his home in Virginia, to superintend the drawing. The old gentleman, although somewhat bent under the weight of years, yet looks rugged, and is as active on his feet as many men thirty years younger. He presents a most venerable appearance, with his long gray beard and broad brim slouch hat. His eye is sharp and piercing, and his voice as firm as in the old campaigning days in the Shenandoah valley. He greeted me cordially, and after making some inquiries of the general manager relative to "the bags" containing the tickets, he casually mentioned that he had just received a dispatch from some old friend in Rhode Island to wire him immediately after the drawing, the number that secured the capital prize.

"Now of course," said the general, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "He expects in some way I can help him win it, for he sends me the number of his ticket."

"I recollect, not long since," the general continued, "a man in Rochester wrote me that if I could 'pull' the capital prize of $100,000 for him, I would keep $80,000 and send him $20,000. The ——fool," added the old veteran, "If I could do such a thing and was rascal enough to do it, did he suppose I would be foolish enough to divide any part of it.

"And so it is," said General Early, "some people have an idea that General Beauregard or myself can, in some way, give the prizes where we will."

And as we wended our way to the Academy of Music, which is but a short distance from the Louisiana State Lottery Company's building on the opposite side of St. Charles street, the general said he would explain to me how utterly impossible it would be for him or General Beauregard to do any such thing.

The Academy of Music, where the drawing takes place, was soon reached, and at the general's invitation your correspondent was assigned a seat upon the stage, where he was introduced to General Beauregard, the associate commissioner, and Messrs. W. I. Hodgson, William Pincard, G. G. Roux and J. A. A. Rousseau, who assist the commissioners in the detail work. These are all prominent and well-known business men of New Orleans. Seated upon the stage was the genial Colonel, "Dan" Wilson, so well known to everyone in the Crescent City, who never fails to witness the grand drawings.

On the stage were two large boxes, which contained the ten bags in which were the tickets—100,000—each wrapped or tightly rolled and encased in a strong gutta percha tube, the ends of the tickets slightly projecting beyond the ends of the tube or case. Each ticket is printed, from 1 to 100,000, in great big black type, so as to be readily read by the audience in front when held up to view. The prize tickets, 818 in number, are similarly printed and encased in like tubes, for be it understood that while there are but 818 prize numbers drawn out, there are in addition 2,298 approximation prizes, which are explained below. In the first place, to be explicit and give a definite plan of the present Mammoth Drawing, there are 818 prize tickets, enumerated as follows:

1 prize of	$600,000 is	$600,000
1 prize of	200,000 is	200,000
1 prize of	100,000 is	100,000
1 prize of	50,000 is	50,000
2 prizes of	25,000 are	50,000
5 prizes of	10,000 are	50,000
12 prizes of	5,000 are	60,000
25 prizes of	2,000 are	50,000
100 prizes of	800 are	80,000
200 prizes of	400 are	80,000
500 prizes of	200 are	100,000

The approximation prizes are as follows:

100 prizes of $1,000, approximating to $900,000 prize, are $100,000.

100 prizes of $800, approximating to $200,000 prize, are $80,000.

100 prizes of $400, approximating to $100,000 prize, are $40,000.

THREE NUMBER TERMINALS.

99 prizes of $800, decided by $600,000 prize are $79,200.

99 prizes of $400, decided by $200,000 prize, are 39,600.

TWO NUMBER TERMINALS.

900 prizes of $200, decided by $600,000 prize, are $180,000.

900 prizes of $200, decided by $200,000 prize, are $180,000.

And these are explained as follows:

The 300 approximation prizes are awarded to the series of fifty numbers on each side of the numbers drawing the three largest prizes. For example: If ticket No. 31,246 draws the $600,000 prize, those tickets numbered from 31,196 to 31,296 inclusive (100 in all) will be entitled to $1,000. If ticket 281 draws the $200,000 prize, those tickets numbered from 231 to 331 inclusive will be entitled to $800, and so on according to the above scheme.

Tickets drawing the capital prizes are not entitled to terminal prizes. A ticket drawing a three number terminal prize, will not be entitled to a two number terminal prize.

And herein is a point that is overlooked by many, viz: That they fail to grasp the enormous amount of money that is distributed in these mammoth drawings. It will be seen that over $2,000,000, or to be explicit, $2,118,800 was distributed to-day by The Louisiana State Lottery Company, a much larger sum than ever before. But this, be it remembered, was the first extraordinary drawing in which the grand capital prize was doubled, placing it at $600,000 in place of as formerly at $300,000. And perhaps it may not be in the very far future when this great institution will place the grand capital prize at $1,000,000. Suffice it at the semi-annual drawings during the coming year, it will remain as now—$600,000. With such a prospect in view, how futile to talk to men and tell them, lottery is a delusion and a snare. Ninety-nine out of a possible hundred are ever found to hug such delusion, when it may possibly be embraced at so insignificant a price.

While waiting for the appointed hour to begin the drawing General Early (in presence of General Beauregard) explained to me how the tickets were counted by himself and his associate commissioner with the aid of only such assistants as selected by themselves, from 1 to 100,000, and placed in the gutta percha tubes described, the time consumed in doing so being usually from five to six days; how, also, the prize numbers are so counted and similarly encased, then placed in canvas bags, tied with a string, and this string wrapped with strong manilla paper, on the inside of which the autographs of General Early and General Beauregard are placed, and then sealed with wax upon which the seal "B and E" is placed. When thus sealed up they are placed in a strong box in one of the company's vaults, and are not touched by a living soul until they are brought out at the instance of the commissioners on the day of the drawing to be conveyed to the Academy of Music.

To describe the manner of drawing may seem like a work of supererogation to some of you readers, as it has been so often described before, but certainly there are some of your patrons, and without doubt a certain little lady of Council Bluffs, your across-the-river cousin who will be interested, for Mrs. Sallie C. Whittlesey, No. 35 North Seventh street, Council Bluffs, was the fortunate holder of the ticket entitling her to share in the second capital prize of $200,000. Her letter dated November 30, 1888, was written on the letter head of the Globe Publishing company, Council Bluffs, and enclosed $1 for five tickets (fortune). A truly paying investment, for her $5,000 for $5. The Omaha Bee certainly congratulates her on her good fortune.

Well, to the drawings. On ascending the stage I found placed on the right and left, two wheels, the one on the left much larger than the one on the right. It is drum shaped in its formation, about six feet in diameter and perhaps two to two and one-half feet through, with glass heads, and the surroundings, wood. It rests on a frame work so that it can readily be revolved by means of an iron crank, attached to the axle at each end. A door or opening is arranged in the side of the circular wood work, perhaps about a foot square, large enough to receive the tickets which are poured in from the bags before mentioned. The smaller wheel is similarly constructed, the circular work being brass instead of wood. This is called the prize wheel. The ten bags containing the 100,000 tickets being placed upon the middle of the stage near the footlights were carefully scrutinized by General Early and Beauregard before being emptied into the wheel; then General Early began the work by breaking the seal, removing the manilla wrapper and cutting the string. The wrapper was handed General Beauregard; I noticed it was in three folds, and as he laid it aside I saw why he examined it so closely. On the inner fold was the autograph of the two commissioners. Each bag was thus scrutinized before being emptied into the big wheel, and then the empty bag itself examined as minutely to see, as I learned, that no possible tampering had taken place, or that a pin hole even was apparent, where, by any possibility, a single ticket might have disappeared. When all ten bags had undergone the same careful examination, and had been deposited in the big wheel, the bag containing the 818 prize tickets were also placed in the small wheel, and then each was rapidly revolved for some minutes, back and forth, so as to thoroughly mix them up.

These preliminaries were eagerly watched by the fifteen or sixteen hundred people in the academy, each one wishing and praying that the goddess of fortune would favor them by throwing their number under the hand of the blindfolded boy, who would pick out the tube, bringing them wealth and happiness. Among the audience I noticed many well and fashionably dressed ladies, each with a slip of paper in front of them, anxiously awaiting the hour when General Early would open that little door in the side of the wheel, behind which their heart of hearts was centered for the time being. Gazing upon this spectacle of ladies and gentlemen in front, many of them being well known members of the exchanges, merchants and prosperous business men, I thought that here, at least, they seemed to feel no more out of place than such an audience would, enjoying the play at Boyd's opera house in Omaha.

At 11 o'clock precisely, on a signal, two boys came forward, one to the side of General Early and the other to General Beauregard, and were each blindfolded by the commissioners, and then the former seated himself near the big wheel, and the latter by the small wheel, after each had opened the doors to the same; the boys stood at the opening, between the wheels and the commissioners, and General Early said:

"We're ready."

The house was as still as death in a moment, as a tube was handed from the big wheel to General Early who unfolded it, and announced in a clear, resonant voice:

"Thirty-six thousand two hundred and twelve."

Simultaneously the boy at the small wheel handed General Beauregard a prize tube when he in a deliberately, plainly heard voice, exclaimed:

"Two hundred dollars."

General Early then handed his ticket to an assistant standing up beside him, who again announced the number, "36,212," at the same time holding it up so the audience could plainly see the figures. General Beauregard also handed the prize ticket to an assistant standing beside him, who for the second time announced the prize $200, for the number just drawn.

The ticket 36,212 and the prize corresponding, which by the way, is printed in similar large black figures, are then handed to a young man sitting in front of the commissioners, who folds the two together and places them in a box arranged in compartments, according to the grade or value. Thus there is a compartment for $200, $400, $800, $1,000, $2,000, 5,000, $10,000, $25,000, $50,000, and so on up to single compartments for the three capital prizes of $100,000, $200,000, and $600,000. While this is being done a clerk seated just behind General Early keeps record of the number as drawn and the corresponding prize, in a printed book adapted just for that purpose. The tickets thus folded—the number and the corresponding prize—are verified next day by Generals Early and Beauregard, with the record kept by the entry clerk, so that no possible mistake may be made in awarding or withholding the prize to the holder of the lucky ticket.

Thus the drawing proceeds—a number from the big wheel, a prize from the small wheel, until twenty are drawn out, when an assistant who keeps tally sings out:

"Roll."

And both wheels are rolled back and forth for some time, the doors of each in the meantime being closed by the two commissioners, who allow no one near these openings except the blindfolded boys who take out the tubes. After sixty tubes have been taken from each wheel the tallykeeper sings out:

"Roll, and change boys."

And immediately the doors are again closed, the wheels several times revolved, thus thoroughly mixing the tubes, and two other little fellows come forward as a relief party, are blindfolded, and the drawing goes on. For some fifteen minutes the prizes announced ranged from $200 to $400, with an occasional $800. It was really straining on the nerves of the anxious ones. Then General Early called out "39,659," which was answered by General Beauregard with "$2,000." Then it varied for a time with the $200 prizes, all seemingly at the very door of the prize wheel. The command "Roll" came two or three times (after every twenty tubes) and "Roll and change boys" for the third time, before General Early called out "36,677," the corresponding prize being $5,000.

During all this time the audience sat immovable, but eagerness, wistfulness, hope was depicted on every countenance, while the prize wheel declined to deliver up any of the little tubes that denoted more than $5,000, with an ever varying $200—$800—$960. Over one hundred and fifty numbers had been drawn from the wheel when General Early called out:

"89,559."

Which was answered by General Beauregard with:

$25,000.

A little buzz of excitement was perceptible through the audience, but all was quiet in an instant, and there was no sound heard except the monotonous calling of numbers and small prizes. It was after a "roll and change boys," that General Early called out:

"69,704."

When General Beauregard immediately arose from his seat, and taking a step towards the footlights, said in a slow, distinct, but very impressive tone: "Six hundred thousand dollars. Then excitement was apparent among the great audience. This was the longed-for moment, and each one eagerly scanned the slip of paper held in hand forsooth, while each one knew that they did or did not hold that magic number, they knew that within a certain limit they might be lucky enough to get an approximation prize of $1,000, for any number within fifty on either side of 69,704 would so entitle them.

Although the other two grand prizes of $200,000 and $100,000 were yet to be drawn, it was easily discernible that the great and overshadowing interest was allayed somewhat. But no change was noticeable in either Generals Early or Beauregard; they sat calm and unmoved amid the suppressed din that for a while permeated the Academy of Music and kept on the even tenor of their way—the one calling out the numbers and the other announcing the prizes.

Ticket 68,744 drew the second capital prize of $200,000, and in consequence there is one happy little woman in Council Bluffs to-night, who, if I mistake not, was a former resident of your city of Omaha. The third capital prize of $100,000 was drawn by ticket 42,085, and the $50,000 fell to ticket 5,896.

After these prizes had been drawn from the wheel nearly all interest was lost, many of the audience leaving. Yet the commissioners and their assistants went on in the same methodical manner as before, and so continued to the end until the last prize tube of the 818 was taken from the wheel and announced. Then came the work of replacing the tickets left in the big wheel back into the bargain, and this operation was closely watched and superintended by the commissioners, General Early and General Beauregard.

Each bag was securely tied by General Early himself, the string wound round with manilla paper bearing the autographs of the two commissioners and then sealed with their seal, just as they were when brought from the company's vaults.

After verifying the record of prizes as kept by the entry clerk with the folded ticket and prize ballot above referred to, the tickets in the bargain are counted anew to make assurance doubly sure, that no single one is missing.

Perhaps ere this reaches you the winners of all the capital prizes, and all above $5,000, will be published in the papers of their several localities, for good news (of this kind) travels fast, and each one is eager to tell his neighbor, but it is a general rule of the company not to publish the names of winning patrons without their permission.

To Dr. M. A. Dauphin, the Honored president of the Louisiana State Lottery Company, your correspondent is under great obligation for the courtesy extended in giving him the privilege of examining in detail the workings of the office, and having it explained so minutely.

And I can say, as has been so often said before, I am thoroughly convinced that there are no more straightforward, honorable gentlemen conducting any business in the world than President Dauphin and the officers of the Louisiana State Lottery Company, and that no lottery drawing that ever existed could be more fairly superintended or conscientiously conducted than this one is by Generals Early and Beauregard.

A word in closing: It will be found, perhaps, upon examination like all other social and economic institutions, whatever indictments lie against the lottery system are traceable, not to the system itself but to its abuses.

P. A. J. R.

A Start In Life.

At Greensboro they pointed out an old darky whom they said had just got married and was going out on a piece of rented land to make a start in life. I followed him out to his cart, to which was hitched an old and faded ox. His bride, a coal black damsel of 18, sat on a bag of corn in the cart and held to the rope lines around the ox's horns. The cart contained, in addition, a skillet, a kettle, ten pounds of side pork and a jug holding two quarts of molasses. There was a tick for a straw bed, a hen's feather pillow and an old blanket. This was the outfit.

"So you have just got married?" I asked.

"Yes, sah—dun jist got married to dat gal."

"How old are you, uncle?"

"Shoo, now, but I reckon Ize about 60."

"And you've got a young wife?"

"Yes, sah—dun got a gal."

"And you are happy?"

"Happy, sah! Why, Ize walkin' right on aigs all de time!"

"And you are now going out to make a start in life?"

"Yes, sah—gwine to start right off. Got de ox, got de cart, got de gal and got two hull weeks' purvishuns, an' if dar's any ole nigger in Norf Caroliny who feels mo' like jumpin' fo' feet high an' yellin' for Canaan dan I does I'll gin two bits to see him."—Detroit Free Press.

The Revenge of Time.

Tapeyard—Who is that stunning girl you raised your hat to?

Ribbonley—Miss Goldie Bullion.

Tapeyard (timidly)—She didn't return your courtesy. Perhaps she doesn't know you.

Ribbonley (bitterly)—No! she does not know me now; but when I am the only young man at Ocean Foam next summer she will not only know me but pine for me in vain.—Lowell Citizen.

EXPAND THE MIND

By seeing as much as you can of the world. But ere you set out either as a tourist, commercial traveler or emigrant—whether you go by rail, steamship or steamboat, provide yourself with Hostetter's stomach Bitters, which the traveling public recognizes as the finest medical safeguard and preventive of sea sickness with which any one journeying by land or water can be provided. It furnishes to the western pioneer adequate protection against malaria, rheumatism, and those disorders of the bowels which miasma tainted water beget. Its sedative effect upon a stomach perturbed by the rocking of a ship is truly magical, and it is a capital appetizer and nerve invigorator. Excellent is it for biliousness and kidney inaction, and it counteracts, in a remarkable degree, the effects of fatigue, physical or mental. After wetting and exposure in inclement weather, it should be used as a preventive.

Nothing is degrading which a high and graceful purpose ennobles.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banns of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburg, Pa.

Truth has never yet proved fatal to any one; there are too many antidotes.

What is sweeter than roses
That bloom in the beauty of June?
Or the stately and fragrant lilies
Whose bells ring a summer tune?
Ah, sweeter the roses blowing
On the cheeks of those we love,
And the lily of health that's glowing
The cheeks' red rose above.
But how soon the lily and the rose wither in the faces of our American women. Why is it? Simply because so many of them are victims of weaknesses, irregularities and functional derangements incidental to the sex. If they would use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription all these beauty and health-destroying ailments might be warded off, and we would hear less about women "growing old before their time."

To regulate the stomach, liver and bowels, Dr. Pierce's Pellets excel. One a dose.

There is not enough religion in the world to admit of the annihilation of religions.

Those complaining of Sore Throat or Hoarseness should use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." The effect is extraordinary, particularly when used by singers and speakers for clearing the voice. Sold only in boxes.

LOVE'S MAGI

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....JUNE 29 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 3. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 29, 1889. WHOLE NO. 974.

INDEPENDENT

TY OFFICIAL PAPER.

LAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid).....$2 00
Six months.....2 00
Three months.....1 50
One month.....0 50
Single copies.....0 05

CHARMS OF THE WEST.

Some Remarkable Attractions Discovered by a Puget Sound Tourist.

Mr. E. W. S. Tingle has returned from a visit to Tacoma and Seattle, where he went to look over the field with a view to starting a daily paper somewhere in that far Western land. Mr. Tingle is very enthusiastic over the country, and thinks that it is a trifle more like the Garden of Eden than any place he has seen of late years. "When you climb over the Rocky Mountains it is like getting over the garden wall," he said, in a burst of enthusiasm. "I am thoroughly convinced that it was on this spot that the Deity smiled His sweetest smile. Flowers bloom perennially in that sunny land, and the murmur of the cowslips as they raise their heads in the balmy air chimes in with singing of the birds to form the most entrancing melodies. The bread-fruit trees grow luxuriantly in Seattle, and I discovered one variety on which grew rye bread with caraway seeds in it, such as is often imported and used on free-lunch counters of our modern civilization. Flamingoes and other tropical birds are common there, and in the stream abound purple mullet and goldfish. I caught some of the latter, I have seen roses there growing on bushes as large as the ink rollers of my late printing press, while the rose leaves are so large and succulent that the citizens fry them and use them for food. Attar of roses is a common beverage, and the entire community is very sweet-scented by reason of this fact. At Tacoma the entire picture is duplicated. Nature has not spared her bounties there. I was shown some samples of wool that grew on the hydraulic rams. I am convinced that a factory for the manufacture of hydraulic rams could do a paying business at wool-growing. Cows are kept for their beef alone, for the ingenious citizens have reduced the cultivation of the milk weed to such a high degree of perfection that they furnish all that is needed in the way of dairy products. Some of those milk weeds produce the richest kind of cream, and as the warm breezes sway them to and fro, this cream soon turns to butter by the gentle undulation. I think a newspaper could be made to bring in a rich return to its owner. The county printing there is very fat, for it seems to keep pace with the other native products. Carrier pigeons are trained to visit merchants and solicit subscriptions and display advertisements, and they do this with an intelligence that is remarkable. The printing press could be run by water power, and under that clear sky and healthy atmosphere I am convinced that the office boy would soon acquire the habit of writing leading editorials and con-[illegible]ensed paragraphs. So the running [illegible]es are bound to be light. It is [illegible]ut I am too conservative in [illegible] I can not help saving

THE SHOSHONE CANAL.

A Movement to Conquer a Big Desert in Idaho Territory.

"In the great valley of the Snake river, from a few miles beyond Boise to Shoshone and beyond," said Charles C. McPherson, "are from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 acres of arable land that will, if things end as they now indicate, be shortly transformed into a garden."

Mr. McPherson is an old and wealthy resident of Boise, the capital city of Idaho.

"This stupendous acreage," he continued, "is at present a desert. But there are a hundred times as much water in the Snake river as would irrigate it. So the Legislature, in connection with the Oregon Short Line, is making a great move to get some of this water out on it. What is proposed is a great canal, known as the Shoshone canal, which will convey water on this at present arid empire and convert it into from 18,750 to 25,000 farms of 160 acres each.

"Now each of these farms would have at least five persons on it, which would make a population of about 100,000 persons, and probably as many as 125,000, with about 25,000 dwellings. In place of Boise having 5,000 people or less at the present time she would jump to 30,000 or 40,000.

"So stockmen, Idaho legislators, and the Oregon Short Line have set to work to get $2,000,000 from the National Government to run this canal. The Government owns the land, but it is worth nothing without the water. Private parties have not got the money to do the work with, and if they had the Government owns the land anyhow, so it could not be undertaken, at least not just now.

"In order to formulate a plan on which to work the legislative committee appointed to look it up and the Shoshone representative of the Oregon Short line, have invited the whole Legislature to go over to Salt Lake and see what has been done there and gain statistics about it. The whole Wasatch valley is to be viewed and the most trustworthy data gained. The whole country thereabout has been made to 'blossom as a rose,' solely by the aid of a comparatively small amount of water from the Jordan river. Originally the land was covered with greasewood and sagebrush. It was uneven and as ugly and forbidding as the Sahara ever was.

"Almost every body knows at least a little about how it has been transforming and that the valley is dotted with towns, with 40,000 persons at Salt Lake, 12,000 at Ogden, and 1,000 to 6,000 in each of twenty others.

"Well, the Shoshone or Snake country is a bigger one by far, with just as good and much smoother land. So this is why all Idaho is now on the watch about the canal project. There is plenty of grass for stock in the mountains around during the summer, but in the winter there is none, and as there is no hay the only thing is to water the valley and raise alfalfa, [illegible]er, timothy, and redtop. But this, [illegible] is the smallest of reasons. [illegible] is.

[illegible]n is, of course, to [illegible] it be peopled [illegible] are ready [illegible]ove-

CANNED DELICACIES.

The Export of Northern Shell-Fish and Salmon to Tropical Countries.

Progress in manufacturing has greatly increased the physical comfort of the tropical resident. No longer is he dependent for subsistence on the flesh, fish or fowl of the southern land. Though far on the other side of the equator, northern products, either animal or vegetable, are within his reach; at the worst, with a slightly "tinny" flavor. There is a far greater quantity of fish sent to the tropics than any other class of canned goods. Within the past year very nearly half a million dollars' worth has been exported to tropical lands, and this does not take into consideration those goods which were carried to Africa, etc., via England. Salmon is the popular variety; the consumption of other fish is small in proportion. It is caught in the Columbia river, and in other streams of British Columbia and Washington Territory, and canned and labeled on the spot. By far the greater part is carried to New York by rail, but good-sized shipments go across the Pacific to Australia and Southern Asia, and British vessels take it around the Horn to England, whence a portion finds its way to Africa.

Lobsters are dear to the man in the South and reach him by way of New York, after being caught on the coasts of New Brunswich, Nova Scotia and the adjacent provinces. The catch diminishing recently, the export has of late fallen off. Shrimps, another export delicacy, are caught in the Gulf of Mexico, largely on the coast of Mississippi. Instead of being shipped directly from New Orleans to South America or the West Indies, they are sent via New York, whence they are dispatched southward. Oysters, which are sent down in goodly numbers, are packed and labeled in Baltimore, but they are seldom sent from there, as a general rule passing through New York.

Thus New York becomes, from its great shipping facilities, the port of distribution and out-sending for the tropical export trade. Nowhere else is tonnage available, nor do lines of vessels run; nowhere else is there a surety of transportation. The export market is widening rapidly, and especially in the canned and preserved goods line, as is shown by the constant in-pouring and success of new brands upon the market. Besides fish there is a growing demand for canned fruits and vegetables, as peaches, pears, cherries, tomatoes (in a marked degree), corn and peas. This special branch, as well as that of condensed milk, of which large tropical shipments are being made, is yet in its infancy, but it shows promise of great expansion.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

WHAT CHINAMEN EAT.

Gastronomical Delicacies to Be Found in Shops and Restaurants.

Canton is of about the size of Paris or New York, and it is one of the best of places to study Chinese gastronomy. The restaurants here have birds'-nest soup at $5 a plate, and I bought a rat which was salted, pressed and dried, [illegible]sterday, for 5 cents. I doubt not [illegible] price was five times too high, for [illegible] the smallest which hung in [illegible] It lies before me as [illegible] foot from nose [illegible] bit like a [illegible]en

EMPEROR WILLIAM.

A Hot-Headed Young Man Changed to a Moralist and Disciplinarian.

The industry and mental activity of Emperor William are regarded by some as abnormal. Probably no one would entertain such an impression were it not for the hereditary taint of insanity which has showed itself at times in the family. But if this idea can be put aside he presents by this time a promising claim to be added to the list of historical characters of whom Henry V. of England stands as a type.

The sense of responsibility has changed the Emperor from a hot-headed young man of loose habits to not only a cautious, hard-working monarch, but apparently to a stern moralist, as those who were once his Falstaff and his Poins have had occasion to find out. There is reason to say of him as Carlyle said of his predecessor, the great Frederick: "Favor, friendly intimacy, it is visible from the first, avails nothing with this young King; beyond and before all things he will have his work done, and looks out exclusively for the men ablest to do it." Events may change this view, but so far it holds good.

The Emperor is a strict disciplinarian everywhere, even subjecting his own children to a course of training so rigid as to call for a protest from the tender-hearted. His early ride, not long ago, to surprise a military post, indicates the kind of surveillance he exercises over the army. Recognizing the importance of diplomacy at the present juncture of European affairs, his first care is to establish personal acquaintanceship in foreign courts and at the Vatican. In the delicate international relations which prevail he has, contrary to expectations, avoided mistakes.

There are harsh and unpleasant, perhaps unfilial, sides to his character, but it must be conceded that the young man has compeled, by his careful attention to business and freedom from rashness, a reversal of the judgment formerly passed on him and has excited a respectful interest in his career.—N. Y. World.

CHINESE CHRISTENING.

A Peculiar Religious Ceremony Followed by a Sumptuous Dinner.

On a bed, spread with a spotless covering of white, lay the child, the tiniest, most fragile bit of a bundle of gaudy silk and olive-tinted cheeks. About his neck hung a string of gold beads, there was a band of gold about his diminutive head, gold bracelets encircled his small wrists, while two ivory rings with gold fastenings were clasped around his ankles, beneath which were beautifully embroidered shoes, which seemed to be no larger than a man's thumb. The guests walked in silence before the bed, the young heir blinking up at them with all the wisdom of Confucius in his face. When the last couple had filed past the bed they gathered about the center of the room and Win So, the officiating priest, picked up the bundle of silk and carried it to a place before the guests. The mother stepped forth and took the bundle in her arms, while all those present bowed low. As yet no word had been spoken by any one. Then the priest bowed almost to the ground three times, his face getting longer [illegible]d longer until he let out a string of [illegible] words, first to the father and [illegible]ther. This was to ask [illegible]ished their heir to [illegible] Both of them [illegible] again

PROTESTANT NUNS.

Lutheran and Episcopalian, Methodist and Presbyterian Sisterhoods.

A Protestant sisterhood is a nineteenth century development, such as the reformers of three centuries ago could never have thought possible. Even a century ago no such idea would have been tolerated. But to-day there are in the ranks of Protestantism over twelve thousand black-stoled, consecrated nuns. The average American has become familiarized with the Episcopalian sisterhoods, and generally regard them as the logical outcome of High Church Anglicanism. He is, however, somewhat surprised to learn that the first Protestant nuns were German, not English, and instead of being reared in an atmosphere of Anglicanism, were the credal descendants of Luther and Zwingli, who looked upon a nun's garb as the livery of the devil. It is equally surprising to learn that the movement has spread beyond the liturgical Episcopalians and Lutherans, and that now the disciples of Calvin and Wesley are bent upon establishing similar orders.

In 1833 a young German pastor, Theodore Fliedner, undertook the work of reviving the mediæval Order of Deaconesses, of which Phebe of Cenchrea was the prototype, and induced a young German girl, Gertrude Reichard, to become the first modern deaconess. A large house was opened at Kaisersworth as the mother house of the order, and, in spite of opposition from Romist and Protestant alike, the movement expanded until soon there were deaconess houses in Strasburg, Dresden, Breslau, Stettin and many another European cities. Beyroot, Smyrna, Jerusalem and Constantinople were provided with German deaconesses, and a little colony of seven was planted in Pittsburgh. All this was due to the zealous labor of Pastor Fleidner. At the time of his death, in 1864, there were over 1,600 deaconesses engaged in more than 400 different fields of labor. The past thirty-five years has beheld a still greater increase, and now 7,200 Lutheran deaconesses are at work in 1,500 different localities.

There are about forty German deaconesses prosecuting their labor of love in this country, nearly all of whom are in Philadelphia at the Mary J. Drexel Home. A home is to be opened in Omaha, Neb., and several probationers are now undergoing a course of instruction here preparatory to conducting that work. The term of probation varies from two to five years, and at the end of that time the novice dons the uniform of the order and is consecrated a deaconess.

The Episcopal sisterhoods, which were started in England about 1848, were direct imitations of the Lutheran orders, yet differ from them in several important particulars. The Anglican who enters upon a religious life must take it up for all time. Her farewell to the world is irrevocable, and she may never marry. A Lutheran deaconess, on the other hand, may leave the home whenever she deems best. A number of the German sisters have given up their life of ministration for marriageable causes, but rarely from any other reason.

Another distinction is in the fact that the Lutheran sisters are all members of one order, while there are sixteen orders of Episcopal nuns in this country, and many others in England that have no branches here. The Sisterhood of St. Mary and All Saints, at Baltimore, is composed entirely of colored women; and the Order of St. Monica, at Fond du Lac, Wis., is a religious sisterhood of widows. The sisters of the Episcopal Church are never known as deaconesses, and their [illegible] is largely of an ecclesiastical [illegible]et in their functions of nurs- [illegible]d teaching they nearly [illegible]s of the Lutheran

SANITARY MAXIMS.

Abstract of a Leaflet Issued by the National Health Society of London.

It is the duty of every householder to ascertain for himself whether his own house be free or not from well-known dangers to health.

This duty, imperative at all times, is of surpassing urgency in a house where a woman is about to become a mother, or a surgical operation is about to be performed.

As a rule, the soundness of the sanitary arrangements of a house is taken for granted, and never questioned until "drain-begotten illness has broken out. In other words, we employ Illness and Death as our drain detectives.

Whenever gas from sewers or the emanation from a leaking drain, a cesspool, or a fouled well make their way into a house the inmates are in imminent danger of an outbreak of typhoid fever, diphtheria, or other febrile ailments classed together under the term "zymotic," not to speak of minor illness and depressed vitality, the connection of which with sewer gas is now fully established. Sewer gas enters a house most rapidly at night, when outer doors and windows are shut, and is then perhaps most potent in contaminating the meat, the milk, and the drinking water, and in poisoning the inmates.

A house in which children and servants are often ailing with sore throat, headache or diarrhea is probably wrong in its drainage.

Scamped drain work is one of the most dangerous of the sanitary flaws of new buildings; it is also one of the most common and one of the most difficult to detect, and is rarely found out except by the illness it produces.

If you are about to buy or to rent a house, be it new or be it old, take care before you complete your bargain to ascertain the soundness of the sanitary arrangements with no less care and anxiety than you would exercise in testing the soundness of a horse before you purchase it.

If you are building a house or can achieve it in an old one, let no drain be under any part of your house.

If there is a smell of drains in your house or a damp place in a wall near which a waste-pipe or a soil-pipe runs, or a damp place in the cellar or kitchen floor near a drain or a tank, let no time be lost in laying bare the pipes or drains until the cause be detected.

If a rat appears through the floor of your kitchen or cellar and a strong current of air blows from the rat-hole when chimneys are acting and the windows and doors of the house are shut, feel sure that something is wrong with the drain.

If you are tenants, and your landlord refuses to remedy the evil, do it at your own cost rather than allow your family to be ill.

A landlord may reasonably look for interest on the money which he spends for the benefit of his tenant; but he is committing little short of manslaughter, if by refusing to rectify in his property, he saves his own pocket at the expense of the health and lives of his tenants.

CHINESE LADIES' FEET.

A Sight Well Calculated to Disgust Intelligent Foreigners.

The small feet of Chinese women is one of the first sights in China that sickens the foreigner. In Tientsin and North China all of the Chinese women compress their feet, and they hobble about the streets with canes, resting their heavy forms on the stump of the natural foot. There is a woman here in Canton whose foot is so small that the part which goes into the shoe is not bigger around than a trade dollar, and the compressed foot is a horrible deformity. I had one photographed and the sight fills me with disgust. The leg from the knee to the foot is like a pipe stem. The beauty of the ballet girl's calf is missing and the skin seems to be wrapped around the shin. It is crackled and rough and the foot [illegible]self seems to be broken in two i[illegible] [illegible]ise instep was dou[illegible] [illegible]foun[illegible]

An Original Creation.

Stage Manager—Mr. De Howler, did you ever see or hear of an Italian count talking and acting the way you do?

Young Actor (proudly)—I should say not, sir. I pride myself upon the fact that the manner in which I perform this part is an original creation, sir—an original creation.—Detroit Free Press.

The Value of a Reputation.

"Why do yo[illegible] [illegible]iss Ethel?"
"Sister Hele[illegible] [illegible] Tom Barry."
"The worthle[illegible]
der you are sad[illegible]
"Oh, it is no[illegible] him myself."[illegible]

Two[illegible]

"No, William [illegible]
long glance to no[illegible]
"I cannot be your[illegible] sometimes drink [illegible] not to marry a [illegible] vices."
"All right, Ma[illegible]
"And now will [illegible]
sister Lulu to co[illegible]
She said, when sh[illegible] night, that she wou[illegible] refused."—Philadelph[illegible]

Blood Wil[illegible]

Mrs. Hyde Parkins (cl[illegible] domestic difficulty)—An[illegible] had to advertise at once [illegible] got forty answers, and t[illegible] seemed any good forgot t[illegible]
(Archly) Irish, of course[illegible]
Capt. O'Paddy (with [illegible] the honor of his "count[illegible] didn't ye write and ask [illegible]

A Very Intrica[illegible]

Aspiring Author—I h[illegible] which I would like to su[illegible]
Manager—Has it a goo[illegible]
A. A.—Good plot! I [illegible]
(waxing confidential), the[illegible] that the audience who sees [illegible] to come every night for a [illegible] exactly how things turn ou[illegible]

He Had Watched [illegible]

Bobby (whose father is [illegible] pa, what I got for my bi[illegible] little grocery store.
His Father (indulgently) [illegible]
very nice.
Bobby—Ain't it, though! [illegible] coffee, and sugar, and spice [illegible] though, pa, there ain't no [illegible]
Harper's Bazar.

A Tender Chor[illegible]

Young Father—I am su[illegible] should ask your grandma[illegible] of pie, Dick. You are allow[illegible] at home, and you always a[illegible]
Little Dick—Grandma's [illegible]
mamma's.
Young Father (with em[illegible] help yourself.—Philadelph[illegible]

A Dull Cl[illegible]

First Little Girl (from Ne[illegible]
Philadelphia is an awfully dull pl[illegible]
Second Little Girl (Philadelphia[illegible]
Dull?
"Yes. I've been here almost a we[illegible] haven't seen anybody killed yet—not ev[illegible] street pavement explosion."—Philadelp[illegible] Record.

How He Was Raised.

"Don't you know that it's very impoli[illegible] puff and blow that way?" said a real e[illegible] man to a gentleman who had just wal[illegible] eight flights of stairs to his office.
"Can't help it, sir," replied the [illegible] tween puffs; "it's the way I was b[illegible]
—Yonkers Statesman.

A Horrible Disco[illegible]

Professor (roused [illegible] dead of night) [illegible]

INYO INDEPENDENT

County Ou[illegible]

Mulholland & [illegible]

EDITORS & PROPRIETORS

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY, JUNE 29.....1889

Mr. P. H. Mack has now an interest in the INYO INDEPENDENT and will henceforth take a part in the management of the paper. As always, since the paper was started, it will continue to promote the interests of Inyo county and of all the inhabitants thereof.

An English Company proposes to establish great iron works at some point on San Francisco Bay. Now if we don't want the iron works we can stop their building by abolishing the tariff on steel and iron and then the works will be built in England. We could get rid of nearly all our manufactures the same way. Manufactures spoil a country for gentlemen; wherever they are built towns grow up, the country is thickly settled and the streams are used for commerce and power; all this [illegible] wild animals and game [illegible] leaving few attractions for [illegible] and in their stead we [illegible] of greasy me[illegible] sed in homely [illegible]ly mansion of [illegible]e hundreds of [illegible] by plain peo[illegible] elegance and [illegible] gentlemen re[illegible] ufactures should [illegible] those we have [illegible]hing ponds own[illegible] can wipe out [illegible] and destroy un[illegible]rks and other man[illegible]oss of life and prop[illegible]n this way of get[illegible]ufactures and working [illegible]hen there is abundant [illegible]wning is an easy death, [illegible]s who have to work are [illegible]n living, so that drown[illegible] to them. Then, too, [illegible]eople believed in God, [illegible]ality of their souls. [illegible]reater kindness could be [illegible] beings than to remove [illegible]e toils and cares and sor[illegible]s world to the rest and [illegible]oys of eternal life. Let [illegible]ument be forgotten and [illegible] monument greater than [illegible] of Cheops to the men who [illegible]ch blessings upon the peo[illegible]nstown.

[illegible]th annual issue of the illus[illegible]tion of the Los Angeles Her[illegible]. This paper is published [illegible]s Angeles Herald; it is val[illegible]n immense amount of im[illegible]rmation of all kinds about [illegible]s city and county. The [illegible] carefully collected and all [illegible]ts in regard to the pro[illegible]lands are perfectly relia[illegible] one who will carefully study [illegible]e paper can get a better under[illegible]ding of all about Los Angeles than [illegible]uld be had by a visit of two or three [illegible] weeks to the city and county. The price of the paper is fifteen cents, and [illegible] copies can be had by addressing the "Herald," Los Angeles.

General Butler is repeating his [illegible]lous charges against Admiral [illegible]. If these slanders must be [illegible]nd no great public servant can [illegible]ader—it is best that they [illegible] while there are yet [illegible] have

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS

—AND TO—

Cleanse the System Effectually,

—SO THAT—

PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

Ores!

Ores!

GOLD

SILVER

LEAD

ORES WORKED

Small lots received and worked as carefully as large lots.

The best machinery for concentrating sulphurets is in use and all the metal of any kind of ore is secured.

Ores that will not bear transportation from Owens Valley can be worked at a good profit at home.

Ores sampled, bought and paid for on delivery.

Address,

Lessee Maxim Mill,

Independence

Our New Autograph

ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album.—FLEMING BROS., PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our useful pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to—Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,

Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,

PROVISIONS

Tobacco, Cigars,

WINES AND LIQUORS

FLOUR & GRAIN

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

☞Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.

Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
947617

Sulphur & Borax Baths

AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS

SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.

And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing

When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HA[illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,

CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Plans, Specifications

And Estimates of all kinds of buildings

Furnished.

All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.

JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo

Freighting Company.

REGULAR LINE

Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.

WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,

District Attorney,

INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,

Sheriff and

Tax Collector,

INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,

COUNTY CLERK,

—AND—

Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,

INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,

C. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.

Physician & Surgeon

LONE PINE, CAL.

OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING

All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 12th
"	February 9th
"	March 16th
"	April 13th
"	May 11th
"	June 8th
"	July 12th
"	August 10th
"	September 7th
"	October 5th
"	November 2nd
"	December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Independence Hotel.

Independence Cal

H. LEVY, Proprietor.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL

DINING ROOM,

APARTMENTS,

—AND—

—THE BAR—

Will be found acceptable to all patrons.

Daily Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S

CHEMICAL FLUID

NON-POISONOUS

SHEEP DIP.

One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip.

(POISONOUS)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO

Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,

No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to

JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK

& Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.

IMPORTERS AND

WHOLESALE

GROCERS,

LOS ANGELES,

CAL.

S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK

Livery, Feed & Sale Stable.

ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.

Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROC[illegible]

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, May 19th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House	11 00 a. m		5 40 p. m.
Dayton	11 30 a. m.		5 10 p. m.
Wabuska	1 25 a. m		3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 05 p. m.		11 25 a. m.
Luning	6 25 p. m.		10 05 a. m.
Sodа Springs	7 35 p. m.		9 05 a. m.
Belleville	8 45 p. m.		7 45 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 9 20 p. m		Lv. 7 15 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—		No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8 10 a. m		5 25 p. m.
Benton	11 40 a. m		1 35 p. m
Bishop Creek	1 50 p. m.		11 00 a. m.
Alvord	2 55 p. m.		10 00 a. m.
Independence	4 20 p. m.		8 30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5 00 p. m.		7 40 a. m
Keeler	Ar 5 45 p. m.		Lv. 7 00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of a First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜

☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad ☜

Send orders to

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,

Attorney-at-Law,

Independence, Cal.

Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.

FORBES & TOB[illegible]

INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JUNE 29.....1889

BORN.

PIPER—At Bishop, June 15, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Piper, a daughter.

MARRIED.

CONKLIN—YANEY—At Bishop June 26th 1889, by Rev. Andrew Clark, Norman E. Conklin to Miss Elma K Yaney.

DIED.

DRAKE—At Bishop, June 23d, 1889 Alice Drake, aged 18 years and 18 days.

Quijotoa, Arizona, was destroyed by fire June 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fiehman were up from Keeler some days this week.

Mr. W. H. Russell of Benton has been in town several days this week looking after mining interests.

The Directors of the 18th District Agricultural Association will meet at Independence today — Saturday.

All kinds of farm produce will be taken in payment for wo k at the blacksmith shop of J. W. Murphy.

Ad. Smith got in on Wednesay with a big load of freight from M jave. A good deal of the load was for Independence.

The school at Independence was closed several days this week. The teach r, Miss K hler, was sick; she is much better.

Two car loads of ore were shipped from the E mma mine at Benton a few days ago that was worth over three hundred dollars per ton.

Mr James C. McDonald, of San Pedro, Los Angeles County, arrived at Independence last M nday. He came to look for land for himself and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perhman got back to Independence on Wednesday from a visit to Germany. They were gone over a year and enjoyed their trip very much.

A bad fire broke out at Johnstown on Monday and destroyed many of the buildings that the flood had not ruined. There [illegible]ears to be no end to the troubles of that fearfully stricken place.

Last Sunday Miss Alice Drake died at the home of her parents at Bishop. She had been ailing a little or about a year past but the news of her death was a painful surprise to many friends.

Greenly & Broder are making a shipment of ore from their mine in Deep Spring Valley. The ore is very rich, running up into thousands of dollars per ton. The vein is small, but the mine is looking as well as at any former time.

This is the year of great calamities. The city of Lachan, in China, was recently visited by a terrible fire and it is reported that twelve thousand persons perished in the flames and by falling walls.

Alonzo McKellip has been granted a pension of twenty-four dollars per month and about eight hundred dollars back pension. He was severely injured in service during the war and deserves his pension.

The Los Angeles Tribune has passed viciously through a very bitter persecution [illegible] now stronger than ever. The paper [illegible] been true to the interests of the [illegible] people sustained it.

[illegible] and Mr. P J. Dunn, [illegible]

Irrigation of Arid Lands.

It is evident that the Committee on Irrigation and Arid Lands means to make a thorough investigation on the subject. The following letter is self explanatory.

U. S. SENATE, WASHINGTON, June 15, 1889.

ED. INDEPENDENT: Sir:—As you are aware, the United States Senate has appointed a special committee on Irrigation and the Reclamation of Arid Lands, and charged it with an inquiry into those subjects. Said Committee will meet at St. Paul August 1st next, and on that date will commedce its tour of field investigation. It will be accompanied by Director Powell, of the United States Geological Survey, and by an Engineer Expert assigned to its service.

The Committee desires the active co-operation of the newspapers published within the dry area; that is, west of the 100th meridian of west longitude, in the work of arousing public attention to the importance of this great subject. It especially asks for their aid in the gathering of data and the collection of facts. It is unnecessary to recapitulate to you what those facts are, but their collection will be a matter of essential service in laying the foundations of intelligent opinions for legislative and other action in the future. Each district and section should endeavor to secure as full presentation of its own conditions as may be practicable.

It will prove of value to the Committee's work if copies of any publication you may make are sent to the Committee.

Feeling sure that you comprehend the importance of this investigation, and asking, therefore your active aid in such ways as your judgment determines, the Committee leaves the matter with you. Communications, papers, reports, maps, etc., may be addressed, U. S. Committee on Irrigation (Care U. S. Geological Survey), Washington, D. C. Letters of inquiry may be directed to Richard J. Hinton, Irrigation Engineer, (Care Director U. S. Geological Survey), Washington, D. C.

The Special Committee consists of the following Senators: Hon. Wm. M. Stewart, Chairman, Carson, Nev. Hon P. B. Plumb, Emporia, Kansas; Hon. Wm. B. Allison, Dubuque, Iowa; Hon. Frank Hiscock, Syracuse, N. Y.; Hon. J. K. Jones, Washington, Ark; Hon. J. H. Reagan, Palestine, Texas; Hon. A. P. Gorman, Laurel, Maryland

A Death Valley Mystery.

Not long since a prospector was explorin the Death Valley country. He camped in the mountains at a spring and stayed at the same place for some weeks. His pack mules strayed among the mountains and when he went in search of them they were found near a spring where there was good grass. The miner went to the spring to get water and near by saw part of an ore sack sticking out of the ground. He removed some of the dirt and found that the sack was full of ore; and a little further search brought to light four other sacks of ore. All the sacks were very rotten and had evidently been in the ground a long time. The miner caught his mules, went back to his camp for sacks and then returned and got the ore. He carried it out to where it could be milled and from the five small sacks, each containing about [illegible] pounds of ore, he realized thirteen hundred dollars. Not long after finding the ore the miner met an Indian who is well known in that region and who knew that this man had found the ore. The miner asked the Indian what had become of the men who had hidden the ore, and the Indian replied "Mebbo so Indian heap kill 'um." There is good reason to believe that this is a fact. Several years ago some prospectors went into that country and disappeared. It is believed that they found a rich ore body and had taken out some ore when Indians attacked them and they buried these ore sacks and attempted to escape, but were killed somewhere in the Death Valley mountains. Men are now searching for the ledge where this ore was taken from. In a small canyon on the east side of Death Valley is a small spring; prospectors went there for water and a short distance above the spring found croppings that are very rich in gold. There are slight traces that a little work had been done there at some [illegible] time. The vein is being developed [illegible] the men have quit during [illegible] prevails there at [illegible]

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.
THURSDAY, June 20th.

Broder et. al. vs. Conklin et. al.—Filed acceptance of service of amended answer.

A cyclone wiped out the town of Lone Star in Missouri, last Saturday. Between floods and cyclones people east of the Rocky Mountains hold life and property by very uncertasn tenures.

At last reports Mrs. Hayes, wife of the ex-President, was reported to be dying. No better woman than Mrs. Hayes ever occupied the White House, nor of whom Americans have better reason to be proud.

Last April Mrs. Mattie Penman shot and killed a man named Sullivan, alleging that he had made an as-sault upon her little girl, aged four years. Mrs. Penman was tried for murder; last Sunday morning the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

A recent issue of the Los Angeles Herald gives a long list of new buildings now in course of erection in the City. Los Angeles is certain to become a large city, when the Salt Lake railroad shall be completed great manufacturing interests will grow up and the growth of Los Angeles will then far exceed anything done in its past history.

The total amount of mortgages now recorded in Idyo County foots up about $120,000. This is an increase over last year of about 40 per cent. The amount recorded is about 7½ per cent. of the assessed valuation of the county. Doubtless there are other counties in the State where the value of mortgages compared with assessed valuation would make a worse showing than this.

Pennsylvania has a high license law. The temperance people wanted total prohibition. The question was submitted to a general election, and a majority of 170,000 was given against prohibition. High license can be enforced and it is a powerful help to the cause of temperance. Prohibition has been tried in other States and the res. It has not been satisfactory. Practical good is better than theoretical moonshine.

The law makers of Missouri have left the thirsty no excuse for entering a saloon but the bare feet of wanting a drink. The legislature has passed a bill and the Governor has signed it, which prohibits music, cards, dice, billiard-tables, pool-tables, bowling-alleys, and boxing-gloves in saloons. A forfeiture of license and closing up of the place is the penalty for violation of the law.

A few months ago the Editor of this paper visited the warehouse of S. W. Luitwieler in Los Angeles. Not less than two hundred diff rent varieties of wagons and carriages were shown him. Every kind of conveyance from the lightest form of sulky, to the most elegant carriage were there. All kinds of farm machinery, including windmills and pumps, were shown. Mr. Luitwieler can compete with any other house in the State in his line of business and will give the best of inducements for the trade of Owens Valley. See his advertisement.

The Mining and Mining Journal published in New York [illegible] that a company has been organized in London [illegible] a capital of fifty thousand pounds — equal to $250,000 — for the purpose of acquiring a group of mines and a mill site, situated in Beveridge mining district Inyo County California, together with mining rights, machinery and effects. The number of Directors shall not be less than three nor more than five. Every miner in Inyo County knows that the Keynot only needs opening up to be a very valuable mine. At all times and with the most inefficient system of mining rich gold ore is found there.

Daring the past year there has been a large increase in the price of sugar. This is a loss to every family in the United States, except the sugar manufacturers. A trust was formed to control the sugar business; and the members of the trust have divided among themselves fourteen million dollars of profits made during the year. This enormous sum is a robbery effected without exposing the robbers to any risk of punishment for the crime. Vast wealth con[illegible] Legislatures, and Courts are not above [illegible]nce. The rights and interests of [illegible] of the people invariably go [illegible] of combined capital.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MA HINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods,
Groceries,
Clothing,
Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter,
Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

[illegible]EALERS IN—

[illegible]MAS & HILL,
DEALERS IN
[illegible]RAL MERCHANDISE
[illegible]C PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
[illegible]y on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods [illegible] as stable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

THE LARGEST STOCK

Of Farm Machinery, Wagons, Buggies & Carriages in Southern

CALIFORNIA.

MOLINE STEEL PLOWS,
WHITELY SOLID STEEL MOWERS,
OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS,
CHAMPION STEEL FRAME MOWERS,
FLYING DUTCHMAN AND CASADAY SULKY PLOWS,
THOMAS AND ROYAL SULKY RAKES,
HOGUE ORCHARD CULTIVATOR,
STICKLE STEEL HEADERS,
LUITWIELER VINEYARD CULTIVATOR,
J. I. CASE THRESHERS AND ENGINES,
PLANET JR. HORSE HOES,
STUDEBAKER FARM AND SPRING WAGONS,
DRILLS, SEEDERS AND GRINDERS,
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES AND BUCKBOARDS,
DISC HARROWS, SCALES, BALING WIRE,
BALE TIES, BARBED WIRE, WIRE MESH FENCING.

WRITE FOR CIRCULARS AND PRICES.

S. W. LUITWIELER,
NO. 100 LOS ANGELES ST. Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2 25 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[ENDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. 0-4

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL
Bishop Creek.

GENERAL MERCHAND

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries & canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH S ORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 115
SMITH'S STORE
IS
The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,

BIG PINE.

—DEALERS IN—

ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sep1-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

HONESTY AND INTELLIGENCE.

It pays to be honest, you say.

Granted.

Yet how many are dishonest through ignorance, expediency, or intentionally. One can be dishonest and yet say nothing.

A clerk who lets a customer buy a d[illegible] piece of goods, a witness who holds back the truth, which would clear a prisoner, a medical practitioner who takes his patient's money when he knows he is doing him no good,—all are culpably dishonest.

Speaking of the dishonesty of medical men reminds us that only the past week there has come under our personal observation a form of dishonesty which is almost too mean for narration.

It is generally known that doctors bind themselves by codes, resolutions and oaths not to use any advertised medicines. Now, there is a medicine on the market which, for the past ten years, has accomplished a marvelous amount of good in the cure of Kidney and Liver diseases, and diseases arising from the derangement of these great organs,—we refer to Warner's Safe Cure. So widespread are the merits of this medicine that the majority of the doctors of this country know from actual evidence that it will cure Advanced Kidney Disease, which is but another name for Bright's Disease.

The medical profession have put themselves on record as admitting that there is no cure for this terrible malady, yet there are physicians base enough and dishonest enough to procure Warner's Safe Cure in a surreptitious manner, put the same into plain, f[illegible]-ounce vials, and charge their patients $2.00 per vial, when a sixteen-ounce bottle of the remedy, in its original package, can be bought at any drug store in the world for $1 25.

Perhaps the doctor argues that the cure of the patient justifies his dishonesty, yet he will boldly stand up at the next county medical meeting and denounce Warner's Safe Cure as a patent medicine, and one which he cannot and will not use.

The fact is that the people are waking up to the truth that the medical profession is far from honest, and that it does not possess a monopoly of wisdom in the curing of disease, doctoring the many symptoms of kidney disease, instead of striking at the seat of disease—the kidneys themselves—allowing patients to die rather than use a remedy known to be a specific, simply because it has been advertised, and when patients are dead from Advanced Kidney Disease, still practicing deception by giving the cause of death in their certificate as pneumonia, dropsy, heart disease, or some other accompanying effect of Bright's Disease.

All this is prima facie evidence of incompetency, bigotry and dishonesty.

We speak but the truth when we say that Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co. have done a most philanthropic work for the past ten years in educating the people up to the knowledge they now enjoy, especially of maladies growing out of diseases of the Kidneys and Liver, and are deserving of all praise for their honesty and straightforwardness in exposing shams and dishonesty of all kinds.

An Angel of Mercy.

A little girl was graciously permitted, one bright Sunday, to go with her mamma to hear papa preach. It was a time of great rejoicing and responsibility, and the little face was all alight with happy anticipation. Now it chanced that on this special occasion papa's sermon was on the "warning" order, and his earnest voice rang out solemnly in the Sunday quiet. After a moment of breathless surprise and horror, the little listener's soul was wrought upon with a great pity for the poor mortals upon whom so much wrath was descending. She rose excitedly to her feet, and, her wide, reproachful eyes just peeping over the back of the seat, called out, in sweet chiding tones: "What for is you scolding all the people so, papa."—Harper's Young People.

—A new rival to coffee is "Mussaenda," or wild orange, a plant producing purple fruit. About 24,000 acres of this plant are now being cultivated in the island of Reunion.

—Some one has discovered that women never reckon time by calendar years, but always say so many years ago instead of in the year 1888, or whatever year may be meant.

FOUR HAPPY PEOPLE.

Fortune Favors a Quartette of Chicagoans.

Learning that several Chicago people, [illegible]sides those reported last week, had [illegible]n prizes in the March 12th drawing [illegible]isiana State Lottery Company, [illegible]entative was sent to as[illegible] had

ESSAY BY A KING.

A Pretty Bit of Sentiment by the King of Norway and Sweden.

One autumn morning, as the sun had just lifted its golden orb above the horizon, without, however, its rays having as yet warmed the cold air, I beheld standing by the roadside some birch trees, already covered with yellow leaves. Their day was drawing to a close, their life of bloom, though brief, had been a lovely one; a life passed in the glorious nature of the North.

When the rays of the vernal sun had melted snow and ice, when unchained rivulets prattled pleasantly, and the lark struck its notes in the azure sky, tender buds had come forth from the cold branches and twigs, the buds became leaves; they throve in the balmy spring breeze. The young trees clad themselves in the green color of hope. So long as summer, the golden-tressed goddess, ruled in the North, they enjoyed their own blooming loveliness. In innocence and simplicity they caressed each other, and offered a delicious shade to the wanderer fatigued by the fierce sun. Now, when the summer—the too brief one in the North—has fled, behold! with what humility they bear their fate and shed the treasures of their crown. In their decadence, in their misfortune, they stand yonder as if none the less admiring the silent morning hour. They seem as if speaking to the traveler, who hastens by to his daily calling after his Sunday rest. And they awaken in him wonder, and call forth thoughts that are less of this world.

Brother! Man has also his spring, his summer and his autumn. Spring is his youth, summer his manhood and autumn his old age. But in the heyday of man's springtide there may be autumn; in his autumntide a gleam of dawning spring. Sorrow may change morn into eve, spring into autumn. The tree of life struck by the storm raises itself again with difficulty, or requires, at all events, time to do so. It might, indeed, be an impossibility but for Samaritans ready to give a helping hand. Even the solitary desert palm may be shaken by the sirocco till it falls, be it ever so tall and strong.

But in the depth of autumn there may, God be praised! also be spring. Behold the charming birch tree in the grove yonder! They are going to rest through the long winter night, contented with their summer life, for they hope that when winter has exhausted its fury, a still more balmy, and a still more glorious sun, and a more enchanting song than the howling autumn storms shall summon them to a new life, to fresh joys! And such is their existence, an unbroken chain of births and deaths.

And we? We, who are often ungrateful when the world goes against us—we, who grumble and rebel against the wise dictates of Providence and in self-conceit wish to build up a world ourselves, which we imagine would be a better one—what ought we to remember?

Is not the promise sown in our hearts of resurrection and spring, after the autumn of life and the grave of winter! Is it not surer and more blessed than that of any creature in the realm of nature? Have we not been endowed with the gift of living in sympathy here below and of walking together along the road of life in love and friendship? And is not this gift a greater treasure than all those which the man of pleasure deems priceless? Why do we, then, despair? The spring following upon our winter's grave will not depart from us, for it is eternal. Far more glorious is it than any earthly spring. The sun is God, and we are angels therein.

Should we believe that friendship formed here below shall also follow us thither? Why should we not believe that it shall become even stronger than here? Ay, friendship, which has united mankind throughout all ages, in which they have lived, labored and struggled to reach the same goal, although by different roads—that friendship will certainly remain with us when the heaven is reached, and it shall, on a brighter spring morn, and to a more glorious spring chant, follow us into the Eternal Spring, and be the most cherished and joyful recollection of our past life on earth—of a chilly autumn tide!—Oscar Fredrik, in Nineteenth Century.

A Cheery View of Life.

Our estimates of "good" and [illegible] largely influenced [illegible]

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Aniline was discovered by Nuverdorben in 1826 among the products of the distillation of indigo.

—The so-called antique oak is ordinary American oak sawed in a peculiar way and stained to look like the old English oak.

—A new process of hardening plaster of Paris has been discovered whereby it can be adapted to the construction of flooring in place of wood.

—Photographs of the flight and explosion of dynamite cartridges are among the achievements of the instantaneous method of photography. How our grandfathers would have wondered at such pictures!

—The military engineers of Austria are experimenting with aluminum bronze with a view to adopting it for gun-barrels, for which it offers the great advantage of not rusting when exposed to wet.

—The great improvements in the construction of apparatus, and the application of the microscope to lithology, have resulted in successful attempts at the reproduction of all the modern volcanic rocks.

—Southbridge, Mass., has the largest spectacle factory in the world. More than three-fourths of the gold spectacles and eye-glasses made in this country are made in Southbridge, one company alone in that town having turned out 1,500,000 pairs last year.

—Over a million pianos have been constructed in and 200,000 imported into the United States since 1780. So some careful observer informs us. "Invention" tells us that the American pianoforte manufactories now turn out 50,000 instruments every year.

—The Chicago Sanitary News says that the board of health of one of the Eastern States, in a late report, gives an account of a well of water containing 49.2 grains of solids per gallon, yet the pollution could not be recognized by the senses, and several persons lost their lives by its use before the cause was discovered.

—An interesting fact is that one of the greatest problems now perplexing scientific men—the production of heatless light—has been already solved by nature. The light from a luminous beetle—sufficient for reading a newspaper—is shown by the spectroscope to be all of one kind, and just the kind for seeing, while the thermopile finds no evidence of heat. Yet in all our artificial lights vast quantities of fuel are wasted for useless heat.

—The lightness of snowflakes is the results of their surface being so great when compared with their volume, and is accounted for in some degree by the large quantity of air amid their frozen particles. Snowflakes contain about nine times as many volumes of air, entangled, so to speak, among their crystals as they contain water. Very fine and lightly deposited snow occupies about twenty-four times as much space as water, and is from ten to twelve times lighter than an equal bulk of that fluid.

—R. L. Weatherby, the manager of the ocean cable companies' repairing service, has discovered that the cause of the rapid impairment of ocean cables is found in the iron used to enwrap the cores of the cables. The action of deep sea water on iron tends to soften it and destroy its cohesiveness, whereas hemp will remain at any depth in the sea for scores of years without being injured. Hence, if the cable cores were wound and covered exclusively with hemp, instead of with hemp and iron as they now are, their destructibleness would be very greatly lessened. The average life of a cable, as at present constructed, is only twelve years.

SLICING TO DEATH.

Barbaric Method of Torturing Condemned Murderers in China.

At the back of this execution ground stood half a dozen wooden crosses. If you will take a piece of telegraph pole eight feet long and set a similar pole five feet long into it at right angles two feet from the top, you will have the Chinese cross. It is upon these crosses that the criminals are bound when they are to undergo the punishment of Ling Chi or slicing to death, which is the sentence for all who murder a brother, a parent, a teacher, a husba[illegible] or an uncle. The criminal is [illegible] and his feet are raised [illegible] a stone. His cue i[illegible] and his arms [illegible] its arm[illegible]

THE TRADE-WINDS.

Their Cause and Nature Explained in Simple Language.

In order that we may distinctly understand the cause and nature of the trade-winds, it is necessary to bear in mind that the earth in the center of its circumference, at an equal distance from the poles, is divided by a line called the equator into two hemispheres—the northern and the southern. Across the equator, cutting it obliquely, there passes another great circle called the ecliptic, which describes the path the sun traverses. It extends 23½ degrees north and 23½ degrees south of the equator, which is the utmost limit the sun traverses; for, when arrived at either of these boundaries, he again seems to return towards the equator. It must be very evident that the region of the earth included within a circle drawn 23½ degrees north and 23½ south of the equator—which will comprehend the greatest portion of Africa, a considerable part of Asia and America, and many large, fertile and populous islands in the East and West Indies—will receive constantly the solar rays in a direction so little oblique as to cause the most intolerable heat. It is, therefore, called the torrid zone; and the limits at which the sun stops, and appears to retrace his course, have received the name of tropics, or circles of return. This being premised, and it being also remembered that the earth revolves daily, "her silent course advancing," round the sun from west to east, the cause of the trade-winds will be readily understood.

The rays of the sun, in its apparent motion from east to west, rarify the air beneath, and the air so rarified rises into the higher regions of the atmosphere. While this takes place, the colder air from the adjoining temperate zones rushes in to supply its place. But it is from the polar regions north and south that these colder currents originally come; and did the earth remain at rest, such would be their obvious direction. Instead of this, however, north of the equator the direction of the trade-winds is from the northeast; south of the equator, from the southeast; the cause of which is thus explained:

The velocity with which the earth revolves is inconsiderable at the poles, but increases as we advance, and is at its maximum at the equator; the winds, in sweeping from the poles, do not acquire a corresponding velocity with the motion of the earth as they advance towards the equator; therefore, moving more slowly than the earth, they are left behind; so that, to the observer who imagines himself at rest, the air appears to move in a direction contrary to the rotation of the earth, viz., from east to west.

The external limits of the trade-winds are thirty degrees north and thirty degrees south of the equator; but each limit diminishes as the sun advances to the opposite tropic. The larger the expanse of ocean over which they sweep, the more steadily do they blow; accordingly, they are more steady in the Pacific than in the Atlantic, and in the South than in the North Atlantic Ocean. Within the region of the constant trade-winds rain seldom occurs, but it falls abundantly in the adjoining latitudes. The reason is, that rain is produced by the sudden mixture of air of different temperatures charged with moisture; but the constant circulation and intermixture of the air from the upper strata of the atmosphere maintains so equal a temperature in these latitutes as not to occasion the condensation of vapor which is necessary for the production of rain.

Within the limits of the trade-winds, contrary to what might have been supposed from the latitude, the atmosphere is peculiarly cool and refreshing. The climate of the Sandwich Islands is far more cool than might be supposed, judging from their latit[illegible] To the trade-winds must this [illegible] attributed; and thus ha[illegible] dered a region, whi[illegible] have been p[illegible] itable [illegible]

Truth has never yet proved fatal to any one; there are too many antidotes.

EXPAND THE MIND

By seeing as much as you can of the world. But ere you set out either as a tourist, commercial traveler or emigrant—whether you go by rail, steamship or steamboat, provide yourself with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which the traveling public recognizes as the finest medical safeguard and preventive of sea sickness with which any one journeying by land or water can be provided. It furnishes to the western pioneer adequate protection against malaria, rheumatism, and those disorders of the bowels which miasma tainted water beget. Its sedative effect upon a stomach perturbed by the rocking of a ship is truly magical, and it is a capital appetizer and nerve invigorator. Excellent is it for biliousness and kidney inaction, and it counteracts, in a remarkable degree, the effects of fatigue, physical or mental. After wetting and exposure in inclement weather, it should be used as a preventive.

Justice and generosity are so intimately interwoven that neither can flourish well without the other.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CURED.

About two years ago our daughter had congestion of the kidneys, which developed into Bright's Disease. Her body was swollen to an enormous size—measuring 45 inches around the waist, and 18 inches below the knee. After physicians had given up her case, I determined to have her try Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy," of Rondout, N. Y. Gradually the swelling was reduced from 45 to 29 inches. She began to gain strength, and was able to walk without fatigue. We do not know how to express our gratitude for what it has done for our child. We are confident the Favorite Remedy will do all that is claimed for it—surely God has blessed it in this case, and we earnestly recommend it to all suffering from kidney disorders.—S. D. Van duskirk, Demarest, N. J.

Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

Praying without faith is like pumping where there is no spring of water—all the effort is in vain.

IS IT ANY WONDER

That Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery outsells all other blood and liver medicines, since it possesses such superior curative properties as to warrant its manufacturers in supplying it to the people (as they are doing, through druggists) under conditions such as no other medicine is sold under, viz: that it must either benefit or cure the patient, or the money paid for it will be promptly returned. It cures all diseases arising from deranged liver, or from impure blood, as biliousness, "liver complaint," all skin and scalp Diseases, salt rheum tetter, scrofulous sores and swellings, fever sores, hip-joint disease and kindred ailments.

$500 Reward for an incurable case of chronic Nasal Catarrh offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. 50 cents, by druggists.

The latest fashion in Virginia is to be married on horseback. The party is already equipped for "a bridal tour."

PROVED TO BE THE BEST.

Tested and proved by over thirty years' use in all parts of the world. Allcock's Porous Plasters have the indorsement of the highest medical and chemical authorities, and millions of grateful patients who have been cured of distressing ailments voluntarily testify to their merits.

Allcock's Porous Plasters are purely vegetable. They are mild but effective, sure and quick in their action, and absolutely harmless.

Beware of imitations, and do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for Allcock's, and let no explanation or solicitation induce you to accept a substitute.

A forced admission—Husband (sarcastically,) What was I when I married you? Wife—A fool.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Eagle of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Dog [illegible] of Russia, Star of Chili, the [illegible] of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get the [illegible] buy a box of the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S Celebrated Liver Pills, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburg, Pa.

The coming woman will be the worthy mate of the coming man. This is reliable.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH AND STRENGTH.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion with Hypophosphites. "It is as palatable as milk, and easily digested. The rapidity with which delicate people improve with its use is wonderful. Use it and try your weight. As a remedy for Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis, it is unequalled. Please read: "I used Scott's Emulsion in a child eight months old with good results. He gained four pounds in a very short time."—Thos. Prim, M. D., Alabama.

The man or woman who is profitably employed is generally happy. If you are not happy it may be because you have not found your proper work. We earnestly urge all such persons to write to B. F. Johnson & Co., 1009 Main St., Richmond, Va., and they can show you a work in which you can be happily and profitably employed.

The country is flooded with poor imitations of Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut Smoking Tobacco.

The man who votes as he prays generally [illegible] a ballot for himself.

Coughs.—"Brown's Bronchial [illegible] with advantage to allay [illegible] Hoarseness, and [illegible] boxes.

USE St. Jacobs Oil. FOR PAIN.

At Druggists and Dealers.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

SINGERS who have used Piso's Cure for Consumption say it is BEST OF ALL. Sold everywhere. 25c.

HAZELTON BROS., AND HEMME & LONG PIANOS

Sold on Easy Installments. Also dealer in Sheet Music and Musical Merchandise. CHAS. S. EATON, General Agent, 735 Market St., S. F., Cal. Send for Catalogues of Pianos and Sheet Music.

ASTHMA CURED

GERMAN ASTHMA CURE

Instantly relieves the most violent attack, and insures comfortable sleep. NO WAITING for RESULTS. Being used by inhalation, its action is immediate, direct and certain, and a cure is the result in all curable cases. A single trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00 of any druggist, or by mail. Sample Free for stamp. Dr. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

R. H. McDonald PRES'T. ESTABLISHED 1863. Oldest Chartered Bank on the Pacific Coast. PACIFIC BANK. F. V. McDonald, CASHIER. Capital Stock $1,000,000.00. Surplus $700,000.00. Av. Resources $4,500,000.00

Returning thanks for past favors, we respectfully ask a continuance of the same and solicit accounts of Individuals, Firms and Corporations.

R. H. McDONALD, President.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1, 1889.

L. M. WALTERS' Fullman Tourist Sleeping Car Excursions to Chicago and Boston, Without change of Cars

Leave San Francisco

May 2nd, June 13th, July 11th, " 16th, " 27th, " 25th, " 30th.

For locations in these cars, rates, tickets and full information, address—L. M. WALTERS, 624 Market Street, San Francisco.

Big G. Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio. Trade Mark.

I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease.

G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.

We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction.

D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill.

$1.00. Sold by Druggists.

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used only one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and was perfectly cured. I can now jump around, and feel as lively as a boy." Frank Cahoil, Eureka, Nevada.

$1.00. Six for $5.00. Druggists.

Mammoth testimonial paper free.

Wells, Richardson & Co., Props., Burlington, Vt.

"Paine's Celery Compound has been a God-send to me. For the past two years I have suffered with neuralgia of the heart, doctor after doctor failing to cure me. I have now taken nearly four bottles of the Compound, and am free from the complaint. I feel very grateful to you." Chas. H. Lewis, Central Village, Ct.

Paine's Celery Compound

"I have been greatly afflicted with acute rheumatism, and could find no relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound. After using six bottles of this medicine I am now cured of rheumatic troubles." Samuel Hutchinson, So. Cornish, N. H.

Effects Lasting Cures.

Paine's Celery Compound has performed many other cures as marvelous as these,—copies of letters sent to any address. Pleasant to take, does not disturb, but aids digestion, and entirely vegetable; a child can take it. What's the use of suffering longer with rheumatism or neuralgia?

DIAMOND DYES Give Faster and Brighter Colors than any other Dyes. | BABIES Living upon Lactated Food are Healthy, Happy, Hearty. It is Unequaled.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....JULY 6 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 4. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 6, 1889. WHOLE NO. 975.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 25

POPPING THE QUESTION.

Jonas Needed Help, but He Finally Came to the Point.

It was seven long years since Jonas Harris had begun to "keep company" with Miss Hannah Bell, and yet in all that time he had not mustered courage to propose a certain important question. His house was lonely and waiting; hers was lonely enough to be vacated, and Jonas could not bring himself to speak the decisive words. Many a time he had walked up to her door with the courage of a lion, only to find himself a very mouse when she appeared.

He had never failed in dropping in to cheer her loneliness on Christmas evening, and this year he presented himself as usual. The hearth was swept, the fire burned brightly and Miss Hannah was adorned with smiles and a red bow.

Conversation went serenely on for an hour or so, and then, when they both sat paring red cheeked apples with great contentment, Jonas began to call upon his recollections.

"It's a good many years, ain't it, Hannah, since you and I first sot here together?"

"Yes, a good many."

"I wonder if I shall be settin' here this time another year?"

"Maybe I shan't be at home. Perhaps I shall go out to spend the evening myself," said Miss Hannah, briskly.

This was a blow, indeed, and Jonas felt it.

"Where?" he gasped.

"Oh, I don't know," she returned, beginning to quarter her apple. "I might be out to tea—over to your house, for instance."

"But there wouldn't be anybody over there to get supper for you."

"Maybe I could get it myself."

"So you could! so you could!" cried Jonas, his eyes beginning to sparkle. "But there wouldn't be anybody to cook the pies and cakes beforehand."

"Maybe I could cook 'em."

At that moment Jonas' plate fell between his knees to the hearth and broke in two, but neither of them noticed it.

"Hannah," cried he with the pent up emphasis of seven long years, "could you bring yourself to think of gettin' married?"

A slow smile curved her lips; surely she had been given abundant time for consideration.

"Maybe I could," she returned, demurely, and Jonas has admired himself to this day for leading up to the subject so cleverly.—New York Mercury.

Barkis Was Willin'.

"Young man," he began, as he caught him at the hall door, "you are coming here quite often of late."

"Yes, sir."

"Which one is it?"

"Maud, sir."

"Maud, eh! Well, Maud is a good girl and a great favorite. I have no objections, sir. I used to go to school with your father, and I know all about you."

"Thanks."

"Just make yourself at home, sir. Do you happen to have $25 or $30 in your vest pocket? I'll hand it back next week. Yes, Maud is a nice girl, and if I should forget this loan just speak about it, will you?"—Detroit Free Press.

Cause and Effect.

Wife—Good-by, John. I'll be back in about three hours. Be sure you amuse the baby and keep her quiet while I am gone. I know you'll enjoy having her all to yourself.

Mother (five years after)—Yes, Edna, that is your father. When you were near three months old I left him well and happy one afternoon—minding you. He was brought here the next day.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Difference.

Mistress (severely)—Marie, didn't I hear you make use of the expression, "You little brat," in the nursery just now?

Marie (a French bonne)—Yees, madame, but Mess Flossie do wexes me so!

Mistress (less severely)—Oh, I thought you were speaking to Fido. Send Miss Flossie to me at once.

The Old, Old Story Revised.

Bashful Young Man—Ahem—Sally—ahem——

Sally (encouragingly)—Well, George?

B. Y. M.—Sally, do you s'pose your ma would be willin' to be my mother-in-law?

His Qualifications.

Mr. De Ryche—So you wish to be my private secretary, young man. What are your qualifications?

Mr. Van Smart—Only that your daughter considers me more attractive than your coachman, sir.—Chicago Journal.

Choose Well Your Doctor.

(Time, evening.)

Sweet Girl—What did you give mamma for her cold?

Her Lover (a young physician)—Opium. She won't bother us to-night.—New York Weekly.

One of Them Was Ill.

Mrs. Cumritover—How are the children this morning?

Mrs. Lovitt—Well, Tommie and Susie are better, but Puggie is still a very sick dog.—Pawtucket Gazette.

Off His Hands.

"How is it you have had so few deaths on your hands, doctor?"

"That's easy enough. When I find I have a bad case I order the patient to take a trip abroad."—Judge.

Appropriate.

A farmer of our acquaintance has named one of his hogs Maud because she comes into the garden so much.—Huntsville (Ala.) Mercury.

THOSE WRINKLED HANDS.

Those wrinkled hands that o'er a woman's breast
Now folded lie in death's last solemn sleep,
Alas! how cold and still; but God knows best:
His time will choose, while we in silence weep.
Who had by those dear hands been often blest,
But now shall miss the love that flowed so deep.
No more shall we enjoy their soft caress,
Nor feel again their clinging tenderness.

In those lines where the plow of Time has run,
And heaped with furrows deep the trace of years,
The marks of toil, the change of shade and sun,
The record of a lengthened life appears;
Many a tale they tell of joys begun,
And hopes soon ended in a dash of tears,
Those veins of blue her sunny skies unroll,
That skin so fair the whiteness of her soul.

But lo! as we read on what sight is this?
A cherub form with dimpled hands and small,
Bright golden locks, and lips that tempt a kiss,
Like paintings seen on old cathedral wall;
Some angel sent from distant worlds of bliss,
That sunbeams bring to this dim earthly ball.
Again we look, a laughing girl is seen—
To schools she skips or romps in orchards green.

In these oddly fashioned lines next we trace
The vision of a maiden sweet and fair;
By garden gate she waits; upon her face
Rests light's rosy tinge, as if gathered there
The crimson blush of thousand mornings' grace.
Or is that glow of bliss beyond compare,
Aught else than love's warm thrill, as there she stands,
Holding in her own another's tender hands?

Life's busy noon unfolds; and what befell
In sober age, how hands now pale and cold
Were moved to kindly acts, oft strove to quell
A neighbor's grief, and wipe the gathering mold
Of death from aching brows. Sick beds can tell;
And poor their saintly deeds confess with old;
Then rest, sweet hands, with scars of battle won,
Like folded banners when the day is done.

—Varnum Lincoln

Poisonous Nutmegs.

It will doubtless surprise many to learn that in nutmegs we find a powerful poison, generally believed to be of the narcotic order. It is only comparatively recently that cases of poisoning by it have been recorded in this country, probably for the reason that, being so universally considered harmless, when dangerous or fatal consequences have followed its use the cause has been overlooked. The quantity of nutmeg which it is necessary to take to produce serious symptoms has never been estimated. In one case, however, one and a half nutmegs, it is said, caused in a woman stupor, followed by excitement, with signs of collapse.

Dr. Waugh has recently reported the case of a woman who was advised by her neighbors to eat nutmegs for the relief of dyspepsia due to constipation. One forenoon she ate five of medium size. No unpleasant symptoms followed until some nine or ten hours afterward. Then she became sick to her stomach, giddy, and had a chill, accompanied by vomiting, headache, dryness of the mouth and throat, and a sore, strained sensation in the eyes. Her sight became affected, and she complained that everything appeared misty. When the chill passed off, slight fever and sweating followed, with intense, throbbing headache. Under proper treatment this woman recovered. In her case no narcotic symptoms appeared, but that does not prove that nutmegs are not of the narcotic order.—Boston Herald.

The Nickel's Leverage.

The field of the nickel and slot machine seems to be practically limitless. I am informed that a St. Louis inventor is now at work on a machine which will give you a clean shave and a picture of your future wife, while the band plays your favorite air as you wait. Another machine will tell your fortune and polish your shoes and administer a dose of pills for a nickel; while another will pick the winners of the next day's races and supply you with the morning paper. The nickel and slot machine fills a long felt want, and has a long career of usefulness before it, and the public is saving its nickels for the next departure with deep interest.—St. Louis Republic.

Photographing the Aurora Borealis.

Dr. Kayser has succeeded in obtaining a photograph of the aurora borealis from the summit of Mount Rigi in Switzerland. This is an interesting fact, it having hitherto been regarded as impossible to photograph the aurora for want of a plate sufficiently sensitive to be impressed by its rays. Gunther, in his well known physical geography, declares it to be utterly impossible to photograph the aurora, the most carefully prepared plate remaining neutral when exposed to the aurora's rays. Dr. Kayser resorted to special precautions and employed a colored dry plate—the azalin trocken-platte.—New Orleans Picayune.

Two Strings to His Bow.

"No, William," she said coldly, with a side long glance to note the effect of her words, "I cannot be your wife. You smoke and you sometimes drink. I have registered a vow not to marry a man who has either of these vices."

"All right, Maria," was the humble reply. "And now will you please ask your younger sister Lulu to come down stairs a moment? She said, when she kissed me good-by last night, that she would gladly have me if you refused."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Expensive Repairs.

The famous cathedral at Cologne has been under repair for a long time and a large amount of money has been expended thereon. Thus far the government has contributed 6,345,252 marks toward the repairs, while enough has been raised by lotteries and otherwise to bring the total expended between 1842 and 1880 up to the enormous amount of 18,400,000 marks.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Heavy Family.

A family which claims the honor of being the heaviest in Kennebec county is that of William Merrill, of Gardiner. Mr. Merrill himself weighs 303, Mrs. Merrill, 264; the eldest daughter, 300; a younger daughter, 260, and the only son, 215—a total fortune of 1,342 pounds—to say nothing of shillings and pence. Lucky Merrill!—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

The method of stopping the electric cars on the English road where the series system is used is not done by the ordinary brake, but by momentarily short circuiting the motor and immediately reversing the current through the field magnets.

WHAT ARE TRUFFLES?

SOMETHING ABOUT THE MUSHROOM'S UNDERGROUND COUSIN.

A Member of the Fungi Family That Tickles the Palate of the Epicure—How They Grow and Are "Caught"—Attempts at Cultivation Unsuccessful.

Probably few of the thousands of people who have enjoyed these culinary dainties are aware of the manner in which they grow or the circumstances in which they are obtained. Others, again, who have perchance never encountered truffles or met with them in the bill of fare or upon the menu of the dinner table—for they are not sufficiently plentiful to be a popular article of diet—will have but a confused idea as to what denomination they belong, such confusion being heightened by reason of the term "catching" or "hunting" being used to denote the means by which they are obtained. It is, therefore, not unnecessary to explain that truffles are underground fungi, those which are the subject of commerce belonging to the genus "tuber," whilst others which bear the name are of related though different genera. In England they were formerly known as "trubbes," both names being doubtless derived from the Latin terræ tuber. They are somewhat oblong or globose, and vary in weight from a couple of ounces to several pounds, according to the species, locality and the circumstances in which they are grown. They vary somewhat in color; some are white, but generally they are of a black or dark brown color, and of a rough exterior, the skin being thickly covered with wart-like protuberances. When cut through with a knife, they present a different appearance from that of any other fungus. Veins traverse the mass in all directions, giving a marbled character that is a distinctive feature of the truffle. When closely examined, minute sacs will be noticed in the veins. These contain spores, which are covered with spines.

DOGS AS TRUFFLE HUNTERS.

Not much is known of the early development of the truffle, owing principally to its peculiarity of growing underground, where it is free from observation; but when found in the mature state, in which they are used for food, they are altogether free from attachment, either to the ground or to any other body. They are commonly, if not invariably, found in woods, the presence of oak or beech trees appearing to favor their growth. From this fact it has been inferred that they are of a parasitical nature, and that at some stage of their existence they derive their nutriment from the roots of trees. Light calcareous soils are those which most frequently produce truffles, and in England they are chiefly obtained from the hill districts and chalky grounds of Hants and Wilts. Those, however, which chiefly supply the English markets are brought from France or Algiers.

Truffles emit a fragrant odor both during their growth and after they are gathered. It is this characteristic which favors their acquisition, as, being buried out of sight, some other faculty has to be employed to discover their presence. For this purpose the keen sense of smell in the dog is taken advantage of, and dogs are systematically trained for the purpose of "truffle hunting." This service is sometimes performed by pigs on the Continent. The dogs are trained by the device of hiding a truffle and rewarding the dog each time he discovers its place of concealment. By degrees the dog soon learns to search in the woods, attracted by the perfume, and scratches at the spot under which reposes the hidden fungus. He is then rewarded by a piece of bread, and the truffle is carefully exhumed. The "catching" or "hunting" of truffles is a regular means of employment for men and dogs in those districts in which the fungi exist in sufficient quantities to render the work remunerative.

HOW TO PREPARE THEM.

The attempts at artificial reproduction or cultivation of the truffle have not been successful, as mycelium or spawn, from which other fungi (such as mushrooms) are readily produced, has not yet been obtained. Success has occasionally attended the sprinkling of suitable ground with water in which the fresh peel of truffles has been steeped.

The odor and flavor of truffles are most distinctive, and the delicacy of this flavor is highly esteemed by cooks, these fungi being generally employed for flavoring meats. The fresher truffles are used the better, as they lose their perfume by exposure to the air. Thus, English truffles which reach the market fresh gathered are preferable to those obtained from abroad; and those, again, which are deeper in the ground are superior to those found near the surface, possibly owing to the same reason—viz.: that they have been better protected from access of air.

To cook truffles, they should first be well washed—if necessary scrubbed with a brush—in warm water, rinsed and then boiled (according to size) from two to three hours. They may be served, hidden in a napkin, as if they were chestnuts. They are eaten at the second course, dry, with cold butter. The game is eaten with them, and the crisp peel is not discarded. Some people boil truffles in champagne, under the impression that they acquire the flavor of the wine. This is a most extravagant and useless custom, as, in the first place, the tough skin of the truffle is quite impervious, and secondly, the wine, directly it is heated to boiling point, loses all spirit and flavor.

If it is desired to put truffles into a salmi, boil them separately, then peel and cut them up when the dish is ready, then over all pour the gravy or sauce. They should also be cooked separately if intended for insertion into a boar's head or for combination with the stuffing for a turkey. In the latter case they should be peeled and introduced with the stuffing.—London Queen.

An oblong opal the full length of a knife edged bar, surrounded by diamonds, is a brooch of a recherche character.

Deaths at Sea.

"A great deal has been done," said an old sailor the other day, "to improve the lot of the men before the mast, since first I went to sea as a cabin boy, and whenever a complaint is properly lodged against a cruel officer, I must say it is fairly investigated. Yet for all that, there are plenty of murders committed today on the high seas that are never investigated because no complaint is made. Every day one or two vessels come into this port with a shorter crew than they started out with and their captains' reports of 'seaman fell overboard and was lost,' or 'cabin boy killed by falling spar,' or 'coal passer died from heart trouble and was buried at sea,' are accepted as perfectly satisfactory. No investigation is made into the death, unless some one lodges a formal complaint.

"It's an easy matter for one man who has a grudge against his mate to shove the other overboard, if they are both up in the rigging in a dark and stormy night. The unseen cutting of a rope is often enough to do it. It is easy to drop a block or a marline spike on the head of a man below, that will knock him dazed into the water to drown, or down to the deck to smash his skull. 'Heart trouble' covers a great deal of insufficient nourishment, lack of medicine and overwork. This is not the way things are done on land. You have your coroners here to investigate sudden deaths, why should they not look into deaths at sea? Many poor cowards would tell the truth against their officers, if they were thus forced to do so, who would not dare come forward and lodge a complaint they might be unable fully to prove."—New York Tribune.

The Head of the Army.

Gen. Schofield's salary is $13,000. Although he is the successor of Sheridan, who followed a line of soldiers in the office who were national heroes, and although he is rightfully the incumbent by reason of his services to the country, his career has not been such as to make his name over familiar to people generally. His military life has been long and the duties faithfully performed, but in few events has he been very conspicuous. Gen. Schofield was born on the 29th of September, 1831. He graduated from the United States Military academy in 1853, in the same class with Sheridan, McPherson and Hood. Before the war he left the service to become a professor of natural science in a university, but at the breaking out of hostilities he entered the army as a volunteer. A major's commission was tendered to him at once and on Nov. 21, 1861, he had reached the grade of brigadier general. He served all through the war, notably in the Atlanta campaign, and for a time was secretary of war in Grant's first cabinet. At present his duties are practically nominal, for there are plenty of subordinates to look after details. He has an office in the department building which is principally interesting for the relics which it contains of his service. Sheridan filled up his office in a similar way, and it was a favorite spot for sightseers.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Cottonwood Tree.

It was not many years ago that the cottonwood tree was considered useless for the purposes of lumber. Today it is crowding white pine out of the market for certain purposes, and large fortunes are being made all along the Mississippi river out of this wood, which was once despised as much in that field as a garfish always has been among fishermen. In New Orleans white pine is worth $35 a thousand, while yellow cottonwood brings $65. For the ceiling of grain barges it is invaluable, as grain cannot sweat in it. Every cracker box in use in this city today is made of cottonwood, and it cannot be excelled for fruit barrels. I do not know why this is so, but it is a fact, nevertheless. Cottonwood will hold nails and can be used for building, and it is also capable of a fine polish after certain treatment, and it is much prized for interior decorations. There are now men rich because they own tracts covered with cottonwood, who five years ago would have traded an acre of it for a yellow dog.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

When We Were Boys.

Speaking of "mibs," who has not indulged in that fascinating game at some stage of his youthful career? Every man has had in his time his favorite "shooter"—either an agate, an alley, or, perchance, a cornelian—and he has had a bag of marbles. He has been able to make a good ring on soft dirt with the sharp edge of his boot heel, and he has often scooped holes in the ground for "holey-boley." He has practiced lagging at the ring for his shot, and he never forgot the order of that shot. If he were a smart boy he put the kibosh on his better playmates by calling: "Fen picks an' fen everythings all aroun' the game!" Often he has recklessly played "chineys for keeps," and even now he cannot pass a crowd of boys playing marbles without involuntarily pausing to see what the next boy did on his shot. Marbles was and still is a great game, especially when played "for keeps."—Chicago Herald.

Gone to Ruin.

Sherman Island was one of the first islands reclaimed and a few years ago was a perfect garden spot. In 1878 the island, which is of a peaty formation, caught fire and burned for months. The smoke was so dense that vessels found difficulty in navigating both the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. It burned out in some places to a depth of fifteen and twenty feet, and the island today is entirely submerged. No one lives upon it at all except a few fishermen, whose floating houses are tied upon what was once a levee. The town of Emmatown is no more. The residences are abandoned, the wharf and warehouses dilapidated and unused, while the water stands up to the windows in the school house. It is a scene of desolation.—Sacramento Record-Union.

Neat little bracelets are formed of small circles of nugget finish gold, linked together, with a pearl in the center of each.

TOSSED ON THE WAVES.

JAPANESE JUNKS CAST AWAY IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN.

Hardships Endured by Oriental Sailors Under the Old Methods—Two Thousand Miles Out Without Mast or Rudder—Forty Beans to Each Man Per Day.

On the morning of the 9th of January, 1877, the City of Peking, on her outward trip, sighted what at first appeared to be an abandoned vessel adrift at sea. The steamer bore away for her, when it was seen that she was a Japanese junk with one mast gone. An officer and boat's crew were sent off, who found that the junk belonged to Ha-Rodadi; that she was partly loaded with rice and saki (Japanese whisky), and besides the skipper and supercargo had a crew of five men. On the 1st of December preceding the junk, which, by the way, rejoiced in the name of the Hisayoshimam, had been driven out to sea, and things having got badly mixed up in an unusually terrific blast it was found to be the easiest way of lowering sails to chop the mast down. Then a heavy sea carried away the rudder and stove in the bulwarks, after which the junk drifted and sloshed around in the old and unoriginal way of "at the mercy of the winds and waves."

THEY STUCK TO THE SAKI.

Captain and crew had become so completely disheartened on the waste of waters, or so unduly jolly on a waste of saki, that when boarded by the officer of the steamer they didn't know the day of the week or the month, hardly knew where they had come from, and certainly didn't know where they were going to. They were informed that they were something like 2,000 miles distant from Japan, but despite this warning intelligence, only four of the crew would leave the junk—the captain, supercargo and the fifth man declaring their intention of sticking to the junk so long as the rice and saki held out.

The Coos Bay News, published at Marshfield, Ore., in its issue of July 17, 1878, had the following report from the captain of the schooner Parallel, which arrived at that port July 15 from San Francisco:

"The schooner Parallel on the 7th inst., in latitude 39 deg. 42 min., longitude 130 deg. 26 min., at 4 a. m., sighted a Japanese junk adrift. A boat was lowered and the strange vessel boarded, when a terrible sight met the boarders. Not a living soul was aboard, but three corpses of Japanese who had probably been dead at least a month. Two of the bodies had been shackled together, doubtless having been crazed for want of food or water and fastened up by their comrades. Two of these bound bodies were lying amidships with their knees bound together with cords upon their breasts, their arms were drawn over their heads and securely tied and cords were bound around their necks; in short, they were completely inclosed in a netting formed by the lacing and interlacing of cords. The sunken eyes and shriveled condition of the bodies were frightful to look at. The other corpse was found forward, stripped to the waist, and gave indications of the terrible sufferings that the man must have endured previous to his death. From the numerous fireplaces and mats found between decks it was evident that the vessel had been manned by a large crew. Upon examination considerable water was found in the hold, but no evidence of her having had a cargo on board could be discovered. The only article of food that was found was a portion of a chest of tea, covered with mold. In the cabin were several handsome pieces of furniture.

"The two bound bodies were well dressed, and a lot of fine silk ladies' wearing apparel was brought off the wreck by the sailors. The stench of decaying bodies was such as to prevent a thorough inspection. The hull of the junk was in good condition, and when last seen was drifting to the south and east and bearing with it, perhaps, a mystery of the Oriental seas."

PROBABLY THE LATEST CASE.

When the steamship City of Peking arrived at San Francisco from Japan, June 12, 1881, one of the passengers related the following story to a Chronicle reporter: The tenth day out from Yokohama the steamer came across a dismantled, helpless Japanese junk, which had been driven off from the entrance to the bay of Yeddo during a typhoon that had occurred on the 9th of December, or ten months previous to their rescue. They had lost their masts and rudder and had been drifting at the mercy of the winds they knew not where. After their own provisions were exhausted they had subsisted on their cargo, mostly beans and dried fish, and on such rain water as they could catch. They had burned most of the small woodwork, doors, berths, windows, etc., of their junk for fuel, and were on short food rations, forty beans per day for each man being the allowance. Their fire, when put out from time to time, they had rekindled by rubbing two pieces of wood together. One of their number had died from exhaustion and they had given up all hope of ever seeing land or anything human again when they sighted the City of Peking. They were taken on board the steamer, a concert was given in their aid, and on the next trip of the City of Peking they were taken back to their own country.

So little by little the long record of disasters has been gradually abridged, if not wholly terminated. Japan has now not only a navy, but an excellent fleet of coasting steamers and well built sailing craft of modern construction. Before her awakening Japan drove away the rescued junk men from her coast as though they had the plague; now she rewards the rescuers.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Patriotic Day.

Spriggins—Dreadful day, this. Three kinds of weather in as many hours.

Wiggins—The most patriotic day of the season. A red sunrise, snow until noon, then blue skies until dusk brings out the stars.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Capture and Recapture.

A veteran of the Thirty-sixth Illinois volunteers furnishes this:

After we had flanked Johnston's army from Dallas, it was, contrary to the usual custom, the fortune of the First brigade—Sheridan's old division—to be left behind the army a few days, as a guard for an ambulance train. One day two of our men—one of them Jack Tyrrell, commissary of our brigade—went to take a bath beyond and in sight of our picket line, in a small bayou, which temerity was observed by some of Ferguson's cavalry hovering in the vicinity, who detached two men armed with sabers and carbines to bring them in. Being without arms they were surprised, and started off en deshabille, in the very face of the pickets, who dared not fire for fear of injuring the prisoners. Each rebel started in a different direction with his charge. After going a short distance Tyrrell dodged to one side, exposing his captor to our pickets, who gave him a volley, but missed, on which the Johnny, out of spite, returned the shot; when Tyrrell, taking advantage of his empty carbine, sprang and caught him by his abundant whiskers and dragged him from his horse. Here a short struggle ensued, in which the Confederate had to give way to northern muscle, although they were both good types of their countries, and Johnny, minus his gun and saber, was marched to the picket lines by his escort, who guided him by walking behind him with one hand in each side of his whiskers. It is useless to say that he was received by the pickets with considerable merriment. The other Confederate, on seeing his comrade's fate, and hearing the whir of a few random shots, fled, and left his charge to come back at his will.

Do Liquors Produce Fat?

Liquids make fat. There is no doubt of this in my mind, though I am fully cognizant of the fact that a good many people will deny it. The character of the liquids has a good deal to do with it, but the practice of drinking invariably leads to unwieldy bulk. In Spain, where men drink little, a fat man is unknown. In Paris, where men content themselves with sipping thimblesful of absinthe or small cups of black coffee, the French are thin to a remarkable degree. The women, on the other hand, drink great quantities of champagne, Burgundy and latterly beer, and they are as a result prone to stoutness. In England men drink ale and beer, and they are a thick necked, pudgy and heavy race as a rule. I had observed all this many times, and when I went to Germany, where I knew the consumption of beer was very great, I had prepared to find fat men in abundance. I was not disappointed. There would seem to be absolutely no end of big, corpulent and unwieldy men in Germany. While in the army they are slim and splendid looking warriors, but two months after they leave the ranks they become heavy, puffy and beefy to the last degree. This is even so in the ranks among the other soldiers, and the cavalry were men of such extraordinary weight that they always excited comment from strangers.—Philadelphia Times.

The Haytians.

In Hayti the people are divided into three classes—the blacks, the colored and the whites. The blacks are, of course, the most numerous, and they are also the most ignorant. The colored are those who have mixed blood in them and form the intelligent portion of the inhabitants. They are largely in the minority, but they are the only class competent to conduct the government. The whites are those white men who go down there as merchants. Many of these marry the colored girls, and then, of course, become more thoroughly identified with the best interests of the government. The people generally, particularly the colored portion, have a curious mixture of traits. The negroes as a race are impressionable and excitable. They have these qualities, and in addition the mercurial temperament of the French, for nearly all are sent to Paris to complete their education. This combination makes them difficult to govern, for there is a natural jealousy between the blacks and the colored, and so affairs are generally more or less unsettled.—Washington Star.

Don't Mention the Briers.

It is not only a wise and happy thing to make the best of life, and always look on the bright side, for one's own sake, but it is a blessing to others. Fancy a man forever telling his family how much they cost him! A little sermon on this subject was unconsciously preached by a child one day last fall:

A man met a little fellow on the road carrying a basket of blackberries, and said to him: "Sammy, where did you get such nice berries?"

"Over there, sir, in the briers."

"Won't your mother be glad to see you come home with a basketful of such nice, ripe fruit?"

"Yes, sir," said Sammy, "she always seems mighty glad when I hold up the berries, and I don't tell her anything about the briers in my feet."

The man rode on, resolving that henceforth he would hold up the berries and say nothing about the briers.—Atlanta Constitution.

Disease Revealed by the Camera.

The photographic camera promises to be of even greater service in medicine than was imagined. It seems to have literally a superhuman faculty of diagnosis. Some time ago a photographer had as a subject a child apparently in good health, with a clear skin and good complexion. When the negative was examined, however, the picture showed the face to be covered with blotches. Within a week the child was covered with the eruption of measles. Another case is recorded when a child's portrait showed spots a fortnight before it was laid up with smallpox and before any trace of the disease had appeared. It would seem that the sensitive plate of the camera perceived and photographed the eruption before it was visible to the naked eye.—The Hospital.

A LIVING CHILD-MAN.

Extraordinary Discovery by a Doctor in Dickinson County, Kan.

There has been discovered in the south part of this (Dickinson) County one of the most remarkable monstrosities of the human family ever known to exist. It is a child-man, or rather a child's body with a man's head. A few day's ago a prominent physician was making a call on the family in which the monstrosity lives, and while talking with his patient noticed an object in a cradle at the opposite end of the room. It was carefully covered up, but he thought he perceived a beard showing from beneath the covering. He could get no opportunity for a more careful examination at the time, but in order to investigate further informed his patient that other calls would be necessary. Upon a subsequent visit he managed to be left alone in the room with the cradle and its mysterious occupant. Hastily pulling off the covering there was discovered a sight which fairly made his heart cease for the moment to beat. It was nothing less than a man's head joined to an infant's body. The large eyes blinked at him, and the lips, bearded and mustached, made inarticulate sounds, but no gleam of recognition or intelligence was observable in the being's face. Determined to investigate the matter more fully, the physician called the man and woman of the house and demanded an explanation of the sight which had met his gaze. At first they were angry that he had pried into the secret that they had guarded so well, but at last seeing that further concealment was impossible, they made a clean breast of the affair and told the following story:

Nearly thirty years ago a man named Reed moved into Kansas from Illinois. His family consisted of himself, wife and one daughter. The latter was about seventeen years old, and rather good looking. They settled near the junction of the Republican and Smoky Hill rivers, in the vicinity of what is now Junction City, and the daughter married a trapper. Her first child was a boy, and she died in giving it birth. An older sister had come on from the East by this time and she took the motherless little one into her family. Its father was killed during the border troubles and she practically adopted the orphan. The child grew and thrived normally until it was about four years and six months old, when it seemed to cease developing. Soon it was noticed that development had not been arrested in all parts of the body. The head kept on growing as if it belonged to the sturdiest child in the State. Year after year this strange growth went on, and still there was no change in the infantile body or limbs, though the head continued its growth. The sister and her husband moved into Dickinson County, where they have since resided, and took the child with them. The grandparents are dead, and the monstrosity has reached the age of twenty-nine years. Its head is as large as that of an average-sized man, and is crowned with a heavy growth of coarse brown hair. Heavy beard and mustache are on its face, and lines of maturity show upon the cheeks and forehead. The body remains, from the neck down, that of a four-year-old child. The child, or man, can not sit up, as the monstrous head is too heavy for the muscles of the trunk to lift. It lies in the cradle helpless, and watches with a brute-like gaze the doings of those around.

The mind is somewhat in advance of that of an infant, but is still practically inactive. No speech or general intelligence has been evolved from the strange being. It must be fed from an attendant's hand, and though its teeth are well developed, its stomach can digest nothing but the simplest foods. The tiny hands and limbs are as soft-fleshed as the veriest babe's, while the face and head have the harsher feeling of maturity. There seems no reason in the mind of the physician who made the strange discovery why the monstrosity should not live to the age of three-score years and ten, though it would seem to be a blessing to the world to take its life from it. The imagination can easily picture what it will be when gray hair has settled on the head and beard, while the body remains that of a babe. The family, ashamed of the possession of such a monstrosity, has religiously hidden this skeleton in their closet from the world and few know of its existence. It was only by accident that it was this time discovered. The doctor's story has led several prominent citizens to make a trip to the farm house to see the remarkable freak, and all unite in calling it the most wonderful being they ever witnessed. None, however, wish to make a second trip, as one look at the strange creature is enough to sadden their hearts and give them something to dream about for months.—Abilene (Kan.) Cor. St. Louis Globe Democrat.

—No Time for Foolishness.—Dealer (to countryman looking at clocks)—"Now, there's something unique in the way of clocks, sir. When the hour begins, a bird comes out from the top and sings, 'Cuckoo.' For instance, I turn this hand to three o'clock, and now the bird comes out and sings 'Cuckoo' three times." Countryman (enthusiastically, to wife)—"By gum, Mariar, don't that beat all!" Wife—"That kind o' clock may do fur people who've got lot's o' time, but it'd take me half the forenoon every day to look after the bird."

—Some idea may be gathered of the enormous increase of the fruit-growing industry from the fact that in 1850 the fruit crop of the United States was valued at only $8,000,000, while in 1886 its value was $137,000,000.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

Mulholland & Mack
EDITORS & PROPRIETORS
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY JULY 6 1889

Hon. H. H. Markham, of Pasadena, is named as the next Republican nominee for Governor. Colonel Markham made one of the best Congressmen we ever had. He is in the prime of life; a man of wide experience; full of energy and most respected for a highly honorable character by those who know him best. He would be a very popular candidate in Inyo County.

It is certain that the policy of protection for American industries is rapidly gaining strength in the South. The Houston, Texas, TRIBUNE of recent date says:

"The Houston TRIBUNE is written and published in the South by Southern and for Southern men. Every line of its editorials is dictated by tender and filial love for the grand and God-blessed sunny South, and the aim of the paper is the grandeur, happiness and prosperity of the South and its people. And it is for that reason alone for protective tariff, because it is such a tariff above all that will develop our mines, people our states, multiply our industries, give employment to thousands, rouse our energy to activity, stimulate enterprise and grant every workman a fair reward for his labors, will bless our land with plenty and our homes with happiness."

There is not another government on earth but our own that would be guilty of the stupidity of favoring foreign railroads so that they can command the traffic our own roads should have. It is enough to make the United States Government the laughing stock of the world to see the railroads and steamships of Canada carrying our commerce; while our own railroads are being driven to bankruptcy for want of business, and the last vestige of our commercial fleet has almost disappeared from the sea. It would be a good thing for the country if some of that railroad influence that was once so potent in Congress could be revived. If there was no other motive than pure selfishness, that alone would make railroad men the best and safest guardians of our commercial interests. They have so much money invested that it immediately concerns them to promote every interest in the United States; and do all in their power to secure the greatest prosperity for every citizen of the country. A nation of beggars would have no use for railroads.

The best and holiest work any man ever did, or that is within the power of man to do, is to lead his fellow men to love truth, mercy and justice. There is no greater degradation of manhood, no more contemptible perversion of all the noble faculties that distinguishes human beings from brutes, than the use of those faculties on the side of vice. There are men so degraded that they shed around them an atmosphere of filth, as the skunk sheds around him his own disgusting odor. The conversation of such men raises a laugh among the stupid and depraved, but every person of sense turns from them in disgust. It is easy to pass for a wit among fools, because a fool cannot distinguish between wit and obscenity. As the site of a dunghill is a good place to grow onions, so is a filthy mind prolific in ideas rank with offensiveness. A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men; but harmless fun is not incompatible with the greatest purity of speech and action, and want of decency is want of sense. The foul minded, stupid fool is eager to attribute to wise and great men all sorts of stories that have no other merit than filth; as ordure from its very filthiness is valuable as manure. But the gross stupidity of nearly all such stories proves that they never originated in the mind of any great man. The relator of foul stories is such a fool that even the fools who listen to him regard him with contempt, and he is therefore the most contemptible of all fools.

Meteorological Summary for June, 1889 Keeler, Cal.

Mean barometer	29.750 inches.
Mean temperature	79°
Highest temperature	97°
Lowest temperature	63°
Monthly range of temperature	24°
Mean dew point, 42°
Mean relative humidity 29 per cent.
Prevailing direction of wind, S.
Maximum velocity of wind, direction and date, 35 miles N. W. 8th.
Precipitation	0.01
Number of cloudless days	25
Number of partly cloudy days	05
Number of cloudy days	0
Dates of Frost, light on 6th.

D. C. GRUNOW,
Private, Signal Corps.

To Dispel Colds

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys to healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them take Syrup of Figs.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

PIONEER BREWERY
INDEPENDENCE

BEER ICE COLD.

The Bar is supplied with the Best of all kinds of Liquors and Cigars.

The Coolest Hall in the town. Call in and see what comfort you can have this hot weather.

PHILIP GEHRIG, PROPRIETOR

ANTONS SALOON
KEELER, CAL.

BEER, WINES,
LIQUORS and CIGARS.

All kinds of Fancy Drinks, including pure water. A comfortable and pleasant Hall.

JOHN C. ANTON Prop.

R. J. WHITTAKER
—PAINTER,—
BIG PINE, - - - - CAL.

HOUSE PAINTING,
SIGN WRITING,
PAPER HANGING,
GRAINING,
GILDING ON
WOOD AND GLASS.

Wagons Painted

The best of materials used and satisfaction guaranteed.

IF YOU WISH A GOOD REVOLVER PURCHASE ONE OF SMITH & WESSON'S

Finest small arms ever manufactured and the first choice of all experts. In calibres 32, 38 and 44-100. Single or double action, Safety Hammerless and Target models. Best quality wrought steel, carefully inspected for workmanship and stock. Unrivaled for finish, durability and accuracy. Do not be deceived by cheap malleable iron imitations often sold for the genuine article. They are unreliable and dangerous. The SMITH & WESSON REVOLVERS are stamped upon the barrels with firm's name, address and dates of patents, and are guaranteed perfect. Insist upon having them, and if your dealer cannot supply you, an order sent to address below will receive prompt attention. Descriptive catalogue and prices upon application.

SMITH & WESSON,
Springfield, Mass.

Ranch for Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I offer my ranch for sale, consisting of 320 acres. Situated about three miles from Independence in a southeasterly direction. It is nearly all under fence. There is about 30 acres of orchard and vineyard, a portion of which is bearing. Undisputed water right. For price apply on the ranch to

J. W. SYMMES.
Independence, Cal., June 13, 1889.

E. H. Edwrds,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements o our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.

Offers his professional services to the people o Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence o poite Andrew Clark's.

Our New Autograph
ALBUM

Is handsomely bound in German Leatherette. The covers are of a rich color, the front being almost entirely of gold leaf and embossed artistic designs of flowers and birds, with medallion of a lovely head in relief. The size of the book is five by eight; it contains eighty pages of handsome tint paper with silverized or gilt edges, and any one may be glad to be the possessor of it. It pleases all who get it, and is a treasure which lasts a life-time. No one is too old or too young, too rich or too poor, to be the recipient of this Ornamental and Useful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM.

WE GIVE this handsome Album WILLING TO to all those who suffer with and are Be Cured (by the use of DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Brothers,) of all diseases arising from a torpid or diseased liver, such as Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Flatulency, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Biliousness, Yellow Skin, Piles, Backache, an all-run-down feeling, indisposition to work or play, breaking out of sores, impure blood, or a wretched condition generally. Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills are GUARANTEED to cure all of these troubles and make you perfectly well, so that you can enjoy life and perform your business and social duties. These Pills are compounded of the most harmless and beneficial herbs, and are good for all stages of life—from childhood to old age.

HOW TO GET Cured FREE
And Obtain the ALBUM

Go to your Druggist or store and buy a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills. They are a wonderful discovery, and contain nothing but the most beneficial ingredients. If taken in time, they may save your life. Cost only a quarter. Send the wrapper, with two two-cent stamps, to us, and we will forward to you (all carrying charges prepaid) the above-described beautiful AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. If your Druggist or store does not keep our Pills, ask him to get them for you; he can do it.

FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

SPECIAL NOTICE. If you can not conveniently obtain a box of our Pills in your vicinity, we will, on receipt of thirty cents, your name and post-office address, plainly written, send you, free of all expense, a box of Dr. C. McLane's Pills and our elegant Album. FLEMING BROTHERS, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HOW TO GET RICH. We send, without charge, our recent pamphlet to those who will mention this paper and send their address on a postal card to FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO extensive stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

☞ Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n47tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS

SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.

And Is Very Streagthening and Cleansing

When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,

—And a large—

SWIMMING : BATH

Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month

MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. BRINE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

MISCELLANEOUS.

James Hillyer,
CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER.

Plans, Specifications
And Estimates of all kinds of buildings

Furnished.

All kinds of Carpenter Work done in the best manner.

JAMES HILLYER,
Independence.

Inyo
Freighting
Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Contign goods to the Company at Mojave.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co Clerk.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845.

Is the oldest and most popular scientific and mechanical paper published and has the largest circulation of any paper of its class in the world. Fully illustrated. Best class of Wood Engravings. Published weekly. Send for specimen copy. Price $3 a year. Four months' trial, $1. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, N.Y.

ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS Edition of Scientific American.

A great success. Each issue contains colored lithographic plates of country and city residences or public buildings. Numerous engravings and full plans and specifications for the use of such as contemplate building. Price $2.50 a year, 25 cts. a copy. MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS.

PATENTS may be secured by applying to MUNN & Co., who have had over 40 years' experience and have made over 100,000 applications for American and Foreign patents. Send for Handbook. Correspondence strictly confidential.

TRADE MARKS.

In case your mark is not registered in the Patent Office, apply to MUNN & Co., and procure immediate protection. Send for Handbook.

COPYRIGHTS for books, charts, maps, etc., quickly procured. Address

MUNN & CO., Patent Solicitors,
GENERAL OFFICE: 361 BROADWAY, N.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the bes manner.

WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING

All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

NOTICE TO SHEEP MEN.

Notice is hereby given to all persons engaged in the business of raising, grazing, herding and pasturing sheep in the County of Inyo, and who have not procured the license required by Ordinance No. 20 of the Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, are liable to a fine of two hundred and fifty dollars, or imprisonment in the proportion of one day for each dollar of said fine, and that they will be proceeded against as provided in said Ordinance.

J. R. ELDRED,
Tax Collector.

Independence Hote.

Indepen o - - Cal

H. LEVY, Proprietor.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL

DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—

Will be found acceptable to all patrons.

Daily Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.

NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.

Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.

Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.

☞ All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURKHARDT.

RENO MARBLE WORKS.
W. E. LINDSEY,
—Dealer in—
Gravestones, Monuments, Italian and American Marble, Etc.
—Agent for—
PENRYN AND SCOTCH GRANITE.
Virginia Street, Below Second,
Reno, Nevada.

MISCELLANEOUS

LITTLE'S
CHEMICAL FLUID
NON-POISONOUS
SHEEP DIP.

One gallon mixed with 60 gallons of cold water will dip thoroughly 180 sheep at a cost of 1 cent each. Easily applied; a nourisher of Wool; a certain cure for SCAB. Also,

Little's Patent Powder Dip.
(POISONOUS)

Mixes instantly with water. Prevents the fly from striking. In a 2 pound package there is sufficient to dip twenty sheep, and in a 7 pound package there is sufficient to dip one hundred sheep.

CATTON, BELL & CO
Successors to FALKNER, BELL & CO.,
No. 406 California Street, and Wool Agency warehouse, 6th and Townsend Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to

JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.

IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE
GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.

S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale
Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

CROCKER BROS., Props.
sept 1-tf

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—PIANOS
& ORGANS

☞ If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to

Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

NORMAN
HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, May 10th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House		11 00 a. m.	5 50 p. m.
Dayton		11 30 a. m.	5 10 p. m.
Wabuska		1 25 a. m.	3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne		5 05 p. m.	11 25 a. m.
Luning		6 25 p. m.	10 05 a. m.
Soda Springs		7 05 p. m.	9 05 a. m.
Belleville		8 45 p. m.	7 45 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar.	9 20 p. m.	Lv. 7 10 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—		No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville		8 10 a. m.	5 25 p. m.
Benton		11 40 a. m.	1 35 p. m.
Bishop Creek		1 500. m.	11 00 a. m.
Alvord		2 30 p. m.	10 00 a. m.
Independence		4 10 p. m.	8 30 a. m.
Lone Pine		5 05 p. m.	7 50 a. m.
Keeler	Ar.	5 45 p. m.	Lv. 7 00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Skinner, Salisbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Dunderville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

A. S. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☞

Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.

Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.

FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.

DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.

Matched and Dressed
Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—

The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.

All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JULY 6.....1889

BORN.

CRAIG—At Independence, June 30th., 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Craig, a son.

Ed. Shepherd and Fred. Holbert have returned.

Mr. J. C. Crocker was down from Big Pine on Wednesday.

Gustave Sanger, of Alvord, has gone to Bakersfield on a brief business trip.

Mr. Conn has moved his family to Big Pine. He will begin building a residence next week.

Miss Kohler went north on Thursday on her way to her home at St. Helena, Napa County.

All kinds of farm produce will be taken in payment for work at the blacksmith shop of J. W. Murphy

A large quantity of good lumber is already delivered at Rawson's dump. The mill is running steadily.

Mrs. A. A. Stewart of Lone Pine is in poor health and is about to travel for the benifit of change and recreation.

The Assessment roll this year is one of the neatest books ever presented to the Board of Equalization. It does credit to the Assessor and his assistants.

Big Pine is the liveliest town in the County. The Saline Valley borax works and mines over about Deep Spring make quite a business for the merchants.

Many people from the lower end of the Valley attended the celebration of the Fourth of July at Bishop. A good sized delegation went from Independence.

The drought in eastern Nevada is severely felt. The Enterprise says that stockmen are selling off all the cattle they can and driving away what they cannot sell, as there is no feed or hay.

The Supervisors met Monday as a Board of Equalization, and to consider bids for building of a bridge across Owens River at Big Pine. The matter of refunding the County Bonds was also considered.

Miss Grace McAfee went north last Tuesday morning on her way to Hawthorne, where she was invited to read the Declaration of Independence on the Glorious Fourth. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss May McAfee.

The celebration of the Fourth at Independence was a great success. We had plenty of fire crackers, and no speech. The children were delighted with the fire crackers, and their parents were hugely pleased with the no speech.

R. J. Whittaker has secured a lot and is putting up a building at Big Pine. Dick is an accomplished house painter and decorator. He is equally skilled as a tonsorial artist; and will decorate a head or a house with the same taste and celerity.

Charlie White, formerly a mine Superintendent of Bodie was at Independence at the end of last week. He was accompanied by John Kelly also an old Bodiite, but now of El Dorado. Both were here locating mines. Mr. White has been a resident of Los Angeles the past few years.

The Los Angeles Tribune says Antelope Valley will ship over 300 car loads of wheat this season. Antelope Valley is one of the last places on earth where anyone not accustomed to California soil would expect to grow anything. It is part of the Mojave desert, but the "desert" is a myth; there is no desert but what can be made fruitful by cultivation.

It is hot. You will find a nice cool hall at the Pioneer Brewery. Everybody gets thirsty such weather as this. A good drink of ice cold beer is very refreshing, and this can be had at the Pioneer Brewery. For a comfortable and pleasant place to spend an idle hour pleasantly, go to the Pioneer Brewery. If you want a bottle of nice cool beer to enjoy at home, you can get it at the Pioneer Brewery. Read the Pioneer Brewery ad.

The Crooker Brothers at Big Pine let an Italian have part of their land this year to work on shares. The alfalfa on this part will not make more than half a crop. The man had not properly attended to irrigation. On other parts of the land where irrigation was properly attended to the crop is very heavy. It does not pay to rent land to ignorant, careless, or lazy people.

The whole Nation joins in tributes of respect to the memory of the late Mrs. Hayes. She was a credit to American women, and commanded the respect of the whole world for her dignified, yet kind and gentle ways, during the Presidency of her husband. If President Hayes had been less of a gentleman and more of a politician, he would have been more popular than he was as President.

Preparation is being made at Keeler for the entertainment of the large number of men expected to be employed at Cerro Gordo. Among the rest John C. Anton has leased the Gehrig building, and will have a place where the boys can spend their earnings pleasantly. Anton is a pleasant fellow himself and will do all he can to make it pleasant for his visitors. See his advertisement.

The codlin moth is destroying the apple crop in Honey Lake Valley, Lassen County. Last spring a carload of apples was brought into this Valley from Lassen County If this should be repeated another year it is almost a certainty that the codlin moth—the worst of all apple destroying pests—would be brought here, and then farewell, a long farewell, to the perfection of our apples of which we are so justly proud. It would be well for the Supervisors to look into this matter; they have power to protect the county against the importation of fruit pests.

A few days ago the Examiner contained a long account of a great scandal in San Francisco. A very beautiful young married woman had deserted her husband. Of course husband and wife belonged to fashionable life, or the "Monarch of the Dailies" would not have deemed them worth notice. The woman was a singer in concert dives, and the man is a barber. A newspaper must be driven to sore straits when it will publish such stuff as this. It is a wrong to all the thousands of decent homes in San Francisco, when one of the leading papers of the City goes into the slums and gives to the world the nasty actions of degraded men and women, and parades these fallen creatures as samples of San Francisco society.

IRRIGATION.

The Senate Committe on Arid Lands and Irrigation will find a good field for investigation in Inyo County. Owens Valley from Olancha to the head of Round Valley is one hundred miles long. With irrigation it is very safe to say that a strip five miles wide for the entire length of the Valley can be cultivated. From the Alabama Hills northward to Black Rock, a distance of twenty odd miles; the valley could be covered with vineyards, orchards, grain and alfalfa for a width of at least eight miles, including both sides of the river. From Fish Spring hill northward, another twenty miles, a strip of equal width could all be made fertile and valuable land. The town of Bishop is near the centre of a body of good land that is certainly not less than ten miles wide from east to west and from north to south. West from this tract, and on to the head of Round Valley, say twelve miles, the whole region only needs irrigation to make it fertile and capable of sustaining a large population Any one who knows Owens Valley and will think over the foregoing statements, will at once admit that it is an underestimate to say that only five miles wide of the entire valley is susceptible of cultivation by irrigation. It is a common practice to estimate the cultivable part of the valley as being confined to that portion lying mainly between the towns and the river. But this is a very gross mistake; the best judges of land who have yet visited the valley, and men well informed on raisin culture and wine making, all agree that the best lands for these purpose lie nearer to the mountains on both sides of the valley than any yet cutivated. But grant that five miles is a fair estimate to make and let us look at the result:—Here we have five hundred square miles of land. The population of Belgium is over 474 persons to the square mile. The land in Owens Valley can easily be made as fertile as the land in Belgium, and the climate is far better. On the same ratio of population to area Owens Valley on its five hundred square miles would have a population of two hundred and thirty-seven thousand souls.

The population of Great Britain averages about 260 persons per square mile. This includes the barren moors and mountains of Scotland, of the north of England, and of Wales; and even at this ratio of population to area, the population of that five hundred square miles of land in Owens Valley would be one hundred and thirty thousand souls. The best land in Scotland, including Clydesdale, East Lothian, the Carse of Stirling and Falkirk, had not so many natural advantages when improvements began upon them as have the lands in Owens Valley. The climate of Scotland will bear no comparison with the climate of Owens Valley.

"Hail Caledonia, stern and wild,
Meet mass for a poetic child."

Sounds very well in rhyme; but reason and an empty stomach will prefer the delicious fruits and wines, the golden grain and sunny skies of Owens Valley, to the "Muslin Kail" and stern wildness of Caledonia, or of Wales. For as the haggis said to the harp,

A tune 's bat an air,
But a haggis is meat,
An' whar is the tune
That a body can eat?

At present only about twelve thousand acres of land are cultivated in Owens Valley, out of three hundred and twenty thousand equally as good land, and much of it better than a large part of what is already cultivated. It is a very important fact that the water for irrigating all this land is in sight, without being a single artesian well or seeking any new source of supply. The area of Owens Lake is in round numbers seventy thousand acres; the annual evaporation is equal to sixty inches of water. The evaporation is balanced by the water of Owens River flowing into the Lake. There are a few small streams flowing into the Lake near its south end, but these are not of sufficient importance to make any figure in the calculation. Here then is an amount of water flowing into the Lake from Owens River equal to fifteen inches distributed over two hundred and eighty thousand acres All of this water can be made available for irrigation without building a single reservoir; nor are there any serious engineering difficulties to be overcome in turning it upon the land. By far the larger portion of the land now under cultivation is irrigated from the streams that flow down from the Sierra Nevada mountains toward Owens River. These lands could be irrigited by canals, or by one grand canal, taken from the river, and the streams made available for irrigation above the canal. Should it be necessary to build reservoirs there are many little valleys all along the foothills of the Sierra Mountains where large quantities of water could be stored in absolute safety, and where the cost of making dams would be reduced to the lowest figure, as all the facilities are excellent and plenty of material easily available. The population of Inyo County at present is but little over three thousand. As already suggested, a proper system of irrigation would speedily bring the population of Owens Valley alone to more than one hundred thousand; and the impetus that would be given to mining all over the vast area of Inyo County—a territory of 10,500 square miles—would swell the population to much larger figures. In all their travels and investigations the Senate Committee will not find any region more worthy of their careful attention than Owens Valley.

Why Money Is Scarce.

Money is very scarce in Owens Valley; there was a time when it was very plentiful. Then we had something to sell—gold, silver and lead—that brought us much more money than we needed to pay for such articles as we were forced to import. The difference in values of what we bought and what we sold was largely in our favor, and it was this difference that made money plentiful. Now the cost of what we import is greater than the value of what we sell, and it is this difference that is draining the County of money. There are many things we are forced to import; but we send away large sums for canned fruits and vegetables; for hams, bacon and other things that could be produced of as good quality at home. It is our own want of energy and good management—and this is only another way of saying that it is want of common sense—that makes money scarce among us. What is true of Inyo County is true of the whole Nation. In the month of May we paid to foreign nations more than sixteen and one-half millions of dollars above the value of all that we sold to them. In place of this sixteen and one-half millions of dollars we have French wines, laces, silks, German hosiery, English cutlery and cloth, and other articles, nearly all of which could be produced in our own country, giving employment to our own people, keeping our money at home and making a better market for the productions of our own farms.

Supervisors Proceedings.

The Board of Supervisors met on Monday July 1st. 1889, as a Board of Equalization. There were present Supervisors E. Robinson Chairman; J. D. Harger, J. J. Stewart, Seth G. Sneden. Absent J. C. Eddy. The Board proceeded to examine the Assessment roll.

Bishop Races.

A trotting race under the auspices of the Eastern Slope L. & S. Association came off at Bishop last Wednesday. The following horses started: D. Old's, Ned, Mrs. Smith's, Dew Drop and Irv. Mulholland's Harry. Harry won in two straight heats. Time 3:08 and 3:10.

On Thursday Ned and Dew Drop trotted for a purse of $40, which was won by Ned. Time, 3:14 and 3:15,

The ¼ mile dash was won by B. Peeler's Patche. Time, 25 seconds.

Special Meeting.

A special meeting of the Board was held Wednesday, July 31., to consider bids for building a bridge across Owens River near Big Pine. The contract was awarded to O Hampton, his bid being the lowest, the sum of $1140. He was required th give a bond of $1100 for the faithful performance of the contract. The bridge is to be completed on or before October 1st, 1889. E. Robinson, Chairman of the Board was appointed to accept or reject the bridge when completed. Geo. H. Hardy and A. E. Janvier were appointed members of the County Board of Education. The question of refunding the County bonds was postponed till 6:30 o'clock p. m. on Friday, July 5th. 1889 and the Board adjourned till that time.

Not Too Fast

Prudence will suggest a little caution in outlay of money on the prospect of a big boom at Cerro Gordo. The men who now have control of the group of mines there are cautious and not likely to launch out into great expense on a mere prospect. At present the mines are reported to be looking well, with every indication of showing up big ore bodies; but it is tolerably certain that in no one of the mines has any such ore body yet been uncovered; and until a big body of ore is found it is hardly likely that a very large number of meny will be employed at the mines. And if such another body of ore should be found as was taken out of the Union mine formerly, there would not now be as many men employed at Cerro Gordo as were then. The ore will all be shipped away for smelting; consequently a little army of men will not be employed cutting wood; others picking, and more engaged in smelting. These different branches all made a large outlay of money in the former time that will not be equaled now. These are but a few of the considerations that will occur to suggest a little caution in spending money in preparation for the expected boom.

Title To Land Confirmed.

It will be remembered that in May, two years ago, there was a long contest at the Land Office at Independence between W. K. Miller and Dave Holland both of Lone Pine. Miller wanted to make final proof on a homestead entry, Holland entered a protest, alleging that Miller had abandoned the land. The case occupied the officers of the Land Office over a week and a great deal of testimony was taken. The Register and Reciever decided that Miller had acted in good faith from the beginning; that he had made many valuable improvements upon the land, and had lived upon it as the law requires and was entitled to the land. The case was referre to the General Land Office at Washington, and there the decision of the local officers is fully sustained. Miller is given credit for residence upon the land since 1877. His title to the land is now, therefore, perfect. A. R. Conklin Esq. was attorney for Mr. Miller

The Old Plague.

That old curse of the mining industry, that has been so fruitful of evil all over California, has fallen upon the Maxim property. A little over five years ago Harris & Rhine, of Independence, were appointed the legal agents and representatives of the Maxim Mill & Mining Co. The Mill was sold for taxes and was bought by Harris & Rhine. The firm supplied goods to the company and quite a bill was run up. When Mr. Harris retired from the firm, all claims against the property passed to Mr. Rhine. Last December Mr. A. Davidson as the representative of the Maxim Company, made an agreement with Mr Rhine, by which he bound himself to pay the latter what was claimed by him, amounting to over five thousand dollars; said payment to be made on or before July 1st. of this year. Should this agreement not be made good by Mr. Davidson, Mr. Rhine was then to have the property. About two weeks ago Mr. C. H. McConnell who is interested in the property came here from New York. Mr. Rhine being in San Francesco, he went there to meet him and try to effect a settlement. This it appears, could not be done, and on Monday last a complaint was filed on the part of the Maxim Mill & Mining Company against Nathan Rhine. This is almost certain to tie up the mines and mill for a long time to come.

Directors Meeting.

The Directors of the 18th District Agricultural Association met at Independence last Saturday. The following members of the Board were present:—A. R. Conklin, President; W. K. Miller, John Shepherd, A. W. Eibeshuiz, Finlay McIver, E. Robinson. Absent: W. S. Enos and J. S. Gorman.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

At a previous meeting it had been determined to make a new race track, and a committee had been appointed to select a site. The committee reported having found an excellent location about three-fourths of a mile north of town. The ground has been located by Mr. E. Robinson and the President and Secretary of the Association were authorized to make a contract with Mr. Robinson and take a lease of the land for ten years. Mr. Robinson offered to give such a lease for a merely nominal rent. The Committee on race track were continued and given full power to prepare a track. The location is an excellent one, and the ground as good as need be desired. The new track is already fenced on three sides, and it will cost but little to fence the rest.

The Board will offer the following purses for races at the coming Fair:

The first day, Tuesday, September 24, trotting, best 2 in 3. $200.

Third day, Thursday, September 26, running, mile heats, 2 in 3. $200.

Fourth day, Friday, September 27, trotting, double teams to buggy, mile heats, 2 in 3. $100.

All of these races will be free for all. An effort will be made to have as many more races as possible, of which notice will be given as soon as arrangements are complete.

The premium list for all kinds of exhibits, including stock and farm products; ores, manufactures &c., &c., will in the aggregate be more than double the amount offered last year.

The Board adjourned subject to the call of the Chair.

Mr. E. Hall's sister and her two children came down from Virginia City last Wednesday, and are now at Keeler.

The Big Pine saw mill is turning out lumber at a rapid rate.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MA HINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods,
Groceries,
Clothing,
Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter,
Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE LARGEST STOCK
Of Farm Machinery, Wagons, Buggies & Carriages in Southern CALIFORNIA.

MOLINE STEEL PLOWS,
WHITELY SOLID STEEL MOWERS,
OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS,
CHAMPION STEEL FRAME MOWERS,
FLYING DUTCHMAN AND CASADAY SULKY PLOWS,
THOMAS AND ROYAL SULKY RAKES,
HOGUE ORCHARD CULTIVATOR,
STICKLE STEEL HEADERS,
LUITWIELER VINEYARD CULTIVATOR,
J. I. CASE THRESHERS AND ENGINES,
PLANET JR. HORSE HOES,
STUDEBAKER FARM AND SPRING WAGONS,
DRILLS, SEEDERS AND GRINDERS,
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES AND BUCKBOARDS,
DISC HARROWS, SCALES, BALING WIRE,
BALE TIES, BARBED WIRE, WIRE MESH FENCING.

WRITE FOR CIRCULARS AND PRICES.

S. W. LUITWIELER,
NO. 100 LOS ANGELES ST. Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK ..... PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2 25 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,
DEALERS IN
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

NOTICE TO STOCKMEN.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, owners and occupants of lands lying under and in the vicinity of the East Side Canal, to all stock raisers and ranchmen having loose stock running at large, that the law entitled "An Act to protect growing crops, growing in the County of Inyo," approved March 28th, 1872, will be strictly enforced against all animals found trespassing upon the lands owned and occupied by us, between the 15th day of March and the 15th day of November of each each year. (Signed.) F. McIVER,
DR. S. BISHOP,
PERSIA H. BISHOP,
L. L. WOODIN, M. D.
WILL H. GRAHAM,
J. H. PARISH,
H. J. ROBINSON.

Dated June 10th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOEL H. SMITH, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Executor, at Bishop, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the County of Inyo State of California

HORACE M. SMITH,
Executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Dated at Bishop, Cal. June 10th, 1889. o-5

MISCELLANEOUS.

Alias Summons.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnson, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or if served elsewhere within thirty days. The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between you and the plaintiff in the above entitled action, and for general relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the judgment and relief in said complaint demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1889.

(SEAL). P. H. MACK, Clerk.

[INDORSED.]

SUPERIOR COURT, COUNTY OF INYO.

Maggie Johnston, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Johnston, alias W. L. Randle, Defendant.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Plaintiff. o-4

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL
Bishop Creek.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

GENERAL MERC

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain
Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH S ORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117
SMITH'S CASH STORE
is The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.
SPRATT & CREASER,
sept tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 14th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 22th day of June 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUCE, Secretary.
—205 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal.

IT COST TOO MUCH.

The Sad Experience Which Befell One of the Astors.

In the early days of the direct tea trade with China, importers were anxious to secure the earliest cargoes of a new crop. The fastest clipper ships were engaged in the trade. Great haste in loading them was followed by a hot race to reach New York first.

The first cargo brought the best price and large profits. The successful Captain was always rewarded, so every known aid to navigation was adopted.

The young captain of one of Mr. Astor's clippers bought, on one of his trips, a new chronometer, and with its aid made a quick passage, and arrived first. He put the price of it into the expense account of the trip, but Mr. Astor threw it out, insisting that such an item of expense for new fangled notions could not be allowed.

The Captain thereupon resigned and took service with a rival line.

The next year he reached port long in advance of any competitor, to the great delight and profit of his employers, and the chagrin of Mr. Astor.

Not long after they chanced to meet, and Mr. Astor inquired:

"By the way, Captain, how much did that chronometer cost you?"

"Six hundred dollars," then, with a quizzical glance, he asked:

"And how much has it cost you, Mr. Astor?"

"Sixty thousand dollars."

Men are often unfortunate in the rejection of what they call new fangled notions.

There are sick men who refuse, even when their physicians tell them they cannot help them, to take Warner's Safe Cure, because it is a "new fangled" proprietary medicine. The result is they lose—life and health.

Thousands of other men have been restored to health by it, as the testimonials furnished to the public show. These testimonials cannot be doubted. The proprietors have a standing offer of $5,000 to any one who will show that any testimonial published by them is not, so far as they know, entirely true.

Dr. Andrew Wilson, Fellow of the Royal Society, of Edinburg, the editor of "Health," London, Eng., says, in his magazine, in answer to an inquiry, "Warner's Safe Cure is of a perfectly safe character, and perfectly reliable."

The refusal of a manufacturing firm to pay for the patent of a new invention by one of their workmen, cost them their entire business. A new firm took out the patent and were soon enabled to make goods enough cheaper to drive the old firm out of business; and many a physician is daily finding his patients, long-time chronic invalids, unaccountably restored to health by the use of the new kidney specific. New fangled notions are sometimes very valuable, and it costs too much to foolishly reject them.

ABOUT HEDGEHOGS.

Why Hunters Have a Deadly Hatred of the Little Animal.

There are a great many hedgehogs in the woods here, and all hunters have a deadly hatred of them, and always kill them whenever found, under the idea that they will otherwise not have good luck in hunting. They do great damage to the timber by girdling the trees in the winter as they feed upon the bark. There are acres of pine trees in some places where scarcely a tree has escaped them, a great many being girdled all around and killed. The animal sits on the snow, it is said, when gnawing trees, so that these girdled places show the depth of the snow. I saw some work of hedgehogs, however, where they had barked the tree forty feet from the ground in places where the snow could hardly have been so deep. I only came across one in my wanderings, a big shaggy beast, too lazy to get out of the way. I did not want to shoot it for fear of frightening the game in the neighborhood, and so contented myself with pelting him with rocks, whereupon he ran and tried to hide under a fallen tree, where I left him. One night about midnight I was awakened by a loud thumping and pounding just outside the tent, and on going out found one of the hunters in his night clothes belaboring a hedgehog with a club. He was taking his revenge on the animal for falling out of a tree and waking him up.—Forest and Stream.

—The higher you are lifted by the remarks of a flatterer, the flatter you feel when you come down to the truth again.

FOUR OF THEM WON.

Col. Tanner Tells How Four of Five Tickets in The Louisiana State Lottery Drew Prizes.

"Yes, said Col. W. A. Tanner, at 398 Nicollet Avenue this morning as he invited all callers to partake of a splendid lunch which was spread out on the tables of his store "this comes from the Louisiana State Lottery. You see," he went on, "I bought five tickets in the April drawing and all but one drew money. I have been thinking of making complaint because the other one didn't draw a prize too. The principal one was a slice of the big prize, and received as my share $15,000. The money is now in the First National bank, through which it was collected. The prizes drawn by the other numbers were $25, $15 and $10."

Col. Tanner is the well-known proprietor of the "Elite," and takes his good fortune without any more ado than he would display in beating John Flannigan out of a cigar at a game of dice. He said this morning that he had bought lottery tickets at various times during his life but doubted if he had invested $200 in all his life. He is therefore inclined to believe that the lottery is a good thing to patronize. I never had any doubt of its squareness," he went on, "or I should not have bought tickets. But if I had been a disbeliever, this experience would certainly have convinced me of my mistake. It's a square deal and every man is likely to be struck by the favorable lightning as I was. Yes, I'm going to invest in the next drawing. In fact, I have already a half dozen different numbers."—Minneapolis (Minn.) Star, May 1

A FAMILY JEWEL.

Dr. David Kennedy, the famous surgeon and physician, of Rondout, N. Y., has sent us a copy of his Medical Book—How to Cure Kidney, Liver and Blood Disorders—a work of great merit, apart from many elegant life illustrations of beauty. It is a work of exceeding merit, one which should be read in every home. In addition to the valuable medical lessons there are two articles from the widely known author, Col. E. Z. C. Judson, (Ned Buntline), which add to the interest of the work. The price is 25 cents, but any one enclosing this notice with the name of this paper with a 2-cent stamp to the Doctor will receive the book free by mail.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

Something About the New British Minister to the United States.

There are few more cosmopolitan men in the British Government service than Sir Julian Pauncefote, the newly-appointed Envoy of the English Government to the United States. He was born at Munich, was educated at Paris, Geneva and at Marlborough College, in England; has acted as Attorney-General at Hong Kong and as Chief-Justice of the West India Islands, and is now about to crown his erratic but successful career by becoming the Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of Queen Victoria to the United States. Though far from a brilliant man, and even reputed as somewhat slow and ponderous, yet he has the advantage of being a particularly safe man—one, in fact, who will duly weigh the pros and cons of every matter, even the most trivial, before coming to a decision as to what particular course to pursue. If any thing, he is too cautious, the effect, perhaps, of a legal training which enabled him to devise a code of civil procedure for the colony of Hong Kong and subsequently for the Leeward Islands.

In 1874, after having been knighted by the Queen, he was appointed Assistant Legal Under-Secretary of State to the Colonial Department. He, however, did not succeed in getting on very well with the Permanent Under-Secretary, Sir Robert Herbert, who complained that the excessive caution exercised by his legal assistant delayed business. In fact, Sir Robert used every means in his power to shunt Sir Julian from the Colonial Office. But the Pauncefotes have considerable staying powers, and not even the offer of the lucrative Chief-Justiceship of Ceylon could induce him to forgo the sweets of a fat office in England.

At length, however, Sir Robert persuaded the Earl of Derby, at that time Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, that Sir Julian was the very man of all others whose legal services would be of incalculable value to the Foreign Office. Lord Derby accordingly offered the newly-created Legal Under-Secretaryship of the Foreign Office to Sir Julian, and the department has never had occasion to regret the bargain since. For, with all his little faults of pomposity and self-consciousness, the newly-appointed Envoy to the United States is one of the most eminent experts of international law now alive.

Sir Julian's favorite amusement is fencing, and he is almost as clever with the foils as in dealing with intricate questions of international law. Although far from rich and dependent almost entirely on his official pay, yet he has always been renowned for his kindly hospitality, especially to strangers. Sir Julian, besides being a Knight Commander of the Bath, is also a grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. Lady Pauncefote was a Miss Cubett by birth and is descended from the famous Lord Mayor of that name. She is very popular, as is also her pretty daughter.

On the whole, both the new British Minister and his family are likely to be quite as popular at Washington as were the Thorntons, especially if Sir Julian can manage to lay aside a little of the pomposity which hides a very warm and kindly heart.—N. Y. World.

BATHING IN ALASKA.

Processes That Are Decidedly Disagreeable to the Uninitiated.

Every Russian trading post, according to Mr. Dall, has a bath-house, and once a week all the people avail themselves of its privileges. The apparatus is simple, not to say primitive, but the method is what might be called heroic, especially the dressing in a room where the temperature is below zero. A rude arch of loose stones is built, and more stones piled over it, so that a fire made beneath the arch can penetrate between them.

There is no chimney, but a trap-door in the roof. A large cask full of water heated for the purpose, and another of cold water, generally with ice floating in it, and a succession of benches, one above the other, complete the equipment. When the stones are thoroughly heated, and the smoke has all passed out, all coals are removed and the trap-door is shut; any smoke or coals remaining will make the eyes smart and the bath very uncomfortable. Each one leaves his clothing in an outer room, and on entering wets his head and throws hot water on the heated stones until as much steam is produced as he can bear. Then he mounts as high on the benches as he finds comfortable, and the perspiration issues from every pore. Next he takes a sort of broom or bunch of dried mint or birch twigs, with the leaves still on them, which is prepared at the proper season and called meenik. With this he thrashes himself till all impurities are thoroughly loosened from the skin, and finishes with a wash-off in hot water and soap. Then taking a kantag, or wooden dish, full of ice-cold water, he dashes it over himself, and rushes out into the dressing-room.

This last process is disagreeable to the uninitiated, but is absolutely necessary to prevent taking cold. I have known cases of acute rheumatism brought on by omitting it. The dressing-room is spread with straw, and always communicates with the outer air. The temperature is often many degrees below zero, but such is the activity of the circulation that one dresses in perfect comfort notwithstanding. A warm dressing-room would be insupportable.—Youth's Companion.

—A shoe manufacturer in Portland, Me., being asked to assist in providing bread for the suffering poor, said he would contribute to the extent of 100 sacks of flour and 100 bushels of meal, one sack of flour and one bushel of meal to be given to every man in Portland who neither kept a dog, drank rum nor used tobacco, and was in need of bread. According to the local papers, nobody appeared to claim the gift.

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

Bowser Tackles the House and Gets Done Up.

"What did those two colored women want?" inquired Mr. Bowser as he came in the other evening just as the individuals referred to were passing out.

"They called to see when I would be ready for them."

"How ready?"

"It is spring, you know."

"Well, what has spring, you know, got to do with two colored women?"

"I have got to wash a few windows and take up a carpet or two."

"House cleaning?"

"No, not exactly, but then"——

"See here, Mrs. Bowser, this thing has got to stop right here and now! Because, some 200 years ago, some old cranky housekeeper in New England felt obliged to rip and tear and upset the house for two or three weeks in April, all you women of today feel obliged to keep up the custom."

"But everybody cleans house more or less."

"Can't help that. I'm not going to have everything topsy turvy around here for the next three weeks. That will be the result if you put two women at work. They will spin out the job as long as possible."

"It won't take over a week."

"A week! It shouldn't take one day! I can go at it and do all the cleaning necessary in one hour."

"Mr. Bowser," I said, "didn't you have an experience last spring?"

"Yes, ma am. I experienced this house from top to bottom in just two hours, and it still remains the cleanest house in Detroit. I have nothing particular to do to-morrow, and I shall take hold."

"I—I can't help you any?"

"When I want your valuable assistance I will ask for it, Mrs. Bowser. As I am feeling in good spirits this evening, I might as well begin on that coal stove. I'll wrestle it out into the back hall, ready to go to the barn in the morning."

I went up stairs just as he pulled off his coat and spit on his hands. I knew just what a muss he'd make, and I didn't want to be there to see. In a few minutes I heard the clatter of the stovepipe, as four or five lengths bounced around on the floor, and three minutes later there was a wild yell for help. I ran down just as the girl got in from the kitchen. Mr. Bowser was lying on his back on the floor, and the stove was lying on Mr. Bowser. He was almost black in the face as he gasped:

"Take him off—take the blamed thing off of me!"

The girl and I succeeded in lifting it high enough for him to roll out, and he sat up and groaned and swore and threatened dire things.

"I was afraid it would be too much for you," I said as I offered him a wet towel.

"Oh! you were! How kind of you! You are disappointed because the infernal thing didn't knock the life out of me!"

I went up stairs and he rested awhile. Then I heard him moving the furniture about, and by and by he came up to say:

"I want some salt to put on the carpet before I sweep."

"But that carpet must come up, Mr. Bowser. It's been down two years."

"That's all nonsense! Mother never lifted a carpet until it was worn out. Where's the salt?"

"But the curtains must come down, the woodwork be rubbed with a damp cloth, the windows washed, and"——

"And the roof of the house raised ten feet, of course. One would think we'd had small-pox in the house. I'll get the step ladder and take the curtains down. Perhaps I'll take the carpet up to-morrow, but it's a waste of time."

He went down and got the ladder, and I heard him whistling as he worked at one of the curtains. His whistle presently cut short off, and there was a crash and a yell, and I flew down to find Mr. Bowser lying across that end of the lounge which still remained in the room. His eyes were closed and I thought him dead from his fall. I got the camphor and the girl flung water in his face, and by and by he gasped and opened his eyes and faintly asked:

"Is this heaven?"

"No, Mr. Bowser," I gently replied, "this is only spring house cleaning."

"What has happened?" he continued, as he rose up.

"You had a fall."

"And while I was unconscious you took advantage of my condition to take a $5 bill from my wallet!"

"I never thought of such a thing!"

"Well, I can tell later on. I had a sensation as of some one feeling in my pockets. I'll have that curtain down if it takes a leg."

"Won't you please give up your Quixotic idea, Mr. Bowser? No man can clean"——

"Can't, eh! Well, I'll show you to the contrary. Quixotic idea! I'll show you and old Quix, too, that I can do more housecleaning in an hour than you can in a week. Get out of the way while"——

He was in his slippers and he picked up a big tack, and that ended him. He was half scared to death for fear of lockjaw, and he insisted on going to bed and sending for a doctor. The good man heard what I had to say and then observed:

"Mr. Bowser, don't you leave your bedroom for at least a week to come. That foot must have perfect rest."

And next day I sent for my colored women and began work. We are not through yet. Neither is Mr. Bowser out of his room. He sits with his foot on a chair, and we have left his room undisturbed. When I enter with head tied up, a big apron on and my fingers red and bleeding from tack wounds and bruises, he corseles me with:

"Such a fuss over nothing! Why, I had four-fifths of the work done when this unfortunate accident made me a cripple for life. You can see what this house would come to if I should be taken away by death."—Detroit Free Press.

Outgrown.

"Mrs. Brown, I guarantee that piece of goods to wash without shrinking."

"Oh, you's slick tongued 'nuff! Dem's jes de words yo' used when I bide dat calico Idee's dress made on, an' now look at it, shrunk up mos' to her knees, when it nigh touched her heels when I made it."

"Why, really, I don't remember ever selling you such goods. Do you remember when you bought them?"

"Lemme see—Tink it was 'bout fo' yea'r 'go."—Harper Bazar.

—A lady who lives near Lagrange, Ga., ordered her servant girl to fire up the stove preparatory to baking some potatoes. She did as she was directed, but when the stove door was opened the house cat was found baked to a turn.

—The regulation professional garb of the English physicians and surgeons is the high hat—black in winter, drab or white in summer—and always a dark frock or morning coat.

AN IRISH DUELIST.

How the Famous Pat Power Possessed Himself of a Gold Watch.

Pat Power, of Daragle, was a fat, robust man, much distinguished for his intemperance, and generally seen with a glowing red face. He on one occasion fought with a fire-eating companion named Bill Brisco. When taking aim, he said he still had a friendship for him, and would show it; so he only shot off his whisker and top of his ear.

When traveling in England, Power had many encounters with persons who were attracted by his brogue and clumsy appearance. On one occasion, a group of gentlemen were sitting in a box at one end of the room when he entered at the other. The representative of Irish manners at this time on the English stage was a tissue of ignorance, blunders and absurdities; and when a real Irishman appeared off the stage, he was always supposed to have the characteristics of his class, and so a fair butt for ridicule.

When Power took his seat in the box, the waiter came to him with a gold watch, with a gentleman's compliments, and a request to know what o'clock it was by it. Power took the watch, and then directed the waiter to let him know the person who sent it. He pointed out one of a group. Power rang the bell for his servant, and directed him to bring his pistols and follow him. He put them under his arm, and, with the watch in his hand, walked up to the box, and, presenting the watch, begged to know to whom it belonged. When no one was willing to own it, he drew his own silver one from his fob, and presenting it to his servant, desired him to keep it; and putting up the gold one, he gave his name and address, and assured the company he would keep it safe till called for. It was never claimed.

On another occasion Power ordered supper, and while waiting for it he read the newspaper. After some time, the waiter laid two covered dishes on the table, and when Power examined their contents he found they were two dishes of smoking potatoes. He asked the waiter to whom he was indebted for such good fare, and he pointed to two gentlemen in the opposite box. Power desired his servant to attend him, and, directing him in Irish what to do, quietly made his supper of the potatoes, to the great amusement of the Englishmen. Presently his servant appeared with two more covered dishes, one of which he laid down before his master, and the other before the persons in the opposite box. When the covers were removed there was found in each a loaded pistol. Power took up his and cocked it, telling one of the others to take up the second, assuring him "they were at a very proper distance for a close shot, and if one fell, he was ready to give satisfaction to the other." The parties immediately rushed out without waiting for a second invitation, and with them several persons in the adjoining box. As they were all in too great a hurry to pay their reckoning, Power paid it for them along with his own —An elephant died in Bombay lately who had lived to be 300 years old.

—A young woman at Ostend, Belgium, is said to take a sea bath every day in the year, remaining in the water about fifteen minutes.

—Li Hi, the present King of Corea, belongs to a family which has held the Corean throne since 1392. During that time twenty-nine Kings have reigned, and the power of each has been more despotic than that of the Czar of Russia.

DISARMING AN UNSEEN FOE.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defense against which the enemy is powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

The man who invents a telling phrase renders a decided service to the cause he has in hand.

HAPPY HOMES.

Here's a health to the wives and the mothers
Who sit in our households to day;
Who are glad when they brighten for others
The hours that go drifting away.
May their eyes keep the light of the gladness,
Their hearts hold the fullness of bliss
That banishes shadows and sadness,
And what need we ask more than this?

But—how can this happiness be kept? What shall protect those we love,—those who make a Heaven of the Home,—from the ravages of disease that is often worse than death,—that is, in fact, a lingering death? The question is easily answered: Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the standard remedy for all of those peculiar diseases to which women are subject,—is what must be relied on to preserve the health of wives and mothers. It prevents these diseases, and it cures them. It is a blessing to women and therefore a national blessing, because it gives health to those about whom the happiness of home centers, and the strength of a nation is in its happy homes.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Anti-bilious Granules; in vials, 25 cents; one a dose. Druggists.

A man who cannot mind his own business is not fit to be trusted with another's.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittburgh, Pa.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment is the only sure cure for Blind, Bleeding or Itching Piles ever discovered. It never fails to cure old chronic cases of long standing.

Judge Coffinbury, Cleveland, Ohio., says:

"I have found by experience that Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment gives immediate relief."

Do not suffer an instant longer. Sold by William's Manufacturing Co., Props., Cleveland, Ohio 50c & $1.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

A man of downright good sense and good feeling inevitably hates quarreling.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are excellent for the relief of Hoarseness or Sore Throat. They are exceedingly effective. Sold only in boxes. Price 25 cts.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

One knows the value of pleasure only after he has suffered pain.

STONE IN THE KIDNEY.

I was first taken with sharp pains in the lower part of my bowels in the region of the bladder. Shortly blood appeared mixed with my urine, and a few weeks later I had an attack of gravel, I tried a number of doctors. One said it was gravel, another inflammation of the bladder, and another stone in kidneys. For three months I was under the care of an eminent doctor at Albany, but constantly growing worse, went home to die. At this time I was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., and am now robust and strong. A remedy which can do this for one so near death as I was should be known everywhere. I hope this statement will cause others afflicted as I was to use the Remedy.—C. W. Brown, Petersburgh, N. Y.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

A great career is the dream of youth realized in mature age.

ALWAYS SAFE AND SURE.

It is safe to take BRANDRETH'S PILLS at any time, but to get the best results they should be taken on an empty stomach before going to bed. For Constipation or Dyspepsia one or two taken every night will, in a short time, perform an absolute cure. It is well to take a purgative at least once or twice a month as a preventive of disease. BRANDRETH'S PILLS are entirely vegetable, and the safest and most effective purgative ever introduced to the public. They have been used in this country for over fifty years.

A homely man of merit is never repulsive. As soon as he is named his physique is forgotten; the mind passes through it to see the soul.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest, Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alumn. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK. CHICAGO. SAN FRANCISCO.

S S S FOR THE BLOOD.

Swift's Specific has cured me of a malignant breaking out on my leg, which caused intolerable pain. It was called Eczema by the doctors—four of whom treated me with no relief. I candidly confess that I owe my present good health to S. S. S., which in my estimation is invaluable as a blood remedy. MISS JULIA DEWITT,
227 N. 10th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Our baby when two months old was attacked with Scrofula, which for a long time destroyed her eyesight entirely, and caused us to despair of her life. The doctor failed to relieve her, and we gave Swift's Specific, which soon cured her entirely, and she is now hale and hearty.
E. V. DERK, Wilt's Point, Texas.

Send for book giving history of Blood Diseases and advice to sufferers, mailed free.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

BARKER'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
—FOR—
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

L. M. WALTERS' Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car Excursions to Chicago and Boston, Without Change of Cars
LEAVE SAN FRANCISCO
May 2nd, June 13th, July 11th, " 16th, " 27th, " 25th, " 30th. For locations in these cars, rates, tickets and full information, address—L. M. WALTERS, 634 Market Street, San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA ROSES!

STRONG, WELL-ROOTED PLANTS, ALL Labeled, Assorted, 10 for $1.00. Geraniums, Fuchsias, Heliotrope, Begonias, Verbenas and Chrysanthemums in large variety. Good Healthy Plants, all Labeled, 12 for $1.00. All plants sent free by mail, and safe arrival guaranteed for Cash with order. Address, W. A. T. STRATTON, Florist, Petaluma, Cala.

Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mf'd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, O. Trade Mark. $1.00. Sold by Druggists.

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

The Oldest Medicine in the World is probably
DR. ISAAC THOMPSON'S CELEBRATED EYE-WATER.
This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century. There are few diseases to which mankind are subject more distressing than sore eyes, and none, perhaps, for which more remedies have been tried without success. For all external inflammation of the eyes it is an infallible remedy. If the directions are followed it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. For sale by all druggists. JOHN L. THOMPSON, SONS & CO., TROY, N. Y. Established 1797.

Harvest Hands!

And all other kinds of Help furnished at short notice. Wire, Telephone or Mail your orders to C. R. HANSEN & CO., Employment Agents, 110 Geary St., San Francisco, Cal. Telephone 485.

ST. JACOBS OIL
For Rheumatism.
The Latest, Current Cures.

On Crutches. Forney, Tex., June 23, 1888. Was on crutches from rheumatism for three months; one bottle St. Jacobs Oil cured me. No return in two years. J. S. WOOD, J. P.

Since the War. Waynesville, O., June 26, '88. Had had rheumatism since the war in knee; a year ago two applications St. Jacobs Oil cured me. No return since. K. KILBOR.

No Sleep. Greenville, O., June 29, 1888. Walked the floor at night, suffering with rheumatism; no relief; tried St. Jacobs Oil; half a bottle cured me. No return in years. J. C. WEAVER.

AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roenish Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

HAIRY FACES! M. Graham's Depilatory Paste is guaranteed to remove hair and check its growth. $1.50 by mail. Send 2c stamp for book "How to be Beautiful." MRS. GERVAISE GRAHAM, "Beauty Doctor," 21 Powell St., San Francisco.

$75.00 TO $250.00 A MONTH can be made working for us. Agents preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1009 Main St., Richmond, Va. N. B.—Please state age and business experience. Never mind about sending stamp for reply. B. F. J. & Co.

KNABE PIANOS It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments. A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 132 Post street, S. F.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

DROPSY —TREATED FREE.— Positively Cured with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases. Cure patients pronounced hopeless by the best physicians. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. Send for free book of testimonials of miraculous cures. Ten days treatment furnished free by mail. If you order trial, send 10 cents in stamps to pay postage. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Atlanta, Ga. If you order trial return this advertisement to us.

ESTABLISHED 1862.
F. H. HAMMER,
—WHOLESALE—
Produce Dealer
—AND—
Commission Merchant,
215 and 217 Davis St., - S. F., Cal.

When Shipping anything to this Market let me handle your business.
Quick sales and prompt returns on all Consignments. Write for Weekly Price Current.
Member of San Francisco Produce Exchange and Call Board.
Grain Bought and Sold on Margins. Money Advanced on Shipments.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO
Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

PEOPLES HOME SAVINGS BANK
JAS. K. WILSON, Cashier.
COLUMBUS WATERHOUSE, President.
805 Market Street, cor. 4th St.
IN FLOOD BUILDING.
San Francisco, California.
GUARANTEE CAPITAL, $300,000

Deposits from any part of the Pacific Coast States may be sent by registered letter, post office money order, bank draft or express.
The People's Home Savings Bank has exceptional facilities for safe, profitable and satisfactory investment of funds at good rates of interest.

Dr. John C. Spencer,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
Arzt und Chirurg.
OFFICE, 514 Sutter St. bet Powell & Mason
San Francisco, California.
RESIDENCE, Westminster Hotel,
614 Sutter St. one block above.

GARMENTS Guaranteed TO FIT PERFECT without trying on. FREE by return mail, full descriptive circulars of MOODY'S NEW TAILOR SYSTEM OF DRESS CUTTING. Any lady of ordinary intelligence can easily and quickly learn to cut and make any garment, in any style to any measure for lady or child. Address MOODY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

A BIG SHOW
Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

WELL DRILLS
FOR EVERY PURPOSE.
Sold on Trial!
Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by
F. C. AUSTIN MANF'G CO.,
Cor. Carroll ave. & Carpenter St., Chicago, Ill.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

FARMERS AND MINE OWNERS (not coal) supplied with pupils. Apply Colonial Agency, 2 Billiter Street, London, E. C.

LONGFELLOW'S MAIDEN, who is—

"Standing, with reluctant feet,
Where the brook and river meet,
Womanhood and childhood fleet!"

is a type of thousands of young girls who are emerging from the chrysalis stage of their existence, as they enter upon their "teens." Nervous, excitable, irritable, stirred by strange, unknowable forces within them, each a mystery unto herself, our girls need the tenderest care, the most loving, patient oversight, and the aid of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, to safely carry them through this critical period, during which, in too many lives, alas, are sown the seeds of distressing forms of diseases peculiar to the female sex. But this boon to womankind will prevent all such diseases, or cure them if they have already seized a victim. Woman owes it to herself, to her family, and to her social station, to be well and strong. Let her then not neglect the sure means of cure. "Favorite Prescription" is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. Sold by druggists; $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Copyrighted, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS. PURELY VEGETABLE and PERFECTLY HARMLESS. Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, cheapest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the Stomach and Bowels. 25 cents, by druggists.

THE BEST CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.
SATURDAY....JULY 13 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 5. - INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 13, 1889. WHOLE NO. 976.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 50
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

MASTER RICHARD.

I may say that I was brought up in the family, for it is now nigh on to thirty years since I came into it, and I was then a lusty youth of almost 20. It almost makes me tremble when I think of it to find that in a few months I shall be half a century old. Well, during those thirty years I've seen and known some startling things in the family, but nothing more so than what I'm about to tell.

Of course I use no real names, and I shall call my master Richard, though that was not at all his real name any more than that of the family was Stratton, which I shall call them. Master Richard Stratton's father was a very practical man, who had come from England as a boy, married a New York lady and made a large fortune as a merchant. He had but one child, a son, Master Richard, and of him he made an idol, especially after the death of his wife, who departed this life, beloved by all, when Master Richard was 5 years old.

I have said that Mr. Stratton was a very practical man, and he showed it when he employed me, a stout and intelligent lad of 20, freshly arrived from a rural part of England, as a care-taker of Master Richard, then a handsome boy of 3 years old. French bonnes, fresh from Ireland, was not then in fashion, and it pleased Mr. and Mrs. Stratton to intrust Master Richard to me rather than to some half-witted nursemaid, and I am confident that they never regretted it.

How fond I became of that boy, and how well he deserved all the care and devotion I lavished on him! I taught him to ride, to jump and to drive, and, that I might teach them again to Master Richard, I learned to box and the use of the sword. I really felt as if that boy belonged to me, and I do believe that it was on my account that he should not be separated from me that his father employed a tutor and had Master Richard educated at home instead of sending him away to school; and, farther than that, when it came to college years he sent him to Columbia so that I had daily care of him, instead of to Harvard, which I knew was his first choice.

All these years passed away very rapidly, and I may say very happily, and Master Richard always treated me with the highest consideration, never allowing me to feel, for an instant, my inferiority, but, on the contrary, always placing before me his desire that I should uphold his and my own pride by acting as if I was a gentleman and the equal of any one, as long as I was honest and behaved myself. I was his own man and I felt it an honor. Before strangers he always called me Mr. Brown, but when alone he would call me Brown, and sometimes Bob, which latter cognomen I liked much the best.

But now comes the first opening of what I call the dark era. Master Richard graduated with high honors, and had chosen the law for his profession, since it seems that in this country every man, no matter what his wealth or tastes, must be something, and he began to study for it. Then it was that Master Richard fell in love. I knew it before his father did, and was the medium of correspondence, for the boy made a confidant of me in everything, and I did not hesitate in doing anything to forward it, feeling that the father must approve of the lady.

Miss Allie Sylvester was simply beautiful. She was of unimpeachable family, and for her age, which was only 19, was one of the pronounced belles of society. I knew that Master Richard was engaged to her, and he told me when he made his father acquainted with the fact, and soon afterward I found that it was whispered freely about. At first it was easy to be seen that Mr. Stratton was pleased with the match, though he hinted as much to me as to say that he thought his son too young to marry. Then, after the affair began to be well known, it was evident that there was some cloud lowering between father and son.

One day when Master Richard was out Mr. Stratton sent for me to come into the library and put me through the severest line of questioning I ever underwent in my life, and it was all about Miss Sylvester, and much of it, as I then thought, of a very curious kind, bearing, as it did, on my impressions of the lady's personal looks and conduct. I answered him as best I could, but he did not seem satisfied, and afterwards when I thought the matter over I got suspicion as to what he was driving at, and remembered that several times when I had been ordered to deliver a letter or message, personally to her, she had acted in a way that I thought a little strange, but as I attributed it to her being in love—though I was never that way myself—I thought nothing of it. Mr. Stratton gave me no orders to keep the interview with him secret, and so I told it to Master Richard who was at first very angry, but afterward laughed at it, though he made no explanation. A week later Master Richard came in very much excited and angry, and said to me:

"Bob, have you seen anything about Miss Sylvester when you have been there for me, that looked as though she had been using stimulants, either wine or opium?"

The question shocked me, and I was obliged to confess to him that I had noticed a singular levity in Miss Sylvester at times, but that I had never thought of attributing it to that cause until after his father had questioned me, and that I was not prepared now to pronounce it so. Then he said, the anger flashing out of his eyes:

"Do you know that Dr. Willsey, that old scrub, has dared to presume, because he has been our family doctor for 30 years, to come between my father and myself by telling him that Miss Sylvester is an irretrievable victim to stimulants, especially opium?"

"How did he know it, Master Richard?" I asked.

"He says he has known it for several years, and that he has had her several times under his treatment for it. It's a lie, but my father believed it, and even if it were true I'd marry her and trust to love afterward to cure her of the habit, if she had it."

I could not help approving this, though my heart misgave me, because I knew that Master Richard's whole life was absorbed in his love, and that without her that life would be a waste to him. Two or three times after this I saw that my boy was excited and almost wild with suppressed anger, but he did not speak until one evening some weeks after the last conversation, when he said to me:

"Bob, I am going to put a stop to this infamous slander. I have ordered a carriage to be here at 8 o'clock, and in the meantime you must pack my trunks and hold yourself ready to go with me. I shall marry Miss Sylvester to-night, and to-morrow I shall depart for Europe. I have written to my father, and he can forgive me or not as he pleases, but I'm not afraid of the final result."

I had nothing to do but to obey orders, and at 8 o'clock, when the carriage came, we are ready. Mr. Stratton was out—he generally was at that hour—at his club, and Master Richard laid the letter for him on the library table, and we drove away to a hotel, where he saw his trunks deposited in elegant rooms which he was as careful in selecting as though he and his bride were to inhabit them forever, instead of for a single day.

Then we drove to Miss Sylvester's residence. Her only parent was her mother, a scheming, fashionable woman, who, of course, favored the match, but whom Master Richard did not like, and had several times said to me that when he was married he intended to keep his wife as much away from her mother as possible. The two ladies were expecting us and were prepared. In ten minutes we were all on our way to the clergyman's. Miss Sylvester, her mother, Master Richard and the bridesmaid, Nannie, a Swiss girl, very pretty, but, I must say, I did not like her, though I can say without vanity that she had made plenty of advances to me. I was on the box with the driver.

How supremely beautiful did Miss Sylvester appear that evening in her plain traveling dress, as she stood up before the minister to be made Mrs. Richard Stratton. It was all over in a few minutes, and then she was a wife. Her mother tried to cry a little, but it was a failure, as was also Nannie's attempt. It was I that ought to have cried, and I would have had I been able to see a little into the future.

The marriage over, we drove back to the bride's mother's house, where we left that lady and took on board Mrs. Richard Stratton's trunks and returned to the hotel. There was no shadow upon that marriage, and it seemed as though they were as happy a couple as could be found anywhere; for though Master Richard had married against his father's consent he had not to depend on Mr. Stratton for money. He had a very fine income of his own, left him perfectly uncontrolled by his mother, and the bride also had property of her own, left by her father. Besides that, I had savings of about 600 pounds sterling, which I drew from bank and took with me in case of emergency.

"I gave the governor a chance to come and see me or send for me this morning, Bob," said Master Richard, when we got on board the steamer for Southampton, "but he's mad and won't come. Well, I can't help it," and Master Richard laughed lightly.

We had a delightful trip, and I am sure nothing could have been so absurd as any suspicion that the story Dr. Willsey told had any truth in it. To be sure she was lively, but not any more so than any young bride ought to be who has a young, handsome and rich husband whom she loves and who is devoted to to her. It was not until we had arrived in London and been there two weeks, that I saw anything that looked wrong, and then it was one day when Master Richard had gone out to dine with some American friends, and sent me back—I always went everywhere with him—to get some letters that he wanted.

I found Mrs. Richard, whom he had left an hour before perfectly right, under an influence, either of morphine or wine, that was plainly perceptible. Nannie was frightened and began to beg me not to tell Master Richard, and to declare that she could not help it. I promised to say nothing and to detain Master Richard as long as I could, and charged her to do all she could to make her mistress sober. But why dwell on this terrible episode in my life? We went to Paris, to Madrid, to Rome, to Naples, to Vienna, to Berlin, and then back to Paris to stay. Every day and every place made it more apparent that Dr. Willsey had been right, and that all Master Richard could do was useless. Get the terrible drug or stimulant she would in some way. I ventured one day to suggest to Master Richard that he should place her in some asylum, but I never even hinted at it again, for his response was a dreadful rebuke. Death, he said, rather than that. Then I spoke plainly about Nannie as pandering to her mistress's appetite and suggested her discharge, but this I saw was folly. It would be out of the frying-pan into the fire.

I saw its terrible effect on my mistress, but more on Master Richard. He gave up all society, and watched her like a child. He was haggard and nervous and no longer like himself. Then came a new phase of the terror. Denied the deadly poison at home, she, with the cunning of a maniac, as she was, would steal away from her watchers and remain away, at first, for hours, then for all day, then all night, and be brought home by the police, draggled and without reason. Then, at last, when Master Richard had almost concluded to place her in an asylum, with what seemed to be an instinct of the intention, she disappeared altogether, and every effort of the police and detectives failed to obtain any trace of her, notwithstanding the large reward.

Master Richard was crazed, and so was I almost. The police coolly declared that she would never be seen again alive; that the strongest probability was that the Seine would eventually give her up. The only theory to combat this was that Mrs. Richard had worn a fortune in diamonds when she went away, something she had never done before, and which seemed to show that she had prepared herself to stay away.

A month elapsed, and one morning Master Richard was notified that the body of his wife was at the morgue. We want there instantly, and, in spite of the fact that the body had been so long in the water, identified it. She was dressed in plain black, trimmed with lace, when she went away, but the lace was gone; she was shoeless and bonnetless and had not a shred of jewelry; even her rings were gone, and her earrings had been torn from her ears. The police said that it was a case of robbery, perhaps murder, and the poor, mutilated, disfigured body found its resting-place in Pere la Chaise. Nannie, with more money than she had ever possessed before in her life, was sent to her Swiss home, and Master Richard and I bent our steps toward New York.

I have forgotten to say that all the trouble between Master Richard and his father had been made up. The old man could not bear the absence of his son, and was pleading for Master Richard to bring his wife home as soon as he could, not knowing anything about why Master Richard could not, nor yet, when he was notified of the death, of the cause of it.

The next three years of our lives were quiet. Mrs. Richard had made a will immediately after her marriage, bequeathing all her property to Master Richard, but he would have none of it. He made it all over to her mother, and after that was consummated, refused to see Mrs. Sylvester again.

After these three years Master Richard's father began to fret. He wanted to see his son married again, and he had picked out a wife for him. The lady was a great beauty and had always been a great pet of the old man, as she had been of Master Richard before he fell in love with Miss Sylvester, and I always used to think she really loved him. To make a long story short, they were married, and a more quiet, happy couple I never saw. A year elapsed and an interesting event was about to happen. The doctor was in the house, not Willsey, and Master Richard expected every moment to become a father.

Almost at this critical moment there came a violent ring at the street door-bell and it was announced to me that a woman demanded to see Master Richard, and, though she had been told she could not, had insisted on forcing her way in, and was then coming through the hall. I was in the library, and went out to meet this woman. The gas was turned low, but if it had been darkness itself I would have known her. Good heaven! it was Mrs. Richard risen from the dead, old, haggard, bleared and ragged. She was almost at the library door when I met her, and heard her gasp out, "Brown, where's your master?"

Hardly had she uttered the words when she staggered and fell, rolling over on her back. I was so frightened that I was not only speechless, but paralyzed. The footman came up, and the terror of the situation recalled me to myself. I ordered him to assist me, and between us we raised the woman and carried her into the library, laying her upon the sofa. Then I told the footman to go up to the doctor, and whisper to him to come down stairs, but not to let Mr. Richard know anything about it, but in less than five minutes, before the doctor got down, I saw that the woman was dead, and so the doctor pronounced her. In a cold, professional way, he asked me if I knew the woman. I said I did not. Did my master? I said I thought not.

He sat down to the table, wrote a certificate that the woman had died of heart disease, turned to the footman who stood by horror-stricken, gave him the address of an undertaker not far away and his message, telling the man to use his name, and went back to his charge upstairs, following my injunction not to say anything to Master Richard. In half an hour the undertaker's wagon was at the door, and a few minutes later, as the living was ushered into the world upon one floor, the coffined dead was carried out from the floor below.

The next morning I told Master Richard the story of the night before, and together we went to the undertaker's and looked upon the dead woman. There could be no doubt about the identification this time, though there was nothing about her to recognize but a single ring, the wedding ring, and the wreck of her great beauty. Where she had been in all those four years, how she had found her way back and who the woman was that sleeps in Pere le Chaise will remain a sealed book forever.

The Eucalyptus in Australia.

[Melbourne Cor. Courier-Journal.]

Australia has a vegetation that is peculiarly and emphatically its own. Belonging to the myrtle family they form a distinct class of trees, with distinctive features peculiar to no other part of the globe. These are known here as the gum tree, and to botanists as the eucalyptus. There are about 150 distinct species, which form four-fifths of the vegetation of the country. Wherever you travel you come across the eucalyptus. On the arid plains are found the dwarf species, and on the mountain slopes and undulating lands they form gigantic forests. They shed their bark annually, but not the leaves, which are evergreen and very abundant.

The leaf has a peculiar action of turning one or the other side constantly to the sun, and while this affords poor shade, an operation of absorption and exhalation is constantly going on that is fatal to malaria. The leaves are full of oil cells, 100 pounds of them yielding from twenty to sixty ounces of a volatile oil. This oil has valuable medicinal qualities, and parties here in Victoria, who have a patent process for extracting the same, have the most valuable "oil well" in the world.

The different varieties of the eucalyptus furnish the commercial timber of the colony. The blue gum is a hard, light-colored timber of greater strength and tenacity than either the English oak or the Indian teak, and is chiefly used in heavy building and for piers and bridges. The red gum is also hard wood, with short-curled grain, and is used for ship-building, railway sleepers and wagon wheels, and is especially valuable for salt-water piers, as it contains a peculiar acid that resists the attacks of the sea worm.

Equal to the Occasion.

[Paris Paper.]

Scene in the Chinese war:

Captain of ironclad to artilleryman—Do you see that Chinese general there, about three miles off? Let him have one of those eight-inch shells in the eye.

Artilleryman, equal to the situation—Aye, aye, sir. Which eye, your honor?"

Victor Hugo: Youth, with gentleness, has upon old men the effect of sunshine without wind

CHINESE BRICK TEA.

An Article That Is Both Food and Drink to Mongolians and Siberians.

It is well known that most of the tea intended for consumption in European Russia has been diverted from the overland route and now goes to Russia by steamer, either via London or direct to Odessa. The finest tea of all, owing to a prevalent opinion that sea carriage impairs the flavor, still goes overland; but though Russians are in the habit of paying prices for tea unheard of in this country, the caravans would have little to depend on now if they trusted for support to the tea which still continues to go overland to Russia. They rely, however, on the carriage of the coarse brick tea which is consumed in Mongolia, Manchuria and Siberia. On my way back to Pekin from visiting the Great Wall, I met numerous large armed caravans of camels, laden with tea, and often preceded by a picturesque, fierce-looking Tartar horseman, lance in hand, who glared rather ferociously at the strange "foreign devil." The demand for brick tea—manufactured at Hankow, three hundred miles up the Yang-Tse-Kiang, and Foo-Choo on the Min, whence it is shipped to Tien-Tsin—is great and annually increasing, the inhabitants of Mongolia, Manchuria and Siberia using it both as food and drink, while sometimes it even takes the place of currency, the value of articles being calculated in bricks of tea. In spite of the fact that this trade is so hopelessly weighted by the enormous charges for overland carriage, the demand is so great that more than 60,000,000 pounds, principally brick, were conveyed overland in 1887 to Mongolia, Siberia and Russia, via Kalgan—that is to say, an amount equal to about one-third of the total annual consumption of Great Britain. It is therefore not difficult to imagine the sudden development which will take place in this trade alone, when a not inconsiderable proportion of the heavy overland charges are knocked off by the advent of a railway. And tea is only one of the many specific articles of commerce for which this railway will create an intensified demand. Coal, for instance, which is found within sixty miles of the capital, and now costs from £3 to £4 per ton at Pekin, will probably be reduced in price to considerably under £1.—Blackwood's Magazine.

THE MODERN PIANO.

A Condensed History of the Evolution of the Popular Instrument.

The piano, as we see it to-day, is the growth of centuries of invention. In its infancy it was a harp with two or three strings. From time to time more strings were added, and after a while the cithara was born. The cithara was in the shape of the letter P, and had ten strings.

It took many centuries for musicians to get the idea of stretching the strings across an open box, but somewhere about the year 1200 this was thought of, and the dulcimer made its appearance, the strings being struck with hammers.

For another hundred years these hammers were held in the hand of the player, and then a genius invented a keyboard, which, being struck by the fingers, moved the hammers.

This instrument was called a clavicytherium, or keyed cithara. This underwent some modifications and improvements from time to time. In Queen Elizabeth's time it was called a virginal. Then it was called a spine, because the hammers were covered with spines or quills, which struck or caught the strings of wires and produced the sound. From 1700 to 1800 it was much enlarged and improved, and called a harpsichord, and this was the instrument that Lady Washington, Mrs. Hamilton and the fine ladies of our revolutionary times played upon.

In 1710, Bartolomeo Cristofoli, an Italian, invented a key or keyboard, such as we have now substantially, which caused the hammers to strike the wires from above, and thus developed the piano.

In the past 150 years there is no musical instrument which has so completely absorbed the inventive faculty of man as the piano. The reason is obvious; it is the household instrument par excellence.—Toledo Blade.

Soaking Grain in Brine.

The usual method of soaking grain in brine to destroy smut spores is as follows: In an ordinary wash tub prepare the brine so that it will float a fresh egg. The seed is then placed in the fluid and allowed to soak for ten or fifteen minutes, after which the liquid is poured into another tub and the grain is spread on the floor, sprinkled with sufficient lime to whiten it, and allowed to dry. This process is repeated until all the grain has been soaked. While there has long been a wide-spread belief among farmers that soaking seed in brine, sulphate of copper solutions and other preparations would prevent smut, recent carefully conducted experiments have demonstrated that little or no benefit is to be derived from any such treatment. In fact, it has been shown that dressing the seed with strong brine or sulphate of copper solution, especially the latter, in nine cases out of ten does more harm than good. It weakens the vitality of the seed to such an extent that if they germinate at all the plants they make are weak and rarely mature perfect fruit.—B. T. Galloway, Vegetable Pathologist, Department of Agriculture.

—Professional colorers usually dye with their boots on.—Drake's Magazine.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL.

—Miss Fannie Macaulay, who died a few days ago at Brighton, England, at the age of eighty, was the last surviving sister of Thomas Babington Macaulay.

—One of Murat's daughters, Luisa Marchesa Rasponi, is said to be still living, at the age of ninety-two, in Ravenna, Italy. She was, therefore, nineteen in 1815, when Napoleon I. was dethroned and her father shot.

—Assistant Doorkeeper Bassett has been in the employ of the United States Senate for fifty-eight years. He recently celebrated his golden wedding, and was then made the recipient of a handsome present from the Senators.

—E. B. Ball, the nearest living relative of George Washington, occupies a stall in the south corridor of the Pension Building at Washington, where he sells cigars and fruit to the clerks. He is nearly eighty years old, and bears a striking resemblance to the Father of his Country.

—Philip Armour, the Chicago meat king, ascribes much of his success to good memory. He is said to carry the details of his enormous business in his head, can remember dates as well as transactions, and never forgets a man's face or name. The gift is natural but has been sedulously cultivated.

—John Wanamaker's country place at Jenkintown is said to absorb his attention as completely when out of town as business does at the store in Philadelphia. He is a liberal entertainer, and his hail-fellow freedom and jollity are contagious. He has a splendid collection of roses and orchids, and his rhododendrons are famous in the neighborhood.

—Mrs. Stanley Brown, formerly Miss Mollie Garfield, daughter of the dead President, is described as a singularly beautiful woman, with a slender but almost faultless form. The impressive effect of her beauty is said to be heightened by "undisguisable suggestions of sadness," which have lingered about her eyes and mouth ever since the dark days of '81, when she lost the father she idolized.

—Miss Breckinridge, daughter of the Kentucky Congressman, said to a Washington writer, recently: "We once lived at the same hotel with General and Mrs. Harrison. She is one of the sweetest women in the world, and will be very popular. She takes sincere pleasure in doing good and making everybody happy. We young girls were all in love with her. She used to give us a great deal of pleasure, and I do not suppose that she was ever conscious of it."

"A LITTLE NONSENSE."

—In Ecuador it is understood that the employer shall board the cook's family. The case is similar in America, only the employer doesn't understand it.—Drake's Magazine.

—The last words of great men are all recorded in the books, but the last words of women, great and small, have always been too much for the historians.—Journal of Education.

—Rescuer (to man he has just cut down)—"The boys lynched yer, and left yer fur dead, did they? Well, how do yer feel now?" Half-hanged man—"Quite unstrung."—Boston Beacon.

—Dullard—"Now this is outrageous. Here's Casket has charged the widow Jones $500 for her husband's funeral." Brightly—"Well, you must always expect a stiff bill from an undertaker."—Lowell Citizen.

—Family meatman—"I understand, Mr. Smith, that your eldest daughter was married yesterday. Permit me to tender my congratulations." Smith—"Thanks; if you would do the same by your meat, however, it would be more gratifying."—Burlington Free Press.

—The coal man he whistled a merry gay,
As he fixed up the scales in a fanciful way,
And he nodded and smiled while he caroled this lay:
"As we journey through life, let us live by the weigh."

—Merchant Traveler.

—Mrs. Temperton—"Henry, father wrote me yesterday that he wants to get a typewriter. What is the best kind, do you think?" Temperton (immersed in stock questions)—"I like 'em about twenty-four with dark blue eyes."—Munsey's Weekly.

—Stranger—"How are base-ball prospects in Terre Haute?" Terre Haute citizen—"Bad. All gone to the dogs, so to speak." Stranger—"Ah, that accounts for the sight of so many canines with catchers' masks on, I suppose."—Terre Haute Express.

—A gentleman meeting a friend on the street stopped him to condole with him on his emaciated appearance, and inquired anxiously as to the cause. "Alas!" said the friend, "I have suffered for years with walking in my sleep. I have walked out of the door at night, have been saved when about to step from an upper window, and am now so in dread of fatal results that I fear to sleep at all." "An easy matter to cure," replied the first gentleman. "Take car fare to bed with you and you won't walk."—Philadelphia Press.

—A Modest Request.—They were going home from the opera, and as she had occupied the most prominent seat in the box, carrying his $12 bouquet and been seen by every one she knew, she was in a most amiable mood. "Dear Charles," she said, softly, "you have been very kind to-night. Is there any thing (nestling closer) that I can do for you before you go?" "Yes, Mabel," was his eager reply, as he looked at her rosy lips, "you can, if you—you will, lend me ten cents to pay my car fare home."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

INFECTIOUS GERMS.

Uncleanliness the Most Potent Factor in Spreading Diseases.

Nine-tenths of all diseases, if not all, are caused by specific low organisms. Among those which we have already isolated distinctly are the bacillus of consumption, typhoid fever, yellow fever, lock-jaw, pneumonia, cholera, dysentery, plague, etc. There is a great difference between these different bacilli, just as there is between large animals. A fence which will be perfectly safe against cattle may prove of no account against dogs; and where cattle may grow we may not be able to raise elephants. Similar differences exist also between these bacilli.

All of these germs of diseases require moisture for their plantation and growth. They are not killed by dryness; they only do not develop. A well-authenticated case is on record where the plague, which we have now hardly any reason to doubt is caused by a bacillus, broke out in a town in Germany two hundred years after the last plague had been there—and while no cases of plague were within one thousand miles—after the tearing down of an old house, in the masonry of which a mummy was found that had been cemented in. From records it was evidently the corpse of a person who had died two hundred years ago of the plague. This shows the wonderful tenacity of these microbes. The whole medical science has been revolutionized by their discovery.

Uncleanliness is now much better understood as being the factor in spreading diseases. Virchow examined the nails of school children, and underneath those nails he found, with particles of dirt, eggs of all the intestinal parasitical worms and bacilli, which, of course, would be eaten by the children with their bread.—Sanitary Era.

A QUEER OLD MAN.

The Extraordinary Eccentricities of a Wealthy French Bachelor.

A few years ago there died in the neighborhood of Paris an old man of the name of Lemieux, whose eccentricities had long been a source of wonder to his neighbors. He was wealthy, and lived in a solitary old house of the suburb, attended by two servants.

M. Lemieux had once been a connoisseur of paintings, a large collection of which he sold several years previous to his death. What reminds us of him now, however, is the increasing mania in this country for collecting postage-stamps of all nations. This was the special hobby of M. Lemieux in his latter years. One large room in his house was entirely papered with postage-stamps, from floor to ceiling. They were artistically arranged so as to represent forms. One piece represented the First Napoleon, life-size, the various colored postage-stamps being used to represent the proper tints. On another panel of the wall the Marseilles Hymn was given, music, words and all being composed of stamps.

There was another apartment in this old oddity's house garnished entirely with cigars, which were glued to the wall in various grotesque patterns. A cartoon, so to speak, of those, portrayed the Prince of Darkness pulling at an immense meerschaum pipe—the latter being a genuine and very valuable article, split in two and glued to the wall so as to be in relief. The superstitious people of the neighborhood were greatly horrified about this latter work of art, saying that no good would come of it; and their words were justified one morning, when the old man evinced such obvious tokens of insanity that he had to be placed in a lunatic asylum, where he died soon after.—N. Y. Ledger.

HAIR ORNAMENTS.

Beautiful Tortoise-Shell Combs and Pins at Fancy Prices.

A quaint old fashion has been revived in the wearing of small side-combs. Many of these are costly trifles, sold by jewelers for sums ranging all the way from $5 to $50 apiece. They are fragile bits of tortoise-shell, with gold tops, in a variety of designs, the more expensive ones being set with pearls, diamonds or other stones. Holding back stray side locks, they have the merit of being useful as well as ornamental, so no lady with a full purse need want a reason for buying.

High-back combs are also in favor. Some have square gold tops finished in gold or beading. Others are arched in various designs, sometimes entirely of gold, but often elaborately set with gems. Latticed patterns with a small diamond set in each intersection are shown at Spaulding's, besides some costly specimens of transparent enamel. Held up to the light, these tops show rich colors, like stained glass, resembling in miniature some Gothic cathedral window. Other combs are set with milk-white pearls or sparkle with a row of larger brilliants.

For those who prefer them are shown an equal variety of costly hair-pins. Some of these have perforated tops into which any handsome brooch may be fastened. Others may be detached from their tops by loosening a small screw, when the upper part can be used as a breast-pin. Daisies and pansies with diamond dew-drops in their hearts, or the favorite cluster of sweet-peas, may be used for ornamentation. Like the others, they may reach extravagant values, but they are also temptingly beautiful.

All these finest goods are of French manufacture. It is said that they could not be reproduced in this country, especially the enamels, which are works of art.—Chicago News.

SIMPSON'S DISCOVERY.

How the Anæsthetic Properties of Chloroform Were Brought to Light.

The name of Doctor (afterwards Sir) James Young Simpson became closely identified with the study of anæsthetics. He approached the subject with a due sense of its importance, and applied to it a scientific skill of the first order. Several deaths occurred through the careless and indiscriminate use of ether, causing that agent to be regarded with diminished favor. A less dangerous but equally effective substance was called for, and to the discovery of this Dr. Simpson devoted his best energies. In his researches he was assisted by several able professors, and for a time they gave a large share of their attention to the matter. Any volatile substance in which anæsthetic properties were suspected was carefully examined, and it was not long before the experiments brought forth the coveted reward. One night Dr. Simpson and his assistants were sitting up late, bent on their self-imposed task. A number of chemical fluids had been selected for experiment, each man providing himself with a glass, into which a small quantity of the particular substance engaging attention was poured, the glass being placed over warm water to help the evolution of vapor. In this way, with their mouths and nostrils held over the vessels, they tested one vapor after another, but it seemed as if the spirit of unconsciousness was not to be evoked. They tried many gases and liquids which no one had ever thought of testing in this connection before, and at last a small bottle of dark liquid which provoked no great expectations, and was only known as a chemical curiosity in the laboratory, was raked up out of some obscure corner and put to take its turn with the rest. This was a little bottle of chloroform. Presently, after more promising substances had failed them, it was resolved to submit it to the test. A small portion of the liquid was poured into each glass and the experimenters began their inhalations. Prof. Miller, one of the assistants, has described what took place. An unwonted hilarity seized the party; they became bright-eyed and very happy, and conversed with such intelligence as more than usually charmed other listeners who were not taking part in the proceedings. But suddenly there was a talk of sounds being heard like those of a cotton mill, louder and louder; a moment more, then all was quiet, and then—a crash! On awaking, Dr. Simpson's first perception was mental. "This is far stronger and better than ether," he said to himself. He next observed that he was prostrate on the floor, and that his friends were confused and alarmed. Hearing a noise, he turned round and saw his assistant, Dr. Duncan beneath a chair; his jaw dropped, his eyes staring, and his head half bent under him; quite unconscious, and snoring in a determined and alarming manner. More noise followed and much commotion, and then his eyes overtook Dr. Keith's feet and legs making various efforts to overturn the table, or more probably to annihilate every thing that was upon it. All speedily regained their senses, and from the middle of that night dates the discovery of the anæsthetic uses of chloroform.—London Tablet.

HUMOROUS GEESE.

How They Had a Good Deal of Fun With a Number of Young Pigs.

A goose has perhaps the keenest appreciation of humor of any animal, unless it be her own arch enemy, the fox.

The writer once saw in a little grassy paddock some eight or ten fat and healthy pigs and half a score of geese. From the paddock a narrow open gate gave entrance into the farm-yard, and, as evening drew on, the geese ranged themselves in a row near this Thermopylæ. Obviously supper-time was approaching, and the pigs wished to return home to their troughs. Equally clearly the geese had given each other the word not to let them pass through the gate which they guarded, without paying toll.

First there came up a jolly, good-humored little pig, who trotted cheerfully along with a confidence which ought to have disarmed criticism, till he came among the geese. Then, with a cackle and a scream, every neck was stretched to get a bite at him, and, squalling and yelling the poor little porker ran the gauntlet.

The same fate befell six or seven more of his brethren in succession, each betraying increasing trepidation as he approached the fatal pass, and made a bolt through the corps de garde of geese whose chattering and screeches of delight were almost undistinguishable from human laughter.

At last the biggest pig of the party brought up the rear. He was a pink-fleshed, clean young fellow, with fat limbs and sides, and his ears were cocked, and his tail sharply twisted in the intelligent, wide-awake manner which so completely distinguishes the intellectual pig from the mere swinish multitude. With a loud grunt of defiance, this brave beast charged through the flock of geese, and had actually almost gained the gate, when a large gray goose made one grab at his fat ham, caught up the skin in a bunch, and gave it a tremendous pinch with her red beak. Needless to say, the air was rent with the squeals of agony of the injured pig, and the ecstatic pæans of the flock of geese in chorus.

From the order in which this transaction took place, I derived the impression that a similar game of prisoner's base probably formed the entertainment of the geese every evening.—Frances Power Cobb.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

Mulholland & Mack
EDITORS & PROPRIETORS
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY JULY 13 1889

It is not without a feeling of pardonable pride that attention is called to the rapidly increasing advertising patronage of the INYO INDEPENDENT. The leading business men throughout the county give a support to this paper that is the best proof of their confidence in the ability and integrity of its management. In every instance the sympathy and aid of the INDEPENDENT will be found on the side of the people, and the proprietors are grateful for the evident appreciation of their efforts. It is a matter of impossibility to please every one in the management of a public enterprise; but the best interests of the entire county are always kept in view, without regard to personal considerations

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT WE the undersigned owners of the mine formerly known as THE PERSEVERANCE, and now named THE CALDERA, situated in Cerro Gordo Mining District, will not be responsible for the loss of, or damage to, any personal property left in the mine by the former owner or owners; and we do hereby notify him or them to take their belongings from our premises without delay. O. G. FUENTES, H. P. LIVINGSTON, P. MEYER.

LONE PINE

Blacksmith Shop.

R. C. Spear, Prop'r

—ALL WORK ON—

MINING TOOLS,
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
& FREIGHTING OUTFITS

—PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO—

HORSE SHOEING,
CARRIAGE WORK,
GENERAL REPAIRING.

☞ All work attended to with neatness and despatch. Prices to suit the times.

Lake View Hotel

Keeler, Cal.

John Barnes, Prop'r.

☞ First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR

—Is constantly supplied with the finest—

Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigaas.

Business for Sale.

A good livery stable and an old established business for sale or rent.
Apply to
ROBERT O'NEAL
Bishop Creek.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

PIONEER BREWERY
INDEPENDENCE.

BEER ICE COLD.

The Bar is supplied with the Best of all kinds of Liquors and Cigars.

The Coolest Hall in the town. Call in and see what comfort you can have this hot weather.

PHILIP GEHRIG, PROPRIETOR

ANTONS SALOON
KEELER, CAL.

BEER, WINES,
LIQUORS and CIGARS.

All kinds of Fancy Drinks, including pure water. A comfortable and pleasant Hall.
JOHN C. ANTON Prop.

R. J. WHITTAKER
—PAINTER,—
BIG PINE, - - - - CAL.

HOUSE PAINTING,
SIGN WRITING,
PAPER HANGING,
GRAINING,
GILDING ON
WOOD AND GLASS.

Wagons Painted

The best of materials used and satisfaction guaranteed.

IF YOU WISH A GOOD REVOLVER PURCHASE ONE OF SMITH & WESSON'S

Finest small arms ever manufactured and the first choice of all experts. In calibres 32, 38 and 44/100. Single or double action, Safety Hammerless and Target models. Best quality wrought steel, carefully inspected for workmanship and stock. Unrivaled for finish, durability and accuracy. Do not be deceived by cheap malleable iron imitations often sold for the genuine article. They are unreliable and dangerous. The SMITH & WESSON REVOLVERS are stamped upon the barrels with firm's name, address and dates of patents, and are guaranteed perfect. Insist upon having them, and if your dealer cannot supply you, an order sent to address below will receive prompt attention. Descriptive catalogue and prices upon application.
SMITH & WESSON,
Springfield, Mass.

Ranch for Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I offer my ranch for sale, consisting of 320 acres. Situated about three miles from Independence in a southeasterly direction. It is nearly all under fence. There is about 30 acres of orchard and vineyard, a portion of which is bearing. Undisputed water right. For price apply on the ranch to
J. W. SYMMES.
Independence, Cal., June 13, 1889.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements o our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.
A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people o Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence o posite Andrew Clark's.

THIRD
ANNUAL FAIR
Agricultural District
No. 18.
STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Composed Of the Counties of ALPINE, MONO & INYO.

TO BE HELD AT

Independence

Commencing Tuesday, September 24th, and Continuing Four Days.

A. R. CONKLIN.....President.
C. MULHOLLAND.....Secretary.
O. I. MAIRS.....Treasurer.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

A. R. CONKLIN, JOHN SHEPHERD,
A. W. EIBESHUTZ, F. McIVER,
W. K. MILLER, E. ROBINSON,
J. S. GORMAN, W. S. ENGS.

First Department.

In this department the same animal shall not be entered more than once, except in sweepstakes or as a member of a family exhibited with its sire or dam. Any stallion, mare, gelding or colt competing in a race will not be excluded from competing for premiums in their respective classes.

CLASS I.
THOROUGHBRED HORSES.

Best stallion	$25 00
Second best stallion	20 00

CLASS II.
STANDARD TROTTERS.

Best Stallion, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Stallion, 2 year old	15 00
Best Stallion, 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt under 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and colt	15 00

CLASS III.
ROADSTERS.

Best Roadster, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Roadster, 2 year old	15 00
Best roadster team driven to buggy	25 00

Will have to be shown to harness.

CLASS IV.
HORSES OF ALL WORK.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best stallion 2 years old	15 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt	10 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upwards	20 00
Best mare, 2 years old	15 00
Best mare, 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and family, not less than three colts	25 00

CLASS V.
DRAFT HORSES.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	$25 00
Best stallion 2 years old	20 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best mare and colt	20 00
Best matched team	20 00
Best mare and 3 colts	20 00

CLASS VI.
TEAMS.

Best matched carriage team	20 00
Best matched buggy team	20 00

CLASS VII.
SADDLE ANIMALS.

Best, any age	20 00
Second best	10 00

CLASS VIII.
SWEEPSTAKES.

Best stallion, any breed or age	25 00
Best mare, any breed or age	25 00

CLASS IX.
JACKS.

Best Jack, 2 years old and upward	25 00
Best Jack 1 year old	15 00

CLASS X.
MULES.

Best span owned by one person, 3 years or over	15 00
Best span under 3 years	10 00

CLASS XI.
CATTLE—BULLS.

Best bull, any breed 3 years old and upward	30 00
Best bull, any breed, 2 years old	25 00
Best bull, any breed, 1 year old	20 00

CLASS XII.
COWS.

Best cow, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best cow, 2 years old	15 00
Best cow and calf	15 00
Best cow and 2 calves	15 00
Best milch cow, quart and pint of milk	20 00

CLASS XIII.
SHEEP.

Best display of sheep	15 00

CLASS XIV.
GOATS.

Best display of Angora goats	20 00

CLASS XV.
SWINE.

Best display of hogs	15 00
Best sow and litter of four pigs	10 00

CLASS XVI.
POULTRY ETC.

Best display of fowls, any age or breed	10 00
Second best	8 00
Best pair of bronze turkeys	5 00

Second Department.

All products exhibited in this Department must have been produced in Nevada, or in California east of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and by the exhibitor

CLASS I.
AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best 100 pounds of flour	$ 5 00
Best 100 pounds of wheat	5 00
Best 100 pounds of barley	5 00
Best 100 pounds of oats	5 00
Best 100 pounds of rye	5 00
Best 100 pounds of corn shelled	5 00
Best 50 pounds of alfalfa seed	5 00
Best bale of timothy hay	5 00
Best bale of alfalfa hay	5 00
Display of Agricultural Products	20 00
Second Best	15 00

CLASS II.
VEGETABLES, ROOTS, ETC.

Best 10 pounds of sweet potatoes	2 50
50 pounds of Early Rose potatoes	2 50
100 pounds any variety of potatoes	3 00
20 pounds of parsnips	2 50
20 pounds of carrots	2 50
20 pounds of turnips	2 50
20 pounds of beets, any variety	2 50
20 pounds of tomatoes, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cabbage, any variety	2 50
50 pounds of onions, any variety	2 50
1 doz squash, any variety	2 50
sample of peppers, any variety	2 50
½ doz. watermelons, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cucumbers, any variety	2 50
½ doz. cantaloupes, any variety	2 50
10 pounds of white beans	2 50
10 pounds of pink beans	2 50
10 pounds garden peas, any variety	2 50
Display of vegetables in one lot	5 00

CLASS III.
DAIRY AND FARM PRODUCE.

Best 10 pounds of butter in rolls	$ 5 00
Second best	2 00
Best jar of butter, 20 pounds 3 months old	5 00
single cheese any weight	5 00
10 pounds of lard	2 00
display of honey	5 00
Apiary display	10 00
display of bread, Chimaman made exclude1	3 00
display of cakes	5 00
variety of fruit in jars	10 00
Second best	5 00
Best variety of jellies	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of preserves	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of pickles	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best Sample of 50 lbs. each of hams and bacon	10 00

Third Department.

CLASS I.
HORTICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best display of apples	$ 7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display pears	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display peaches	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of plums	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of quinces	5 00
display of grapes of different varieties	5 00
½ doz. bottles of wine	5 00
display of wine grapes	5 00
display of raisin grapes	5 00
display of raisins made in the District	7 50
display of prunes	5 00
display of dried fruits	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of grapes and wine made from the same grapes, as variety	10 00
display of all kinds of fruit—a collection	20 00

Fourth Department.

CLASS I.
ARTISTIC.

Best oil painting done by resident of district	10 00
Second best	7 50
Best crayon drawing	10 00
On satin and Japanese silks	10 00
Collection of paintings by any Artist	10 00

Fifth Department.

CLASS I.
NEEDLE AND OTHER WORK.

Handsomest pillow shams, $5 00
Best and handsomest patchwork quilt, $5 00
Best crocheted Wheel quilt, $5 00
Handsomest crazy quilt, $5 00
Handsomest knitted quilt, $5 00
Handsomest sofa cushion, $5 00
Handsomest set of tidies for sofa, $5 00
Best embroidered lady's dress, $5 00
child's dress, $5 00
ottoman cover, $5 00
table cover, 4 corners, $5 00
scarf, two ends, $5 00
pair lambrequins, $5 00
wall pocket, or banner, $5 00 silk patchwork, $5 00
on linen, $5 00
Kensington crewel or wool, $5 00
toilet set, three or more pieces, $5
lace work, lined made, $5 darned net, three or more pieces, $5
crochet shawl, $5
hand painted table scarf, $5
hearth rug, $5
Handsomest and best made dress for lady, $5
best display hand knit work, $5
Best display of fancy articles, $10
display of spanish needle work, $5
Best and greatest variety of crochet work, $10
hand knit stockings, $5

JUVENILE.

calico dress made by girl under 14, $5
hand sewing, not less than 4 pieces, by girl under sixteen, $5
crochet work by girl under 14, $5
patchwork quilt by girl under 14, $5
hand made shirt by girl under 14, $5
display of hair work, $5

Sixth Department.

CLASS I.
MINERALS.

Best Cabinet of minerals	$25
Collection of curious from District	15
display of silver ore	10
gold ore	10
silver lead ore	10
nugget of gold	5

In all exhibits of animals for premiums, other things being equal, blooded stock will be preferred.

All articles included in the above list—except the first department—to be on exhibition at the Pavilion on the second day and remain during the fair.

Special premiums will be offered for articles exhibited which are not included in the above List.

All entires to be made not later than 6 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding their exhibition. All stock and articles to be exhibited must be on the ground at 9:30 a. m. on the day intended for their exhibition. No animal to leave its stall between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. of the day of exhibition without permission of the Park Director. Exhibition will take place at 10 a. m. of each day and close at 4 p. m., with an intermission for lunch.

Speed Programme.

TUESDAY.

TROTTING—Free for all, mile, 2 in 3, mile heats. Purse, $200.

THURSDAY.

RUNNING—One mile, 2 in 3, free for all. Purse, $200.

FRIDAY.

TROTTING—Double team, free for all, best 2 in 3 heats 1 mile each, entry must to own the team. Purse, $100.

In all the above races three to enter and two to start. Entrance, 10 per cent of purse.

All entries for races must be made on or before 12 o'clock M. of the day preceding the race. This rule will be strictly adhered to. No exception will be made.

Other races will be given by the citizens under the control and management of the Association, of which notice will be given.

All exhibitions of stock will take place on the race track at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

California State Agricultural Society rules to govern running races; National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races.

ADMISSION:

To stock ground and pavilion, each	$ 50
Single Season Ticket	2 50
Membership Ticket, admitting member, wife and minor children	5 00
Life membership	30 00

C. MULHOLLAND, Secretary. A. R. CONKLIN, President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 12th
" .....February 9th
" .....March 16th
" .....April 13th
" .....May 11th
" .....June 8th
" .....July 12th
" .....August 10th
" .....September 7th
" .....October 5th
" .....November 2nd
" .....December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - Cal:
V. G. THOMPSON, Lessee.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM,
APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.

Daily Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
☞ NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED. ☜
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.

Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
☞ All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—
PIANOS & ORGANS
☞ If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to
Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO Extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC

☞ Buyers and consumers should not call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n47tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA

On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad

These valuable Springs offer special

INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS

THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.

THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.

Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK
Livery, Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.

☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
sep1-tf CROCKER BROS., Props.

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates.

☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R
TAKING EFFECT
Sunday, May 10th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11 00 a. m.	5 50 p. m.
Dayton	11 30 a. m.	5 10 p. m.
Wabuska	1 25 a. m.	3 16 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 05 p. m.	11 25 a. m.
Luning	6 25 p. m.	10 05 a. m.
Soda Springs	7 55 p. m.	9 05 a. m.
Belleville	8 45 p. m.	7 45 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 9 20 p. m.	Lv. 7 19 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—	No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8 10 a. m.	5 25 p. m.
Benton	11 40 a. m.	1 50 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1 50 p. m.	11 00 a. m.
Alvord	2 35 p. m.	10 00 a. m.
Independence	4 10 p. m.	8 30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5 00 p. m.	7 40 a. m.
Keeler	Ar. 5 45 p. m.	Lv. 7 00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Bundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (6 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜
☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sep1 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JULY 13.....1889

BORN.

AGUIERRE—Near Independence, July 5th., 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. Benigno Aguierre a son.

SMITH—At Round Valley, June 28, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith, a son.

DIED.

ROBERTS—At Round Valley, July 8, 1889, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roberts, aged 1 month and 18 days.

Who stole Grant's bottle?

Matlack has reduced the price of shoeing to $2.00. See his ad.

Farmers around Independence are now cutting the second crop of alfalfa.

Mrs. Maggie Dunn and Mrs. Cooper, of Bishop were in town during the week.

Mrs. J. J. Gunn has gone on a visit to her sister Mrs. Butler, at San Francisco.

A number of Independence families have gone to Onion Valley to spend the hot weather season.

The trial of R. C. Broder et. al. vs. A. R. Conklin et. al. has been set for September 2nd., 1889.

Mr. T. K. Hutchinson came down from Bishop on Tuesday and remained in town a couple of days.

Mrs. H. E. Jiggens left Independence on Tuesday morning for San Francisco to join her husband.

All kinds of farm produce will be taken in payment for work at the blacksmith shop of J. W. Murphy

Reno has had another big blaze. The loss is estimated at $20,000. The cause of the conflagration is unknown.

When the small boy looks over the court yard fence and sees Under Sheriff William's watermelon patch he chuckles to himself.

John Shepherd and wife, and Jas. R. Moffett and wife, leave this week for a two weeks fishing trip on Kern River.

A number of Olancha people have been in town during the week as witnesses in the water contest case of Walker vs. Grant.

The Whistle is the name of a new paper published at El Verano. We suppose it is so called because every man must pay for his whistle.

Fine table and cooking apples for sale in lots to suit. Address

E. ROBINSON,
Independence, Cal.

Miss Leora Collins has returned to her home at Warm Springs to spend the Summer vacation. She has been attending the State Normal School at Los Angeles.

A fire occurred at Bakersfield last Sunday afternoon that destroyed thirteen blocks, including all the business houses and forty residences. The loss is estimated at $1,250,000.

Mr. L. Lasky and Mrs. Lasky and their daughter Mrs. Casco, have returned to Lone Pine after an absence of nearly two years. They are here on a visit only, and intend going back to San Francisco.

Last week Badge ran a mile at Coney Island in 1:40 with 115 pounds up. This is within a quarter of a second of Ten Broecks time with 110 pounds and is therefore considered a much better performance.

Hon. Simon Cameron died at his home in Pennsylvania last week, at the advanced age of 90 years. He was a notable characteter and a man of intellectual worth, but has been out of active service for a long time.

Last Thursday Maggie J. Dunn was granted a divorce from Rob't. A. Dunn on the ground of failure to provide, and was awarded the custody of the two minor children. P. W. Forbes was the Plaintiff's attorney.

Attention is called to the advertisement of R. C. Spear, the popular Lone Pine blacksmith. All work in his line will be carefully attended to at moderate charges. His work is all first class and satisfacton guaranteed.

Rev. E. McEvers will preach at Lone Pine next Sunday morning, and at Independence in the evening. Sevices at the usual hours. As he leaves for Conference on Tuesday morning, there will be no services the following Sunday.

The City Council of Oceanside, Cal. offer a reward of $200, for the capture of John Murray who murdered City Marshal Charles Wilson at that place on July 3d. Murray is about 5 feet 6 in., weight 140, light complexion and aged 24 years.

Last May Kern County voted to issue $100,000 00 worth of bonds. The bonds are of the denomination of $1,000 each, payable twenty years after date, or before that time at the pleasure of the County, and bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

A careful examination of the books in the Recorder's office shows that the mortgages in the County increased 50 per cent. between March 1st. 1888 and March 1st. 1889. This confirms a statemant made in this paper several weeks ago to the same effect.

Any person interested in fruit growing should visit the Densmore Ranch. A young orchard of about 12 acres has made phenomenal growth. Mr. Densmore will take pleasure in showing a visitor through his orchard and nursery.

Los Angeles spent $208,000 for a City Hall. It is one of the ugliest buildings on earth. It is a big pile of brick, having no more beauty of form than the huge mounds that remain of Babylon or Nineveh. The building is not yet completed, and yet Los Angeles papers say the worthless brick it is built of is crumbling to pieces.

The Supreme Court has less than thirty days to decide the Elliott Case. Elliott appears to take the matter very cooly and is in as good health as when arrested. He has not heard from his attorneys since his case was submitted in the Supreme Court.

Want of water in the Carson River has caused the quartz mills to be shut down. This, in turn, causes stoppage of work in the mines at Virginia. The Enterprise estimates that at least six hundred miners are thrown idle, and must remain idle for about two months.

County Indebtedness.

In 1884 Inyo County issued bonds to the amount of $85,000.00 bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and has redeemed $14,500 of that issue, leaving $70-500 yet outstanding.

Section 4050 of the Political Code of this State provides for the payment of the interest on the bonds and also "such proportion of the principal that at the end of five years the sum raised from such levies shall equal at least twenty per cent. of the amount issued; at the end of nine years at least forty per cent. of the amount; and at and before the date of maturity of the bonds shall be equal to the whole amount of the principal and interest."

The above section has not been complied with so far as it relates to the redemption of the principal of the bonds; if it had there would be now outstanding $68,000. instead of $70,500. To comply with the law it will be necessary for the County to redeem $19,500 worth of bonds in the next four years, as the bonds are dated July 15, 1884. During that time interest coupons to the amount of some $17,500 will have to be paid, making a total of more than $37,000 to be raised by taxation in the next four years, an average of some $9250 a year, which will exceed 28 per cent. of all moneys collected yearly by taxation, after deducting what belongs to the State, unless the assessment roll increases very materially. During the last five years the levy for the Bond Fund has equaled 18 per cent. of the total levy for State and County purposes. It will be readily seen that it would be impossible to keep the levy at even 2½ per cent. under such circumstances. If called upon the County is compelled to redeem 40 per cent. of the issue of 1884 by July 15th. 1893, for if the Board of Supervisors fail to levy a tax sufficient to pay the interest and principal as it becomes due the State Board of Equalization has the power to levy a special tax on all assessable property in this County to cover the deficiency as provided in Section 4052 of the Political Code. At the August meeting of the Board of Supervisors the matter of refunding the bonded indebtedness of Inyo County, at 5½ per cent., will be considered. The German Savings and Loan Society of San Francisco is prepared to take the entire issue at par. If the matter is consummated it will be a great saving to the County and instead of being compelled to redeem $9,250 in bonds and coupons for the next four years the County can by paying, on an average, $6-323.70 each year for the next five years keep the interest coupons paid and redeem 20 per cent. of the principal as required by law. We should endeavor to keep our tax rate below 2½ per cent. and in order to do that we must refund. The saving to the County in one year in intesest will nearly equal the cost of refunding, which will be about $1,250, for commissions, blank bonds, etc.

The Board of Supervisors is fully conversant with the above facts and no doubt will act for the best interest of the County.

The Standard-Bulwer Suit.

The trial of the case of the Standard Consolidated Mining Co. vs. the Bulwer Consolidated Mining Co. was called in the Superior Court on Monday morning. After listening to arguments on the motion of the Bulwer to amend its answer, which was allowed, the impaneling of a jury was proceeded with, and when court adjourned in the afternoon twelve "good and true men" were in the box, but on the assembling of the court on Tuesday morning, four of them were excused, and their places were soon filled and the jury sworn in as follows: M. M. Waltze, H. F. Cayin, Jas. Logan, A. Goens, A. J. Severe, P. Farenbach, D. O. Waltze, J. H. Patterson, John Manly, J. F. Crowell, L. M. Dechambau and Jos. S. Pitts. Judge Hakes instructed Sheriff Cody to take charge of them and keep them together, and allow them to have no conversation or intercourse with any one outside of the jury. Sheriff Cody fitted up the vacant Court Room of Department No. 2 with beds, etc., and their meals are taken to them, making them virtually prisoners during the pendency of the suit.

The suit is brought by the Standrd against the Bulwer for $20,000 damages for blowing out the bulkhead of the Standard mine, and extracting ore. The Standard is represented by Hon. P. Reddy and Chas. A. Sehuman, and the Bulwer by Gen. R.M. Clark and R. S. Miner.

The week has been taken up reading testimony taken at the former trial of the Bulwer vs. Standard. A large number of witnesses are in town waiting their turn to be put on the rack. The trial will probably last ten days or two weeks longer. In the meantime our hotel and saloon-keepers are happy as people must eat and sleep and drink soda-water and iron-sarsaparilla.—Chronicle-Union.

Assessment Notes.

The following is taken from the Assessment roll for the present fiscal year:

Ditches assessed for the year 1889:

Stevens ditch, 10 miles	$1,400
McNally ditch, 10 miles	1,000
Inyo canal, 10 miles	6,000
Bishop Creek ditch, 7 miles	1,400
Farmers' ditch, 6 miles	800
Brown Monster ditch, 4 miles	25

The Carson & Colorado railroad is assessed $6,850 on its depots, round houses, etc.

The roll shows that 57,150 acres of unpatented land claims were assessed at $69,-743 00.

The following is taken from the report of the Assessor to the State Board of Equalization:

Total value of real estate and improvements	$ 900,627
Personal property	481,198
Money and solvent credits	9,215
Total value of all property	$1 391,040

Shall Teaming Be Abandoned?

At the end of last week A. P. Smith started for Mojave with his freight team. When he got to Independence the prospect for a load was so discouraging that he went back to Big Pine. Next day Schober's team got in from Mojave with but part of a load, and said it was doubtful if he would go out again. The teamsters say that merchants refuse to have their goods brought by team, and it looks as if the teaming business will be abandoned, and all goods brought by rail as formerly. Farmers about Bishop talk of calling a public meeting to discuss the subject. They appear to be the parties most interested in keeping the teams going.

To Dispel Colds

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys to healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them take Syrup of Figs.

On another page of this issue will be found the premium list of the coming 18th. District Fair, as adopted by the Directors at their last meeting. Such changes as are deemed advisable will be made at subsequent meetings and will be advertised as they are made. The list is exceedingly liberal and is sure to attract a good showing.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

MONDAY, July 8th.

Estate of John Chastine, deceased—The County Treasurer is ordered to pay into the State Treasury $1,190.25, unclaimed balance on hand.

Estate of J. B. Probasco, deceased—The sum of $367.48 ordered turned over to the State Treasurer.

TUESDAY, July 9th

Broder et. als. vs. Conklin et. als.—Stipulation filed fixing first Monday in September for trial.

THURSDAY, July 11th.

Dunn vs. Dunn—Suit for divorce. The plaintiff granted divorce and awarded custody of the two minor children until further order of the Court. Defendant was ordered to pay plaintiff $100 to defray the expenses of the action and for counsel fees and $20 per month alimony.

Grant vs. Walker—Judgment rendered for defendant and $50 damages awarded. A perpetual injunction was issued restraining plaintiff from interfering with defendant's water.

Correspondence.

LONE PINE, June 8, 1889.

MR. ED. INDEPENDENT.—Dear Sir:—On the 15th of last May the Lone Pine public school closed, and among those in regular attendance were the undersigned and Nellie Reynolds, who, instead of rejoicing as many other pupils, concluded to continue our studies without a teacher. We asked the Clerk of the Board of School Trustees for permission to use the school room, it being the most convenient place to study, and it was allowed us. We studied five days per week until the last of June. Now after having a week's rest, and participating in the celebration of the glorious anniversary of our Nation's independence with many friends at Bishop, we returned with the expectation of continuing our studies. On Monday last we both went to the newly elected Clerk of the School Board and stated to him that among the 198 volumes in the school library there are many reference books; the library is the only place in town to obtain such works without the aid of which it is impossible for us to advance in our studies, and requested the privilege of using the school as formerly; he replied that a majority of the Board was opposed to granting such a request and our application was denied. Being much disappointed in our hopes we could not but draw unfavorable comparison of our present condition with the former kindness shown us. Here at home, where we expected no injustice, the school officers, elected by the people, instead of doing their best to advance the education of pupils, have restrained us in our studies. I consider this a matter of public interest. The School Trustees have full control of school property. The Code requires that the school law be liberally construed with the view of effecting its prinal intention, viz., educating the young. I claim that the Trustees have done us an injustice; we are registered pupils of the the Lone Pine school and are entitled to the benefit of Section 1716 of the Political Code, and unless we are permitted to be where the school library is located we are debarred from such benefit. It cannot be claimed that we are not of a suitable age, for the School Census Marshal has already inscribed our names for the last time in his report. By their action in this matter they seem to disregard the intention of the law; they have the power in their hands and conduct matters as pleases themselves.

MATILDA MEYSAN.

The Nevada State Fair begins the week following our local fair, thus giving us an excellent oppurtunity to exhibit agricultural products fruit etc. at Reno.

John Barnes came up from Keeler on Thursday morning. Landlord Barnes dont get here very often but he "lightens up the gloom" when he does arrive.

MAN has the right to speak, think, and write, with freedom upon all subjects; but he has no right to force his opinions upon others, or to persecute those who differ with him in belief.—Machaivel.

Mr. V. G. Thompson has leased from Henry Levy the Independence Hotel. Mr. Thompson is an accomplished host and all guests at the hotel will receive careful attention. The rooms have been newly fitted up and every comfort provided for visitors.

Sullivan knocked out Kilrain in the 75th round at Richburg. The fight was well conducted throughout. Kilrain has always been regarded as a fake and the result of the fight has only verified public expectation.

The contest of Jas. Jones vs. Jos. Wagner involving 280 acres of desert land near Fish Springs was heard in the Land Office at Independence last Wednesday. The contest was on the ground that the contestee failed to reclaim as required by law. Decision not yet rendered. Geo. M. Gill Esq. appeared for contestant.

Last Thursday the case of W. T. Grant plaintiff, vs. August Walker defendant, came up in the Superior Court, and judgement was rendered in favor of the defendant on his cross-complaint for $50 damages and a perpetual injunction was issued restraining the plaintiff from diverting water that is claimed by defendant. The plaintiff had no counsel. Messrs. Conklin and Laird appeared for defendant.

Messrs. Crocker, McMurry, Thomas, Tibbets, Herod and others have locared two lakes situated some 16 miles west of Big Pine, the waters of which they intend to impound by means of two dams about 70 and 55 feet long. The lakes are about 200 yards apart and cover about 80 acres. The estimated cost of the work is $2,000 and operations will be commenced in a few days. The water is to be used on lands owned by the locators. During the Summer months thousands of inches of water run to waste while early in the season the ranchers are short of water.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.

DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE LARGEST STOCK

Of Farm Machinery, Wagons, Buggies & Carriages in Southern

CALIFORNIA.

MOLINE STEEL PLOWS, WHITELY SOLID STEEL MOWERS,
OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS, CHAMPION STEEL FRAME MOWERS,
FLYING DUTCHMAN AND CASADAY SULKY PLOWS, THOMAS AND ROYAL SULKY RAKES,
HOGUE ORCHARD CULTIVATOR, STICKLE STEEL HEADERS,
LUITWIELER VINEYARD CULTIVATOR, J. I. CASE THRESHERS AND ENGINES,
PLANET JR. HORSE HOES, STUDEBAKER FARM AND SPRING WAGONS,
DRILLS, SEEDERS AND GRINDERS, CARRIAGES, BUGGIES AND BUCKBOARDS,
DISC HARROWS, SCALES, BALING WIRE, BALE TIES, BARBED WIRE, WIRE MESH FENCING.

WRITE FOR CIRCULARS AND PRICES.

S. W. LUITWIELER,
NO. 100 LOS ANGELES ST. Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2 00 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Inyo Freighting Company.

REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge, No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RHISE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Boggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

NOTICE TO STOCKMEN.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, owners and occupants of lands lying under and in the vicinity of the East Side Canal, to all stock raisers and ranchmen having loose stock running at large, that the law entitled "An Act to protect growing crops, growing in the County of Inyo," approved March 28th, 1872, will be strictly enforced against all animals found trespassing upon the lands owned and occupied by us, between the 15th day of March and the 15th day of November of each each year. (Signed.) F. McIVER,
DR. S. BISHOP,
PERSIA H. BISHOP,
L. L. WOODIN, M. D.
WILL H. GRAHAM,
J. H. PARISH,
H. J. ROBINSON.

Dated June 10th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOEL H. SMITH, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Executor, at Bishop, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the County of Inyo State of California.

HORACE M. SMITH,
Executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Dated at Bishop, Cal. June 10th, 1889. o 5

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

GENERAL MERC

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD'S

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries & canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117

SMITH'S STORE

The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.

CASH.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sept-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps)

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 14th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents a share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 24th day of June, 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUCE, Secretary.
—205 Front Street, San Francisco, Cal.

TO MR. GIMBLETT.

[London Truth.]

Mr. Gimblett, the ex-detective, was seated one morning in his dingy little office over the furniture shop in the Waterloo Bridge road, when his clerk brought in word that "a young person" wished to see him.

"Who is she?" inquired Mr. Gimblett.

"She says she will tell you her name herself. She has never been here before," said the clerk.

"Begging?" suggested Mr. Gimblett.

"I think not. She doesn't look that sort, and her manner is overbearing," was the reply.

"A young person, did you say?" remarked Mr. Gimblett.

"Yes, sir; young, and not bad-looking neither," said the clerk, who perhaps knew his chief's little weakness.

"I suppose you had better show her in," remarked Mr. Gimblett, with an air of supreme indifference. Nevertheless, when his clerk's back was turned, he ran his fingers through his hair, settled his cravat, and deftly rearranged the flowers in his buttonhole.

The "young person" did not belie the clerk's favorable description—at least, in Mr. Gimblett's humble opinion. She was young, tall, had a good figure, and a pretty face. But what chiefly impressed Mr. Gimblett was the keen and penetrating glance of her dark eyes and the firmness of her mouth and chin. He instinctively guessed that he had before him a girl of unusual shrewdness and energy of character, while her calm self-possession testified to the strength of her nerves. She was very quietly, yet commonly dressed, and there was no attempt to disguise her station in life, which was evidently that of a superior sort of domestic servant.

"Pray be seated," said Mr. Gimblett as she entered.

"You are Mr. Gimblett, I suppose," said the visitor, taking possession of a chair and drawing it up to the table. "My name is Martha Chale. My father used to be in the force with you."

"Oh, yes, I recollect," said Mr. Gimblett, slightly disappointed at this prelude, though he scarcely knew why. "I knew your father very well. He was killed in that affair over Balham way. Very sad! very sad!"

"I didn't come to talk about my father," continued Martha Chale, in a cool, matter-of-fact tone. "He has been dead ten years and more. I only mentioned him as a sort of introduction."

"I understand," said Mr. Gimblett, surprised and amused at his visitor's tone and manner.

"I want to engage your services in a business way, and I'm quite ready to pay you," said Martha, producing an apparently well-filled purse, and placing it upon the table. "I'm not one of your extravagant sort, but I'm not mean neither. I know how to save, but I don't grudge spending."

"Excellent!" exclaimed Mr. Gimblett, with involuntary admiration.

"The fact is, I'm being watched by the police, and it's unpleasant," said Martha, abruptly.

"Naturally," acquiesced Mr. Gimblett.

"I've lost my situation for nothing, and now my footsteps are dogged night and day. I don't like it, and mother don't like it neither, and, what is more, I ain't going to stand it."

Martha Chale spoke with considerable asperity and vigor, and Mr. Gimblett could not help perceiving that the young woman was blessed with a temper of her own. Yet the ex-detective thought the flash of her eyes and the quick rush of color to her cheeks became her wonderfully, while he rather admired, than otherwise, the decision of her tones.

"Quite right," he said benignly; "what is it all about?"

"Well, it is this: I've been living as upper housemaid for the last two years with Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer, of Park crescent."

"One moment—Mortimer, Park crescent," said Mr. Gimblett, as he made a note upon his blotting-pad.

"There has been a robbery there lately; some of Mrs. Mortimer's jewelry was stolen from a safe."

"Burglars?" inquired Mr. Gimblett.

"I know nothing about it," said Martha Chale, shrugging her shoulders. "The safe was opened by someone with a key, and the things abstracted. Nobody knows when it was done, except that the things were all right within a few days before the loss was discovered. That is the whole story. I was sent away."

"And none of the other servants?"

"No. I know why I was singled out. Mrs. Mortimer is most jealous of her husband, and she must needs take it into her head—"

"Pretty young women are dangerous in a house," interposed Mr. Gimblett, jocosely.

But from the manner in which this complimentary speech was received, the ex-detective judged that he had better not have uttered it. Martha Chale paused and fixed her dark eyes upon him with an expression of contemptuous astonishment. For once in his life Mr. Gimblett felt disconcerted, and became suddenly conscious of the fact that his hair was gray.

"I boxed his ears once for trying to bar the passage on the staircase; I know that," said Martha, impressively. "Misses hadn't no call to be jealous of me."

Mr. Gimblett did not trust himself to comment upon this remark, and his visitor proceeded:

"I suppose Mrs. Mortimer set the police on to me. Anyway, I'm watched night and day, and I've had enough of it."

"I don't see what I can do for you," said Mr. Gimblett.

"You haven't heard yet," said the young woman, catching him up quickly. "Wait till I tell you."

"I beg your pardon," said Mr. Gimblett, mildly.

"I don't wish anybody any harm, but I want to protect myself. This is the reason I come to you instead of communicating what I know to the police."

"You said you didn't know anything about the robbery," said Mr. Gimblett, quickly.

"I meant, of course, that I had nothing to do with it myself. But I know who did it," rejoined Martha, sharply.

"Oh! I see. Pardon me."

Mollified by Mr. Gimblett's hasty apology, the young woman proceeded to reveal what she knew in her terse, matter-of-fact language, which her companion listened to with increasing respect.

"I dare say you are right," said Mr. Gimblett, when she had concluded her recital. "But it sounds strange. What sort of man is Mr. Mortimer?"

"He is younger than his wife. Married her for her money, and gets precious little of it," was the significant answer.

"If you are right—of course, you are not absolutely sure," said Mr. Gimblett, quite humbly—"I have no doubt I can manage matters so that you won't be annoyed any longer."

"That is all I want. Mind you don't carry the matter any further," said Martha, rising from her chair. "If you won't take any money from me," she added, "I won't press it on you, because I dare say you will make him pay your expenses."

If Mr. Gimblett had required any further proof of his visitor's shrewdness, the last remark would have furnished it. As he rose to open the door for her he was seized with a sort of sudden nervousness which he had never before experienced. He took her hand in his with the deliberate intention of giving it a fatherly squeeze indicative of admiration, but upon meeting her gaze he abandoned his subtle design, while a tinge of color came to his face. It was not until he had been alone for nearly five minutes that he completely recovered his equanimity, and then he felt unaccountably ashamed of himself.

However, his self-esteem survived the shock, and half an hour later he sallied forth with his usual calm and confident air and manner, to make a few inquiries on his own account about Martha Chale and her story. The latter, as far as regarded the robbery, he found perfectly correct, nor did there seem any reason to doubt that the girl was perfectly innocent of the affair. The police were watching her, it is true, but this was chiefly owing to the instructions of Mrs. Mortimer, and not because they had grounds for suspecting her. As a matter of fact, the jewels had been taken in a manner which left absolutely no clew to the perpetrators of the theft. For his personal satisfaction, Mr. Gimblett ascertained that Martha Chale bore an excellent character, and when out of a situation lived with her mother, a respectable woman who had brought up a large family by her own exertions.

Fortified by these details Mr. Gimblett resolved to have an interview with Mr. Mortimer without delay, for his sudden interest in Martha Chale prompted him to lose no time in earning her gratitude. He therefore took an early opportunity to pay Mr. Mortimer a visit at his club, thinking he was more likely to be able to see him there than at his own house. Mr. Mortimer looked a good deal surprised upon the detective being ushered into the strangers' room at the Blenheim. He received him, however, civilly enough.

"Your card informs me that you are a detective officer," said Mr. Mortimer, who was a florid, overdressed, rather handsome man of 40, with a shifty glance and a weak chin.

"An ex-detective, sir, to be precise. I thought," added Mr. Gimblett, lowering his voice to a confidential whisper, "you would sooner I called upon you here than at your own house."

"It all depends on what you have come about," said Mr. Mortimer, with an uneasy laugh.

"It's in connection with the alleged robbery of jewels at your house," said Mr. Gimblett, with startling abruptness, looking him straight in the face.

Mr. Mortimer dropped his eyes to the carpet before the detective's gaze, either from sudden nervousness or from constitutional inability to meet a direct glance. He put his hand in his trouser-pockets, and, looking at the tops of his boots, merely nodded.

"The fact is, there is a young person who used to be in your service who seemed to be unjustly suspected by the police—or somebody," said Mr. Gimblett in his most incisive tones. "She is being watched and inconvenienced, though she isn't the guilty party."

"You mean the girl Martha—Martha Chale, I suppose," hastily added Mr. Mortimer. "Well, I don't suspect her. My wife sent her away. I think it was devilish hard lines!"

"So it is. In fact it's persecution, and must be put a stop to."

"It isn't my fault," said Mr. Mortimer, sulkily. "I can't do anything in the matter."

"You will have to, sir, or else——"

"Or else what, sir? What the deuce do you mean?" cried Mr. Mortimer, blazing up.

"Well, sir, Miss Chale don't bear you any malice, but she does happen to recollect your starting off on a journey with a small valise on the evening of the 7th of July," said Mr. Gimblett significantly. "It might be desirable to investigate that little trip. You were supposed to have gone to Birmingham on business, but——"

The ex-detective's remarks were interrupted by Mr. Mortimer suddenly turning round and making a tremendous rattling in the empty grate with the poker, apparently oblivious of the fact that there was no fire. But ere he effected this transparent manœuver Mr. Gimblett had remarked the guilty glow which had suffused his brow.

"It wouldn't do, of course, for Mrs. Mortimer to suspect," resumed Mr. Gimblett, quietly, as soon as he could make himself heard again.

"No, no. Come, out with it. Let us have no beating about the bush. What is it you want?" inquired Mr. Mortimer, dropping the poker and fidgeting about the mantel shelf.

"Only a letter to the police-inspector, that I can deliver," said Mr. Gimblett, readily. "Nothing more than that."

Mr. Mortimer hurriedly seated himself at the nearest table and took up a pen.

"What shall I say?" he inquired.

"Only that you have reason to know that Martha Chale is innocent of the robbery, and request that the police will cease to annoy her," said Mr. Gimblett, glibly.

"Reason to believe—not know," said Mr. Mortimer, commencing to write.

"Know," repeated Mr. Gimblett, emphatically.

"D—n it, then, have it your own way," exclaimed Mr. Mortimer, as he rapidly dashed off the note. "What shall I say, though, to the police, if they ask me what I mean?" he added, looking up.

"They won't, sir. I'll manage that," said Mr. Gimblett.

"And my wife needn't know anything about this, I suppose?" he continued.

"Which, sir? Oh! you mean the note to the police. No, sir; certainly not," said Mr. Gimblett.

"Very well. There you are then," said Mr. Mortimer, flinging the sheet of paper across the table.

"It's rather a delicate job, sir; may require a little oiling," said Mr. Gimblett, coughing behind his hand.

"How much?" demanded Mr. Mortimer, after an uneasy pause.

"Well, perhaps—perhaps a tenner."

Mr. Mortimer's only answer was to hand Mr. Gimblett a bank-note rather tremulously, and, with this, the interview ended. Mr. Gimblett bowed politely and took up his hat, while Mr. Mortimer opened the door to him, looking particularly sheepish and crestfallen.

Mr. Gimblett chuckled to himself when he got outside, and proceeded in the direction of Scotland yard, having first securely stowed the 10 pound sterling note. Whether the "oiling" process extended beyond Mr. Gimblett himself is by no means clear. Suffice it to say that five minutes' chat with the inspector having charge of Mr. Mortimer's case, the production of the letter, and a few nudges and winks exchanged over a friendly glass, seemed all that was necessary to show how the land lay. From that day forward Martha Chale ceased to be a suspected person, even as a matter of form, and the mystery of the robbery was considered to be solved in a manner not altogether uncommon.

Mr. Gimblett was gallant enough to pay Martha Chale a visit at her mother's humble abode to report what he had done, and received the young woman's thanks, which were tendered without the least enthusiasm, rather to his disappointment. The ex-detective evinced an inclination to follow up the acquaintance thus suspiciously commenced, and ventured to call a second time when he happened to be passing soon afterward. But on the latter occasion Martha's manner was so abrupt and inhospitable that he did not care to repeat the experiment, though he was surprised how very mildly he resented her treatment of him.

Shortly after this Mr. Gimblett had to go over to Paris on business. "Missing persons traced" was one of the announcements upon his professional prospectus, and this branch afforded him plenty of employment. The supposed elopement of a publican's wife with a sprightly grocer's assistant was the cause of his visit to the French capital on this occasion, and in course of his inquiries in connection with this startling case he picked up a little piece of information which recalled Martha Chale vividly to his recollection. Perhaps if the truth were known her image suggested itself to his imagination rather frequently, for there is no denying that for the first time in his life Mr. Gimblett found the gayeties of Paris decidedly depressing, and was constantly detecting fancied resemblances between casual passers-by and a certain young woman who had impressed him so much with her cleverness. But the trifling discovery he made in Paris suggested an uncomfortable suspicion as to whether Martha Chale's cleverness had not been rather too much for him. In other words, he began to have a disquieting idea that the young woman had made a cat's-paw of him; and, what was worse, he learned to doubt whether she was really as innocent of the disappearance of Mrs. Mortimer's jewels as she had pretended. Upon his return to England Mr. Gimblett made some inquiries which resulted in his paying Miss Martha another visit in a frame of mind which wavered between furious indignation and bitter disappointment. His perturbation was increased by a strange longing that he might after all have wronged her, and this charitable sentiment came uppermost when he met her face to face.

"Miss Chale," he said, as soon as he got an opportunity of speaking to her alone, "you remember the story you told me about Mr. Mortimer?"

"Yes; I do," was her calm reply.

"You declared you had seen in the valise he took away with him the jewels that were supposed to be stolen," proceeded Mr. Gimblett.

"I know I did; but it wasn't true," returned Martha, returning Mr. Gimblett's gaze almost defiantly.

"I know it wasn't true," retorted the ex-detective, unable to conceal his resentment; "I have discovered the mystery about Mr. Mortimer's little trip. I have had an interview with the lady."

"You seem to have taken a good deal of unnecessary trouble," said Martha, quite tartly. "I could have told you all about his goings on."

"Well, you made a fool of me, anyhow!" exclaimed the inspector, more crestfallen than angry. "You might have gone to Mr. M. yourself, but neither you nor he would have known how to manage the police."

"That is why I came to you," said Martha, with a nod.

"Yes; I understand that it was very clever of you, miss. May I inquire your object?" demanded Mr. Gimblett, with great politeness.

"I was so closely watched that I couldn't aid him to escape," said Martha, for the first time slightly embarrassed.

"Him! Who?" inquired Mr. Gimblett, sharply.

"The party that did it. I was keeping company with him, and I was fool enough to—to believe in him. He came into the house once or twice when I was alone, but I don't know how he managed to take the things. The loss was discovered before he had time to get away, and he went into hiding—being new at it, I suppose."

"I should think so," freely ejaculated Mr. Gimblett.

"He swore he wouldn't stir without me, and I began to fear he would do something desperate. I was afraid to go near him while the police were about, so I came to you."

"I see. And what became of him?" inquired Mr. Gimblett, his admiration for Martha's striking abilities for his own line of business overcoming even his resentment and jealousy.

"I packed him off," said Martha, laconically, "to America."

"Are you to follow?" asked Mr. Gimblett, with a sudden thumping at his heart.

"Not I. The man is a fool and a coward. I couldn't marry either one or the other," said Martha, in her matter-of-fact way. "Besides, I am honest."

"I knew you were. I could have sworn it!" exclaimed Mr. Gimblett, in a tone which seemed to disconcert even the imperturbable Martha. "But, I say," he added, abruptly "you never let a cur like that get away with so much swag."

"No; he'll be disappointed when he arrives over the water. He thinks he has it all, but it is upstairs," said Martha, with a short laugh.

"Bravo!" cried Mr. Gimblett, slapping his knee enthusiastically.

"I was going to ask you to contrive somehow to take the things back to the Mortimers," said Martha. "I don't like keeping 'em in the house any longer."

"Quite right. Leave everything to me! Do you know, Miss Martha," said Mr. Gimblett, becoming suddenly confidential, "that there is a reward offered which would do nicely to furnish a cottage for a newly married couple."

"Then it will come in convenient," said Martha, quietly.

"It will, Martha, if you will only consent," cried Mr. Gimblett, suddenly seizing her hand, "I'm older than you, but we're suited for one another in every way. We should run well in double harness, my dear, both in business and domestic life."

"You was saying I've made a fool out of you once," remarked Miss Martha, neither elated nor indignant, but simply matter of fact; "do you want me to do it again?"

Mr Gimblett's only answer was to imprint a kiss on the substantial hand he held between his own. For a moment Martha Chale's dark eyes flashed furiously, and she looked inclined to box his ears. But she finally didn't.

—The days come and go like muffled and veiled figures sent from a distant friendly party, but they say nothing, and if we do use the gifts they bring, they carry them as silently away.—Emerson.

—It is self-absorption that carves wrinkles in the face, and streaks the hair with gray. Kindly thought and labor for others dependent and beloved—the living out of and not in the petty round of personal and individual interests—keep heart and energies fresh.

—One who wants to be the object of good feelings on the part of others must be the subject of such feelings toward them. This is what Solomon meant when he said that "he that hath friends must show himself friendly." A cross, ill-tempered and sour-minded man, who really loves nobody, is too hateful and odious to invite the affection of others.—N. Y. Independent.

—Prof. Blakie says: "It is a grand safeguard when a man can say, 'I have no time for nonsense; no call for unreasonable dissipation; no need for that sort of stimulus which wastes itself in mere titillation; variety of occupation is my greatest pleasure, and when my task is finished, I know how to lie fallow, and with soothing rest, prepare myself for another bout of action.'"

—A Greek, the wisest man of his day, once cried with honest fervor: "What a heap of things there are that I do not want!" How lucky we should be if we could get out of discontent and envy into his habit of loving the good we have, but fearing to have all the good we desire! Well, we think, we really ought to have such and such a thing. If that is so, we shall have it, but we will not whimper meanwhile. We can put on the airs of Socrates, and congratulate ourselves that we can be jolly without it.—Wide Awake.

—One of the greatest causes of trouble in this world is the habit people have of talking faster than they think.

—Fame consists largely in being ignored while you are living, to be recognized when dead.—Harper's Bazar.

—A man who does not know any thing is pretty sure to tell it the first chance he gets.—Louisville Western Recorder.

The one who will be found in trial capable of great acts of love is ever the one who is always doing considerate small ones.—Once a Week.

—Man's character is an element of his wealth, and you can not make him rich in what he has except as you teach him to be rich in what he is.

—We are never more subject to attack from our spiritual enemies than when in the garden of ease. There is less danger for us when out in the conflict of life than when we sit down to rest.

RELIGIOUS AND EDUCATIONAL.

—From New South Wales comes the news of the establishment of strong and vigorous societies on the American plan.

—There are schools for dunces in Germany, at which dull children receive instructions suited to their capacity.

—The great work of education, religious and secular, is to enable men to master the idea of time, and time's work.—Essays on Social Subjects.

—A fund is being raised in San Francisco to found a Memorial Garibaldi school, where Italian history can be taught to young Italian-Americans.

—There are about 800,000 Roman Catholics in India, while the native Protestants number only 400,000; but the Jesuits have been there three centuries, the Protestants only one century.

—There are twenty persons whose gifts to colleges in this country aggregate over $23,000,000. Three of these men—Stephen Girard, Johns Hopkins and Asa Packer—gave over $14,000,000.

—Travelers tell us that even in Spain, one of the last places we should think, where Protestantism could find the least friendship, it is tolerated and talked of, and that Protestant churches exist in some of the principal cities. The same thing is true of Italy.

WEBER'S WINDFALL.

The Louisiana State Lottery Award's a Fortune of $15,000.

In a neat and modest cottage at He Liberty street, West Side, lives Peter Weber. The even tenor of Peter's way has been rudely broken in upon by an incident not of a very discouraging character. He luckily held one-twentieth of ticket No. 32,074, which drew the first capital prize of $300,000 in the drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, on April 16, and consequently, a week ago Saturday, $15,000 in cold cash were added to his earthly possessions.

A Sun and Voice reporter dropped in to see Mr. Weber Friday. He found a little gray-haired, good-natured German, whose acquaintance with English is far from perfect, but by whom, with the assistance of his comely and more thoroughly Americanized daughter, he was assured that the rumors of the financial windfall were entirely true.

Mr. Weber is indeed a fortunate man. So large a fortune seldom comes in a lump to a laboring man, and, coming as it does, in his old age, when his days of activity are at the most but few, it is an untold blessing, and would that we all could be similarly favored. We understand that Mr. Weber purposes returning to Germany in the near future.

To his old friends and relatives on the other side of the ocean, Mr. Weber will doubtless have better stories to tell of his new home than they have ever heard before. The prize which he has drawn will make him seem to the residents of Bismarck's dominion, as a truly rich man, must be envied.—Cleveland, (Ohio) Sun and Voice, May 5.

DISARMING AN UNSEEN FOE.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defense against which the enemy is powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

The man who always pays down is never called to pay up.

DISTANCED IN THE RACE.

Why should Dr. Pierce's medicines not distance all competitors in amount of sales, as they are doing, since they are the only medicines sold by druggists possessed of such wonderful curative properties as to warrant their manufacturers in guaranteeing them to cure the diseases for which they are recommended? You get a cure or money paid for them returned. The Doctor's "Golden Medical Discovery" cures all diseases caused by derangement of the liver, as biliousness, indigestion or dyspepsia; also, all blood, skin and scalp diseases, tetter, salt-rheum, scrofulous sores and swellings and kindred ailments.

Don't hawk, hawk, and blow, blow, disgusting everybody, but use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and be cured.

Birds of a feather frequently flock to jail together.

A White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Laurie—Have you ever seen a cow milked, mother? Mother—Yes, dear. So have you, haven't you? Laurie—No; only unmilked, you know.

The country is flooded with poor imitations of "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut Smoking Tobacco."

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

Students, Teachers (male or female), Clergymen, and others in need of change of employment, should not fail to write to B. F. Johnson & Co., 1009 Main street, Richmond, Va. Their great success shows that they have got the true ideas about making money. They can show you how to employ odd hours profitably.

Try Germes for Breakfast.

On his circuit may preach about the evil effects of bad whisky, but he enjoys his pipe and "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut" all the same. A quiet smoke and a package of "Seal of North Carolina" is a sermon in itself.

Bear in mind that the genuine "Seal of North Carolina" costs no more than the many trashy plug cuts some dealers carry

---

Rope in Japan is made of the hair of women. There is no sow-rope there, because none of the women have blonde hair.

BADLY BRUISED.

Senator Edward F. Reilly, New York, writes:

"STATE OF NEW YORK, SENATE CHAMBER, "ALBANY, N. Y., March 21, 2887.

"Some weeks ago, while sleigh riding, I was upset and thrown with great force on the road. My left side and shoulder were much bruised, and I suffered great pain. I tried various external remedies without avail. Fortunately a friend brought me four ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. I put two on my shoulder and two on my side. In two hours the pain diminished and I slept well that night. I was very much better the next morning, and continued to improve for four days, when I found myself completely recovered. It is astonishing how quickly ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER relieves the soreness and swelling."

And So it Goes.—"What do you think of a man who uses slang, Nellie?" "He makes me tired."

HOW I SAVED MY LIFE.

I was taken sick while at the dinner table with terrible distress in my stomach. Before this I had been hearty and strong. For fourteen days I kept getting worse, despite the efforts of two doctors, lost forty pounds, and was satisfied that I could live but a few days. My trouble was Stomach and Liver Complaint, resulting in an attack of bilious colic. At this time I saw Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., advertised, and sent for a bottle. I at so sent for my physician, and told him that I was going to try the Favorite Remedy. He examined it and told me to use it three days and let him know the result. In the three days I walked four miles. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has saved my life.—W. S. Bitzer, Slate Mills, Ross Co., Ohio.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

Smith—Miss Jones is a self-possessed young woman. Brown—Very; but she won't be much longer—she's engaged to be married.

THE THROAT.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" act directly on the organs of the voice. They have an extraordinary effect in all disorders of the Throat. Speakers and Singers find the Troches useful.

OVERLAND EXCURSIONS

To all points East, with Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, fully equipped, through from San Francisco to Chicago without change, every Tuesday. Privilege of stop-over at Salt Lake and Denver en route, if desired.

For particulars, tickets, and sleeping car berths, apply to E. A. Holbrook, General Traffic Agent, Chicago & North Western Railway, 2 New Montgomery Street (Palace Hotel), San Francisco Cal.

St Jacobs Oil cures
LUMBAGO · BACKACHE · TOOTHACHE · HEADACHE · SCIATICA
AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

Having for the past four or five years been troubled with pimples and blotches on my face and body, and finding no relief in any of the chemically prepared soaps and medicines prescribed for me by physicians, I concluded to try your S. S. S. remedy, and have found great relief in the same, four bottles clearing my skin entirely. I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are in the position that I have been in. You can use this letter and my name as a testimonial to the merits of the S. S. S. remedy.
Very truly yours, ALFRED P. ROBINSON,
326 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.

Send for our books on Blood and Skin Diseases and advice to sufferers, mailed free.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
—FOR—
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
417 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

KNABE PIANOS
It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.
A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 132 Post street, S. F.

SURE. SAFE. SPEEDY.
PANAMA SPECIFIC will always relieve ladies. Pleasant to take. Guaranteed to succeed or money refunded. Once tried you will never be without it. By registered mail, $1.50. Send postal note to Panama Specific Co., box 328, Oakland, Cal.

WELL DRILLS
FOR EVERY PURPOSE.
Sold on Trial!
Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by
F. C. AUSTIN MANF'G CO.,
Cor. Carroll ave. & Carpenter St., Chicago, Ill.

FARMERS AND MINE OWNERS (not coal supplied with pupils. Apply Colonial Agency 2 Billiter Street, London, E. C.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roemich Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

BIG G. Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, O. Trade Mark
I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease.
G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.
We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction.
D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill.
$1.00. Sold by Druggists.

ORATORS say Piso's Cure for Consumption is THE BEST for keeping the voice clear. 25 cents.

I CURE FITS!
I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

Harvest Hands!
And all other kinds of Help furnished at short notice. Wire, Telephone or Mail your orders to C. R. HANSEN & CO., Employment Agents, 110 Geary St., San Francisco, Cal. Telephone 485.

S. F. N. U., No. 364. New Series No. 23

Used by the United States Government. Endorsed by the heads of the Great Universities and Public Food Analysts, as the Strongest, Purest and most Healthful. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alum. Dr. Price's Delicious Flavoring Extracts, Vanilla, Lemon, Orange, Almond, Rose, etc., do not contain Poisonous Oils or Chemicals.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO., New York. Chicago. San Francisco.

DEDERICK'S HAY PRESSES.
Made of steel, lighter, stronger, cheaper, more power, everlasting and competition distanced. For proof order on trial, to keep the best and get any other alongside if you can. Reversible Full Circle Belt Presses, all sizes.

Address for circulars and location of Storehouses and Agents. Western and Southern P. K. DEDERICK & CO., No. 84 Dederick's Works. ALBANY, N. Y.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

A BIG SHOW
Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry Fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey, Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

AGENTS are coining money with our new book. Write for circulars. Distance no hindrance. Empyreal Pub. House, St. Paul, Minn.

ASTHMA CURED
German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

A DELIGHTED YOUNG WOMAN.

Look at my face and my hands—not a pimple,
Such as you saw there some time ago.
See my fresh cheeks, and I'm getting a dimple,
I don't look at all like I used to, I know.

My face was all blotches—complexion like tallow;
No wonder they thought me and called me a fright;
No one need have pimples and skin gray and sallow,
If she'll take what I took, ev'ry morn, noon, and night.

I asked the delighted young woman what she referred to, and she answered, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best beautifier in the world, because it purifies and enriches the blood, and pure rich blood gives good health, and good health—beauty.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, Scaly or Rough Skin, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine.

Copyrighted, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

CATARRH IN THE HEAD, no matter how bad or of how long standing, is permanently cured by DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY. 50 cents, by druggists.

THE BEST
CLOTHING
For Men and Boys at
"THE HASTINGS,"
Lick House Block, San Francisco.
MANN & BENEDICT, Successors to C. C. HASTINGS & Co
27 Years in present location.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....JULY 20 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 6. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 20, 1889. WHOLE NO. 977.

IN YO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 00
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 05

AMONG THE POULTRY.

How to Make It Pay as Large a Profit as Other Classes of Stock.

A red comb is a good indication of health.

Use plenty of carbolic acid at the first indication of cholera.

Tarred paper makes a good lining for the poultry house, but shingles make the better roof.

When it can be done without too much inconvenience it will be best to provide separate yards for the different classes of poultry.

It is quite an item in handling poultry to keep them gentle, and it can readily be done if proper care is taken not to frighten them.

It will be found a good plan to take out the old material and burn it after a brood is hatched out and put in a supply of fresh material before using the nests again.

While it is possible to keep eggs some time before setting, still better and thriftier young fowls will be hatched if eggs not more than fifteen days old are set.

If well cared for a hen that is an extra good setter can be made to hatch out ten broods without injury. A good, large hen can care for twenty chickens nearly if not quite as well as for ten.

Hens that get into the habit of pulling feathers or eating eggs, unless especially valuable should be marketed or made into pot-pie as soon as possible.

When made a specialty poultry farming does not require a large acreage of land, while with management it is possible to secure a regular income every week.

The principal source of income from pea-fowls is the feathers, though there are many persons who like the taste of the flesh sufficiently to enjoy eating them. They require a long time to fully mature.

The meat of the common guinea is dark and has something of a gamey flavor that those who prefer wild fowls to domestic ones relish. If in good condition it makes an excellent table fowl.

Turkeys and guineas rather more than other fowls, seem to have a disposition to hide out their nests, and it will often be necessary to watch very closely in order to discover their hiding place. Guineas rather excel any other kind of poultry in this respect. As good a feed as can be given to the young poultry for a first meal is hard boiled eggs chopped up fine. The bane of raising young, thrifty poultry is the feeding of too much cornmeal, causing more or less disease and at the same time increasing the cost.

A delay of a few days in getting young chickens or ducks to market will often make so much difference in the price as largely to determine the question of profit or loss. It is an item in raising poultry for early market to push along as rapidly as possible.

While with many it is not so considered, yet counting what is used for the family table, poultry pays as large a profit as any other class of stock kept upon the farm. There is, too, the additional advantage that what is not marketed at a price that will pay a profit can nearly always be used to good advantage at home and will add much to the variety and healthfulness of the food supply.—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

WITH CHINA'S MINISTER.

Points of Etiquette Observed at the Legation of the Flowery Land.

When the Chinese Minister gives a formal dinner to any of his own countrymen of sufficient rank to be thus honored or to Japanese visitors, he never fails to go through a curious form of etiquette. Before taking his seat at the head of the board he approaches the guests, who stand in a line around the table, and without uttering a syllable pushes each tenderly and playfully and points significantly to the unoccupied post at the head of the table. It is etiquette for the guests to observe a rigid demeanor, neither speaking nor moving, and demonstrating by their inflexible attitude their unworthiness to occupy the place d'honneur. This over the Minister sinks into his chair and would no doubt have been greatly surprised had anybody taken it. No one speaks until the Minister drops a remark, which is finally taken up and commented upon. Then the chief speaks again and more observations follow; so it may be said that the chairman in a measure supplies subjects for conversation.

Another curious custom at these formal dinners is that after the fish is eaten they all rise simultaneously and dust their chairs with their napkins. The bill of fare is pretty nearly the same as would be served at any of the other foreign legations, with one or two special Chinese delicacies by way of tidbits. Chinese gentlemen prefer Burgundy and claret to any other wines.—Table Talk.

—Signal Service Man—"You've come in to complain of our weather predictions, eh?" "Yes, and I've a good mind to put the law on you. You said it would be warmer, and I've had to pay twenty-five dollars to a plumber for fixing 'busted' water pipes." "When we predicted warmer weather we had a cold snap, did we?" "Yes, we did." "Well, when we predicted a cold snap we had warmer weather, didn't we?" "Yes." "Then what's the matter with you. Ain't we giving you a fair stand off?" Stranger, puzzled by this peculiar logic, goes off to think it out.

ADVICE TO WIVES.

How They May Put Their Husbands in Trim and Continue to Hold Them.

Never marry but for love, but see that thou lovest what is lovely.—Ovid.

If the man who loves her won't admire her she'll find some one who will. Perhaps she isn't beautiful, but the woman never lived who was not gratified by a compliment to her person tendered by graceful word or implied by homage in a glance. Men too often pooh-pooh as silly weakness or vanity what is really part of the strong contrast in mental character which links the sexes in magnetic affinity. Her love of dress is but one phase of her higher nature in appreciation of the beautiful and harmonious in color. I have known women so exquisitely attuned that to simply look at a pansy or a rose was to thrill their whole being as with the chords of a harp. A woman thrives on admiration. Without it the springs in her nature nourish fretfulness and frowns; the homely woman becomes homelier through neglect to water the flower in the heart.

Why should not the husband be always the lover? May it not be traced to lack of proper study of the relationship? I believe women fail to hold their husbands' devotion by too complete surrender. Their very excess of love and self-sacrifice defeats their aim. A woman should study the opposite sex. A woman is governed through her emotions to a great extent, a man through his senses. Her affections are deeper, quieter and more constant. His are turbulent, less deep-seated and more easily influenced by passion. A woman's influence over a man is measured by her personal magnetism. If she fails to hold her husband's loyal love she has either yielded herself too entirely or failed in other ways to charm his senses, either physical or spiritual, or both.

There is more magnetic power in the graceful turn of a ribbon about a woman's throat than in a well-ironed shirt bosom or a well-darned pair of socks, although the latter are not to be neglected. A pretty ankle on the street will catch the admiring gaze of many a benedict who daily sees a prettier one at home. The novelty and charm suggested by a stranger spices his senses, appeals to his imagination. A wife has a rival in every other woman. If she be a fool she becomes jealous and shows it. If she be a sensible woman she besieges the fort with the same kind of weapons—the legitimate arts of her sex.

Wives make themselves too cheap. What men command as a right or come to regard as a matter of course they soon learn to place a low estimate upon. Woman rules over the heart and desire of man by divine right. She is the queen of civilization, before whom all mankind bend the knee in homage—when compelled. To grant as a favor what she really desires to give is an art which once attained makes woman mistress of the field. The subtlety of the sex exerted on these lines makes every wife largely the fashioner of her own domestic paradise or hell, just as she may wisely use the knowledge. True marriage is yet a far-off ideal. Few grasp its hidden meaning and fewer still have will and courage to develop all that may be gained in human happiness by striving to approximate the true idea.—Milton Allen, in Cleveland Union.

THE EDITOR WAS IN.

A Warning For Readers Who May Happen to Consider Themselves Insulted.

"This licking an editor is scaly business," said a Detroiter the other day, as the matter was called up. "I once had some experience in that line, and I haven't quite recovered from my disgust yet."

"How was it?"

"I was in Peoria, Ill. A paper came out one morning and called me a loafer, and my dander was up in a minute. I went around to find the editor, taking a copy of the paper along. He was very courteous and even when I said I had come to lick him he didn't lose his smile.

"Any thing wrong?" he asked.

"Your paper calls me a loafer."

"Ah! does it? Let's see. This is not my paper, but the Bugle, published two blocks further down. My paper is the Argus."

"And this is not the Bugle office?"

"Oh, no."

"Well, I went down to the other office, and as I was going up-stairs I met a man tumbling down."

"What's up?" I asked.

"Been up to lick the editor," he replied.

"And was he in?"

"He was—a whole ton of him."

"What's your complaint?"

"His paper called me a loafer. My name is John ——."

"And I wasn't the person meant at all, you see, and when I afterwards called upon the Bugle man I found him to be an ex-heavy weight pugilist who could have knocked the life out of me with a punch."—Detroit Free Press

—Fond mamma (who knows him at home)—"Frankie, I hope you have been a nice, quiet boy at school this afternoon." Frankie—"Yes, indeed, mamma. I went to sleep in my seat right after recess, and the teacher said she would keep in the first boy or girl that waked me up."—Puck.

—Under the terms of a will, left by an Iowa man the same gold watch was left to thirteen different persons. He was not friendly with any of them, and he probably did it hoping they would fight each other, which they are doing in a lively manner.

WITH THE SNAKES.

The Queer Pets Kept in the Late King of Oude's Gardens.

That a person can enjoy keeping snakes for pets is incomprehensible to those who look on a snake merely as a disgusting and dangerous creature; but the true student of nature finds something interesting in the snake's habits of life, and never ceases to admire its sinuous, gliding movements, which are the perfection of ease and grace.

The late King of Oude had a snakery in the gardens of his palace near Calcutta, and there snakes of all sorts and sizes were assembled.

"It was an oblong pit," says one who had seen it often, "about thirty feet long by twenty feet broad, the walls being about twelve feet high, and perfectly smooth, so that a snake could not climb up. In the center of the pit there was a large block of rough masonry, perforated so that it was as full of holes as a sponge. In this honeycombed block the snakes dwelt, and when the sun shone brightly, they came out to bask or to feed.

"His Majesty used to have live frogs put in the pit, and amused himself by seeing the hungry snakes catch the frogs. When a large snake catches a small frog, it is all over in an instant; but if a small snake catches a large frog, so that he can not swallow it at once, the frog's cries are piteous to hear. Again and again I have heard them while out shooting, and have gone to the bush or tuft of grass from which the piercing cries came—sometimes in time, sometimes too late to save poor froggy, though the snake generally got shot.

"But a frog has been known to turn the tables on the snake. Two gentlemen in Cachar, some years ago, saw a small snake seize a small frog and attempt to swallow it. But suddenly a large frog jumped forward, seized the snake's tail, and began to swallow the snake.

"How the affair might have ended can not be told, because my friends imprudently drew near to watch the combat, when the frogs and the snake took alarm, and the big frog disgorged the snake's tail, the snake released the little frog, and they all dispersed, each his own way."—Youth's Companion.

THE AMERICAN DRUMMER.

An Eloquent Newspaper Tribute to That Prince of Intinerants.

The merchant has his store, the manufacturer his shop and the professional man his office; when the work of the day is done, they go to their homes, where blue devils are exorcised by the joys of the fireside, and there is a relaxation of business cares in the pleasure of society. But the drummer has the wide, wide world for his field of action, and his energy and nerve for his stock in trade. His days are spent in labor and his nights in toil. He travels while other men sleep; recollections of home must be crushed out of him and the tenderest part of his nature must be subdued. For who could sell goods when, in fond memory, he heard the voices of his children mingled with the strife of trade? He must keep his heart locked tightly while he handles the keys of commerce. And yet, he has pleasures, too. When for a time his work is over, who so well understands the secret of "taking mine ease in mine inn." He is as much at home in a caboose of a freight train as in a palace car. When he enters a train, his familiarity with his surroundings, is so apparent that he might easily be mistaken for the president of the road. His practical eye at a glance selects a cosy seat, and he is ensconced therein and taking his daily lesson in human nature from his traveling companions before they have begun to be settle. The bell rings, the throttle valve is opened, and the train moves into the country. Now, who can know the joy he feels as he glories in the view of the landscape, while the hills and valleys, the streams and rivers and the woodlands and meadows in panoramic beauty glide away behind him.

Then here's to the drummer, that prince of itinerants. Speak a kind word for him when you can, and when his last trip is over may he enjoy, in his old age, the peace and quiet of domestic life which was denied him in his earlier manhood.—Shoe and Leather Record.

Distinguished Colored Men.

Walking about the lobby arm in arm with a white-haired and pale-faced old Southern gentleman of great dignity is a thick-set man of light coffee color, medium in height, with a round, good-natured face. The colored man is the better known of the two. Perhaps he is better dressed. His clothes are of fine quality, but not showy; a shiny beaver rests squarely on his head, and a good cigar is held between his teeth. He is a United States ex-Senator and a man of work in his way. The group on the wooden bench seek his influence, and he is a frequent visitor at the White House. He is ex-Senator, ex-Register and present lecturer Blanche K. Bruce. The shorter and fatter and darker man, with a much more serious expression on his face, who is surrounded by several of his race, who are all trying to engage him in talk at the same time, is another active adviser of Southern politics and appointments. He has a grievance against the Solid South; in the Smalls-Elliott contested election case in the House last session he was the unsuccessful contestant, while Elliott held the seat. These are the two most active leaders of the group of colored politicians from the South that assemble on the hard bench each day to talk, hope and wait.—Washington Letter.

—The smallest party is big enough for friends; the biggest party is too small for enemies.

CECILIA'S QUANDARY.

How the Prima Donna Blasted the Hopes of Poor Alasper Yorick.

"You speak truly, Mr. Yorick. The applause of the critical public is gratifying to me as an artist, but it does not touch the heart. Nothing so moves me as the unobtrusive admiration and affection of my true friends—those who value me for myself alone—as expressed in the warm grasp of the hand, the kindling eye and the sympathetic voice."

"I am glad to hear you say so, Miss Cecilia, if I may venture to address you in so familiar a way," responded the young man, somewhat tremulously. "It gives me courage to speak of a subject that has long been uppermost in my thoughts."

Alasper Yorick hitched slightly forward in his chair, swallowed a large hunk that in some unaccountable manner was obstructing his throat, and continued:

"The multitude is wildly demonstrative, but fickle. It is no wonder your glorious voice stirs all hearts and moves to rapture the listening thousands who hang, as it were, upon your lips. Yet if you should lose that marvelous voice you would be in the—er—you would cease to be a popular idol. You would soon be only a fleeting memory. But the devotion of a true heart is something that outlasts the ravages of time."

The lovely prima donna, her lustrous, soulful eyes gazing dreamily into those of the infatuated youth as if her vision penetrated through them into his inmost being and out over the landscape beyond for miles and miles, bowed her beautiful head, but made no reply.

Emboldened by her manner the young man threw himself at her feet and burst forth:

"Cecilia Von Dumpenshleiger, I am only one of your hosts of passionate, devoted admirers, but not one of them would cherish you with a tenderness surpassing mine. Not one of them in a million has the capacity to love you as I do. If the refuge of a fond, faithful, deathless devotion can console you in the hour when your matchless soprano voice, with its faultless upper register and chest tones of unequaled timbre, kind of—aw—peters out, you know, and when the pearl-like radiance of your complexion fades into a leathery hue——"

"Mr. Yorick," murmured the prima donna, still looking dreamily through him into vacancy, "believing you, as I do, to be a true friend, I wish to ask your advice upon a matter of some moment."

"Is it possible," he gasped, "that you have not been listening to what I——"

"My friend," said the gifted queen of song, her eyes luminous with unshed tears, and her liquid, sympathetic voice tinged with an indefinable shade of melancholy, thrilling him to the soul, "the manufacturers of the Sure-Death-to-Freckles soap have offered me the pitiful sum of $1,000 for my signature testifying to its merits. Would you take it, Mr. Yorick, or stick out for $5,000?"—Chicago Tribune.

OLD WORLD TITLES.

Hints That May Be of Interest to Wealthy American Girls.

No foreign, though more particularly no French, title holds a more esteemed place than that of "Marquis," which, indeed, socially may be said to rank above that of Duke for the very simple reason that while the first Napoleon created a large number of Dukes and Princes he patented no Marquises, who, unless the sons of imperialist Dukes, are therefore known to be of creation belonging to the days of the monarchy. Such points are of course difficult to determine without ready sources of reference, but in foreign society such distinctions are as familiar as are with us those which regulate the relative social positions of the members of our aristocracy.

It is a distinction not always thoroughly understood, that which exists between political or peerage nobility and nobility of blood. A gentleman of blood being already noble, can not be further ennobled by being raised to the peerage, though his rank and privileges are thereby augmented. This is a point which, if it is not always clear to the English mind, it is difficult to explain to the foreigner. He, however, perhaps better than the Briton, can grasp the meaning of the amusing anecdote of the Spanish grandees who, signing their consent to the accession to their throne of the French Philip V., wrote each against his name, "noble as the King;" one, however, adding, "and a little more, for," he said, "Philip V. is a Frenchman, while I, I am a Castilian." Though it is a colloquial fiction that every Spaniard is of noble birth, it must be remembered that it is only the heads of the Spanish noble families who bear the title, the eldest son of a Duke being known during his father's life-time simply as "Don Alfonso di ——." It is, perhaps, not familiarly known that a Spanish title is by no means an inexpensive luxury. The rank of grandee costs about £1,000; and while with us a ducal title entails an outlay of £1,300, it mugt be remembered that it is only the original recipient who pays this sum, which in Spanish is renewable on every fresh assumption of the title. This is but poorly recompensed by the right enjoyed by all Spanish grandees of remaining covered in the presence of royalty, a privilege confined in this country to the family of Lord Forester and of Lord Kingsale.—Chambers' Journal.

THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

A Spring Review in the Champ de Mars at St. Petersburg.

If you wish to see military Russia in all its glory and epic luxury you must take your place in the first days of April on one of those tribunes which rise at the extremity of the Champ de Mars on both sides of the imperial pavilion. Society meets there to assist at the grand spring review. All the Guard is massed before us—20,000 men at least, and perhaps more. Other States may pride themselves on a military force equivalent to this, but none can show a force so magnificent and picturesque in aspect. All the races and all the arms of this varied empire are about to defile before our eyes, from those noble Chevalier Guards, who seem to have been resuscitated from the romantic Middle Ages, down to the Kirgheez of the Asiatic steppe, who are still pagans. "Attention!" Thousands of voices have transmitted the same word of command. "The Emperor!" He appears yonder at the corner of the Champ de Mars. The moment he is seen all the flags flutter, all the bands join in one formidable chorus to send heavenward the sounds of the national hymn, "God save the Tsar." The Emperor arrives at a gentle gallop. Behind him follows an escort which makes many hearts beat amongst the fair public of the tribunes. It is a gathering of the most illustrious names and the finest horsemen of the Russian nobility. All the armies of the world have contributed to form this staff. The Hungarian magnate rides side by side with the Japanese military attache, the French kepi salutes the fez of the Mussulman bey. The Master passes along the front of his troops; the Empress follows in an open barouche. At the approach of their Majesties the band of each regiment resumes the hymn with wild fury—a hurricane of harmony, which accompanies and envelops the imperial procession. The traditional salutations are exchanged between the Tsar and his soldiers: "Good-day, children." "We are happy to do well for your Imperial Majesty."

The sovereign stops before the tribune of the Grand Duchesses; he gives the signal, and the march past begins. At the head are the platoons of the Asiatic escort, eastern and wild Russia, Mussulmans from Khiva and Bokhara, Georgian princes, Tcherkesses, Persians, Mongols and Caucasians. These primitive warriors, armed with lances and steel maces, wear long coats of mail over their brilliant silk dresses, furs of great price, damascened helmets or Tartar caps. This is the vanguard of the hordes of Attila, the concession made in the regular army to legend and fancy. Then come the compact masses of the regular army, the infantry first of all—Preobrajensky, Finland Chasseurs, and soldiers of the Paul Regiment, with their large copper hats in the form of miters—such as were worn by the grenadiers of Frederick the Great. In accordance with an old tradition, all men who have flat noses are recruited for this regiment. The lines of cavalry follow the infantry like living walls of brass and steel. Then come the light troops, Red Hussars, Grenadiers and Lancers; and finally swarms of Cossacks, galloping on their little ponies, sweep along from the extremity of the Champ de Mars at full speed, stop and turn short at the foot of the imperial tribune. These troops perform the exercises of the Arab fantasia—lie down on their saddles, lean over to the ground without quitting their stirrups and pick up the lance or pistol that they have thrown down before them. The artillery closes the march. The batteries, admirably horsed, are carried along at full speed by black chargers as fine as the finest trotters.

As the last cannons disappear, rattling over the pavement behind the trees of the Summer Garden, the court and its guests go to breakfast in the palace of the Princes of Oldenburg, which faces the Champ de Mars; and the foreigner who follows the Emperor—his eye still full of his heroic vision—wonders how a man can resist the intoxication of such power gathered in his hand and the temptation which must come upon him to let loose this superb force against the world.—Vicomte Eugene Melchoir de Vogue, in Harper's Magazine.

—A Philadelphia business man, according to the Times, has hit upon a novel scheme for avoiding unwelcome visitors. He has placed a detective camera directly opposite the door of his office. When a visitor enters, the office boy, a bright lad and well schooled in the diplomacy of his profession, turns the knob and takes an instantaneous photograph of the intruder. This is developed and forms one of a collection of undesirable visitors, which is kept in a book for the boy's instruction in the future. People who come to waste others' time, collectors with bills that they wish paid and the thousand and one disagreeable characters known to the average business man form the basis of this unique collection.

—A New York man, who appears to be favorably situated to see what is going on, says of illuminating gas that instead of being in its last days it is just born. When the companies had matters all their own way their attitude toward inventors was one of hostility. Now electricity has stirred them to try new materials for producing gas and new burners for increasing its illuminating power. In a few years its use for fuel may be general.

HUMOROUS.

—A New Jersey man has made a ballot-box which can not be stuffed. Now all the country wants is a voter built in the same way.—Yonkers Statesman.

—The girl who went to service for the first time wrote to her mother that her master and mistress were very dirty, for they washed their hands ever so many times a day.

—We do not know very much about the ancient Egyptians, perhaps, but the grand old Sphinx with its silent woman's head shows that they were a very sarcastic people.—Journal of Education.

—Affidavit Editor—"Dearest Mathilde, can you doubt the strength and sincerity of my love?" Mathilde—"Swear it, Alonzo, swear it!" Affidavit Editor (absent-mindedly)—"I swear—we have the largest circulation in the West, and it is rapidly increasing."—America.

—"There is no excuse for the use of profane language," says an exchange; and this is no doubt correct, but if there were any the drug clerk who is aroused at three o'clock in the morning by a drunken man who wants to look in the directory to find out where he lives would seem to possess it.

—A gentleman said to one of his friends that for some years his wife had persisted in saying that she was only twenty years old. "Mine is more reasonable," replied his friend. "I have succeeded in making her enter her thirties, but I have failed to make her come out of them."—N. Y Ledger.

—Rooney—"Sure Oi can't see why I musht be a mimber av yure Union if Oi want to keep me job! It's only a week I've been over here, but I know this is a free counthry." Mooney (walking delegate)—"But remimber now, man, that yure an Amerikin, an' musht pertect yuresilf against imported pauper labor!"

—In a Book-store.—"Have you got the Blue book?" "The blue book? We've got 'Burtoc's Anatomy of Melancholy.' That ought to be blue enough." "No, no. That isn't it. I mean the book with the list of offices." "We haven't got it. But if you are after an office, you had better take the book on melancholy."—Chicago Herald.

—A Useful Instrument.—Musical Visitor—"What a handsome piano!" Mrs. Tiptop—"Yes, I do not know of a single piece of furniture I have that I am more proud of than of my piano. It was made to order at a cost of $5,000." "Oh, I must—why, it's locked." "Yes; I lost the key some months ago and have forgotten to get another."—Philadelphia Record.

—The noise of a man stumbling recklessly against obstructions in the hall and making hasty remarks in a general way that sounded like a Mississippi river steamboat mate making a landing at 11 o'clock at night to take on a lot of pork barrels was distinctly heard in the sitting room, "Children," exclaimed Mrs. Rambo, hastily, "run up stairs and go to bed. Your father, I judge, has been paying a gas bill."—Chicago Tribune.

THE BUFFALO'S FATE.

Extermination of the Most Magnificent Race of Native Animals.

At the present time outside of the National Park, where about two hundred and sixty buffaloes are now harbored, there are not over three hundred, probably not as many, left in the whole United States. The survivors of this magnificent race of animals are scattered in little bunches in several localities. There are about one hundred in Montana, or at least there were a year ago, some at the head of Dry creek and the remainder at the head of Porcupine creek. In Wyoming there are a few stragglers from the National Park, which, when chased, run back there for protection. In the mountains of Colorado last summer there were two bunches of mountain bison, one of twenty-five head, the other of eleven. These have probably been killed. There are none in Dakota, though eighteen months ago thirty were known to be there. It was estimated in 1887 that there were twenty-seven in Nebraska, and about fifty more scattered in the western part of the Indian Territory and Kansas. Those in Nebraska have since been killed by the Sioux. Of the thousands that once inhabited Texas, only two small bunches remain. Thirty-two head are near the ratons, in the northwestern part of the Panhandle, and eight in the sand-hills on the Staked Plains north of the Pecos river. These were seen and counted on the 1st of April of last year. This estimate of the remnant of a great race is believed to be essentially correct. It was obtained from reliable and well-informed persons throughout the West, and in part from personal observation during the past years.—Franklin Satterthwaite, in Harper's Magazine.

The Faith Is Lacking.

"Doctor, if there is no such thing as hydrophobia how does it happen so many persons who have been bitten by rabid dogs die afterward in convulsions?"

"They die of fright, sir. They are scared to death. The imagination sometimes exerts a power sufficient to kill."

"Then why can't a patient who thinks he has hydrophobia be cured in the same way by making him imagine he is going to get well?"

"Because we can't inspire him with any—er—faith in our medicines."—Chicago Tribune.

TWO AMUSING TRICKS.

How to Tell Anybody's Age or Remove a Man's Shirt at Will.

The simplest sleight-of-hand illusions often cause more wonderment than the most complex or difficult ones. Professional magicians often practice some intricately skillful feat for weeks, and after presenting it to the public it does not make as strong an impression as many of the very commonest or oldest ones.

The trick given with numbers below has been exhibited by a well-known magician by means of a blackboard on the stage and has caused many a person with a scratch of the head to wonder how the wily necromancer could tell the amount of money in his pockets, his usual time for rising in the morning, age, or even the number of potatoes eaten at dinner. This number table is merely a clever mathematical arrangement.

The Magical Numbers.—Request a person to find in what columns his age is indicated. You can at once then tell him what age he is. You can tell any number under sixty by means of this arrangement of numbers:

1	2	4	8	16	32
3	3	5	9	17	33
5	6	6	10	18	34
7	7	7	11	19	35
9	10	12	12	20	36
11	11	13	13	21	37
13	14	14	14	22	38
15	15	15	15	23	39
17	18	20	24	24	40
19	19	21	25	25	41
21	22	22	26	26	42
23	23	23	27	27	43
25	26	28	28	28	44
27	27	29	29	29	45
29	30	30	30	30	46
31	31	31	31	31	47
33	34	36	40	48	48
35	35	37	41	49	49
37	38	38	42	50	50
39	39	39	43	51	51
41	42	44	44	52	52
43	43	45	45	53	53
45	46	46	46	54	54
47	47	47	47	55	55
49	50	52	56	56	56
51	51	53	57	57	57
53	54	54	58	58	58
55	55	55	59	59	59
57	58	60	60	60	60
59	59	61	61	61	61
61	62	62	62	62	62
63	63	63	63	63	63

Here is the secret. When you learn what column the number is in simply add the numbers at the top of each column and the trick is done.

Removing a Man's Shirt.—An extraordinary and most laughable feat is that of removing a man's shirt before he is hardly aware of it, and without taking off either his coat or vest.

To do this successfully requires considerable tact and very quick action on the part of the operator. One professional magician is so expert that he can produce this result in fifteen seconds. An amateur should soon acquire the knack of doing it in half a minute. Select your subject, not a person of a dude make-up with a skin-tight suit, but some good-natured, every-day sort of a fellow, whose clothing fits him easily.

Tell him to keep cool.

Then begin your operations in earnest by quickly pulling off his collar and necktie and unbuttoning his shirt behind. Pull his shirt from his breeches, up his back, and with a strong exertion get it right over his head. This is by no means hard. You now have it across his stomach. Loosen his sleeves, and, grasping the one nearest his hand, pull it off his arm. You can do this successfully if he limbers his arms and does not resist some stretching work on your part. After one arm is free of the shirt it is easy to remove it from the other. The shirt will then come off to the astonishment of all.

As previously stated, the effect of this trick depends entirely upon your own adroitness. It is well to throw a shawl or sheet over the subject's body when you are about to present this exhibition that those present may not discover your method of operating.—W. E. Skinner, in Yankee Blade.

OIL UPON WATER.

A Simple Explanation of Its Action in Quieting Rough Waves.

The pouring of oil upon rough water to secure the safe passage of vessels was practiced by the ancients, as Plutarch and Pliny refer to it, but it is only within the last six years that our seagoing people have given it much serious attention. Benjamin Franklin made a study of the subject, and he has left on record the result of his experiments. This is how he explains the action of the oil:

The molecules of water move with freedom, and the friction of air in motion produces waves or undulations. These increase in size, according to the depth of water and other conditions. They are often the precursors of storms, and sometimes reach a height of forty feet. Yet a boat or a ship can ride them in safety. If, however, a sudden gale comes up, the swell becomes a raging sea.

The friction of the wind, rapidly moving upon the exposed slope of the swell, produces little irregularities on the surface. These wavelets are then driven up the rear slope of the swell to its summit, while the forward slope has more and more protection from the wind, and becomes steeper and steeper. As the wind continues to blow, the crest of the storm wave constantly sharpens, until it is finally thrown over with irresistible force. A ship can not rise up its abrupt front, and the water falls on the deck, sweeps every thing before it, and often engulfs the vessel itself.

Now the oil changes the storm wave into the heavy swell. It floats on the surface, spreads rapidly and forms a film like an extremely thin rubber blanket over the water. The friction of the wind can not tear the film and send those wavelets up the slope of the swell, and the ship is enabled to ride it in safety.

So it is seen that the effect is purely a mechanical change in the form of the wave; there is no apparent chemical change.—Philadelphia Times.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

Mulholland & Mack
EDITORS & PROPRIETORS.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL
SATURDAY, JULY 20 1889

INYO.

Though orange and myrtle may never bloom here,
Nor lovely magnolia's pure petals appear,
The ripening grain 'neath the warm summer suns,
Outrivals the gold where the Pactolus runs.

'T is the land of the fruit tree and home of the vine;
Of milk and of honey, and flowing with wine;
A "Valley of Jordan" enthroned in the west,
The fairest gem set on the Golden State's breast.

Here Whitney's tremendous crags pierce the pure air,
And Death Valley's terrible vale of despair;
The highest and lowest we proudly may boast,
And drink our own wine as we give forth our toast:

Here's to the land where the heart fondly clings,
Where care never comes and where hope ever springs,
And here's to our girls, they're the fairest and best;
May our boys prove the pride and the hope of the West!

M. G.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT WE the undersigned, owners of the mine formerly known as THE PERSEVERANCE, and now named THE CALDERA, situated in Cerro Gordo Mining District, will not be responsible for the loss of, or damage to, any personal property left in the mine by the former owner or owners; and we do hereby notify him or them to take their belongings from our premises without delay. O. G. FUENTES, H. P. IRVINGSTON, P. MEYER.

LONE PINE

Blacksmith Shop.

R. C. Spear, Prop'r

—ALL WORK ON—
MINING TOOLS,
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
& FREIGHTING OUTFITS
—PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO—
HORSE SHOEING,
CARRIAGE WORK,
GENERAL REPAIRING.

All work attended to with neatness and despatch. Prices to suit the times.

Lake View Hotel

Keeler, Cal.

John Barnes, Prop'r.

First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the
KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH
Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

PIONEER BREWERY

INDEPENDENCE.

BEER ICE COLD.

The Bar is supplied with the Best of all kinds of Liquors and Cigars.

The Coolest Hall in the town. Call in and see what comfort you can have this hot weather.

PHILIP GEHRIG, PROPRIETOR

ANTONS SALOON

KEELER, CAL.

BEER, WINES, LIQUORS and CIGARS.

All kinds of Fancy Drinks, including pure water. A comfortable and pleasant Hall.

JOHN C. ANTON, Prop.

R. J. WHITTAKER

—PAINTER,—
BIG PINE, - - - - CAL.

HOUSE PAINTING,
SIGN WRITING,
PAPER HANGING,
GRAINING,
GILDING ON WOOD AND GLASS.

Wagons Painted

The best of materials used and satisfaction guaranteed.

IF YOU WISH A GOOD REVOLVER PURCHASE ONE OF SMITH & WESSON'S

Finest small arms ever manufactured and the first choice of all experts. In calibres 32, 38 and 44-100. Single or double action. Safety Hammerless and Target models. Best quality wrought steel, carefully inspected for workmanship and stock. Unrivaled for finish, durability and accuracy. Do not be deceived by cheap malleable iron imitations often sold for the genuine article. They are unreliable and dangerous. The SMITH & WESSON REVOLVERS are stamped upon the barrels with firm's name, address and dates of patents, and are guaranteed perfect. Insist upon having them, and if your dealer cannot supply you, an order sent to address below will receive prompt attention. Descriptive catalogue and prices upon application.
SMITH & WESSON, Springfield, Mass.

Ranch for Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I offer my ranch for sale, consisting of 320 acres. Situated about three miles from Independence in a southeasterly direction. It is nearly all under fence. There is about 30 acres of orchard and vineyard, a portion of which is bearing. Undisputed water right. For price apply on the ranch to
J. W. SYMMES.
Independence, Cal., June 13, 1889.

E. H. Edwards,

—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA

BELL'S Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.
Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements o our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully
Equal to the Best.
Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.
A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.,
Offers his professional services to the people o Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence o posite Andrew Clark's.

THIRD
ANNUAL FAIR
Agricultural District
No. 18.
STATE OF CALIFORNIA.
Composed Of the Counties of
ALPINE, MONO & INYO.
TO BE HELD AT
Independence
Commencing Tuesday, September 24th, and Continuing Four Days.

A. R. CONKLIN.....President.
C. MULHOLLAND.....Secretary.
O. I. MAIRS.....Treasurer.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

A. R. CONKLIN, JOHN SHEPHERD,
A. W. EIBESHUTZ, F. McIVER,
W. K. MILLER, E. ROBINSON,
J. S. GORMAN, W. S. ENOS.

First Department.

In this department the same animal shall not be entered more than once, except in sweepstakes or as a member of a family exhibited with its sire or dam. Any stallion, mare, gelding or colt competing in a race will not be excluded from competing for premiums in their respective classes.

CLASS I.
THOROUGHBRED HORSES.

Best stallion	$25 00
Second best stallion	20 00

CLASS II.
STANDARD TROTTERS.

Best Stallion, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Stallion, 2 year old	15 00
Best Stallion, 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt under 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and colt	15 00

CLASS III.
ROADSTERS.

Best Roadster, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Roadster, 2 year old	15 00
Best roadster team driven to buggy	25 00

Will have to be shown to harness.

CLASS IV.
HORSES OF ALL WORK.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best stallion 2 years old	15 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt	10 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upwards	20 00
Best mare, 2 years old	15 00
Best mare, 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and family, not less than three colts	25 00

CLASS V.
DRAFT HORSES.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	$25 00
Best stallion 2 year old	20 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best mare and colt	20 00
Best matched team	20 00
Best mare and 3 colts	10 00

CLASS V.
TEAMS.

Best matched carriage team	20 00
Best matched buggy team	20 00

CLASS VII.
SADDLE ANIMALS.

Best, any age	20 00
Second best	15 00

CLASS VIII.
SWEEPSTAKES.

Best stallion, any breed or age	25 00
Best mare, any breed or age	25 00

CLASS IX.
JACKS.

Best Jack, 2 years old and upward	25 00
Best Jack 1 year old	15 00

CLASS X.
MULES.

Best span owned by one person, 3 years or over	15 00
Best span under 3 years	10 00

CLASS XI.
CATTLE—BULLS.

Best bull, any breed 3 years old and upward	30 00
Best bull, any breed, 2 years old	25 00
Best bull, any breed, 1 year old	20 00

CLASS XII.
COWS.

Best cow, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best cow, 2 years old	15 00
Best cow and 1 calf	15 00
Best cow and 2 calves	15 00
Best milch cow, quart and pint of milk	20 00

CLASS XIII.
SHEEP.

Best display of sheep	15 00

CLASS XIV.
GOATS.

Best display of Angora goats	20 00

CLASS XV.
SWINE.

Best display of hogs	15 00
Best sow and litter of four pigs	10 00

CLASS XVI.
POULTRY ETC.

Best display of fowls, any age or breed	10 00
Second best	8 00
Best pair of bronze turkeys	5 00

Second Department.

All products exhibited in this Department must have been produced in Nevada, or in California east of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and by the exhibitor

CLASS I.
AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best 100 pounds of flour	$ 5 00
Best 100 pounds of wheat	5 00
Best 100 pounds of barley	5 00
Best 100 pounds of oats	5 00
Best 100 pounds of rye	5 00
Best 100 pounds of corn shelled	5 00
Best 50 pounds of alfalfa seed	5 00
Best bale of timothy hay	5 00
Best bale of alfalfa hay	5 00
Display of Agricultural Products	20 00
Second Best	15 00

CLASS II.
VEGETABLES, ROOTS, ETC.

Best 10 pounds of sweet potatoes	2 50
50 pounds of Early Rose potatoes	2 50
100 pounds any variety of potatoes	3 00
20 pounds of parsnips	2 50
20 pounds of carrots	2 50
20 pounds of turnips	2 50
20 pounds of beets, any variety	2 50
20 pounds of tomatoes, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cabbage, any variety	2 50
50 pounds of onions, any variety	2 50
1 doz. squash, any variety	2 50
sample of peppers; any variety	2 50
½ doz. watermelons, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cucumbers, any variety	2 50
½ doz. cantaloupes, any variety	2 50
10 pounds of white beans	2 50
10 pounds of pink beans	2 50
10 pounds garden peas, any variety	2 50
Display of vegetables in one lot	5 00

CLASS III.
DAIRY AND FARM PRODUCE.

Best 10 pounds of butter in rolls	$ 3 00
Second best	2 00
Best jar of butter, 20 pounds, 3 months old	5 00
single cheese any weight	5 00
10 pounds of lard	2 00
display of honey	5 00
Apiary display	10 00
display of bread, Chinaman made excluded	3 00
display of cakes	5 00
variety of fruit in jars	10 00
Second best	5 00
Best variety of jellies	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of preserves	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of pickles	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best Sample of 50 lbs. each of hams and bacon	10 00

Third Department.

CLASS I.
HORTICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best display of apples	$ 7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display pears	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display peaches	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of plums	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of quinces	5 00
display of grapes of different varieties	5 00
½ doz bottles of wine	5 00
display of wine grapes	5 00
display of raisin grapes	5 00
display of raisins made in the District	7 50
display of prunes	5 00
display of dried fruits	7 0
Second best	5 00
Best display of grapes and wine made from the same grapes, in variety	10 00
display of all kinds of fruit—a collection	20 00

Fourth Department.

CLASS I.
ARTISTIC.

Best oil painting done by resident of district	10 00
Second best	7 50
Best crayon drawing	10 00
On satin and Japanese panels	10 00
Collection of paintings by any Artist	10 00

Fifth Department.

CLASS I.
NEEDLE AND OTHER WORK.

Handsomest pillow shams, $5 00
Best and handsomest patchwork quilt, $5 00
Best crochet Worked quilt, $5 00
Handsomest crazy quilt, $5 00
Handsomest knitted quilt, $5 00
Handsomest sofa cushion, $5 00
Handsomest set of tidies for sofa, $5 00
Best embroidered lady's dress, $5 00
child's dress, $5 00
ottoman cover, $5 00
table cover, 4 corners, $5 00
scarf, two ends, $5 00
pair lambrequins, $5 00
wall panel, or banner, $5 00
silk on flannel, $5 00
on linen, $5 00
Kensington crewel or wool, $5 00
toilet set, three or more pieces, $5
lace work, hand made, $5 darned net, three or more pieces, $5
crochet shawl, $5
hand painted table scarf, $5
hearth rug, $3
Handsomest and best made dress for lady, $5
Best display hand knit work, $5
Best display of fancy articles, $10
display of Spanish needle work, $5
Best and greatest variety of crochet work, $10
hand knit stockings, $3

JUVENILE.

calico dress made by girl under 14, $5
hand sewing, not less than 4 pieces, by girl under sixteen, $5
crochet work by girl under 14, $5
patchwork quilt by girl under 14, $5
hand made shirt by girl under 14, $3
display of hair work, $5

Sixth Department.

CLASS I.
MINERALS.

Best Cabinet of minerals	$5
Collection of curious from District	15
display of silver ore	10
gold ore	10
silver lead ore	10
nugget of gold	5

In all the above exhibits of animals for premiums, other things being equal, blooded stock will be preferred.

All articles included in the above list—except the first department—to be on exhibition at the Pavilion on the second day and remain during the fair.

Special premiums will be offered for articles exhibited which are not included in the above List.

All entries to be made not later than 6 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding their exhibition. All stock and articles to be exhibited must be on the ground at 9:30 a. m. on the day intended for their exhibition. No animal to leave its stall between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. of the day of exhibition without permission of the Park Director. Exhibition will take place at 10 a. m. of each day and close at 4 p. m., with an intermission for lunch.

Speed Programme.

TUESDAY.

TROTTING—Free for all, mile, 2 in 3, mile heats. Purse, $200.

THURSDAY.

RUNNING—One mile, 2 in 3, free for all. Purse, $200.

FRIDAY.

TROTTING—Double team, free for all, best 2 in 3 heats 1 mile each, entryman to own the team. Purse, $100.

In all the above races three to enter and two to start. Entrance, 10 per cent of purse.

All entries for races must be made on or before 12 o'clock M. of the day preceding the race. This rule will be strictly adhered to. No exception will be made.

Other races will be given by the citizens under the control and management of the Association, of which notice will be given.

All exhibitions of stock will take place on the race track at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

California State Agricultural Society rules to govern running races; National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races.

ADMISSION:

To stock ground and pavilion, each	$ 50
Single Season Ticket	2 50
Membership Ticket, admitting member, wife and minor children	5 00
Life membership	30 00

A. R. CONKLIN, President.
C. MULHOLLAND, Secretary.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,

District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,

Sheriff and Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,

COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,

C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.

Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 12th
"	February 9th
"	March 16th
"	April 13th
"	May 11th
"	June 8th
"	July 12th
"	August 10th
"	September 7th
"	October 5th
"	November 2nd
"	December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

Independence Hotel,

Independence - - Cal.
V. G. THOMPSON, Lessee.
FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM, APARTMENTS,
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Daily Bus To and From The Cars.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,

Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,

County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,

—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT

Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

Great Reduction

—IN PRICES OF—
PIANOS & ORGANS
If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to
Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS

EDWARD CHENOT,

Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAI
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n4761f

Sulphur & Borax Baths

AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad
These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.
THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING : BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.
Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.

SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK
Livery. Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.

BIG PINE - - CAL.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
sep1-tf CROCKER BROS., Props.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - - Cal.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R
TAKING EFFECT
Sunday, May 19th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11 00 a. m.	5 50 p. m.
Dayton	11 30 a. m.	5 10 p. m.
Wabuska	1 25 a. m.	3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 05 p. m.	11 25 a. m.
Luning	6 25 p. m.	10 05 a. m.
Soda Springs	7 35 p. m.	9 05 a. m.
Belleville	8 45 p. m.	7 45 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 9 20 p. m.	Lv. 7 10 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—	No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8 10 a. m.	5 25 p. m.
Blanton	11 40 a. m.	1 35 p. m.
Basalt Creek	1 50 p. m.	11 00 a. m.
Alverd	2 35 p. m.	10 00 a. m.
Independence	4 10 p. m.	8 30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5 00 p. m.	7 40 a. m.
Keeler	Ar. 5 45 p. m.	Lv. 7 00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (35 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON, General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A. BENDER, General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK BREWERY,

MUNZINGER, PHILIPPAY & CO., Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
Customers supplied on all points Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,

Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.

FORBES & TOBEY,

HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS,
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed Flooring.
sept 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.

COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JULY 20.....1889

BORN.

DIAZ—At Lone Pine July 12th, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Diaz, a son.

MARRIED.

SCHALTEN—CAMPBELL—At Lone Pine, July 15th., 1889, by Rev. E. McEvers Louis Schalten and Mrs. Mary F Campbell.

PRESTON—DUNN—At Bishop, July 12, 1889 Harold Preston and Maggie J. Dunn.

The Conklin Bro's. have gone to Monache.

J. D. Marshall is building a residence in Keeler.

C. B. Rawson has eleven men employed at his sawmill.

See the new card of Mack & Forbes, real estate dealers.

A. D. Gilbert left Tuesday morning for a two weeks visit to the City.

A fishing party left Independence last Tuesday morning for Kern River.

Billy S. won a race, 600 yards and repeat, with ease, at Hawthorne on the 4th.

On the 11th inst. Mrs. Maggie J. Dunn was divorced from Robert A. Dunn.

The State Fair will commence September 9th and will continue till the 25th.

A fishing party starts this morning from Lone Pine for the Kern River country.

W. P. Yaney came down from Bishop last Tuesday and remained in town a couple of says.

Lowell A. Eagley has returned to his home at Big Pine to spend the summer vacation.

Mrs. A. Stewart, of Lone Pine, and her daughter, Mrs. Munson, have gone to San Francisco.

Dr. Bunting and Silas Reynolds of Lone Pine, made a short visit to Independence during the week.

Rev. Sam. Jones suggests that the corset be crushed. A good deal depends on who is inside of it.

A special despatch says that Sec. Blaine has tendered his resignation to take effect September 1st. If he can't hold the lines he won't ride in the big wagon.

Mr. Robert O'Neal came down from Bishop on Thursday to install the officers of the Odd Fellows Lodge at Independence. He returned early next morning.

Chas Wonacott came down from Bishop last Monday and left for Carson next morning. Mr. Wonacott has the contract for building the new schoolhouse at Bishop.

W. S. Enos and John McSweeney who are partners in the horse raising business, have leased the Russell ranch consisting of 1600 acres, for a term of three years and have moved their stock there.

Messrs. Dugan & Blair have just completed some extensive improvements on their flouring mill at Bishop. New rollers have been put in and the entire machinery put in the best possible condition.

A. R. Conklin Esq. has a colt by Albenton, owned by W. S. Enos, which he values at $500. It is just as easy to raise a good horse as a poor one and Albenton is as well bred a sire as can be found on the coast.

The Vatican has been petitioned to canonize Christopher Columbus on the 400th. anniversary of the discovery of America. Nothing like patience. Chris. was bound to get there if he did have to wait 397 years.

John Clarke returned to Bishop last Wednesday after an absence of nearly three months in Nevada, Oregon and the Territories. He says that Inyo County is a better place for a man in moderate circumstances than any place he visited.

Deputy Sheriff Wren of Tulare County, was shot and killed last week by a man named Reavis at Visalia. A posse of men started out to hunt for the murderer, who was killed while resisting arrest. Reavis was a stranger at Visalia.

The Los Angeles Herald manager has conceived an economical way of spending a summer vacation. He has just received a supply of eight live rattle-snakes. A small stretch of the imagination and a barrel of whiskey will do the balance.

A lively interest is being taken by wealthy men at Los Angeles, Pasadena and other Southern cities, in mines in the Panamint district. When the Salt Lake & Los Angeles railroad shall be completed there is no reason to doubt that Panamint will be the livliest mining camp in the State. A letter recently received from a gentleman at Pasadena states that himself and a party of friends will visst that region as soon as the weather becomes a little cooler.

The following officers of Inyo Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., were installed on Thursday evening by Robert O'Neal, D. D. Grand Master: J. W. Murphy, N. G.; E. Robinson, V. G.; B. Rhine, Sec.; J. D. Blair, Treasurer; W. James Jr., Warden; John Alexander, I. G.; A. R. Conklin, R. S. V. G.; P. H. Mack, L. S. V. G. The Lodge is in a flourishing condition, having thirty-four members in good standing and considerable money in the Treasury.

Rumor is current that the same parties who have got control of the Cerro Gordo mines have also secured the water power on the Eastside Canal. At the Eclipse there is a drop in the canal of twenty-five feet. This will give a large amount of power and it is said that a sixty ton furnace will soon be built there for the reduction of lead ores. There is still a possibility that a marble mill will be built there; power enough can be supplied for these or more works.

The old, old question "Can a millstone be used to advantage in a modern flouring mill?" has recently sprung up again in some of our exchanges on both sides of the ocean, and it brings out anew all of the old arguments and prejudices on that subject. The conclusion reached, founded on the arguments that we have heard and read, is that there is a place in the course of reduction where millstones will give more satisfactory results than rollers, and it is a fact that many of the best roller-mills in the country find a few runs of stone extremely desirable.

MARRIAGES IN INYO COUNTY

Since January 1st, 1837.

1887
Feb. 5 J. W. Harvey and C. E. Anthony
,, 16 A. E. Sais ,, Emma L. Vanfleet
Mar. 29 Jos. Julien ,, Blanche F. Meysan
Apr. 14 H. P. Nelligan ,, Annie S. Malone
,, 28 D. Delaney ,, C. D. Epperson
May 7 Amando Sainz ,, Adelida Romero
,, 22 Robert Harry ,, Annie Wilson
June 30 Geo. L. Long ,, Ruth B. McElroy
Aug. 27 L. D. Smith ,, Rebecca I. McMurry
Sep. 5 J. W. Clark ,, Minnie E. Friedline
,, 5 Claudio Salazar ,, Eloisa Grijalva
Nov. 5 R. B. Nickerson ,, Lucy Buelna
,, 28 Albert King ,, Annie McMullen
Dec. 17 R. W. Scott ,, Mollie Weisinger
,, 25 W. W. Yandell ,, Lizzie Marden
,, 28 H. E. Jiggens ,, Emma Flowers
,, 29 Isaac F. Smith ,, Grace Sherwin

1888
Jan. 1 Jas. Hutchings ,, Mary E. Hilton
,, 11 S. P. McKnight ,, N. G. Hartshorn
,, 15 Ira O. Clark ,, Sarah F. Epperson
,, 26 J. W. Holland ,, Henrietta Dearborn
,, 29 Stephen Decker ,, Ila C. Adams
Feb. 28 P. H. Mack ,, Katie R. Mulholland
May 5 Andrew J. Welch ,, Cynthia Matthews
,, 30 W. D. Roberts ,, Minnie L. Thomsen
,, 31 H. C. Hartshorn ,, Louisa A. Senner
June 17 Jas. W. Riggs ,, Charlotte S. Jones
,, 19 Chas. M. Green ,, Margaret Hughes
Aug. 15 Thos. F. Butler ,, Luella Shepherd
,, 22 Edward Schober ,, Kittie McCrosky
Sept. 8 John G. McLean ,, Della Rittgers
,, 10 Isaac N. Beck ,, Melissa Bennett
,, 21 A. Diaz ,, Rosaria Porcha
,, 22 R. L. Wimberly ,, Minnie M. Smith
Oct. 15 John Fiehman ,, Louise Fiedler
Nov. 14 E. R. Norris ,, Julia Roberts
,, 22 D. Levy ,, Jennie B. McGinnis
,, 29 A. Jewell ,, Diana Bowman
Dec. 1 Frank Silva ,, Catalina Arambula
,, 16 R. C. Spear ,, Emma Duval
,, 27 R. L. McCrosky ,, Annie Lent

1889
Feb. 2 John M. Cooper ,, Fannie Thornton
,, 6 C. J. Schalten ,, Emma H. Uhlmyer
,, 10 John McFarland ,, Eva J. McArthur
Apr. 20 John Hopkins ,, Margaret McArthur
,, 27 John E. Dunlap ,, Lilian L. Cook
May 18 W. E. Thompson ,, A. L. Wheaton
June 26 N. E. Conklin ,, Elma K. Yaney
July 15 Louis Schalten ,, Mary E. Campbell

Age of youngest bride .... 16 years.
,, ,, ,, bridegroom 19 ,,
,, ,, oldest bride..... 48 ,,
,, ,, ,, bridegroom 46 ,,
Average age of brides .... 24 ,, and 7 mos.
,, ,, ,, bridegrooms 31 ,, ,, 6 ,,

Rev. A. Clark married	15	couples.
Judge J. A. Hannah ,,	15	,,
Rev. C. L. Logan ,,	6	,,
,, L. Case ,,	4	,,
C. Mulholland, J. P. ,,	3	,,
Jno. F. Hawley J. P. ,,	2	,,
Rev. E. McEvers ,,	2	,,
,, J. De La Matyr ,,	1	,,
,, T. E. Sisson ,,	1	,,

Board of Equalization.

The Board of Equalization met on July 17th at 6 o'clock p. m. All present except Supervisor Eddy

The Inyo Canal Company's assessment on 10 miles of ditch was reduced from $6,000 to $3,000.

Adjourned until 10 o'clock a. m. Thursday, when the Board reassembled, same members present.

Mrs. Mollie Conklin's assessment on land was increased $480.

The following reductions in the valuation of mortgages were made:

Mortgage on Jas. Jenkins' property for $4,000 reduced to $3,220.

On property of H. J. Robinson, from $2,000 to $1,600.

On property of J. V. Skinner, from $2,300 to $1,140.

On property of Enos & Muirs, from $12-500 to $9,340.

On property of C. B. Rawson, from $20-000 to $14,300.

The Assessor was ordered to assess Mrs. S. Levy for a mortgage valued at $2,260. H. M. Yerington for a mortgage of $2,000. R. O'Neal for a mortgage of $2,000, and W. A. P. Morris for a mortgage of $480.

Adjourned until 10 a. m. of Friday.

Board met at 10 o'clock a. m. of Friday, the same members present.

S. G. Sneden's assessment reduced from $1,410 to $1,000.

J. A. Hannah's assessment on 3 horses was raised from $120 to $300.

Claims of members of the Board for per diem and mileage allowed as follows:

J. D. Harger	$56 10
S. G. Sneden	55 80
E. Robinson	42 30
J. J. Stewart	46 80

Board Adjourned.

Two Fires.

On Wednesday afternoon the barn and surroundings of Mr. John Dodge, at Lone Pine, were totally destroyed by fire. When first discovered flames were seen issuing from the stable door where the stallion Young Hero was kept. The fire was under such headway that it was impossible to rescue the horse and the fine young animal perished in the flames. Everything in and around the barn was destroyed, including several sets of harness and other things in the barn, and about twenty-five tons of hay that was stacked in an adjoining corral. The loss is a severe one and will probably aggregate $1,500. Mr. Dodge was absent to Mojave at the time, the only one present being Mrs. Dodge, who was unable to do anything toward staying the progress of the flames. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed that matches had been dropped in the barn and in some manner became ignited.

The boarding house at the Keynot mine was burned to the ground last Saturday. The men went into the mine to work at noon and when they came out at night nothing but the ashes of the cabin remained. In the building was three months provisions, worth about $200, the bedding and all the belongings of the men. The loss is severely felt for the reason that the mine is in a remote place and all material must be packed in at great expense. The men were compelled to quit work for the time being and come in to Lone Pine.

Too Much Risk

In the matter of caring for the County Records too much risk is being taken. All the records are now in the Court House, a wooden building with very slight protection against fire. An epidemic of fires is sweeping all over the country and we are as liable to a visitation as any of our neighbors. When fire destroyed the Court House three years ago it was with much difficulty that the records were saved. We might fail to save them a second time. A safe fire-proof vault capable of holding all the records could be built for a small sum. Mr. Rhine has a fire proof vault adjoining his store that would be nearly large enough for holding all the County Records. It did not cost a great deal—Mr. Rhine can doubtless give the exact figures—and we could much better afford to pay for such a structure than to have the whole of the records of the county destroyed.

Syrup of Figs.

Produced from the laxative and nutricious juice of California figs, combined with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most benificial to the human system, acts gently, on the kidneys, lives and bowels, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds and headaches, and curing habitual constipation.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

MONDAY, July 15th.

Estate of Duncan Campbell, deceased—Order filed to pay money to attorney.

BIG PINE JOTTINGS.

All well.

Cool and pleasant weather.

We hear the tinkle of wedding bells, not the oak and ivy, but the intertwining of midsummers maturer productions. We are pleased to chronicle the atrival of Mrs. and Miss Meyers from Eureka, Arkansas. The new comers are an acquisition to the community.

We understand that Pat Shaw is about to open a dancing school here. As an exponent of the Terpsichorean art, Pat. stands without a rival.

Crocker Bro's. have finished on their first crop of alfalfa. It fully realizes expectation. They commence marking and branding their stock at Deep Springs tomorrow. T. B. Pottenger of Bakersfield is here. Geo. Turner from Deep Spring Valley was in town looking after his shipment of silver-lead ore to Selby & Co. at Port Costa. George looks happy. Parties are ruthlessly killing quail, and other small game in large numbers. We call the attention of these parties to the game laws. A word to the wise etc. etc.

Wm. Unlmyer, nephew of our late esteemed citizen Fred. Ullmyer anticipates a trip to St. Louis soon. It is rumored he will return a Benedict.

Everything is booming at the Big Pine Hotel. The anniversaries of the birth-days of Mrs. Jas Crocker, and her son, was celebrated in a quiet way last week by the family.

Messrs. Callow and Reid of Candelaria came to town yesterday after an extended stay on Big Pine Creek. They report the fishing excellent. Reid caught a golden trout that measured seventeen inches long. The whole catch during their stay of four days was 397 trout. They intended staying longer, but the R. R. Co. telegraphs Callow that they needed his services. Their friends at Mrs. Bell's Mountain ranch propose giving them a send-off tonight in shape of a dance. The music will be A No. 1.

Chris. Eagle is happy over the prospect of his potato crop. He estimates his yield at about 10 tons to the acre.

Dick Whittaker is turning out lots of work from his new paintshop. He has two vehicles under way, with a third one to come in. Dick is an artist, and thoroughly understands his branch of work.

Messrs. Thomas & Hill, are constantly adding attractions to their stock of merchandise and are able to furnish their patrons with a complete line of goods.

Marsh. Naylor the genial clerk at the Big Pine tells me that the dance last night at the Bell ranch was a grand success. He says the music was 18 karat fine, and the cider No. 1—owing I suppose to El. Reid's peculiar system of putting it up.

JAY BIRD.

Births, Marriages, and Deaths.

The law provides that all physicians and professional midwives shall keep a registry of the time of each birth at which they assist professionally, the sex, race, and color, of the child, and the names and residence of the parents. Also that physicians who attend deceased persons in their last sickness, clergymen who officiate at a funeral, coroners, or acting coroners, who hold inquests, shall keep a register of the name, age, residence, and time of death of such person, and report the same to the County Recorder who in turn reports to the State Board of Health. Persons peforming the marriage ceremony should state in their certificates whether either party has ever before been married. Parties not complying with the above are liable to a fine of $50, to be recovered by the District Attorney. The State Board of Health has never had suit brought in this county for the recovery of this penalty but announces that it will insist on a strict compliance with the law in future, so clergymen, physicians and all others, should take warning. The law is a good one and should be strictly enforced in this County, where it has been so sadly neglected.

Severe Accident.

W. J. Lake met with a very painful accident on Wednesday. He saddled a young horse he has been riding for some time and perfectly gentle, and started for town. A short distance below town the animal scared and made a sudden jump; Mr. Lake not being on his guard was thrown on the hard ground. At the moment of falling the horse kicked striking him on the head and stunning him. His right leg is dislocated at the ankle and badly bruised and broken. He is terribly cut about the mouth the upper lip being torn away. Fortunately Mr. Reynolds happened along shortly after the accident and brought Mr. Lake to town. From the cut on the head and the injury to the leg it would seem that the horse had dragged him a considerable distance. The wounds are exceedingly painful but not necessarily dangerous. With proper care he will soon be around. Mr. Lake endured the surgical operations without a groan or sign of pain.

The Salt Lake & Los Angeles R. R.

It is the opinion of all best informed people that the Salt Lake road will be built in a short time. A contract for 100 miles has been let, and there are many other indications that activity on the line will soon be apparent. Mr. D. O. Mills has said that the C. & C. road was only awaiting developments to connect with the road from Salt Lake. It has been the intention of Mr. Mills to extend his road to Barstow, but when the other project took definite shape, or what seemed to be such he changed his plans. Ties had been procured for the extension of the C. & C. line, but there has been nothing done beyond this, nor will there be until the plans of the S. L. & L. A. people are defined. Then the Mills road will be extended to meet it.—Daily Herald.

Messrs. Morehouse, Sloss and Maslin, of the State Board of Equalization, were here this week on an official visit. They inspected the assessment, roll for 1889 examined the records in the Clerk's office and consulted with our Board of Supervisors last Wednesday evening.

Since the visit of these gentlemen some of the County officers are better informed in revenue law.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

P. W FORBES P. H. MACK.

MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal. P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.
—DEALERS IN—
General Merchandise.
—ALL KINDS OF—
Farm Implements
—AND—
--MACHINERY--
Farm Produce
—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—
Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY
Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.
—DEALER IN—
Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.
All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.
W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.
—DEALERS IN—
FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.
Harness Maker.
Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.
Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.
O. H. Hill, Prop'r.
A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE LARGEST STOCK
Of Farm Machinery, Wagons, Buggies & Carriages in Southern CALIFORNIA.

MOLINE STEEL PLOWS, WHITELY SOLID STEEL MOWERS,
OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS, CHAMPION STEEL FRAME MOWERS,
FLYING DUTCHMAN AND CASADAY SULKY PLOWS, THOMAS AND ROYAL SULKY RAKES,
HOGUE ORCHARD CULTIVATOR, STICKLE STEEL HEADERS,
LUITWIELER VINEYARD CULTIVATOR, J. I. CASE THRESHERS AND ENGINES,
PLANET JR. HORSE HOES, STUDEBAKER FARM AND SPRING WAGONS,
DRILLS, SEEDERS AND GRINDERS, CARRIAGES, BUGGIES AND BUCKBOARDS,
DISC HARROWS, SCALES, BALING WIRE, BALE TIES, BARBED WIRE, WIRE MESH FENCING.
WRITE FOR CIRCULARS AND PRICES.
S. W. LUITWIELER,
NO. 100 LOS ANGELES ST. Los Angeles, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK ..... PROPRIETOR.
Horseshoeing ..... $2 00 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

NOTICE TO STOCKMEN.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, owners and occupants of lands lying under and in the vicinity of the East Side Canal, to all stock raisers and ranchmen having loose stock running at large, that the law entitled "An Act to protect growing crops, growing in the County of Inyo," approved March 28th, 1872, will be strictly enforced against all animals found trespassing upon the lands owned and occupied by us, between the 15th day of March and the 15th day of November of each year. (Signed.) F. McIVER,
DR. S. BISHOP,
PERSIA H. BISHOP,
L. L. WOODIN, M. D.
WILL H. GRAHAM,
J. H. PARISH,
H. J. ROBINSON.

Dated June 10th, 1889.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOEL H. SMITH, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned, executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Executor, at Bishop, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the County of Inyo State of California.

HORACE M. SMITH,
Executor of the estate of Joel H. Smith, deceased.

Dated at Bishop, Cal. June 10th, 1889. o 5

MISCELLANEOUS.

Inyo Freighting Company.
REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.
Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RHINE, N. G.
D. CHORCH, R. S.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and
Livery Accommodations
in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.
O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

GENERAL MERC

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE
A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.
Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.
CANDIES, PEANUTS, WALNUTS, TOYS!

THE CASH S ORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY
115 CLAY STREET, 117
SMITH'S STORE
The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
495-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

LUMBER. LUMBER.
SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.
Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.
CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.
All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.
SPRATT & CREASER,
sep14f Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW, WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

INYO MARBLE COMPANY.

LOCATION OF PRINCIPAL PLACE OF business, San Francisco, California.

Location of works, Keeler, Inyo County California.

Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 14th day of May, 1889, an assessment (No. 6) of 5 cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, 205 Front St., San Francisco California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Monday, the 24th day of June 1889, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of July, 1889, to pay the delinquent assessment together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors.

G. W. LUCE, Secretary.
—205 Front Street, San Francisco Cal.

CENTRAL AMERICAN TRADE.

A Field of Commerce Which Should Be Controlled by Yankee Merchants.

The republics of Central America, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and San Salvador, although geographically closely related to the United States, give, according to the latest statistics scarcely more than one-seventh of the total of import and export trade to the United States, which would seem a little strange. For the reason given above, and also because of the increasing similarity of institutions, the United States ought to control a much larger proportion of the trade of these small but increasingly prosperous republics. The stability of government in these countries has become almost assured, and during the last decade the people have come to see that there is more money in developing the vast resources of a country where nature supplies all wants in a most prodigal way, than in disturbing the peace. In the republic of Honduras, which, although possessing vast territories favorable to farming and cattle-raising, is essentially a mining country, many reforms and innovations have been introduced, and the country is now full of skilled native workmen who are eager in learning the use of modern complicated machinery and improved methods. Honduras also offers considerable inducements to immigrants, including free land to till, and advancement of the cost of the necessary agricultural implements and other requisites, besides immunity from civil and military service. As in all tropical countries, the lowland coasts are malarial; but on the mountains, where the air and water are pure, it is healthy enough. Is it not a pity to let English, German and French merchants occupy almost exclusively so favorable a field of commerce? It is said that these have studied carefully the packing and shipping of goods, which arrive damaged much less than those shipped from the United States. It would seem worth while to study the requirements of the Central Americans and secure our rightful share of this trade. Far-away Samoa and revolutionary Hayti occupy much of our attention, but these youthful republics offer special inducements towards the exchange of commodities, etc. If the Nicaragua Canal be completed before long, it will shorten the distance to be traveled by over eight hundred miles on the present route, and greatly facilitate commercial and other intercommunication. — Demorest's Monthly.

THE LOVER'S RUSE.

How a Smart Young Man Wooed a Mother-in-Law and Won a Wife.

CHAPTER I.

Edwin—And I may have this little hand?

Angelina—With all my heart—but oh, Edwin, I'm afraid mamma will never give her consent to our union.

E.—Why not, dearest?

A.—I will be plain with you: For two reasons. First, she can not make up her mind to part with me; second, she does not admire you. But perhaps we may persuade her when she finds that you are so good, and that my happiness is involved.

E.—Leave the matter to me to manage, darling, and all will be well.

CHAPTER II.

Angelina's mother (frigidly)—What is your object, sir in seeking this interview?

Edwin—Madame, I love and admire your daughter, and wish to marry her, but—pray hear me out—to be frank with you, with all my love and admiration for her, I would not have sought to make her mine if I had not been thoroughly convinced of her amiability and sweetness of disposition and the sterling worth of her character, which indeed are equal to the charms of her person, and that is saying much. How have I arrived at this conclusion? By as close an observation of her mother as of herself—pardon me for the liberty—an observation entirely respectful and prompted by the best of motives. You are aware that the mother-in-law has long been made the target for the arrows of satire and ridicule. In some cases she has been justly served; in the majority of the cases she has been deeply wronged. To become the champion of the mother-in-law has long been my ambition. But I could not be her champion unless I had one of my own. It would be said of me, 'Wait till he gets one himself, and then hear what he says.' I determined to get one. But the getting of a mother-in-law involved the getting of a wife, and here arose a difficulty. I wanted a perfect mother-in-law to enable me to carry out my pose, and for my own happiness I wanted a perfect wife, too. Could I get both? Fate was kind to me. I saw and fell in love with your daughter, who made me acquainted with you. I admired her beauty. I studied your character and as the noble qualities of your mind revealed themselves I marked in hers their exact reproduction. In these two, I said to myself, I find the perfect wife and the perfect mother-in-law. I have gained the heart of the one and have come to ask the consent of the other."

Angelina's mother (smiling)—Upon my word, sir, you have argued your case well, and it only remains for me to say yes and give my daughter a perfect husband and myself a perfect son-in-law.—Detroit Commercial Advertiser.

Not of the Four Hundred.

New York Swell—Who is that gray-haired old man that every body in the room is making such a fuss over?

Quiet Citizen—That is Major Halfaleague, one of the survivors of the famous Six Hundred of Balaklava. Haven't you met him yet, De Yude? I shall be pleased to introduce you.

New York Swell (frigidly)—Thank you, no. You forget I am one of the Four Hundred!—Chicago Tribune.

—Rev. Norman La Marsh, an eloquent preacher in charge of the Methodist church at Searsport, Me., is totally blind. A feature of the services at this church is the singing of the pastor.

—The "hireling ministry" is no longer so obnoxious as in former days to the Friends. It is said that there are in New York State at least ten located pastors, who are wholly supported by Friends' churches.

DECORATIVE WINDOWS.

The Designing and Manufacture of Stained Glass Pictures, Etc.

The manufacture of stained and decorated glass windows, doors and panels is simple enough in theory, but in execution the highest degree of manual dexterity must be called forth from artistic workmen.

To follow out the construction of a leaded mosaic window—for in mosaics are nearly all the "lights" made—the designer sends his plans into the workshop in duplicate. The drawings are of full size, and, while delineating the form, name the colors to be used. The workman divides one of these into its part, and with a diamond cuts his glass to the pattern. But the plan makes no allowance for the leads by which the mosaics are held together. Hence in the dissection of the plan a curious double-bladed knife comes into use. This tool with its parallel blades, as it portions out the sections of the design, cuts from each piece a narrow strip of the lead, for no matter how wide the flanges—that is to say, grooves—may be, or however far the lead may extend over the surface of the glass—the width of the lead is always the same.

Part three of the process is called "milling" the leads. The lead comes reeled in one continuous strip and by passing it through an ingenious system of wheels and surfaces of metal known as the "checks" any size flange may be produced.

A workman then spreads upon a table the undivided design. With the cut sections of glass and flangers of lead to suit their thickness he constructs his design directly upon the pattern. The lead must be bent and curved and nicely fitted to securely fasten the pieces. Now a days so-called "jewels" are largely used, complicating the setting. These jewels are simply circular pieces of colored glass with an upper surface of many sides known as "facets." They are mostly manufactured abroad, and when worn as personal ornaments, as often happens, are spoken of as "pinchbeck." They are made in imitation of every precious stone conceivable.

Each portion of the design being leaded and in its proper place, the whole surface is covered with a layer of cement, which is rubbed between lead and glass by means of a horse hair brush. In this way is the framework stiffened and made waterproof. It then only remains to set the window in the frame awaiting it.

The manufacture of colored glass is in itself a separate and distinct business. Certain Williamsburg firms are said to manufacture the finest in the world, and certainly their work excels in the variety and delicacy of its tints.

Should the glass be painted with figures or oil designs, the mechanical part of the process becomes less simple. Then light and shade are obtained by overlaying a piece of white glass with sepia and etching upon it; the color is produced by leading a section of colored glass to the back of this. Flesh tints are painted, and whenever glass is painted it must needs be fired to fix the enamel. The effects of drapery may often be reached without painting by the convolutions and waves existing in the glass, which is carefully chosen with this end in view.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

GLACIERS IN ALASKA.

They Surpass in Grandeur the Very Best the Alps Can Offer.

The southwestern face of St. Elias, it is safe to say, will never be climbed; it presents a mass of broken snow, beautiful, yet forbidding. We estimated the summit to be about 7,000 feet above us, making its total height 18,500 feet. It seemed to us that the Coast Survey in giving it 19,500 feet was too liberal in its figures. The day was cloudless; the whole scene was one that baffles description. It surpassed in grandeur, though not in picturesqueness, the very best that the Alps can offer. Roughly speaking, the eye encountered for miles nothing but snow and ice. I had never before thoroughly realized the vastness of the Alaskan glaciers, though during the past fortnight we had spent many a weary hour in crossing immense moraines. One of the glaciers we looked down upon was not less than sixty miles long, while another attained a breadth of twenty-five or thirty miles. From below I had gained the impression that ice covered with debris predominated over white ice. I now saw that this was not the case, and that the ratio of debris to clear ice was probably not greater than that of one to ten. When standing at a considerable height one appreciates for the first time the beautiful curves through which the glaciers alter their course. We noticed this in particular in looking down upon the Agassiz glacier. It appeared at one point to describe three or four arcs of concentric circles with radii varying from eight to ten miles, each arc being indicated by a light coating of stones, the whole resembling an immense race course. Through the middle of the Tyndall glacier, and for a distance of several miles, two light streaks of moraine ran parallel to each other, presenting from above the appearance of a huge serpent crawling the length of the glacier.—Scribner's Magazine.

—The silo enables the farmers of the East to compete with the West in raising corn. By feeding the corn ensilage to stock it is converted into beef, butter, milk and other products. We have the advantage of markets, and should convert unsalable products into something that is salable. By the use of the silo corn fodder can be stored away until a more favorable season.

Too Thin.

My son, now and then you will come across a news item in the paper, which begins something this way: "During the summer of 18— I was crossing the ocean in the steamer —— of the —— line, when a young officer, since married to the daughter of a well known merchant of this city," etc. Don't read it. Read a patent medicine advertisement, rather. There will be quite as much information and about 500 times more truth in the ad. than in the narrative that spells the very things you most want to know in meaningless blanks and dashes.—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

The Captious Public.

A shoemaker on Grand River avenue painted his door the other day and hung out a sign of "Paint." Pretty soon a man came along and opened the door and asked:

"What sort of paint, and how do you sell it?"

"It's paint on the door," was the reply.

"Oh, that's it. Better change your sign, then."

The shoemaker took in the sign and hung up one reading: "Paint on the door." He had scarcely done so when a second man accosted him with:

"Is that all? Why didn't you paint the casings, too? Looks mighty stingy, and I'd change that sign."

The shoemaker reflected for awhile and then made a new sign reading: "Look out for paint." It wasn't a quarter of an hour before a farmer came in with an old boot to mend, and as he rubbed his shoulder against the door he indignantly exclaimed:

"How did I know where to look out for this infernal nuisance?"

The man went out and removed the sign and tore it up, and as he returned to the bench he said:

"That's what a fellow gets for trying to satisfy the public. Now let the door take care of itself."—Detroit Free Press.

nother Great Head.

Indulgent Mamma—Really, I don't know what you'll do, Bridget, to keep the children out of the sugar bowl. We can't punish them.

Bridget—I think I can prevent it, mum.

I. M.—What do you propose to do?

B.—I'll keep the sugar bowl full of salt.—Omaha World.

Complying with the Rules.

Old Mr. Pheets—It's a pesky onhandy way of gittin' on th' cars, but I s'pose them rules has got ter be followed.—Judge.

Love Me, Love My Dog.

Young Wife—I'm afraid, mother, that John doesn't love me as much as he used to.

Mother—Why, child, what could have put such an idea into your head?

Young Wife—Oh, mother, you ought to see how dreadfully he beats poor little Fido.—Yankee Blade.

A Dramatic Catastrophe.

Supe (to stage manager)—Say, guv'nor, have you got a life preserver?

Manager—No; what's the matter?

Supe—The Roman general fell overboard into the tank with his helmet on and he is floatin' around head down.—Time.

Suspended Evolution.

He—Aw, weally, Miss Blossom, do you believe man sprang from the ape?

She (very tired of his attentions)—Yes, I presume some men have, but there are others who have never yet made the spring, or at least never sprang very far.—Omaha World.

Shocking.

Aunt Susan (to Boston girl who has just returned from New York)—And how did you enjoy yourself, Carrie?

Carrie—I had an enjoyable visit, aunt, but it was positively shocking to see so many people without glasses.—Boston Transcript.

It Would Break the Engagement.

Miss Crimp—People say I look like my sister. What do you think about it, Mr. Softy?

Mr. Softy (her sister's beau)—I think you look very much like your sister, but please don't tell her I said so.—Yankee Blade.

Affinity.

Miss Maud Hogg, of Northampton county, Pa., was married a few days ago to a Mr Mudd, of Maryland.—Exchange.

That's the Trouble.

Harry—I always pay as I go.

Larry (feelingly)—Yes, but you don't go!—Time

All Settled.

Every claim has been taken up in Oklahoma. That settles it.—Chicago Globe.

A Question of Age.

She—Grandmamma is 86 years old, and she danced a minuet here to-night.

He (just from the theatre)—Why, she is almost old enough to appear in the ballet.—Life.

Knew What to Order.

"James," said the village jeweler, "are there any weddings to take place in the neighborhood soon?"

"There are two to come off next week," said the clerk.

And the jeweler sat down at once and wrote an order for two dozen pickle casters, with privilege of exchanging twenty-two of them for something else within thirty days.—Chicago Tribune.

The Cure Easily Applied.

Mrs. Cahokia—Alfred, I have been reading about the hot air treatment for weak lungs, and I think I should like to try it.

Mr. Cahokia (struck by a happy thought)—All right, Esmeralda. This is April. Next month is May. We'll spend the whole month right here in St. Louis.—Chicago Tribune.

Caught.

When Phyllis turned her eyes on me
I blushed and hesitated;
For though on terms familiar, we
Were not at all related.

I felt her mild, reproachful glance,
And knew her words would rankle;
To tell the truth, I had by chance
Been looking at her ankle. —Life.

—In a large portion of Europe, from one-half to two-thirds of the population is crowded into cities. In the United States, the older States exhibit similar conditions. Leaving out the towns of less than four thousand inhabitants, the ratio for Massachusetts is sixty-six per cent., Connecticut and New York fifty-four per cent., New Jersey fifty-two per cent., and Pennsylvania thirty-nine per cent. constituting the urban population.

THE SEMI-ANNUAL RECORD.

Its Enormous Total and Wide Distribution—Caprices of Fortune.

A partial list of the prizes above One Thousand Dollars, paid by The Louisiana State Lottery Company during the six months ending May, 1889, together with the name and addresses given to the Company by the holders, omitting those who have requested it.

Receipts for the amounts are on file at the offices of the Company.

DRAWING OF DECEMBER 18, 1888.

Hulda Rost, Wanatah, Ind	$15,000
Mrs. Louisa Martell, 42 West 33d St., New York City	15,000
C. Stalb, Philadelphia, Pa	15,000
A. H. Alexander, New York, N. Y	15,000
John E. Hill, Manor, Travis Co., Tex	15,000
A depositor, Union National Bank, New Orleans, La	15,000
T. C. S. Hatch, McGregor, Tex	15,000
Samuel Schneider, Petaluma, Cal	15,000
Eugene Brackett, San Francisco, Cal	15,000
Cosca & Garcia, Guaymas, Mex	15,000
Bert L. Dwilley, Lewiston, Me	15,000
Carbonate National Bank of Leadville, Col	15,000
Louis C. Koehler & Bro., 1,714 E Lombard St., Baltimore, Md	15,000
Geo. Wm. Spawforth, Denver, Col	15,000
Five depositors through Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, Cal	12,500
Clarence L. Miller, Lower Village, Nova Scotia, Canada	5,000
E. C. Whittlesey, Omaha, Neb	5,000
Peter Flick, 248 E Morris St., Indianapolis, Ind	5,000
London, Paris & American Bank, Limited, San Francisco, Cal	5,000
A depositor, Germania Savings Bank, New Orleans, La	5,000
J. B. Melody & Miss Florence Bascomb, Chicago, Ill	5,000
First Nat'l Bank of Sulphur Springs, Tex	5,000
Chas. Edwards, North Platte, Neb	5,000
Geo. Hinck, 21 Columbia St., New York	5,000
Bouillot & Snyder, 129 Bank Ave, Philadelphia, Pa	5,000
R. A. Johnson, 2 Garden St., Arch, Boston, Mass	5,000
Waggoner & Larsh, Purcell, Ind. Ter	5,000
D. L. Collins, Augusta, Ga	5,000
A correspondent at Vera Cruz, Mex	5,000
Allen Bros., Dubuque, Iowa	5,000
Mrs. Thos. M. Scheidler, 1,900 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa	2,500
Southwestern National Bank of Philadelphia, Pa	2,500
H. Schnitzer, 112 Canal St., New York City	2,500
A. Robinson, Baltimore, Md	2,500
Mrs. M. Burke, Cooperstown, Wis	2,500
J. C. Tolson, Gadsden, Ala	2,500
Vicksburg Bank, Vicksburg, Miss	2,500
Marx Harder, Rock Island, Ill	2,500
First National Bank of Waverly, New York	2,500
John H. Wolf, East Liberty, Pa	2,500
D. Heilborn, care Meyerhoff & Eichengreen, 306 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa	2,500
Island City Savings Bank, Galveston, Texas	2,500
Sam'l Hays, 3,329 Morgan St., St. Louis, Mo	1,250
E. H. Warker, 126 W 17th St., New York	1,250
J. McGowan, 1,070 Third Ave., New York	1,250
G. W. Wilton, 142 W 124th St., New York	1,250
R. Rothstein, 46 E Broadway, New York	1,250
Mary E. Thorne, 591 Grand River Ave., Detroit, Mich	1,250
Wm. W. Sebold, 713 Dubon St., Detroit, Mich	1,250
Britton & Kountz, Natchez, Miss	1,250
Mrs. John Feedler, Correctionville, Iowa	1,250
Pacific Bank of San Francisco, Cal	1,250
Memphis National Bank of Memphis, Tenn	1,250

DRAWING OF JANUARY 15, 1889.

The Bank of Key West, Key West, Flo	30,000
Two depositors through Wells, Fargo & Co's Bank, San Francisco, Cal	30,000
Chas. Fisher, Fort Yates, Dak	15,000
Geo. T. Davis, Detroit, Mich	15,000
A. Astarita, New York City	15,000
German National Bank, Denver, Col	15,000
W. Halderman, Philadelphia, Pa	15,000
Second National Bank, Bay City, Mich	15,000
W. P. Gresham, Indianola, Miss	15,000
C. M. McLain, Colorado Springs, Col	15,000
J. H. Dickson, Detroit, Mich	15,000
Alpena National Bank, Alpena, Mich	15,000
National Bank of the Commonwealth, Boston, Mass	10,000
Dr. W. H. Dibble, Middletown, Conn	10,000
Geo. W. Sewall, Chicago, Ill	10,000
Hamilton Nat'l Bank of Fort Wayne, Ind	10,000
Mrs. J. H. Brown, Duncan, Ariz	5,000
A depositor, Union National Bank, New Orleans, La	5,000
First National Bank, Tayler, Tex	5,000
Mrs. E. M. Johnson, Albana, N. Y	5,000
Isaac Williamson, 2,005 North Front St., Philadelphia, Pa	5,000
A depositor, Branch State National Bank, New Orleans, La	5,000
Theo. W. Fricke, 34 South Broadway St., Baltimore, Md	5,000
A depositor, through Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, Cal	5,000
J. Withers, Jr., San Antonia, Tex	5,000
W. S. Rogers, Winterset, Iowa	2,500
Mrs. B. Bond, Jersey City, N. J	2,500
J. M. Martin, Ambia, Tex	2,500
City National Bank, Cairo, Ill	2,500
Merchants National Bank, Louisville, Ky	2,500
National German-American Bank, St. Paul, Minn	2,500
C. C. Dilline & Co., St. Joseph, Mo	2,500
Chicago National Bank, Chicago, Ill	2,500
Anglo-Californian Bank, Limited, San Francisco, Cal	1,250
Julius Liehr, 2,054 Poppleton Ave., Omaha, Neb	1,250
Riggs & Co., Washington, D. C	1,250
John F. Burns, Guardian, care Diggs & Diggs, Selma, Ala	1,250
First National Bank, Omaha, Neb	1,250

DRAWING OF FEBRUARY 12, 1889.

London, Paris and American Bank, Limited, San Francisco, Cal	45,000
Albert Leonard, 1,445 East Franklin St., Richmond, Va	30,000
A. E. Pierce, Boston, Mass	15,000
Geo. E. Bartlett, Boston, Mass	15,000
Wm. Babson, care Presson's Express, Boston, Mass	15,000
E. W. Smith, San Jose, Cal	15,000
E. C. Bartholomew, Titusville, Pa	15,000
C. V. Terrell, Decatur, Tex	15,000
Anglo-Californian Bank, San Francisco	15,000
Citizens National Bank of Kansas City, Mo	15,000
Union National Bank of Kansas City, Mo	15,000
A depositor, Canal Bank, New Orleans	15,000
A depositor, through Wells, Fargo & Co's Bank, San Francisco, Cal	15,000
Third National Bank of Detroit, Mich	5,000
Anglo-Californian Bank of San Francisco, Cal	5,000
Wells, Fargo & Co's Bank, San Francisco, Cal	5,000
Frank J. Knecht, Kankakee, Ill	5,000
Johnson & Walker, Marlin, Tex	5,000
Chas. W. Webster, Hardy, Neb	5,000
Robt. Schumann, 1,448 Lingo St., Philadelphia, Penn	5,000
E. T. Robberson, Springfield, Mo	5,000
Louisville Banking Co., Louisville, Ken	5,000
J. J. Wayne, Des Moines, Iowa	5,000
Christopher Rourk, 603 I St., N W, Washington, D. C	5,000
Maverick National Bank of Boston, Mass	5,000
H. D. Mueller, Jr., care American Express Co., Quincy, Ill	5,000
E. L. Franks, Riverton, Ill	2,500
Miss A. T. Butters, Boston, Mass	2,500
Mary McDonald, Boston, Mass	2,500
V. J. Jesch, 341 Fourth St., Jersey City, N. J	2,500
Shaw & Horst, Navasota, Tex	2,500
R. L. Malone, Griffin, Ga	2,500
Bank of Commerce, Memphis, Tenn	2,500
A depositor, New Orleans National Bank, New Orleans, La	2,500
National Savings Bank of Washington, D. C	2,500
Jno. Diehl, Bardstown, Ill	2,500
W. H. Coleman, Edna, Tex	2,500
A depositor, Louisiana National Bank, New Orleans, La	2,500
J. A. Ramon, 436 Bush St., San Francisco, Cal	1,250
Mrs. Rachel Salinskey, 207 Broome St., New York City	1,250
Luke Mulroy, 215 East 38th St., New York City	1,250
Geo. Koehler, 17 First St., San Francisco	1,250
Island City Savings Bank of Calveston, Tex	1,250
Bank of Greenville, Miss., for M. B. Hendel, Greenville, Miss	1,250
John Chem, Convent, La	1,250
Louis Adler, 510 W Madison St., Chicago	1,250
Merchant's and Planter's Bank of Pine Bluff, Ark	1,250
A depositor, through Wells, Fargo & Co's Bank, San Francisco, Cal	1,250
Jerry Graves, Lowmoor, Va	1,250
Samuel Killeen, Sicamous, B. C., Canada	1,250

DRAWING OF MARCH 12, 1889.

Isaac Lowbar, 701 South 20th St., Philadelphia, Penn	30,000
Jno. Schwenk, 1,421 North 24th St., Philadelphia, Pa	15,000
E. Nusbaum, 614 Arch St., Phila., Pa	15,000
Bank of America, Providence, R. I	15,000
Wellington A. Griffin, Guide office, 521 Clay St., San Francisco, Cal	15,000
A correspondent, through Wells, Fargo & Co's Bank, San Francisco, Cal	15,000
Jas. P. Commons, Chicago, Ill	15,000
Miss A. Emery and Benj. Nusbaum, 103 South State St., Chicago, Ill., care National Library Association	15,000
Fred Schade, Chicago, Ill	15,000
German Bank of Memphis, Tenn	15,000
First National Bank of Memphis, Tenn	15,000
The Continental Bank of St. Louis, Mo	15,000
Chace & Butts, Providence, R. I	15,000
Denton S. Hamilton, Hamburg, N. J	10,000
Anglo-Californian Bank of San Francisco	5,000
National Bank of Redempton, Boston, Mass	5,000
Henry Jessel, 154 Essex St., New York	5,000
A. J. Scott, 86 Fourth Ave., Chicago, Ill	5,000
Jno. A. Martin, 45 Ave. A, New York City	5,000
Geo. Berchhoeld, 179 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill	5,000
A depositor, Union National Bank, New Orleans, La	5,000
Adoue & Lobit, Galveston, Tex	5,000
G. W. Malcom, Pittsfield, Mass	5,000
Peter Schweickhart, Emporia, Pa	5,000
Ketcham National Bank of Toledo, Ohio	5,000
W. H. Thomas, Boston, Mass	5,000
Lorenz Siebert, 813 Summit St., Toledo	5,000
Albert B. Thielbar, Peoria, Ill	2,500
A. Gallagher, Philadelphia, Pa	2,500
A depositor, Peoples Bank, New Orleans	2,500
City National Bank, Louisville, Pa	2,500
M. B. Murphy, Willow Island, Neb	2,500
W. L. Bedford, Humboldt, Mich	2,500
Fred David, 305 West St., New York	2,500
J. Davignow, U. I. C. F. Society, New Bedford, Mass	2,500
Henry Wittkowski, 92 Division St., N. Y	2,500
Anglo Nat'l Bank of San Francisco, Cal	2,500
Farmers Bank of Fresno, Fresno, Cal	2,500
O. H. Hunt, Medaryville, Ind	2,500
G. J. Nolan, 119 Joliet St., Joliet, Ill	2,500
Geo. E. Branch, Boston, Mass	2,500
R. P. Bemiss, San Jose, Cal	1,250
T. H. Tryon, Titusville, Pa	1,250
B. Giovannoni, 661 B'way, New York city	1,250
A depositor through Wel's, Fargo & Co's Bank of San Francisco, Cal	1,250
A correspondent in Bangor, Me	1,250
Masonic Savings Bank, Louisville, Ky	1,250
A. Piper, Parsons, Kan	1,250
Valentine Baltz, 2168 Archer ave. Chicago, Ill	1,250
Willis Foster, Millersburg, Ind	1,250
Frederick Frank, Detroit, Mich	1,250
V. W. Woodward, Indianapolis, Ind	1,250
Dan Dowley, watchman, Jackson R. R. depot New Orleans, La	1,250
S. D. Woodward, Bloomington, Ill	1,250
Fourth National Bank of Nashville, Tenn	1,250
Jno. Lenn, 232 N Wells St., Chicago, Ill	1,250

DRAWING OF APRIL 16, 1889.

Frank Kneeland, Boston, Mass	15,000
Otto Von Rosenberg, Halettsville, Tex	15,000
Merchants Nat'l Bank, Waterville, Me	15,000
Wm. Rawlinson, Lexington, S. C	15,000
F. N. Hyndman, Gen. Pass. Office, C., B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ill	15,000
P. Weber, 116 Liberty St. Cleveland, O	15,000
W. J. Brackett, Calhoun, Ky	15,000
J. D. Riser, cor. Main and Olive Sts. Mansfield, Ohio	15,000
Bank of Commerce, San Diego, Cal	15,000
Ralph E. Stapes, South Bend, Ind	15,000
Osmun & Brother, Sixth and Union Sts, Allentown, Pa	15,000
W. A. Tanner, Minneapolis, Min	15,000
Christian Schmidt, Redbud Ill	15,000
Pat'k McCann, 1154 Elk St., Buffalo, N. Y	15,000
Manufacturers National Bank of Brooklyn, N. Y	15,000
Wm. Africa, Altoona, Pa	15,000
S. P. Harris, Mariana, Ark	5,000
E. A. Rippey, El Paso, Tex	5,000
John Ross, 406 Cambria St., Phila., Pa	5,000
James Leary, New York city	5,000
Harry Lee, Washington, D. C	5,000
Marcos Lopez, St. Bernard Parish, La	5,000
N. A. Sager, Columbus, Ohio	5,000
D. D. Williams & Co., Duck Hill, Miss	5,000
E. E. J. Ross, Jackson, Miss	5,000
M. L. Fay, Worcester, Mass	5,000
German Bank of Memphis, Tenn	5,000
Anglo-Californian Bank, San Francisco	5,000
A correspondent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Bank of San Francisco, Cal	5,000
E. Nettel, Chelmsford, Mass	2,500
D. O. Mills, & Co., Sacramento, Cal	2,500
S. Fried, 30 Canal St., New York City	2,500
Geo. R. A. Willey, Washington D. C	2,500
S. Grabinsky, 711 7th St., St. Louis, Mo	2,500
First National Bank of Taylor, Tex	2,500
Rock County Nat'l Bank Janesville, Wis	2,500
J. G. Reple, Columbus, Ohio	2,500
The Pacific Express Co., Memphis, Tenn	2,500
Midland Cigar Store, Colorado Springs, Col	2,500
Michel F. Riordan, New Britain, Conn	2,500
Chas. E. Dougherty, St. Louis, Mo	2,500
Fritz Schult, Elgin, Ill	2,500
Carbonate Nat'l Bank of Leadville, Col	2,500
T. B. Clauser, 1928 6th St., Harrisburg, Pa	1,250
A. Overlitner, Summerhill, Pa	1,250
Mrs. Joseph Reeves, Red Bluff, Cal	1,250
C. H. Reiman, New York city	1,250
City Nat'l Bank of Austin, Tex	1,250
C. H. Abbott, Birmingham, Ala	1,250
Columbus Insurance and Banking Co., Columbus, Miss	1,250
A depositor People's Bank, New Orleans	1,250
A correspondent through Wells, Fargo & Co's Bank of San Francisco, Cal	1,250
Hannah Doherty, 409 Beacon St., Boston, Mass	1,250

DRAWING OF MAY 14, 1889.

Alex. Tafaureau, 152 Chartre St., New Orleans, La	15,000
Alfred and Magaret Friot, San Francisco, Cal	15,000
Wm. S. Johnson, Boston, Mass	15,000
A correspondent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Bank of San Francisco, Cal	15,000
A depositor New Orleans National Bank, New Orleans, La	15,000
David Simmons, 117 Charlotte St., Peoria, Ill	15,000
Wm. H. Reigart, Peoria, Ill	15,000
F. B. Baird, Room 13, Lakeside Building, Chicago, Ill	5,000
A party through United States Express Co., Chicago, Ill	5,000
F. Paglnica, care A. S. Blake, 309 Canal St., New York city	5,000
First National Bank of Detroit, Mich	5,000
Bidwell & Donovan, 1185 Niagara St., & 512 Rhode Island St., Buffalo, N. Y	5,000
L. M. Fry, Weatherford, Tex	5,000
Anglo Californian Bank of San Francisco	5,000
G. C. Goodrich, Baltimore, Md	5,000
Rudolph Bloomquist, Chicago, Ill	2,500
J. D. Collins, Atlanta, Ga	2,500
A. Keller, Lama, Mo	2,500
F. A. Harris, Boston, Mass	2,500
R. S. Palmer, 721 Eighth St., N W Washington, D. C	2,500
F. H. Nowack, Sealy, Tex	2,500
I. Consoline, Villa Rica, Ga	2,500
First Nat'l Bank of Honey Grove, Tex	2,500
Rufino Esteves, St. Bernard Parish, La	2,500
L. Adler, care Felsenthal, Grass & Miller, Chicago, Ill	2,500
Thos. Williams, Steubenville, Ohio	2,500
National City Bank, New York city	2,500
Matthew P. Brown, 185 Brookline St., Cambridgeport, Mass	1,250
J. W. Clough, 57 Merchants Row, Boston, Mass	1,250
M. J. Mokler, Boys' House of Refuge, New Orleans, La	1,250
Jno. N. Rambaut, 201 Decatur st., New Orleans, La	1,250
Anglo-California Bank of San Francisco	1,250

The total is nearly 1,000 killed and 9,000 injured in connection, one way or another, with the English railway system. There were 35 collisions between passenger trains and 54 between passenger and freight trains. There were 288 failures of axles, the greater part belonging to engines.

Teacher (to pupil)—Johnnie, what is a demagogue? Johnnie—A demagogue is a vessel that holds wine, gin, whisky, or any other liquor.

DISARMING AN UNSEEN FOE.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defense against which the enemy is powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

At a trial the other day a quotation was made by the counsel for the prisoner from "Steele's Criminal Law." Opposing counsel said that Steele should be an authority for theft.

A PIECE OF HER MIND.

A lady correspondent has this to say:

"I want to give a piece of my mind to a certain class who object to advertising, when it costs them anything—this won't cost them a cent. I suffered a living death for nearly two years with headaches, backache, in pain standing or walking, was being literally dragged out of existence, my misery increased by drugging. At last, in despair, I committed the sin of trying an advertised medecine, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and it restored me to the blessedness of sound health. I honor the physician who, when he knows he can cure, has the moral courage to advertise the fact." The medecine mentioned is guaranteed to cure those delicate diseases peculiar to females. Read printed guarantee on bottle-wrapper.

For all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, take Dr. Pierce's Pellets. One a dose.

A man knows all about that "all gone" feeling the patent medicine advertisements speak of just after he has lost all his money at poker.

A LITTLE LEAVEN LEAVENETH THE WHOLE LUMP.

A disease in one part of the body will eventually fill the whole body with disease. Every year or two some part of the system grows weak and begins to decay. Such part should be removed at once, and new matter be allowed to take its place. There's no need of cutting it out with the surgeon's scalpel. Purge away the old, diseased and worn-out parts with BRANDRETH'S PILLS. Then the new body will take care of itself.

Minnie—I am sorry I ever got that hat. I think it makes me look like a perfect fright. Mamie—Oh, no, not a perfect fright. You know there is nothing perfect in this world.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

OVERLAND EXCURSIONS

To all points East, with Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars, fully equipped, through from San Francisco to Chicago without change, every Tuesday. Privilege of stop-over at Salt Lake and Denver en route, if desired.

For particulars, tickets, and sleeping car berths, apply to E. A. Holbrook, General Traffic Agent, Chicago & North Western Railway, 2 New Montgomery Street (Palace Hotel), San Francisco Cal.

Try Germes for Breakfast.

Never wait for a thing to turn up. Go and turn it up yourself. It takes less time, and it is surer to be done.

HAPPY RECOVERY.

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my kidneys, from which I never expected to recover. My physicians said I had Bright's disease. Later I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember that day—I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never had a return of the disease, and though I am over sixty years of age I am vigorous and strong, as I was in my prime. What physicians and the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did; it st

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY....JULY 27 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 7. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 27, 1889. WHOLE NO. 978.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid).....$4 00
Six months.....2 00
Three months.....1 00
One month.....0 50
Single copies.....0 10

A KING IN EXILE.

He Still Dresses Gorgeously, Though He Is a Monarch Without Subjects.

At the Government House receptions and on other gala occasions here, a short, thick-set negro is one of the most conspicuous persons on view, both because the newspapers of Europe and America have had much to say of him for over a year, and also on account of the extraordinary figure he cuts in his state costume. He wears an Admiral's coat with immense bullion epaulettes, over a yellow plush vest with big green enamel buttons. The vest is cut very low, displaying a large area of immaculate linen. His jean trousers have broad stripes of blue and red, and black silk hose and a pair of gorgeous, flower-embroidered slippers cover his nether extremities. On his head he wears a broad-brimmed hat of African manufacture, something like a sombrero, and in the band are stuck at uniform distances five long ostrich feathers. In his ears are gold rings of unique design, and encircling his neck is a collar of shark's teeth, with a bear's tooth tipped with gold by way of a pendant. He wears white cotton gloves and as many flashy rings as his fingers and thumbs will accommodate.

This remarkable person is a King in exile. King Ja Ja, of Opobo, West Africa, who for many years lorded it over a small district among the oil rivers of the Niger delta. All the people here have the story of his career at their fingers' ends, and they point him out to strangers as the boss curiosity of the island. They tell how his natural cunning and his unscrupulous nature lifted him from slavery to freedom and sovereignty. They repeat the stories of his cannibalism, which are numerous enough to fill a book. Ja Ja told Captain Verney, of the Royal Navy, twenty years ago, that all sensible men were cannibals, and he said he knew nothing in the eating line that was quite so toothsome as a little boy's ankle. That was before Ja Ja was King, but even then he was getting rich trading with British merchants. A few years ago Ja Ja built him a new palace, which was a gorgeous affair as palaces go in West Africa. Under each foundation post he buried a slave alive about twenty in all, for no earthly reason, apparently, except to show that he had plenty of slaves to spare. All the stories of his degraded barbarism are known here, and are told again and again.

It is about two years since the crowning act of Ja Ja's cruelty induced the British Government to take his precious person into custody and put him out of the way of doing further harm. For years he had exacted tribute upon every pound of merchandise that entered or left his country. The white merchants at last decided that they would not be blackmailed by Ja Ja any longer. They told him he might make as much money as he pleased in trade, but he must not meddle with their business. Thereupon he ordered his people to have nothing more to do with the white traders, and suspecting that his dutiful subjects in one district were still trading with the whites he marched his little army to the place and in a few days killed 700 people. Then the British sent an expedition to Ja Ja's country and made things very hot him, and when they returned to the coast Ja Ja in chains was the most conspicuous feature of the procession.

About a year ago Ja Ja arrived at Kingston, where, the imperial authorities thought, they could easily keep him out of mischief. They gave him an allowance of $4,000 a year for spending money, and he has plenty of money besides of his own, though he spends very little. He nearly died of homesickness, and before long sent a piteous appeal to England for a few companions to cheer him up. He asked that a dozen of his wives be sent to St. Vincent to share his exile. He thought his request was exceedingly modest, as he petitioned for only a small part of his harem. Not to encourage polygamy, however, the wise authorities decided that one wife was enough. They graciously permitted Ja Ja to take his pick, and he sent for Patience.

Queen Patience is here, and is usually in the society of her liege lord, who is old enough to be her father. She is a young thing, dark and dumpy, and is not at all regal nor dignified in appearance.—Kingston (West India) Cor. N. Y. Sun.

Fowls as Insect Destroyers.

The value of poultry for destroying insects is greatly underestimated. A turkey hen, with a large brood, will work industriously over a large area in one day, and they will consume hundreds of insects. During an entire season the useful work so performed will be very great. A flock of hens on a range will find all the insect food desired, and will need no aid from the owner. This is well enough as it appears, and saves expenses, but to their credit should be given the destruction of insects. If some correct estimate of the number of insects destroyed by one hundred fowls could be made, for one year, the result would be astonishing. If we could put it at half a peck for each hen, it might not be too large, but allowing only two quarts of insects for each hen, during one year, and we have over three bushels of insects destroyed by one hundred fowls. This means fewer insects to be killed the next season. We have seen a brood of turkeys clean out all the worms in a tobacco field in one day, and though the adult potato beetles are injurious to fowls, yet the hens will eat the eggs and grubs of the beetles if given an opportunity. The destruction of insects should always be considered in the matter of poultry management.—Farm and Fireside.

BASE-BALL IN ENGLAND.

The "Thunderer" Shows How the Britons Regard the Game.

Every body is now asking his friend in a doubtful kind of way what he thinks of base-ball. Londoners are, or ought to be, now in a position to give their verdict upon this important question. The Chicago and All-America teams have performed four times in London before large crowds of spectators—at Leyton 8,000 persons watched the game. Our visitors, therefore, can not complain that they have been treated with indifference, whatever judgment is passed upon the game they introduced to us. Most Londoners who take any interest at all in sports have considered it a duty to pay the base-ball players a visit, and so inform themselves fully and truly upon the nature of the game, keeping their minds open and purged, so far as possible, from all passion and prejudice. We are not prepared to say that it is altogether possible to judge without prejudice a game which the Americans have presumptuously preferred to cricket. Apollo might have listened to the pipe of Marsyas with equanimity and even with pleasure had he not known that Marsyas was setting up as his superior. But let us try to forget and forgive this and judge base-ball on its merits. One of these merits is that it is not spun out over two or three days. Americans, who are so busy that they can not find leisure for cricket, manage to find it for a game which a single afternoon is sufficient to decide. As for the essentials of the game, it would be singular if they did not strike some chords of sympathy in the English breast, considering that they are the same as those of "rounders." "Rounders" was once much played on every village green; even now it enjoys considerable vogue as a Sunday amusement in the outskirts of London, and several of our metropolitan public schools find "rounders," or a variety of the game, peculiarly well adapted to their lagged play-grounds. Consequently we must have latent affinities for base ball. But of course the American game has developed greatly. One of the chief pleasures of the schoolboy's life used to consist in "scorching"—that is, picking up the ball when the adversary had missed striking it and slinging it with unerring aim at his retreating form. The base ball is nearly as heavy as a cricket ball, and consequently it can be well understood that this pleasing feature has been eliminated, and the most diverting incidents of the game are the feints of the runners attempting to run from base to base. The pitcher, known in "rounders" as the "feeders," the batsman and the catcher are specialists, just as we find some cricketers pre-eminent in bowling, batting or fielding. In fact, base ball is a science.

Whether it is worth taking the trouble to acquire this science is another matter. Base-ball, as a candidate for entrance into the list of British sports, labors under the disadvantage of finding the field nearly full already of more or less scientific games, in which the youth of our islands are drilled while yet at school. At the same time we must admit that the demand for athletic games is so brisk that base-ball may possibly appeal to some tastes, some pockets, or some opportunities which the present supply of open-air amusements fails to satisfy. Many new games have been invented, adopted, or revived in these islands during the last ten or twenty years—lawn tennis, hockey and lacrosse among the number. The last mentioned every body knows, was an importation from Canada, introduced by two exhibition teams of Canadians and North American Indians. It is an age for devising new games, borrowing foreign and furbishing up old ones. If the ghost of "rounders" is sneaking about anywhere he will aid and abet the efforts of the base-ballers to rehabilitate him. It would, moreover, be pleasant if we were enabled to meet the Americans in some other sports besides rowing, yachting and athletics.—London Times.

Gulls and Their Young.

Every bird watches over and cares for her own nest, though the numbers are so great and the tumult so excessive that it is difficult to conceive how each gull can distinguish her own spotted eggs, placed in the midst of so many others, exactly similar in size, shape and color; and when at length the young are hatched and are swimming about on the loch or crowded together on some grassy point, the old birds, as they come home from a distance with food, fly rapidly amid thousands of young ones exactly similar to their own, without even looking at them, until they find their own offspring, which, recognizing their parents among all the other birds, receive the morsel without any of the hungry little creatures around attempting to dispute the prize, each waiting patiently for its own parent, in perfect confidence that its turn will come in due season.—Science.

—A grave-digger in New York tells of a strange sort of mental affection which troubles people of his calling. It is termed "corpse quake," and several of his friends have suffered from it. It invariably attacks a digger while he is about the cemetery, the victim shaking as though suffering from a chill. In one case that the digger cites, the man's health became much impaired, but, abandoning the business, the poor fellow recovered, and then took his old position. Almost the same day the shaking returned. He again retired, but suffered thereafter at the mention of a spade, and died in a remarkably short time.

SLEEPING BY COMPASS.

Shall We Rest With Our Heads to the Equator or the North Pole?

The sleep-with-your-head-to-the-north idea had quite a run a few years ago, and there are still a great many people who, perhaps rather from force of habit than otherwise, range their beds so that they stand in line with the parallels of longitude, and sleep with their "feet to the equator," or as near as they can get to it. Habits are strong in such a matter. But the editor of a Western paper relates that he was greatly troubled with sleeplessness and headache at night. Finally he bethought himself that it always made him ill to travel on the railroad, if he rode backward, or if he lay in a sleeping-car berth with his head to the engine; and that on the other hand if he sat facing the engine, or slept in his berth with his feet to the engine, he slept well. The reflection led him to apply his experience to the earth itself, which is a sort of great railroad car, whirling along from west to east at the rate of about one thousand miles an hour.

He proceeded to arrange his bed so that when he lay upon it his head was to the West and his feet to the East, and after that he had no more restlessness or headache, but slept profoundly and sweetly, with his "feet to the engine." He commends his discovery to all sleepless and nervous people, and does not doubt that he has hit upon a bit of knowledge which will prove infinitely valuable to mankind. But what about the people who would just as lief ride backwards on railroad trains, and who sleep better with their heads to the engines of trains and the bows of vessels.

A friend once strongly advised us always to sleep when traveling with our head to the engine or the bow, and gave some very plausible reasons for his philosophy. "The movement of a train," he said, "tends to force your blood in the opposite direction from the way the train is going; that is to say, being liquid and under the influence in some degree of the forces of gravitation and inertia, the blood is not carried forward so fast as the solid parts of the body, and tends to collect in the end which is for the time being toward the rear. Now, if your feet are toward the engine, the blood will collect in your head and give you unpleasant dreams and sleeplessness. Have the blood in your feet, on the other hand, and you will sleep all the better for having it there." "But," we asked, "does not your being on a car constitute, as it were, a new center of motion, and every part of the body being carried along as fast as any other part, prevent any collecting of the blood in the extremity which is in the aft?" "The fact that you are on the train," replied the theorist, "does not prevent the force of gravitation from working independently of the train, and the principle of inertia certainly carries the blood toward your head every time the train starts. Try it with a spirit level, and you will see the bubble hug the aftermost end of the tube."—American Analyst.

ARTISTIC TATTOOING.

The Clever Work Done by a Japanese Professional Living at Hong Kong.

A Hong Kong journal gives an account of a Japanese who has lately set up in that colony as a professional tattooer of pictures and designs on the body. In a room decorated with fans, hanging pictures and scrolls, the visitor or patient is received. In a conspicuous place is hung a notice in the following words: "I do not business if fuddled." Sample books are first produced for inspection and selection; they are filled with colored drawings of dragons, birds, insects and scenes—comic and serious. At the bottom is written the cost of tattooing each, the prices varying from about 12s. for three butterflies to an elaborate groupe for £20. The operator himself was tattooed all over his body with groups of bright flowers here, the conventional Japanese girl's head there; a female figure with long flowing robes wound round one arm from the shoulder to the wrist, while on the other was a dragon, with every scale carefully shaded. On the breast was a picture of the god of storms, with inscriptions in Japanese characters, and similar representations all over the body, the hands alone being free. The apparatus consists merely of a small box containing a slab of black Chinese ink, some vermillion and dark red powders, and a drawerful of penholders, on the ends of which were fixed tiny bunches of needles, numbering from three to fifty. The customer chooses his design from the pattern-books, the operator draws it on the part desired, and then with a large bunch of needles for the heavy black and a small one for the fine lines the colors are punctured in. No blood is drawn and the pain is very little. A dragon, which would be tattood for £4, would take five hours, on account of the number of scales. The part is then rubbed with vaseline to allay the inflammation, and in a day or two the skin would come off. After that the marks would be indelible. The Hong Kong operator tattooed the arm of an English prince, and, in Kioto, was engaged for a whole month reproducing on the trunk and limbs of an English peer a series of scenes from Japanese history. For this he was paid about £100. He has also tattooed English ladies, and seems to be especially proud of one picture, which was a tiny fan about the size of a half-penny, on which was a complete landscape with figures well defined. His income from tattooing in Hong Kong is about £1,200 per annum.—London Times.

BUYING A PRESENT.

Shopping Expedition of a Man Who Didn't Mind the Expense.

He was one of the old-timers of Possum Ridge settlement, and was down at the county seat for the first time since the war. He went poking about the streets, peering into the stores and shops with the air of a man who had a deep-seated purpose in view. He went on until he came to a large dry-goods establishment, where he halted for a minute as if undecided whether to enter or pass on. Finally he blundered in, and, striking the first clerk he came to, he said:

"Say, mister, hev yer any thing in this 'ere shebang es 'ud be suitable fer er birthday gif' fer the ole 'oman?"

"Why, yes," the clerk stammered out, "I expect so. What would you like to buy?"

"Wal, thar yer got me, stranger. I'm derned if I know what 'ud suit."

"What have you been in the habit of getting for the occasion?"

"Thet's jest it, young feller, I hain't never bought any gif' afore, and it's all new to me. Yer see, it's this ere way: Me'n the ole 'oman's been married nigh ter sixty year. I say it's sixty past, but she holds out agin me thet it's gwine enter sixty, but ole 'Squar Beeson, who jined us, says I'm right, an' the ole 'Squar's a mighty level-headed man. Yer know ther 'Squire, I reckon?"

"Yes, I know the 'Squire. But about the present?"

"Yes, that's jist what I wuz gittin' at. Wal, yer see, as I said; me'n ther ole 'oman's been er joggin' erlong ter-gether all them years up thar on Possum Ridge, an' sort o' humpin' ourselves in ther craps an' out, an' we hain't thought much er puttin' on no style, ner nothin' o' that sort. But t'other day I fell ter readin' er leetle piece what sorter set me ter goin' in my mind, an' I felt like es of I hain't done jest fair by the ole 'oman, an' I kep' er thinkin', an' by gum, ther fust thing I knowed I'd done jes' plumb made up mer min' ter git 'er er birthday gif'. I want ter s'prise 'er."

"Yes, and you want something real nice, I suppose?"

"That's what, mister. Sumpin' rale han'some that'll kin'er make up for all them gif's what she didn't git. An' I don't keer of it costs er right smart, nuther, fer ther ole 'oman's been mouty faithful all them years, an' hain't never kicked on doin' ther feedin' an' gittin' in ther wood an' shuckin' out ther fodder in ther winter, an' helpin' in ther hay stackin' an' sech like in ther summer."

"Well, now, here is a nice dress pattern that would suit first rate."

"Thet's kin'er nice, stranger. What does it come at?"

"Ten dollars."

"Say, I reckon that wouldn't suit. Yer see I got 'er er caliker gownd las' fall, an'—"

"Well, then, how is this wrap at eight dollars?"

"Won't do, I guess. She's got er shawl, an', asides, thet's a leetle grain mor'n I keer ter pay."

"Here are a pair of slippers at five dollars."

"I reckon I don't want them, nuther. As I said, ther ole 'oman's been faithful, an' hain't never kicked agin keepin' up her eend o' ther work, an' I want ter s'pise 'er wuth sumpin' rale nice, but, yer see, I don't want ter go too high."

"Well, here is a pair of slippers at two dollars. That's low enough, isn't it?"

"That's gittin' down some, but I'm afeerd it's er leetle mite too high yit."

"About how much are you willing to pay?"

"I hain't going ter be perticler, mister, fer I started out ter git sumpin' nice, even if it does come pooty well up, but I wanter be a leetle keerful. Lem'me see, what does them thar bandanners come at?"

"Ten cents."

"Hain't'none fer five?"

"No."

"Wul, I reckon I'll jest take one o' them. As I said at fust, I hain't pertickler erbout er few cents one way er tother, an' asides it'll do fer us both ter use. Don't yer reckon ther ole 'oman's eyes 'll stick out like knots on er lorg when she sees thet?"—Detroit Free Press.

Charming House Waists.

House waists of silk or wool to wear with various skirts will give variety to the bride's wardrobe, as they are now worn at any hour of the day. They are also made in most varied materials, the newest being of figured silks, quaint, small-patterned brocades of old-rose or blue with lace frills, or else simpler red or turquoise India silks with white or black figures or stripes. The changeable silks and surahs also make pretty belted waists with full sleeves, shirred or tucked fronts and backs, and sometimes with a plain poke to which the fullness of the bodice is attached with a narrow upright ruffle and slight shirring. The excelent pongee silks also make useful belted waists for the house or for traveling gowns, with the tucks of the yoke and sleeves slightly feather-stitched with brown, red or blue. A good plan with these is to made the back tight fitting, with tucks down the middle over a light lining, and have the fronts loose, confined only by a belt which comes from the under-arm seams. White vailing and the silk-striped flannels are prettily made up with blouse fronts and fitted tucked back, worn with a ribbon belt knotted in front over the full blouse.—Harper's Bazar.

THE RUSSIAN IN WAR.

A Prince as a Private Soldier in the Famous Plevna Campaign.

It may seem a paradox, but the Russians are the most democratic people in Europe. Every officer was the correspondent's comrade. Prince Shakosky, the ill-conditioned General who made such a mess of the July Plevna, was the only exception I ever knew. If the samovar was in service the officer shared his tea with the correspondent; in the middle of a battle, if the officer had a couple of sandwiches, he would offer one of them to the correspondent. From the highest to the lowest, in regard to military information, the Russians were incredibly frank; the correspondent never had to ask questions as to situation, dispositions or intentions—information in regard to those matters was volunteered to him. The only secret they ever had—and I must own they kept it well—was in regard to the point at which the crossing of the Danube was to be made. Skobeleff "had not the faintest idea," although a couple of hours previously he had been reconnoitering the approaches. Prince Tzereticff "really had not even the remotest conception." Still, even in regard to the crossing of the Danube, the friendly Russians were not inexorable. I could not be told the locality of the crossing, but I should be escorted betimes to the headquarters of the General commanding the division which was to take the lead in the operations. It was rather an amusing experience. The guide sent to escort me was in the uniform of a private soldier—a tall, handsome man, riding a fine gray horse. He spoke English fluently and without a trace of accent. As we rode along together and talked, the tone of this private soldier's conversation bewildered me. He knew his Europe as if it had been his native parish. He had what Americans call "the inside track" in regard to English affairs, social, political and financial. He spoke of country houses of which he had been the guest, and commented on the merits of a piece of statuary in the drawing-room at Sandringham. At last I asked his name. He was of one of Russia's oldest princely families, and belonged to the diplomatic corps, but when the war began had volunteered for military service, and, not being qualified to be an officer, had fallen into line as a private soldier. As we rode along I asked him where we were bound for, not imagining that a destination to which we were full en route could be any longer a secret. But he looked upon it still in this light, no doubt in accordance with his instructions, and of course I had no more to say for the time being. By and by we reached a point whence radiated four cross roads. It became obvious to me that my guide was himself at fault. I took no heed while he led me first along one road a little way, then along another, returning puzzled to the cross roads. At last he had to confess. "It seems to me I've lost my way." "Sorry I can not be of any service," was my reply, "since I do not know where it is you want to go to. I have been all over this region and know where each of these roads leads." My prince-private-soldier-diplomatist burst into a laugh, and then mentioned our destination. "Then this way," said I, "about an hour's ride."—Archibald Forbes, in Gentleman's Magazine.

HEREDITARY TAINTS.

The Great, Pervasive and Potential Fact of "Heredity."

One result of the labors of physiologists has been the clearing of the mental vision and the gradual comprehension of the great, pervasive and potential fact of "heredity." "The sins of the father shall be visited upon the children," said Moses, more than three thousand years ago. Probably he comprehended in but a very small measure the significance of his own utterance. Not only do parents transmit to children their mental peculiarities, their moral tendencies, the features of the face, the stoop of the shoulders and the trick of the gait, but they pass on to them their blood, their brain, their glands, their very soul and life. We do not mean to say that heredity is a tyrant from which there is no escape, and that as the parent in constitution and conduct, so also must be the children to the remotest generation. If that were one of the discoveries of physiology, small thanks would be due to the science from overburdened man. But it is not so. The parent himself, as is well known, can modify and make worse or better both his constitution and his character. Similarly, the child's constitution and character may be changed, until, by the operation of the law of heredity itself, a not very remote descendant may be the antipodes of his early progenitors. The discovery of an existing inherited taint of disease or of vice in a child is not a cause for regret, but for thankfulness. The disease taint itself is, of course, to be deplored, and so is the inherited vice, but its early discovery is to be hailed with gratitude as pointing out lines of physical and moral treatment which may lead to the practical enfeeblement of the taint, or even to its eradication.—Hospital.

—A farmer may keep a hundred hens in his barn, may suffer them to trample upon and destroy his mows of grain and still have fewer eggs than his neighbor who keeps a single dozen, who provides secret nests, chalk eggs, pounded brick, plenty of Indian corn, lime water and gravel for them, and who takes care that his hens are not disturbed about their nests.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

The Agitation for Reduced Hours of Labor in Europe and America.

The agitation for reduced hours of labor is creating quite a stir among working classes on the continent. In Belgium, where it has gained ground wonderfully of late, the only objection seems to be that working men are so poor that the reduction of wages which must, for a time at least, follow the shortening of hours will reduce them to starvation. To guard against this the Belgians have joined to their eight-hour movement an agitation in favor of a "minimum rate of wages."

A noteworthy feature of the present movement toward an eight-hour day is the apparent desire on the part of the men who are conducting it to avoid every appearance of sensationalism or violence. There is to be no sudden change by strike; no industry is to be menaced; no harm done to property or commerce; no threats are to be employed. The measure is to be effected by gradual change of public sentiment and the voluntary and deliberate decision of both employers and employed that it will be to their common interest.

Discussing the question of shorter hours, the Philadelphia Times says: "In many industrial callings eight hours are quite enough for men to labor; in others it is a practical impossibility to place any arbitrary restriction upon employers and employed, and it must not be forgotten that the majority of working men and women—which includes the workers in field, forest, mine, factory, counting-room, store, and shop—are beyond the reach of any statutory regulation as to working hours. This fact must suggest extreme caution in moving for shortened hours of labor by law."

"The eight-hour rule," says the New York Tribune, "will doubtless come eventually, though it must be remembered that the process of shrinkage in the length of the working day, which has gone very far in the last fifty years, must end somewhere. The argument in which the movement seems to find its chief support is that, if the length of the working day is cut down one-fifth, the number of those who can be employed will be increased one-fifth. Probably not many of those who are influenced by such assertions stop to reflect that the reduction in the amount of labor a working man would do would be inevitably followed, at least for a considerable period, by a reduction in the amount of money he would receive. Not even the authority of the National Government over its employes has been able to arrest the operations of this natural law."

In England the eight-hour question is even more vexed than in this country. The fearful congestion of the labor market there has invited the attention of all parties—Conservative, Liberal, Radical and Socialist alike—and the feeling is strong that the present situation demands the adoption of new and effective measures. It is thought that if railway servants in Great Britain worked only eight hours the railroad companies would have to employ about three hundred thousand extra hands. This might play havoc with the dividends, but it would certainly materially relieve the pressure on the labor market. If the same rule were extended to other occupations there would be in England an immediate demand for about a million more workers. As there are only about seven million workers in England, this would represent a very large proportion of extra hands wanted. Thus it is that the eight-hour day agitation is gaining ground.

Herr von Beveren, a Belgian who has made considerable reputation in his native country as a political economist, thinks that an international treaty fixing the day's work in all countries at eight hours is necessary and urgent. In support of this theory he advances six reasons: (1) The trades unions are not strong enough to limit universally the hours of labor; (2) if they only reduced the hours in some trades, this would produce an injurious and anti-fraternal irregularity among workers; (3) without a law to fix the hours of labor those who work at home or in small and unorganized trades would still be overworked; (4) without such a law the struggle between employers and their men would be perpetuated—it would break out again and again at every fluctuation of the market; (5) such a law is practical, for it has existed for ten years in Switzerland, and when, recently, it was renewed, the employers made less opposition than when it was first introduced; (6) that it was pure utopia to count on the goodness of employers—some among them might be actuated by the best and kindest motives, but the keenness of competition placed on them the impossibility of making concessions.—Chicago News.

—An employe of Jay Gould recently remarked: "George Gould and his father love each other as much as any father and son I ever saw, and the same is the case with the other boys, who consequently are always glad to go home to their parents. Gould has imparted to his sons skill enough to take care of themselves. One of his boys is a good telegraph operator, another is a good stenographer. The old man can go all over this land and dictate his dispatches to one boy, and the other one can send them by wire."

—Returned tourist—"Does your daughter play and sing as much as ever?" Hostess—"O, no; she's married."—Philadelphia Record.

PICTURE OF WASHINGTON.

The Personal Appearance of Our First President in 1789 and in 1798.

As described by David Ackerson, in 1811, Washington had a large, thick nose, and it was very red that day, giving me the impression that he was not so moderate in the use of liquors as he was supposed to be. I found afterward that this was a peculiarity. His nose was apt to turn scarlet in a cold wind. He was standing near a small camp fire, evidently lost in thought and making no effort to keep warm. He seemed six feet and a half in height, was as erect as an Indian, and did not for a moment relax from a military attitude.

Washington's exact height was six feet two inches in his boots. He was then a little lame from striking his knee against a tree. His eye was so gray that it looked almost white, and he had a troubled look on his colorless face. He had a piece of woolen tied around his throat and was quite hoarse. Perhaps the throat trouble from which he finally died had its origin about then.

Washington's boots were enormous. They were No. 13. His ordinary walking shoes were No. 11. His hands were large in proportion, and he could not buy a glove to fit him and had to have his gloves made to order. His mouth was his strong feature, the lips being always tightly compressed. That day they were compressed so tightly as to be painful to look at.

At that time he weighed 200 pounds, and there was no surplus flesh about him. He was tremendously muscled, and the fame of his great strength was every where. His large tent, when wrapped up with the poles, was so heavy that it required two men to place it in the camp wagon. Washington would lift it with one hand and throw it into the wagon as easily as if it were a pair of saddle-bags. He could hold a musket with one hand and shoot with precision as easily as other men did with a horse pistol. His lungs were his weak point and his voice was never strong.

He was at that time in the prime of life. His hair was a chestnut brown, his cheeks were prominent, and his head was not large in contrast to every other part of his body, which seemed large and bony at all points. His finger joints and wrists were so large as to be genuine curiosities. As to habits at that period I found out much that might be interesting. He was an enormous eater, but was content with bread and meat, if he had plenty of it. But hunger seemed to put him in a rage. It was his custom to take a drink of rum or whisky on awaking in the morning.

Of course all this was changed when he grew old. I saw him at Alexandria a year before he died. His hair was very gray and his form was slightly bent. His chest was very thin. He had false teeth which did not fit and pushed his under lip outward.—Albany Express.

HONEST CARL DUNDER.

Some Things Which the Old Gentleman Does Not Understand.

Vhen der Americans get so madt at King Sheorge dot dey can't shtand it no longer eaferypody goes py Boston harbor und throws some tea oaferpoard—more ash four hoonered shests. Dot tea vhas all wasted in der water, but der principle vhas shust der same if der peoples take it home und drink it. I can't understand vhy dey don't.

Washington goes across der Delaware River py a skiff. It vhas a coldt, dark night, und more ice vhas around dan you can put in feefty refrigertors. If I vhas Washington I wait until some shteamboat come along, or somepody builds a bridge. I doan' take all dose shances mitout any accident insurance on my pody.

Washington goes into camp at Valley Forge for der winter, und she vhas so cold dot eaferyeody suffers like he vhas in Chicago. I don't quite see how it vhas. If I vhas a batriot und fighting for my country I go into camp in a brick house heated by steam, und I haf fried oysters und shicken pot-pie eafery day of my life. It looks to me as if Sheneral Washingion makes a big mistake aboudt dot. It vhas no good to freeze to death for your country. Dot doan' lick der British.

Veen Sheneral Washington gets dot Lord Cornwallis in a box at Yorktown he vhalks oop und down mit great dignity und doan' gif even one yell. If dot vhas me I gif some whoops und yells und screams—I shump oop und down—I paint dot place so red ash nefer vhas. I vealk oop to dot Cornwallis und I say:

"How you like it so far ash you went, hey! Maype now you like to go home und pehave herself! I haf got some bulge on you, und now you pehave himself or I make it purty hot!"

Dat Paul Shones vhas a good fighter, but I can't quite make oudt about him. If he goes into a fight mit a bigger ship und gets licked he doan' tell nopody. He shust keeps fighting right along, und he tells der men eaferytings vhas all O. K., und by und by dot big ship pulls down her flag und says she vhas soseek she can't fight no more. Den Mr. Shones goes aboard und says he vhas boss, und dot vhas one more victory. I doan' fight dat vhay. If I vhas licked dot settles it, und I holler oudt dot I gif oop. If der odder man vhas de biggest I doan' fight at all.

Dot Commodore Perry vhas a queer man. He likes to fight so vhell dot he shtays oop all night. He goes down by Put-in-Bay und picks a fuss. He doan' haf to, but dot vhas his vhay. If I vhas going to haf a fight I should put oudt my arms und shpeak:

"Hey, boys, knock der stuffing out of der middle of last week, or I cut your wages down one-half."

Dot Perry goes aboudt like a lamb, und he shmiles a leedle shmile, und all he says vhas:

"Boys I like you to whoop 'er oop for me."

Und dose boys vhas whoop, und der eagle vhas let loose, und der bell of Liberty rings out dot we vhas on top der whole crowd.—Detroit Free Press.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

Mulholland & Mack
EDITORS & PROPRIETORS.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY, JULY 27.....1889

All the people living along the lines of the transcontinental railroads in the United States have to pay higher freights and fares to compensate the loss sustained by the railroads through the diversion to Canadian railroads of the overland freight our own roads should have. The New England States are the only part of the whole United States not injured by the bad laws that work such injury and injustice to all other parts of the Nation. The wrong and injury to the Pacific Coast States and Territories by this unjust discrimination in favor of Canadian roads and against our own are greater than in any other part of the Union. If the American people were not the most law abiding of all Nations such bad legislation would not be so patiently endured. The wrong can be righted in Congress and the State of California has more interest than any any other in getting men into that body who have the will and ability to remove that evil.

During the past year and a half there has been a great rush of people to Seattle, Tacoma and other towns in Washington Territory and Oregon. Already it is very apparent that there is not enough good land within easy reach of those towns to support their rapid growth, nor even maintain their present population. A reaction has set in and it looks very much as though it were about to ebb. There is not near so much good farming land in that region as has been represented, and the climate is at times very disagreeable. The lumber business is not paying and consequently is declining in volume. Within a very short time the great bulk of immigration to the Pacific Coast will be flowing onto the vast areas of good land still uncultivated in California. There is no other part of the Union where so many advantages of soil and climate can be had by settlers.

No better service has been done in a long time in the cause of decency and public morals than the recent decision of Judge Works, of the Supreme Court, in the Sharon case. This righteous judgment will prevent the trumping up of claims to be a lawful wife, such as were made by the notorious woman who claimed to be the wife of William Sharon. It is common sense that no woman who lives in secret relations with a man should be recognized as his wife, without any other proof than her own assertion, or the presentation of a piece of paper of dubious import, and that bears strong marks of being a rank forgery. This was the only evidence offered by the Hill woman to prove that she was the lawful wife of Mr. Sharon. The sound judgment of Judge Works will for all time to come make similar attempts at fraud impossible.

Thousands of dollars have been expended upon mines, and then the mines been lost by the men who did the work and spent the money. No matter how much money may have been spent upon a mine it may be jumped and lost. Any mine that is worth prospecting is worth patenting. Then the title is good for all time, and though no work should be done upon the mine for years it is as safe as deeded land. It adds very much to the selling value of a mine when it is patented. At present in New York and other money centers mine speculators are very particular to ascertain if mines are patented before they can be induced to even look at them. It is evidence on the face of it that a mine is valuale when it is patented.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d-15tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the
KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH
Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

PIONEER BREWERY
INDEPENDENCE.

BEER ICE COLD.

The Bar is supplied with the Best of all kinds of Liquors and Cigars.

The Coolest Hall in the town. Call in and see what comfort you can have this hot weather.

PHILIP GEHRIG, PROPRIETOR

ANTONS SALOON
KEELER, CAL.

BEER, WINES,
LIQUORS and CIGARS.

All kinds of Fancy Drinks, including pure water. A comfortable and pleasant Hall.
JOHN C. ANTON Prop.

R. J. WHITTAKER
—PAINTER,—
BIG PINE, - - - - CAL.

HOUSE PAINTING,
SIGN WRITING,
PAPER HANGING,
GRAINING,
GILDING ON
WOOD AND GLASS.

Wagons Painted

The best of materials used and satisfaction guaranteed.

IF YOU WISH A GOOD REVOLVER PURCHASE ONE OF SMITH & WESSON'S

Finest small arms ever manufactured and the first choice of all experts. In calibres 32, 38 and 44-100. Single or double action, Safety Hammerless and Target models. Best quality wrought steel, carefully inspected for workmanship and stock. Unrivaled for finish, durability and accuracy. Do not be deceived by cheap malleable iron imitations often sold for the genuine article. They are unreliable and dangerous. The Smith & Wesson Revolvers are stamped upon the barrels with firm's name, address and dates of patents, and are guaranteed perfect. Insist upon having them, and if your dealer cannot supply you, an order sent to address below will receive prompt attention. Descriptive catalogue and prices upon application.
SMITH & WESSON,
Springfield, Mass.

Ranch for Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I offer my ranch for sale, consisting of 320 acres. Situated about three miles from Independence in a southeasterly direction. It is nearly all under fence. There is about 30 acres of orchard and vineyard, a portion of which is bearing. Undisputed water right. For price apply on the ranch to
J. W. SYMMES.
Independence, Cal., June 13, 1889.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA

BELL'S
Flouring Mills,
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.
Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements o our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully
Equal to the Best.
Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.
A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.,
Offers his professional services to the people o Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence o Capt. Andrew Clark's.

THIRD
ANNUAL FAIR
Agricultural District
No. 18.
STATE OF CALIFORNIA.
Composed Of the Counties of
ALPINE, MONO & INYO.
TO BE HELD AT
Independence
Commencing Tuesday, September 24th, and Continuing Four Days.

A. R. CONKLIN.....President.
C. MULHOLLAND.....Secretary.
O. I. MAIRS.....Treasurer.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

A. R. CONKLIN, JOHN SHEPHERD,
A. W. EIBESHUTZ, F. McIVER,
W. K. MILLER, E. ROBINSON,
J. S. GORMAN, W. S. ENOS.

First Department.

In this department the same animal shall not be entered more than once, except in sweepstakes or as a member of a family exhibited with its sire or dam. Any stallion, mare, gelding or colt competing in a race will not be excluded from competing for premiums in their respective classes.

CLASS I.
THOROUGHBRED HORSES.

Best stallion	$25 00
Second best stallion	20 00

CLASS II
STANDARD TROTTERS.

Best Stallion, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Stallion, 2 year old	15 00
Best stallion, 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt under 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and colt	15 00

CLASS III.
ROADSTERS.

Best Roadster, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Roadster, 2 year old	15 00
Best roadster team driven to buggy	25 00

Will have to be shown to harness.

CLASS IV.
HORSES OF ALL WORK.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best stallion 2 years old	15 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt	10 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upwards	20 00
Best mare, 2 years old	15 00
Best mare, 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and family, not less than three colts	25 00

CLASS V.
DRAFT HORSES.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	$25 00
Best stallion 2 years old	20 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best mare and colt	20 00
Best matched team	20 00
Best mare and 3 colts	20 00

CLASS V.
TEAMS.

Best matched carriage team	20 00
Best matched buggy team	20 00

CLASS VII.
SADDLE ANIMALS.

Best, any age	20 00
Second best	15 00

CLASS VIII.
SWEEPSTAKES.

Best stallion, any breed or age	25 00
Best mare, any breed or age	25 00

CLASS IX.
JACKS.

Best Jack, 2 years old and upward	25 00
Best Jack 1 year old	15 00

CLASS X.
MULES.

Best span owned by one person, 3 years or over	15 00
Best span under 3 years	10 00

CLASS XI.
CATTLE—BULLS.

Best bull, any breed 3 years old and upward	30 00
Best bull, any breed, 2 years old	25 00
Best bull, any breed, 1 year old	20 00

CLASS XII.
COWS.

Best cow, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best cow, 2 years old	15 00
Best cow and 1 calf	15 00
Best cow and 2 calves	15 00
Best milch cow, quart and pint of milk	20 00

CLASS XIII.
SHEEP.

Best display of sheep	15 00

CLASS XIV.
GOATS.

Best display of Angord goats	20 00

CLASS XV.
SWINE.

Best display of hogs	15 00
Best sow and litter of four pigs	10 00

CLASS XVI.
POULTRY ETC.

Best display of fowls, any age or breed	10 00
Second best	8 00
Best pair of bronze turkeys	5 00

Second Department.

All products exhibited in this Department must have been produced in Nevada, or in California east of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and by the exhibitor

CLASS I.
AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best 100 pounds of flour	$ 5 00
Best 100 pounds of wheat	5 00
Best 100 pounds of barley	5 00
Best 100 pounds of oats	5 00
Best 100 pounds of rye	5 00
Best 100 pounds of corn shelled	5 00
Best 50 pounds of alfalfa seed	5 00
Best bale of timothy hay	5 00
Best bale of alfalfa hay	5 00
Display of Agricultural Products	20 00
Second Best	15 00

CLASS II.
VEGETABLES, ROOTS, ETC.

Best 10 pounds of sweet potatoes	2 50
50 pounds of Early Rose potatoes	2 50
100 pounds any variety of potatoes	3 00
20 pounds of parsnips	2 50
20 pounds of carrots	2 50
20 pounds of turnips	2 50
20 pounds of beets, any variety	2 50
20 pounds of tomatoes, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cabbage, any variety	2 50
50 pounds of onions, any variety	2 50
1 doz. squash, any variety	2 50
sample of peppers, any variety	2 50
½ doz. watermelons, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cucumbers, any variety	2 50
½ doz. cantaloupes, any variety	2 50
10 pounds of white beans	2 50
10 pounds of pink beans	2 50
10 pounds garden peas, any variety	2 50
Display of vegetables in one lot	5 00

CLASS III.
DAIRY AND FARM PRODUCE.

Best 10 pounds of butter in rolls	$ 3 00
Second best	2 00
Best jar of butter, 20 pounds, 3 months old	5 00
single cheese any weight	5 00
10 pounds of lard	2 00
display of honey	5 00
Apiary display	10 00
display of bread, Chimaman made excluded	3 00
display of cakes	5 00
variety of fruit in jars	10 00
Second best	5 00
Best variety of jellies	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of preserves	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of pickles	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best sample of 50 lbs. each of hams and bacon	10 00

Third Department.

CLASS I.
HORTICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best display of apples	$ 7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display pears	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display peaches	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of plums	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of quinces	5 00
display of grapes of different varieties	5 00
½ doz. bottles of wine	5 00
display of wine grapes	5 00
display of raisin grapes	5 00
display of raisins made in the District	7 50
display of prunes	5 00
display of dried fruits	7 00
Second best	5 00
Best display of grapes and wine made from the same grapes, in variety	10 00
display of all kinds of fruit—a collection	20 00

Fourth Department.

CLASS I.
ARTISTIC.

Best oil painting done by resident of district	10 00
Second best	7 50
Best crayon drawing	10 00
On satin and Japanese tablets	10 00
Collection of paintings by any A list	10 00

Fifth Department,

CLASS I.
NEEDLE AND OTHER WORK.

Handsomest pillow shams, $5 00
Best and handsomest patchwork quilt, $5 00
Fest crochet Worked quilt, $5 00
Handsomest crazy quilt, $5 00
Handsomest knitted quilt, $5 00
Handsomest sofa cushion, $5 00
Handsomest set of tidies for sofa, $5 00
Best embroidered lady's dress, $5 00
child's dress, $5 00
ottoman cover, $5 00
table cover, 4 corners, $5 00
scarf, two ends, $5 00
pair lambrequin, $5 00
wall panel, or banner, $5 00
silk or flannel, $5 00
on linen, $5 00
Kensington crewel or wool $5 00
toilet set, three or more pieces, $5
lace work, hand made, $5 darned net, three or more pieces, $5
crochet shawl, $5
hand painted table scarf, $5
hearth rug, $3
Handsomest and best made dress for lady, $5
Best display hand knit work, $5
Best display of fancy articles, $10
display of Spanish needle work, $5
Best and greatest variety of crochet work, $10
hand knit stockings, $3

JUVENILE.

calico dress made by girl under 14, $5
hand sewing, not less than 4 pieces, by girl under sixteen, $5
crochet work by girl under 14, $5
patchwork quilt by girl under 14, $5
hand made shirt by girl under 14, $3
display of hair work, $5

Sixth Department.

CLASS I.
MINERALS.

Best Cabinet of minerals	$25
Collection of curious from District	15
display of silver ore	10
gold ore	10
silver lead ore	10
nugget of gold	5

In all exhibits of animals for premiums, other things being equal, blooded stock will be preferred.

All articles included in the above list—except the first department—to be on exhibition at the Pavilion on the second day and remain during the fair.

Special premiums will be offered for articles exhibited which are not included in the above List.

All entires to be made not later than 6 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding their exhibition. All stock and articles to be exhibited must be on the ground at 9:30 a. m. on the day intended for their exhibition. No animal to leave its stall between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. of the day of exhibition without permission of the Park Director. Exhibition will take place at 10 a. m. of each day and close at 4 p. m., with an intermission for lunch.

Speed Programme.

TUESDAY.

TROTTING—Free for all, mile, 2 in 3, mile heats. Purse, $200.

THURSDAY.

RUNNING—One mile, 2 in 3, free for all. Purse, $200.

FRIDAY.

TROTTING—Double team, free for all, best 2 in 3 heats 1 mile each, entryman to own the team. Purse, $100.

In all the above races three to enter and two to start. Entrance, 10 per cent of purse.

All entries for races must be made on or before 12 o'clock M. of the day preceding the race. This rule will be strictly adhered to. No exception will be made.

Other races will be given by the citizens under the control and management of the Association, of which notice will be given.

All exhibitions of stock will take place on the race track at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

California State Agricultural Society rules to govern running races; National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races.

ADMISSION:

To stock ground and pavilion, each	$ 50
Single Season Ticket	2 50
Membership Ticket, admitting member, wife and minor children	5 00
Life membership	30 00

C. MULHOLLAND, Secretary. A. R. CONKLIN, President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.
WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and
Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 12th
"	February 9th
"	March 16th
"	April 13th
"	May 11th
"	June 8th
"	July 12th
"	August 10th
"	September 7th
"	October 5th
"	November 2nd
"	December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

Independence Hotel.
Independence - - Cal:
V. G. THOMPSON, Lessee.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM.
APARTMENTS.
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.
Daily Bus To and From The Cars.
1-26

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.
Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—PIANOS
& ORGANS
If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to
Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAI
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n476tf

Sulphur & Borax Baths
AT SODA SPRINGS, NEVADA
On the line of the Carson & Colorado Railroad
These valuable Springs offer special
INDUCEMENT TO INVALIDS
THE WATER CONTAINS
SULPHUR, MAGNESIA AND BORAX.
And Is Very Strengthening and Cleansing
When used for bathing purposes.
THE BATH HOUSES HAVE BEEN REBUILT,
—And a large—
SWIMMING : BATH
Added, where those wishing to do so can take an invigorating plunge.
Excellent Accommodations,
—AND—
Board by the Day, Week, or the Month
MARTIN BRAZZANOVICH Pr

M. A. NEWMARK
& Co.
SUCCESSORS TO H. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE
GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES,
CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

A NEW DEAL!
BISHOP CREEK
Livery. Feed & Sale
Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.
Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

CROCKER'S HOTEL.
BIG PINE - CAL.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
CROCKER BROS., Props.
sep1-tf

NORMAN
HOUSE,
Independence, - - Cal.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R
TAKING EFFECT
Sunday, May 11th, 1889.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11 00 a. m.	5 50 p. m.
Dayton	11 30 a. m.	5 10 p. m.
Wabuska	1 25 a. m.	3 10 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 05 p. m.	11 25 a. m.
Luning	6 25 p. m.	10 05 a. m.
Soda Springs	7 35 p. m.	9 05 a. m.
Belleville	8 45 p. m.	7 45 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 9 20 p. m.	Lv. 7 10 a. m.
	No. 3.	No. 4.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville	8 10 a. m.	5 25 p. m.
Benton	11 40 a. m.	1 35 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1 50p. m.	11 00 a. m.
Alvord	2. 5 p. m.	10 00 a. m.
Independence	4 10 p. m.	8 30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5 00 p. m.	7 40 a. m.
Keeler	Ar. 5 45 p. m.	Lv. 7 00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections.

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Granteville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.
Customers supplied on all points
Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law.
Independence, Cal.
Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.
FORBES & TOBEY,
HAWTHORNE, NEV.,
—DEALERS IN—
LUMBER
OF ALL KINDS.
DOORS,
SHINGLES,
SASH AND BLINDS.
LATH,
RUSTIC
MOULDINGS,
DRESSED LUMBER.
Matched and Dressed
Flooring.
sep1 11-tf

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of inventive progress is a method and system of work that can be performed all over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work; either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will start you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. GRAND OUTFIT FREE. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Maine

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, JULY 27.....1889

BORN.

MEREDITH—At Big Pine, July 19th, 1889, to Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Meredith a daughter.

Fred. Burckhardt, was up from Lone Pine on Sunday.

Mr. C. Meysan, of Lone Pine, was in town last Saturday.

Mr. Israel Luce returned to the Marble works last Wednesday.

Mr. G. Sanger, of Alvord, has returned home from Bakersfield.

Mr. H. M. Yerington made a short visit to Independence last Thursday.

Fred. Smith returned to Independence this week after an absence of six years.

Mr. H. B. Boland of Cerro Gordo was at Independence a few days this week.

Orders for fruit are coming to Mr. J. W. Symmes much faster than he can fill them.

The fishing at Kern River is reported to be better this year than ever known before.

Mr. W. H. Russell came down from Benton at the beginning of the week to look after mining interests.

Mr. J. Frankenburg arrived here on Monday from San Francisco and remained in town several days.

Rev. E. McEvers will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine at 11 o'clock a. m. and at Independence at 7:30 p. m.

A. D. Gilbert returned from Sacramento on Wednesday. He was accompanied by Wm. Campbell, of Reno.

Mr. A. C. Harvey of Lone Pine, has ripe peaches, nectarines and other fruit, and will fill all orders promptly.

White Smith says his wheat crop along Black Rock slough will average detween twenty-five and thirty bushels per acre.

John Baxter has cut about fifty acres of wheat at Independence that will go about a ton, or over thirty-three bushels per adre.

It is reported that Mr. Luce has made arrangements to set up and run marble saws in a quartz mill, on the Carson River.

It is announced that the Senate Committee on arid lands will visit Los Angeles and Southern California before going to the northern part of the State.

Mr. S. H. Bigland, of San Francisco, accompanied by his two daughters, Misses Edith and Maud Bigland, were guests at the Norman House during the week.

Rev. E. McEvers will not move to Bishop sooner than about five weeks hence. Rev. J. H. De La Matyr will not be ready to come to Independence before that time.

The yield of alfalfa on Mr. Hunter's farm at Georges Creek is heavier than any grown on the place before since he took it. The crop has deen improving every year.

W. J. Lake is recovering finely from his severe hurts. The broken leg is doing well and the severe cuts are healing rapidly. He is at the Norman House under the medical care of Mrs. Dr. Woodin.

Mr. Ed. Holbert starts for San Francisco this morning on his way home to New York via Portland, Oregon. Mr. Holbert will ever hold in grateful remembrance the many friends who rendered his stay here so pleasant.

An election is about to be held in Los Angeles on a proposition to issue bonds to to the amount of $1,180,000 for building sewers for the City. The people of Los Angeles are very public spirited in improving their city.

Bill Clough, a well known old timer, died near Rubicon Springs, Nevada, a few days ago. The body was brought to the Carson and Colorado and sent to friends for interment. Deceased was engaged many years in teaming, and was up till the time of his death.

The Australian lady-bug imported to Los Angeles is reported to be multiplying with wonderful rapidity and to be making a clean sweep of the scale-bug. Orange orchards are already said to be showing great improvement, and the trees have beauty and vigor such as has not been known since the scale pest infected them. Orange growers are encouraged and the business will increase with greater rapidity than ever.

About three years ago thousands of acres of land in Owens Valley were located under the Desert Land Act, by speculators. These parties expected that the boom then prevalent all over the State would rapidly increase the value of the lands, and that they would realize large profit on their locations. These expectations have not been fulfilled; many of the locations are now forfeited, and other parties are relocating the lands.

Mr. W. I. Hollingsworth, of Los Angeles, is making a trip through Owens Valley. He represents one of the largest houses in the State, that of S. W. Luitweiler. Carriages, wagons, farm machinery and implements, of all kinds; barb wire, windmills, ditching machines, all these and many other things, are dealt in by this House. Mr. Hollingsworth is making a close canvass of the Valley; everybody who needs anything in his line may be sure of fair and liberal treatment.

Sheriff Eldred has kind words to say of his prisoner, W. T. C. Elliott, now under sentence of death for the murder of John B. White. The Sheriff says Elliott is well conducted, and gives as little trouble as could be expected. During the past weeks of very hot weather Elliott's health has suffered; the Sheriff does all in his power to make his charge as comfortable as possible, but the cells of the jail are so small and close than no one can be confined there without injury to health. The case of Elliott is still pending before the Supreme Court on appeal.

Staandard—Bulwer.

The Standard-Bulwer suit is dragging its way along, the Bulwer having an array of witnesses, who are undergoing a heavy cross-examination by Attorney Reddy, of the Standard, some of the knowing ones being kept on the rack all day. At the rate it has progressed this week we may look for its continuance two or three weeks longer. Yesterday a recess had to be taken, owing to the sudden illness of M. M. Waltze, one of the jury. Captain Kelly completed giving his testimony this morning, when ex-Superintendent took the stand for the Bulwer. This is the 20th day of the trial.—Chronicle-Union.

An Argonaut Romance.

There appears to be no end to the tragedies and romance of the argonauts of the Pacific Coast. Young men left homes and loving hearts behind, and in their pride of strength, with joyous hearts, set out for the Golden West, confident of bringing back with them fortunes, that would secure to them and their loved ones, all the enjoyments of life. Hundreds of these young men were as completely lost to their relatives and friends as if they had suddenly sunk in mid-ocean and were never heard of more. Now those who loved them are old and gray, but the love lives on.

"The fount that first burst frae their hearts still travels on its way,
And channels deeper as it runs, the love o' life's young day."

Here is a letter, evidently written by a loving sister, but her heart in old age is still filled with love for her lost brother. Perhaps some one may read this who may know something of the missing man.

ST. LOUIS, MO., July 11, 1889.

EDITOR INYO INDEPENDENT:—Sir:—In glancing over the Globe-Democrat of this city, I saw an article headed "Gold in Death Valley"; it was copied from your paper. Now my object in addressing you is this; to make inquiries about this Death Valley and how or why it was so named. I will explain why this information is asked. About the year 1848 or '49 there moved to California from Iowa one Sheldon Death, son of James Death, of the above named State. After reaching California he secured several mining claims and had them worked. It is now 25 or 30 years since his family or any of his relatives have heard anything about him. Many iquiries were made about him, but no satisfactory answers were ever returned. Now seeing Death Valley named in the article from your paper, it occurred to me that it might have been named after Sheldon Death. If you will be kind enough after making diligent inquiry, to answer giving me all the information and enlightenment in regard to him and everything concerning him in full, I would certainly feel under much deep obligation, and will render you many, many thanks. If yet living Sheldon Death is quite aged, and may be very infirm; but nevertheless his relatives are much desirous of hearing about him and seeing him. If he is living will you please give him this letter and ask him to write, or if unable to do so have some one write for him. I will await your answer with much anxiety. Enclosed please find stamp for answer.

Yours with respect,
MRS. T. A. DEATH CHAPMAN.
No. 2404 North Broadway St. Louis Mo.

It may excite a smile to note the simplicity of the writer of this letter, in thinking that it can be handed to a man who disappeared thirty years ago in California; but no one will smile at the love and faith still strong in the heart of a sister—presumably—after all those years. We hope some one may see the letter who can tell the sister what became of the brother. The letter of this correspondent suggests that there are yet people of mature years in the United States, who do not know that Death Valley was so named, because a large party of emigrants perished there of heat and want of water. A large company left the usual route of travel when crossing Utah in 1851 and attempted to reach Southern California. They got into this terrible valley, that lies far below the sea level, and all perished miserably, except a very few. Ever since then the valley has been known by its ghostly name.

Two Kinds of Speculation.

In marked contrast to others who located lands in Owens Valley about the same time is the action of parties who located land on the east side of the Owens River from Independence southward. These men went to work in good faith and are building one of the finest irrigating canals in the State. Already tracts of land are cleared, irrigated and are growing grain, fruit trees and vines. This enterprise has already made a large amount of taxable property; in addition to many thousands of dollars of hard coin expended amongst us for labor and supplies of all kinds. These are the speculators who bring prosperity to a country, they develop its resources and encourage other enterprises. Locating lands and holding them without doing anything to improve them is a hindrance and injury to all settlers in localities where it is practiced. The men who have done, and are doing, most for the development of Owens Valley are they who were trained to enterprise, energy and perseverance, and who learned to have faith in labor and in themselves in the mining enterprises of Nevada. The Comstock made San Francisco, and to the men of the Comstock it is chiefly due that any improvements have been made and are making in Owens Valley. A very few years more will see twenty thousand acres or more of vineyards, orchards and green fields, and hundreds of comfortable homes, along the line of the Eastside Canal and this grand result will be due to the men of Virginia, Carson and Reno. But for these men that great tract would have lain for untold years a sagebrush desert. That the men who had the courage to venture their money in this enterprise will gain a handsome reward is now certain; but no matter how great it may be it will be honestly earned and nobly deserved.

Laudable Enterprise.

One of the prettiest places in the valley is the ranch owned by Mrs. McCall, at Lone Pine. The farm is about two miles south of the town, on the warm foothill slope. On the east of the dwelling is a vineyard of old bearing vines, and an orchard surrounds the house. The residence resembles nothing so much as a large arbor, covered as it is with grape vines, and a cooler and pleasanter place in summer could not be imagined. A considerable portion of the ranch is seeded to alfalfa, which is now nearly ready for the second cutting. The most valuable improvement, however, is an extensive orchard of young trees set out last spring, most of them winter apples. The soil is a warm, sandy loam, and the trees all look thrifty. A large vineyard was set out at the same time, which is doing well. In a few years the vineyard and orchard will be bearing and the value cannot be over estimated. It is just such improvements as these that should be made throughout the county, and when they shall be completed Owens Valley will take the important place it should in the great future of Southern California.

Syrup of Figs.

Produced from the laxative and nutricious juice of California figs, combined with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most benificial to the human system, acts gently, on the kidneys. lives and bowels, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds and headaches, and curing habitual constipation.

Joe. McClune, at one time foreman of the Northern Belle mine at Candelaria, died recently ar Cuyamaca, San Diego County. A few days before his death he had been bitten by a rattlesnake, and drank a good deal of whiskey to counteract the poison. Perhaps the whiskey was as fatal as the snake poison.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

Nevada Mission Conference.

From Rev. E. McEvers, Secretary of the Nevada Mission Conference, we have obtained some items of interest concerning the business transacted at the Annual Conference in Carson. The session—the 25th opened on the morning of the 18th inst., and the Conference continued to hold daily sessions until Monday noon last, Sunday excepted. Bishop D. A. Goodsell, D. D., presided, and Rev. E. McEvers was reelected Secretary. Every minister employed in the vast field covered by the Mission was present—an occurrence very unusual. Rev. George W. De La Matyr, owing to family affliction, resigned the office of Mission Superintendent, which he has held for five consecutive years. A resolution containing expressions of highest esteem for the retiring Superintendent were unanimously passed, and a gold watch, as a substantial testimonial, has been ordered by the ministers. Mr. De La Matyr has settled in this valley, at Bishop.

Two have died during the Conference year just closed; Rev. Warren Nims, the veteran Secretary, and Rev. J. C. Ambrose, who had come from Michigan to Winnemucca, Nevada. Rev. C. L. Logan who resigned the Principalship of Inyo Academy to complete his course of study for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, yielded to the earnest entreaties of the brethren and advice of the Bishop and consented to preach in the Mission this year.

Reports from the preachers who have been laboring in the agricultural districts of Nevada and Northern California showed that the finances had suffered materially by reason of the drouth that has prevailed in those sections. Paradise Valley, Nevada, has suffered most. On large ranches there that in former years produced thousands of tons of hay, not a ton has been cut.

Considerable interest in Christian education was manifested, and a resolution authorizing the establishment of two schools of higher grade, similar to our Inyo Academy, at other points in the Mission was passed. Among the many reports of Committees adopted those on Education, Sabbath Observance, Indian Affairs and Temperance were very important and pointed in their resolutions.

Following are the appointments for the charges from Reno south:

Reno, R. H. Bready.
Virginia City, J. A. Bready.
Carson, C. L. Logan.
Genoa, J. Crossman.
Colevll, H. Johnston.
Mason Valley, T. E. Sisson.
Bodie and Bridgeport, S. W. Albone.
Bishop, E. McEvers.
Independence, J. H. De La Matyr.
Financial Agent of Inyo Academy, G. W. De La Matyr.
Superintendent of the Mission, E. W. Van Deventer.

The New Railroads.

A great consolidation of railroads centering in Salt Lake City has been effected. Commenting on the effect of this the Los Angeles Herald says: It will thus be seen that the connection of Los Angeles with the great Union Pacific system at Salt Lake is among the events that are near at hand. From other sources we obtained exact information on this subject, which we outlined in yesterday's Herald. That information is to the positive effect that work will be commenced on the extension to this city as soon as the hot term has moderated. The material for the road is on hand, and a contract for one hundred miles of construction has been let. The consolidation of all the roads mentioned, with their central point at Salt Lake, is a great gain for that city. The extension of the Utah Southern to Los Angeles, will place our city in direct communication with the Mormon capital, and bring us in railroad miles, nearer by several hundred to Salt Lake than San Francisco is. The road, with its connections, will open up tremendous advantages to our city and section. D. O. Mills has issued orders to extend his Carson and Colorado road from Keeler to a connection with the U. & L. A. railroad. We are on the eve of stirring times.

Big Pine Notes

Mrs. N. T. Piper returned to her home at Oasis on Wednesday.

Jas. Herod will leave in a few days for Bakersfield. He goes to engage in teaming.

Mrs. Ober will start for the City Saturday. She goes to place her little girl under medical treatment.

Geo. Hall is getting out two poles for the Inyo Marble Co. They are 35 feet long and 20 inches at butt, 16 at point.

Mrs. Sanger, S. J. McMurry and wife, Misses Laura McMurry and Minnie Collins, went to the camping ground on Big Pine on Thursday, for a stay of some weeks.

Mr. Conn's family has moved from Alvord to the old Campbell place. He will soon build a residence in town.

The sawmill has shut down, but will start up again in the near future.

H. H. Spear's team is hauling salt from Saline Valley to Owens Valley. He delivered a load at Round Valley last Monday. His next load will go to Lone Pine.

John Schober and his son Rudolph, are hauling borax to Alvord, from the works of Conn & Trudo in Saline Valley.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FINAL PRE-EMPTION PROOF.

D. S. No. 1312.

LAND OFFICE AT INDEPENDENCE, CAL. JULY 25, 1889.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of this office at Independence, on Septemb 7, 1889, viz: ANGELLO ROSSI, Pre-emption D. S. No. 1312, for the S E ¼ of Sec. 8, Tp. 15 S, R. 36 E, M. D. M.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: David S. Wells, John Strohmeyer, Relles Carrasco and Joseph Seely, all of Lone Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, Register.

LONE PINE

Blacksmith Shop.

R. C. Spear, Prop'r

—ALL WORK ON—

MINING TOOLS,
FARMING IMPLEMENTS
& FREIGHTING OUTFITS

—PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO—

HORSE SHOEING,
CARRIAGE WORK,
GENERAL REPAIRING.

All work attended to with neatness and despatch. Prices to suit the times.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE LARGEST STOCK

Of Farm Machinery, Wagons, Buggies & Carriages in Southern

CALIFORNIA.

MOLINE STEEL PLOWS,
WHITELY SOLID STEEL MOWERS,
OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS,
CHAMPION STEEL FRAME MOWERS,
FLYING DUTCHMAN AND CASADAY SULKY PLOWS,
THOMAS AND ROYAL SULKY RAKES,
HOGUE ORCHARD CULTIVATOR,
STICKLE STEEL HEADERS,
LUITWIELER VINEYARD CULTIVATOR,
J. I. CASE THRESHERS AND ENGINES,
PLANET JR. HORSE HOES,
STUDEBAKER FARM AND SPRING WAGONS,
DRILLS, SEEDERS AND GRINDERS,
CARRIAGES, BUGGIES AND BUCKBOARDS,
DISC HARROWS, SCALES, BALING WIRE,
BALE TIES, BARBED WIRE, WIRE MESH FENCING.

WRITE FOR CIRCULARS AND PRICES.

S. W. LUITWIELER,
NO. 100 LOS ANGELES ST. Los Angeles, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing.....$2 00 for Cash.

For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

THOMAS & HILL,
DEALERS IN
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.

First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR

—Is constantly supplied with the finest—

Wines, Liquors, & Cigaas.

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.

MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,

Address,
P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Inyo
Freighting Company.

REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge, No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

B. RHINE, N. G.
D. CROUGH, R. S.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence. Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

GENERAL MERC

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117
SMITH'S STORE
The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
495-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

LUMBER. LUMBER.
SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.
Surfaced lumber of all kinds.
All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sept 1tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Ca

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer In GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

MRS. COOPER'S NIECE.

"Philip," said old John Briggs to his son, "you are 28 years old today."

"So the family record says, father," responded the elegant young gentleman addressed; "I am disposed to place implicit reliance upon it."

"You have done nothing since you left college but kill time."

"It is only retaliation in advance, sir. Some day or other the old chap with the scalp lock and scythe will kill me."

"You are too flippant. Since your Aunt Priscilla left you $5,000 a year you have done nothing but spend the money. Your income ought to be enough for a single man, but you draw on me too."

"I'll try to draw on you less, sir."

"It is not that, Philip. You are quite welcome to a check now and then, for I know that you neither game nor revel, and I don't mind your horses, your club, your natural history craze, nor your luxurious tastes. But still you spend more money and get less for it than most young men of your age; have too much, in fact."

"I don't find it too much, sir. In fact, I was thinking what a graceful thing it would be if you were to double it, a mere trifle to a gentleman of your means. I have to use the most pitiful economy, I assure you."

"Oh, that's it, eh? Well, there is a mode to increase it very much. You have heard me speak of Philander Spriggs, of New York?"

"Money lender and skinflint? I have heard of him."

"Nonsense, Philip. He is quite worthy as well as a very wealthy man, and if he prefers to invest ready money in short loans what of that? I lend my money, or some of it, sometimes."

"But not a cent per cent."

"No matter. I don't propose that you shall borrow of him. He has an only child, a daughter, who will inherit all his vast property, just as you will mine."

"Does she shave notes, father?"

"Phil, be kind enough not to indulge in chaff. I have seen her and talked with her. She is young, handsome, well educated and has good taste, a society gentlewoman with domestic tastes."

"Well, father, you are not so old, and since you admire her so much, I see no reason why"——

"Stop your nonsense and listen. Spriggs and I had a talk over it when I was in New York, and we have concluded if you two come together, to clip in equally and settle a half million on you on your wedding day. With what you have you'll do well enough for a while."

"But," demurred Philip, "I don't like Spriggs for a father-in-law."

"Stuff! You don't marry Spriggs."

"And the name. Just think of it! Spr-iggs!"

"What of that? With marriage the name is changed. I don't think she'll gain much by it. Spriggs—Briggs. Six of one and a half-dozen of the other."

"I'd like to oblige you, father. I suppose I must marry some day, but it will be some one I love, and then, Philadelphia like, I insist on a woman of good family."

"See here, Phil," exclaimed the father, who by this time was at white heat, "you never knew me to break my word. I merely ask you to marry for your own good. I point out a wife in every way suitable to you. Marry to please me, and I will not only start you fairly in life now, but leave you all I have when I am gone. Marry to suit some foolish fancy of your own, and I'll—yes, I'll found an asylum for idiots. Now you understand me." And Briggs marched off, leaving his son to his meditations.

"If I stay here," said Philip to himself, "father and I will quarrel. Better give the dear old gentleman a chance to cool off. I'll ruralize a little."

That afternoon Philip packed a portmanteau, and with a fishing rod and mineral hammer, started off to Montgomery county, where an old college mate of his had married and settled, and whom he had long promised to visit. When he arrived there he learned that Boudinot and his wife had gone to Long Branch for the season, and their servants with them, the house being in charge of a caretaker. Philip heard of good fishing in a stream four miles off, and concluded to try it. He found lodgings at a farmhouse near the place, owned by a man named Seth Cooper.

But neither that day nor that week did he see any woman other than Mrs. Cooper or the hired girl.

As he sat upon the veranda one afternoon debating the matter, a wagon was driven up the lane and stopped at the door. Lightly out stepped a young woman in a neat traveling dress, and the driver followed her with a large trunk, under which he staggered, burly as he was. Mrs. Cooper came from the kitchen and exclaimed: "Why, it's Gwenny, declare!"

"You dear old Aunty Ruth!" said the newcomer, hugging and kissing the farmer's wife. "I came to have a good time for a month."

"And so you shall, my dear," was the hearty reply.

Philip took an ocular inventory of the looks, dress and manner of the newcomer as he took off his hat. "A sweet face and graceful figure and presentable anywhere," was his internal comment. "Here's luck. I shall not visit the Branch yet."

"You have a boarder, aunty," said the girl when upstairs with Mrs. Cooper.

"Yes; he's a Mr. Bee," said the other. "It don't look as if he had any call to work for his living, judging by his white hands and his fix ups, and he's plenty of money."

"Bee! Then he isn't a busy bee. But he's good looking; if he be agreeable he'll do for a walking stick."

Mrs. Cooper's mistake as to Philip was natural enough. When she had asked his name on his coming he had said in his airy way, "Philip B., at your service," and she had taken the sound of the initial for his surname. After she had called him Mr. Bee several times Philip saw the blunder, smiled at it, and, as the naval officers say, "made it so;" and when Gwenny came to the table she was introduced, "Miss Gwenny, Mr. Bee." As she was the niece he concluded her name to be Cooper, but as the farmer addressed her as Miss Gwenny and the farmer's wife as Gwenny, Philip chose the more respectful of the two.

As Philip was a gallant young gentleman, and as the young lady was charming in manner, he naturally paid her much attention. When a young man and young woman are thrown together under such circumstances, it is not unusual for a flirtation to follow. It is generally a foregone conclusion.

Philip soon learned that "Gwenny" was the diminutive of Gwenllian, and not of the more stilted Gwendoline, which interested him. Philip's mother had been a Powell, with Welsh blood in her veins, and bore the same name. This latter Gwenllian was a mystery to him. For the niece of a coarse farmer, for Cooper, though a worthy man, was the reverse of refined, she displayed unquestionably gentle manners. Then she showed a fair knowledge of any subject touched upon in conversation.

What was she, a teacher? She had not the look nor the way of the schoolma'am. A governess? Possibly. If so, in a good family. But her belongings were not of the second hand kind. Philip had a keen eye for female apparel. Her lace was of the rarest; her gloves were perfect and of the newest; her dresses were pretty in material and well fitting, though quiet in tone; and though she displayed little in the way of jewelry, the stone that sparkled on the head of a lace pin was unmistakably a diamond. She had been well cultured, and every word and action showed a purity that fitted her name.

On the other hand, Philip was as much a mystery to the young girl. He was a gentleman beyond doubt. But what was he doing there, a man of culture, refinement and æsthetic tastes, in that farm house? He had said nothing of the Boudinots, which would have explained it. With a little affectation of cynicism, which did not ill become him, the man was as clear as water, frank as air. But why did he loiter there with no apparent purpose? The girl did not at first deem she was the attraction, but it came to her after five weeks, and she grew shy, and her shyness for the last week of her stay infected Philip, who became shy, too, and lost all ease. At length she announced to Mrs. Cooper that she had to return home, and that her father, who was in Philadelphia visiting a friend there, would come for her on the following day, and his friend with him. Philip heard this with a depression that told him he had met his fate, and that it lay in the power of this girl to make him happy or miserable for life.

All the night that followed Philip lay and tossed restlessly. He could not sleep. He felt that his father would be as good as his word, but he would win a wife then or never. Near morning he arose, dressed, and sat at the window, until the sun showed itself. Then he slipped out of the house and strolled toward a glen a few yards off, intending to remain out until he heard the breakfast bell. It had been a favorite haunt of the two, and yet for the last few days both had avoided it. He made his way to a mossy rock which formed a sort of rustic seat, and there he saw Gwenny.

"Miss Gwenllian," he exclaimed.

She rose with a rather embarrassed air. "I rested badly last night, Mr. Bee, and I came out at daybreak. I have been here ever since. The morning air seems to refresh me."

"I have the same experience," he said. "I have rested badly, or rather have not rested at all. I"——

She looked up inquiringly, and at something she read in his eyes, dropped her own, while a flush overspread her face and neck.

"Gwenny!" he said desperately, and took her hand. The fingers trembled in his, but were not withdrawn. "Gwenny," he said, "we are to part today. Do you know that I love you dearly?"

"Do you, Philip?" she murmured, but did not look up.

"Gwenny," he said, "I have been sailing under false colors, but innocently enough. I have a way among my gentleman friends of using my initials, and so I am called among them P. B. or Mr. B. When your aunt asked my name I said 'Mr. B.,' and I did not care to undeceive her; but I desire no concealment from you, unless you do not care for me. Then we will part as we met; but I shall be a changed man."

He waited for a reply. There was a slight tightening of her fingers on his as she half whispered:

"You must know that I care for you, Philip."

"Now," said the exultant Philip, "you must let me speak to your father today."

"I fear you may find him rather obstinate," she said. "He sets an undue store by his daughter."

"I can satisfy him of my position in society and that I am able to maintain you. I have means of my own, and have—well, I might say had, great expectations; but my father, who is several times a millionaire, has taken it into his head to fit me with a wife. I prefer to choose one for myself. If you will be content to share what I have, Philip Briggs does not care for more."

"Briggs—Philip!" cried Gwenny, releasing herself from his grasp and looking at him wonderingly. "Is your father's name John?"

"Yes."

"And he lives in Philadelphia?"

"Yes."

Gwenny burst into a peal of silvery laughter. "Do not feel vexed, Philip," she said at length. "I am only laughing at the similarity of our positions. My father chose a husband for me in the same way, and it was to escape discussion of the matter that I took these few weeks' rustication. Mrs. Cooper is my old nurse, and I have called her 'aunty' from the time I could toddle around. She was married from our house. Her husband had very little money and father bought this farm and stocked it. But, oh! think, Philip dear, how your father and mine will chuckle! You are Philip Briggs, and I—I am Gwenllian Spriggs."—Boston Budget.

—"Why, Georgie," said a girl to her little brother, "I've just heard that you were whipped at school last week. I had no idea of it till ma told me a few minutes ago." "Hadn't you," responded George, and then he added, with an air of pride, "Why I knew it all the time."—Portland Advertiser.

—"My friend," said the solemn-looking man who was distributing slips of paper on the street corner, "do you ever go to church?" Every Sunday," replied the young man addressed. "I am an usher." "There is hope even for you, my young friend," said the solemn-looking man, with deep feeling, as he handed him a tract.

—A curious animal peculiar to Tasmania is the Tasmania devil. It is equal in size to the short-legged terrier. Its skin is nearly of equal thickness to that of a pig, and is covered with coarse, jet black hair. It is of the bear species and possesses a power of jaw scarcely inferior to that of the bull-dog.

INEFFECTUAL PERSUASION.

A Widower's Alluring Promises Prove Without the Least Effect.

The observer was going from New York to Hartford a few days ago. In front of him were seated a very stylish young woman and a man, the woman in a Connemara cloak and a small French capote trimmed with buttercups. The gentleman was little, fierce, and dark and middle-aged, and he, too, was in brave apparel. About half an hour after leaving Bridgeport the train slackened its speed. It is remarkable how loudly the voice rings out when the passenger has been talking against the rattle of the train. Only on this occasion the slacking up was slowly done, so slowly that our gentleman did not realize that with the utmost distinctness the following sentences fell on the ears of all the passengers within eight or ten seats:

"I may express myself awkwardly, but I hope I am understood?"

A modest bow from the buttercup capote.

"I have an excellent situation in the shoe and leather business and my habits are unexceptionable."

No response from the capote.

"I have a house in Harlem and my life is insured for eight thousand dollars in the Travelers." No response.

"Both my children have had all the infantile diseases." No response.

"I am an orphan." Still greater silence.

"And a member in good standing in the Babtist church." No reply.

"My first marriage was an uncongenial one." Silence.

"My wife shall never trouble herself with domestic cares; I marry her, not to be a housekeeper, but a companion." Stillness.

"My first wife's mother is no longer living."

As these sentences fell from his lips the suitor continued to raise his voice, and when the train came to a full stop we heard a cry:

"Adaline, I may be precipitate in saying so, but I adore you."

An uncontrollable burst of laughter from the innocent listeners awoke him to the situation, and Adaline the silent, spoke. It was in a whisper, but we saw that his alluring promises were without effect. Alas, a freight train had run of the track, and we were compelled to wait for an hour and a half. As usual, the car was crowded, but we did not know at what moment we should start for New York. It was an express train, and it did not stop till it reached the city. From 10:30 till one o'clock these unhappy persons sat side by side, speechless. It was a sight for men and angels.—Hartford Courant.

Pearson as an Inventor.

When little more than a boy the late Postmaster Pearson, of New York, invented a life-saving boat. He was poor and unable to raise the money necessary to have his invention patented. He went to a man of some means, who promised to take the boat in hand and see that it was properly put before the public in consideration of an interest in it. When young Pearson found that the product of his inventive genius was marketed he also discovered that by some legal trickery he had been wholly defrauded of his rights in it. The patent proved valuable and boats constructed upon its principle are now in use all along the coast, but Mr. Pearson never reached a cent of profit. At the centennial exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876 the original model of this life-saving boat was one of the things to be seen. As Mr. Pearson's eye fell upon it he remarked to the persons who were with him: "There is my boat."—N. Y. Evening Post.

—Some years ago an American sailor named Carl Benjamin was wrecked on one of the largest of the Caroline islands. He decided to make the island his home, as there was no work to do and plenty to eat. The natives, who are very good natured, took kindly to him, and have made him their king. He is a somewhat scholarly man, and is diligently teaching the natives English and the rudiments of civilized life. He has twenty wives and fifty children. Nothing, he says, would induce him to go back to his old home, Newburyport, Mass.

Dainty Fabrics For Summer.

The new summer dress fabrics have such an air of delicious daintiness, and are in such perfect accord with ribbons and laces, that each year they seem to offer new possibilities for artistic gowning. No garniture seems too fine for them, and the deft intermingling of color they suggest are the delight of the modiste. The beautiful soft-tinted silks show most attractive designs, and figure conspicuously among the bewildering exhibit of new textiles. A pretty costume has Directoire bodice and draperies of China silk, showing clusters of English hedge roses on a shimmering silvery ground of golden olive. An elaborate effect is obtained by using India silk for the accordion-plaited shirt, with panels and straight coat-tails in the back of the brocaded silk lined with vieux rose. A rich vest in this color laid in soft easy folds shows above and below the three large enameled buttons that close the Directoire bodice below the chest. The full sleeves open over a small puffed inner sleeve of vieux-rose crepe, shirred upon a band of pale-olive ribbon.—N. Y. Post.

—A train in Arizona was boarded by robbers, who went through the luckless passengers. One of them happened to be a Hebrew "drummer" from New York, who, when his turn came, with reluctance fished out $200, but rapidly took $4 from the pile and placed it in his vest pocket. "What do you mean by that?" asked the robber as he toyed with his revolver. Hurriedly came the answer: "Mine frent, you surely vould not refuse me two per zent discount on a strictly cash transaction like dis?"—Denver News.

THOROUGH PREPARATION.

The Golden Key of Business Success in the Hand of Youth.

It is the commonest thing in the world to hear men lament the lack of opportunites in early life, or the lack of appreciation of opportunities when they were to be had. No one gets to middle life amid the pressure of competition in the professions and in business to-day without seeing clearly that very much of a man's success depends on the thoroughness of his preparation. It is the fittest who survive, and the fittest in these days are men who have trained themselves to most effective work. The thorough-bred lawyer leaves behind him in the race his most brilliant compeer who has not the same complete preparation and the same thorough-going habits of work. The merchant who gradually emerges from the ranks of the comparatively successful, and takes his place among the eminently successful, is the man who has given himself the most thorough business training. The thoroughly equipped book-keeper is never long out of a situation. The men and women who are soonest discharged when times are unprosperous, and who are longest in getting reinstated, are the men and women who do their work fairly, but not eminently well. The man or woman who gives his or her work the stamp of superiority need never fear for the future. Such a person is always certain to find place and remuneration. It ought to be instilled into the mind of every boy who goes to any kind of business, that he is there to master every detail of it, to know it from beginning to end, so completely that when it comes into his hands he can reconstruct it on better lines. Thorough preparation, next to thorough integrity of character, is the golden key of success in the hand of youth.—Christian Union.

—Beware of him who meets with a friendly mien, and, in the midst of a cordial salutation, seeks to avoid your glance.—Lavater.

—I neber could have much confidence in de loud-talkin' pusson. It's de biggest tree dat's de most likely ter be holler.—Arkansaw Traveler.

—It is not work that kills men, it is worry. Work is healthful, worry is rust upon the blade. Fear secretes acids, but love and trust are sweet juices.

We Struck It Rich.

"Reigart and I struck it rich" was the remark that Dave Simmons made to a representative of the Saturday Evening Call last Wednesday, in the round-house of the T. P. & W. Railroad Co. Mr. Summons is a hostler and also foreman in the round-house of the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad Company. "I have invested money in the Lousiana State Lottery since 1875. In 1877 drew a prize of $20. In 1881 drew $10; last March $5, and at the last drawing held a one-twentieth of ticket 50,416, that drew the first capital prize of $300,000, and have received the amount, $15,000. The money was very acceptable for I recently bought a little house and lot, and was in debt for it $1,000, which I paid off on the 22d with a portion of the money that I received. I have always had faith in the Louisiana State Lottery and consider it honest, fair and square in its dealings. I induced Reigart to go in with me (we each held one-twentieth part of ticket No. 50,416,) have never missed but one drawing in the past two years, and expect to continue and induce all with whom I come in contact to do the same." Mr. Simmons is an honest, industrious workman, and is well liked by both his employers and fellow workmen.

We next called on Mr. William H. Reigart, at his cosy little home No. 1002 First street. "I have only bought but eight tickets," said he, "and drew $5 once before so that my $15,000 prize has only cost me $3. As to future investments I have not decided what I shall do although I have the money for two tickets now, and expect to buy five more for the June drawing. I gave my ticket to the American Express Company on Thursday, and on the Monday night following the money was here. I consider the drawings are conducted on the square and am ever ready to speak a good word for the Louisiana State Lottery." Mr. Reigart is an engineer has been in the employ of the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad Company for twenty-five years and was well fixed before as he owns four farms, and two houses and lots in this city.—Peoria (Ill.) Saturday Evening Call, June 1.

The country is flooded with poor imitations of "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut Smoking Tobacco."

Patron—This set of teeth you made for me is too big. Dentist, Yes, sir. Set down in the chair and I will enlarge your mouth a little.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment is the only sure cure for Blind, Bleeding or Itching Piles ever discovered. It never fails to cure old chronic cases of long standing.

Judge Coffinbury, Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have found by experience that Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment gives immediate relief."

Do not suffer an instant longer. Sold by William's Manufacturing Co., Props., Cleveland, Ohio. 50c & $1.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

A Walking Advertisement.

Every man that smokes "Seal of North Carolina" Plug Cut is a Walking advertisement of its merits. No tobacco ever made has had so many friends, among all classes of pipe smokers. A man that once smokes "Seal" cannot be very easily taken in with a poor imitation.

Bear in mind that the genuine "Seal of North Carolina" costs you no more than the many trashy plug cuts some dealers carry.

This is one of the saddest conditions of life, that experience is not transmissible. No man will learn from the suffering of another; he must suffer himself.

DISARMING AN UNSEEN FOE.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxilliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defense against which the enemy is powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

Make all the money you can and do all the good you can with it, remembering that he who lives for himself alone provides for the meanest man in creation.

A MOTHER'S LOVE SAVES HER TEN-YEAR OLD CHILD.

My little girl, ten years of age, had Bright's disease. Her ankles, feet and eyes were terribly swollen. Four of our best physicians attended her, but her life was despaired of. A mother's love surmount all difficulties, and I determined to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. Bright's disease! How happy I am that I determined upon this course—for one by one the well-known symptoms of the disease left her. Words fail to express my gratitude, and I cannot too earnestly recommend the Favorite Remedy. Her recovery was entirely due to the Favorite Remedy, which was the only medicine taken after her case was abandoned by the physicians—Mrs. Laura A. Kempton, West Rutland, Vermont

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

When the saloons are shut tight people are prevented from getting that way.

GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.

George Augustus Sala, the well-known English writer, on his last Australian trip, wrote as follows to The London Daily Telegraph:

"I especially have a pleasant remembrance of the ship's doctor—a very experienced maritime medico indeed, who tended me most kindly during a horrible spell of bronchitis and spasmodic asthma, provoked by the sea fog which had swooped down on us just after we had left San Francisco. But the doctor's prescriptions and the increasing warmth of the temperature as we neared the Tropics, and in particular, a couple of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS clapped on—one on the chest, and another between the shoulder blades—soon set me right."

A civic authority, lately on a visit to Paris, is credited with this apt paraphrase: "I came, I saw, I fell, (Eifel)."

WHY THEY LEAD.

Dr. Pierce's medicines outsell all others, because of their possessing such superior curative properties as to warrant their manufacturers in supplying them to the people (as they are doing through all druggists) on such conditions as no other medicines are sold under, viz: that they shall either benefit or cure the patient, or all money paid for them will be refunded. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is specific for catarrh in the head and all bronchial, throat and lung diseases, if taken in time and given a fair trial. Money will be refunded if it does not benefit or cure.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets—gently laxative or actively cathartic according to dose. 25 cents.

"Our national flower—which shall it be?" How would the sunflower do? The sons of their fathers are getting all the big offices.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittburgh, Pa.

A man of intellect is lost unless he unites energy of character to intellect; when we have the lantern of Diogenes we must have his staff.

Have you ever tried Dobbins' Electric Soap? It don't cost much for you to get one bar of your grocer, and see for yourself why it is praised by so many, after 24 years steady sale. Be sure to get no imitation. There are lots of them.

That within ourselves which our senses cannot grasp we call our soul; what in the universe we cannot comprehend we name God.

OREGON THE PARADISE OF FARMERS.

Mild, equable climate, certain and abundant crops. Best fruit, grain, grass and stock country in the world. Full information free. Address the Oregon Immigration Board, Portland, Oregon.

The fairest dream of our lives is that all life is but a dream, from which we shall somstime awaken to a real life.

Just think of it! $149.52 made in one week by an agent representing B. F. Johnson & Co., of Richmond, Va., and they have had many more parties traveling for them who did equally well, some a good deal better. If you need employment it would be a good thing to sit down and write them a line at once.

The reformer becomes a fanatic when he begins to use his emotions as a substitute for his reasoning faculty.

For Bronchial, Asthmatic, and Pulmonary Complaints, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" manifest remarkable curative properties. 25 cts. a box.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alumn. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK. CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

C. H. WEBB'S HEMONY.

If you want to be permanently cured of Rheumatism, Gout, or any disease of the blood, try WEBB'S HEMONY, 430 Farrell street, San Francisco.

$25 Reward for a Case it won't Cure.

None genuine without my signature on stopper of every bottle.

SEND FOR CIRCULARS.

DR. C. W. MOORE,
Consulting Physician,
Nucleus House, San Francisco.
CAN BE CONSULTED BY LETTER.

PACIFIC RECORD OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY; the Best Medical Journal on the Pacific Coast. C. W. MOORE, M. D., Editor and Proprietor, San Francisco, California.

MANLY COURAGE AND VIGOR RESTORED
HOW TO ACT! ADVICE FREE! Men suffering from Lost Vigor, Nervous Debility, Premature Decline, etc., resulting from indiscretions, excesses etc. cured without Stomach Drugging, by THE MARSTON TREATMENT. Sealed book sent free. Address, THE MARSTON CO., 19 Park Place, New York.

ST. JACOBS OIL FOR POULTRY.

CURES

Chicken Cholera and all Diseases of Poultry.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS.—Mix a pill of bread or dough saturated with St. Jacobs Oil. If the fowl cannot swallow force it down the throat. Mix some corn-meal dough with the Oil. Give nothing else. They will finally eat and be cured.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers Everywhere.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM
PRICE 50 CENTS.
FOR
Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

FOR THE BLOOD!

Swift's Specific cured me of Cancer, which was hereditary, for my father died of Cancer. My case resisted all other treatment, in fact grew worse all the time. I left off all other remedies, and took S. S. S. which forced out the poison until my system was cleansed, when the Cancer healed, not even leaving a sign. My health since has been excellent.
MRS. LAURA E. DEEGAN,
Dawson, Ga., Sept. 26, '88.

Send for Treatise on Cancer and Blood Diseases; mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

CALIFORNIA FIREWORKS

We are prepared to supply the trade with a full line of Fireworks, Firecrackers, Flags, Balloons, Toy Pistols, Etc. Illustrated Catalogue furnished on application. A specialty of extra exhibition work. Correspondence solicited with Committees in charge of public celebrations.
CALIFORNIA FIREWORKS CO.,
12 and 14 Pine St., San Francisco, Cal.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

GENIS are coining money with our new book. Write for circulars. Distance no hindrance. Empyreal Pub. House, St. Paul, Minn.

A BIG SHOW

Smith's Cash Store, 418 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

H. BERNHARD & CO., Manufacturers of Wo len and Hair Mattresses of every description. 154 New Montgomery st. S. F.

KNABE PIANOS
It is a fact universally conceded that the KNABE surpasses all other instruments.
A. L. BANCROFT & CO., 152 Post street, S. F.

WELL DRILLS
FOR EVERY PURPOSE.
Sold on Trial!
Investment small, profits large. Send 20c for mailing large illustrated Catalogue with full particulars. Manufactured by F. C. AUSTIN MANF'G. CO., Carpenter St. & Carroll ave., Chicago, Ill.

SINGERS who have used Piso's Cure for Consumption say it is BEST OF ALL. Sold everywhere. 25c.

$5 to $8 a day Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

SURE. SAFE. SPEEDY.

PANAMA SPECIFIC will always relieve ladies. Pleasant to take. Guaranteed to succeed or money refunded. Once tried you will never be without it. By registered mail $1.50. Send postal note to Panama Specific Co., box 328, Oakland, Cal.

STEINWAY, KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roenish Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio. Trade Mark
I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease.
G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y.
We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction.
D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill.
$1.00. Sold by Druggists.

I CURE FITS!

I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office.
H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

Harvest Hands!

And all other kinds of Help furnished at short notice. Wire, Telephone or Mail your or ders to C. R. HANSEN & CO., Employment Agents, 110 Geary St., San Francisco, Cal. Telephone 485.

MAY TO BELL.

Dear Bell: I'll write you a short letter
To say I'm wonderfully better;
How much that means you ought to know,
Who saw me just one month ago—
Thin, nervous, fretful, white as chalk,
Almost too weak to breathe or talk;
Head throbbing, as if fit for breaking,
A weary, ever-present aching.

But now life seems a different thing:
I feel as glad as bird on wing!
I say, and fear no contradiction,
That Pierce's Favorite Prescription
Is grand! Why, I'd have died without it!
Ma thinks there's no mistake about it.
It's driven all my ills away:
Just come and see! Yours ever, MAY.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription imparts strength to the whole system. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Copyrighted, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

SIZE OF PELLETS
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets
THE ORIGINAL
LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
Purely Vegetable and Perfectly Harmless.
Unequaled as a Liver Pill. Smallest, cheapest, easiest to take. One tiny, Sugar-coated Pellet a Dose. Cures Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels. 25 cents, by druggists.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

SATURDAY.... AUGUST 3 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 8. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., AUGUST 3, 1889. WHOLE NO. 979.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 00
Three months	1 00
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

A WAR-SHIP'S STORY.

The Old Line-of Battle-Ship Vermont and the Services Rendered by Her.

The oldest jack-tar can recall many interesting experiences upon her long before and since she began her career as a receiving ship at the navy yard twenty-five years ago, where she now lies at the Cob Dock, girdled with great spars to keep ice and other floating obstructions from her sides. Bereft of spars and roofed over like a house she looks any thing but a frigate of the Lord Nelson class, like the famous Victory and the Temeraire. She is the last of the old ships of the line, and her triple tier of ports can be seen in no modern built ship. Some people have supposed that she served in the war of 1812, and there are many more who look upon her as one of the defenders in the Mexican war. But she really saw no service until the more recent Civil war.

She was built at the Charleston Navy Yard, and was intended to be the flagship of Commodore Perry's memorable expedition to Japan in 1852. But some thing happened and Perry took the Mississippi. The Government then lost interest in the Vermont and for nearly ten years she remained on the stocks unfinished. When the civil war broke out and every thing that could float was sought after, the Vermont was pushed forward and put into commission January 29, 1862. Her first service was to carry stores and supplies to the squadron off Port Royal, and it was the longest voyage ever made by any ship from Boston to Port Royal. The Vermont sailed from Boston on February 24, and when off Cape Cod was caught in a tempest which lasted three days. Her sails were carried away one after another until not so much as a ribbon was left. On the second day her rudder was wrenched off by the seas, and along with it went seven of the boats and three anchors. With no sails and no rudder the Vermont went along seaward, rolling and pitching like a great tub, until a drag could be got out astern and canvas be put on the vessel.

That was before the efficiency of oil to calm troubled waters had received much thought, and so badly did she throw herself in the sea that the chaplain had to be lashed to a gun while reading the brief burial service over the bodies of three men who had been killed by the plunging and lurching of the vessel.

The old vessel drifted in calms and was swept along by gales until she was pretty nearly over to the Azores, when the steamer Saxon, one of the two steam vessels sent by the Government to search for her, picked her up off these islands and furnished her with a new rudder and a suit of sails. She soon lost her new rudder, and on April 3 was picked up by the frigate Sabine, when a jury rudder was rigged for her and she reached Port Royal on April 13, having been forty-nine days at sea, thirty-eight of which she was without rudder or sails and twenty-three days without sunshine.

After that she served as flag-ship, store-ship, hospital-ship and prison-ship in the North Atlantic Squadron, "Bill" Perry, the king of the blockade-runners, having even been a prisoner on her. She began her present career of inactivity in 1864, and she now lies in a mud bed. A receiving ship is not the comprehensive word that might be used, but it is the naval term for such service. It is a sort of nautical boarding-house for newly-enlisted men while waiting to be detailed for sea-going vessels, and for those who have returned home at the expiration of their enlistment and are waiting to be paid off. A visit to the vessel will convince one that the country has not an absolute American navy, at least so far as the men are concerned, for on her decks will be found men of various nationalities, many who can hardly interpret an order given to them in English, or who can hardly understand each other when attempting to speak English, and certainly not when speaking in their own tongue. But when the training-school system has been fully developed a decided change will be brought about in this respect.

—N. Y. Tribune.

RAT-PIE FOR EPICURES.

The Flesh of the Barn Rodent Makes a Delicious Pastry.

Not only is the rat fastidious in its choice of food, but it affords a dainty food itself, in connection with which fact I have had some amusing experiences. Some years ago I mentioned incidentally in the course of a lecture that the Chinese who eat the rat habitually and the Parisians, who did so under compulsion, suffered no real hardship, as the flesh is not only nutritious, but really excelent and delicate food, far surpassing that of the rabbit. Being pressed by the audience for further explanation, I told that I spoke from practical experience, and that cold rat-pie (of course made from barn rats) was a delicacy worthy of any epicure's table.

Reports of the lecture—mostly exaggerated—were published in the leading newspapers, and copied into nearly every journal in the land. An avalanche of correspondence poured on me, and I was greatly amused with the different views of the writers. A few had summoned up courage to try the experiment, and were unanimous in their approbation. Many asked for details in the manufacture of the pie which would have taken up a whole cookery book if answered. Many more asked if I could kindly send them a ready-made pie, so that they might judge for themselves.—Pall Mall Gazette.

WESTERN TRAIN ROBBERS.

They Have a Confederate in a Coffin Who Is Converted Into a Real Corpse.

"Let me relate to you some of my early experiences," said Conductor Frye, of the Burlington, "when I was running baggage on the Union Pacific. It was back ten years ago. We were coming east from Ogden and at a small station a box supposed to contain a corpse was put in the express car, consigned to Lincoln, Neb. Bill Axley, now on the Santa Fe, was express messenger, and as we elevated the box into the car he remarked that it did not fit the coffin well, as he felt a reacting jar as the article was put in the car. There were two men fairly well dressed and showing no sign of suspicion, together with what we took to be an aged woman, who accompanied the remains. She was represented as being the mother of the deceased and the two men were the latter's brothers. The woman, or man, as she turned out to be, was anxious to remain with the corpse in the car. She also desired that her two sons might be by her side. This was against the rules and they were informed that transportation would only be allowed the corpse in the express car, and accordingly they agreed to take seats in a coach.

Just before the train pulled out Bill said to me that he thought the game was a concocted robbery and was determined to have the box hauled out and inspected before the train started. But what if it were a real corpse? The boys would have hooted Bill off the road for his cowardice. This I said to Bill, and he finally concluded to let the worst come, if it must. The conductor signalled the train to start and Bill jumped into his car and I got into mine, but the more I thought of the situation the more I found that Billy's suspicions were not unfounded. Finally, at the next station, we stopped to await a clear track, and, Bill not being in his accustomed place at the door-way of his car, I decided to ascertain where he was. At the door there sat Bill with a face as pale as a dead person, and with large drops of perspiration standing out on his forehead. I was about to laugh, but a sudden motion of his hand prompted me to refrain. Finally, he walked close to the door and with one eye on me and the other on the box, he said: "There's a man in that box alive, and I know it. You had better keep your eye on those other fellows or we're their game sure.'

I paused for a moment. I did not want to make a blunder by informing the conductor and being called a tenderfoot; but supposing that the box contains a live robber, there was the point. I meditated, and I finally said to Bill to watch further developments, but he refused, and said that if I did not come to his assistance he would call on somebody else. I saw that he was frightened, and he did not have much the better of me. Taking hold of the car-door I entered it, and we both stood and gazed at the box. It was sealed, and neither of us had a right to open it. I finally called the conductor and informed him of the case. "Yes," said he, "and I noticed that the old lady who is weeping in the coach back there has a ponderous foot for a woman." But we all agreed to await further developments, and I agreed to ride in the express car with Bill. We again pulled out, but we had not gone far before the bell rope was pulled and the train began to slacken up. At this juncture Bill did not rush to the door to see what was up, but set both eyes on the box. A moment of amazement and suddenly the cover of the box flew off and a heavily armed bandit attempted to rise, but Bill had him, and in an instant a ball went whizzing through the fellow's neck, and he fell over. "Guard the door!" shouted Bill, and the words had not fully escaped his lips when the individual in female attire appeared and was about to enter the car when I leveled my revolver and said: "Woman or man, throw up your hands or I'll shoot." In full range the individual could not do otherwise, and one of the hands while suspended clutched a fine specimen of firearms. I held the strange guest at the point of my revolver, and was surprised to see a little gray-haired man come out of the next coach with the two alleged brothers heavily shackled. The little man who subdued the two companions was a United States Marshal who was on board the train at the time. The conductor was covered and ordered to pull the bell rope, but before the train was fairly stopped the little officer had both men in irons. The supposed female turned out to be a man in female attire. The feigned corpse was converted into a real one and his companions were sentenced to the penitentiary for twenty-one years each and are now at Joliet, Ill. The victim of Bill's marksmanship was Utah Charlie, one of the most daring train robbers that ever infested the plains. We put the box and body off at the next station and they were disposed of in a manner which I never learned. Any way, Bill's temerity was the means of breaking up a band of train robbers that had terrorized the West, and his marksmanship sent Utah Charley to another home where he could not stay in a pine box long. Bill had about $35,000 in charge at the time, and after making that trip he turned over his keys and abandoned the service." — Omaha (Neb.) Bee.

—There are young men who can not hold a skein of yarn for their mothers without wincing, yet those very same young men will hold 125 pounds of a neighboring family for the best part of the night with a patience and docility that is truly phenomenal.—Texas Siftings.

Then the World Turned 'Round Again.

He entered a tobacco store on Grand River avenue with a handkerchief pressed to his jaw, and was at once an object of solicitude.

"I've been there," said number one, "and I can feel for you. Try peppermint essence."

"I always put on a bag of hot salt," said number two. "Have cured the worst kind of case inside of two hours."

"Bosh!" exclaimed number three, "electricity will stop that ache in two minutes. I'll never fool with any other remedy."

"Gentlemen," said number four, as he put his finger into his mouth to feel of an old snag, "there's nothing like laudanum for the toothache. It comes from an exposed nerve. Laudanum deadens the sensibility of the nerve. I've used it with success a hundred times."

"I never'd advise a man to waste time fooling around," said number five. "Let him go straight to the dentist and have it pulled out. It takes grit, of course, but in five minutes you are over it forever."

"I've had eleven pulled out," said number six, "and I'd sooner lose eleven more than suffer with toothache for one hour. I'll go with you, Smith."

"Where to?" innocently asked Smith, as he pocketed the handkerchief.

"To the dentist's. Haven't you got the toothache?"

"Oh, no. Every one of my molars is false. I always carry my handkerchief that way when thinking deeply. Much obliged, gents. What will you smoke—at your own expense?"—Detroit Free Press.

Not for Fish.

Between Greensboro' and Salisbury the locomotive broke down and we lay for three hours while repairs were being made. There was a small lake near by, and the colonel got out his fishing tackle, hunted up a frog for bait, and tried his luck. He fished that pond lengthways and sideways and up and down and across for two hours and a half, and he was still at it when a white man came through the woods and stopped and inquired:

"Had any luck?"

"Not a bit."

"Fishing for fish?"

"Of course."

"Just to pass the time?"

"Yes."

"Then it's all right."

"Suppose I wasn't fishing just to pass the time?"

"Then I'd feel it my duty to tell you that this lake was drained off last week and every blessed fish scooped out. This 'ere water came in from the last rain."—Detroit Free Press.

A Wasted Effort.

Adolph (much in love, but very near sighted)—Ah! she sees me coming and waves me a welcome.

Biddy (washing the window)—Phwat ails the dude on the outside? Shure he'll get some hot wather over him if he thrys mashin me.—Life.

A Joke Within a Joke.

Tagg—Isn't it detrimental to your health to write so many jokes?

Bragg (a humorist)—Oh, no, the readers don't know who writes them, you see.—Yankee Blade.

Concealing the Truth.

Miss Houler—And pray tell me truly, professor, what do you think of my voice?

Professor—Excusez moi, mademoiselle. I positiveelee could not be so incourteous.—Time.

Moral: Don't Eat Them.

One great drawback to life at Pittsburg is the fact that you can't tell whether you have peppered your egg or not until you have tasted it.—Time.

An Honest Man.

Claude—Did you ever cheat at cards?

Richard—No, I am near sighted.—The Epoch.

Children Cry for It.

A milk shake—Weaning the baby.—Lynn Item.

Not Enough to Get a Square Meal.

A round sum—a penny.—Lowell Courier.

A Possibility Might Arise.

A physician says: "Girls in feeble health should take a tramp through the woods or fields every day." But suppose a tramp should object to being taken through the woods or fields every day by girls in feeble health?—Binghamton Republican.

They All Do It.

Visitor at Kindergarten School—Children, your teacher has asked me to say a few words to you. How shall I begin?

Pupil on the Back Seat—Just as they all do—"when I was a boy."—Burlington Free Press.

THE GIRL BACHELOR.

She No Longer Boards, But Takes Rooms and Lives Without a Chaperon.

I was counting on my fingers last evening the girls I know in New York who have set up apartments or installed themselves in establishments of their own. I ran over the digits on one hand, and then of the other, and repeated the operation so often that I lost all track of my reckoning. The girl bachelor grows enterprising. She no longer boards, she makes a bachelor home. She takes rooms. She lives in them without a chaperon. Her conduct is unquestioned. There is no limit to the pluck and the independence of the young and unmarried and perfectly decorous and entirely delightful unmarried woman. She is no longer an unprotected female. She has found out that after all a girl's best protection is a girl. The last decade evolved a phrase. The present decade is now at work evolving another. Bachelor suites is established in the language. Maids' suites or Dorothy apartments, as somebody in conversation the other day christened them, are going to find place before long.

Yesterday I drank a cup of tea with brown-eyed Dolly. Dolly has a small fortune and is twenty-two. Her father died, her relations with her only relative, an aunt, were strained. The two did not thrive under the same rooftree. The kettle sings on the hearth most merrily since Dolly has hired a flat and a butler, and set up a buffet and receives calls on her own responsibility. Novel situation. Piquant experience. Delightful days. No surveillance and no "larkiness." Dolly is a lady and behaves like one. She is careful whom she entertains. She is as demure as a Puritan damsel, as jolly as a Parisian bohemienne. She plays at housekeeping most cheerfully.

Gray-eyed Dolly is a young wood carver. She supports herself by one of the newest occupations found practicable for women. She has three dainty rooms in the last place you would dream of, over a stable. Delightfully pretty rooms they are, where bric-a-brac picked up in all manner of odd places, summer sketches and winter studies, old plaster casts and new panels, inexpensive hangings with sudden flashes of color in scarlet ribbons, stained floors and Koula rugs make one forget that such things as Turkey carpets, silken divans, Louis XVI. chairs and old Sevres china were ever by anybody deemed desirable. Gray-eyed Dolly is wholly self-dependent. She has supported herself since she was fifteen. She tired of hall bedrooms. She doesn't like the dreary atmosphere of the average city boarding house. She does like her own little nest of a a stable home where she has a cat and an open fire and can follow the innocent inclinations of her own sweet will. I have known her when a caller went away to offer him a cigar. — N. Y. Letter.

A WELL-TRAINED OWL.

He Roars Like a Little Tiger When His Dignity is Ruffled.

My own bird is at liberty. This he uses to the very best of his ability, making the third member in our small house. He is by no means the least important, for he claims and receives the greatest attention at meal times. He steps from his perch on to the hand, sits on the place appointed for him, and chatters all the time it is in progress. Sometimes, by way of a change, he will run about inspecting all things; he is very swift on foot and most inquisitive. Very affectionate, too; he shows that plainly. He is about more in the day-time than in the evening or night, and he will sit in the full light of the sun. All through the hot summer of 1887 he has done so as a matter of choice.

His food consists of mice of all kinds, birds of the finch tribe, old and young. Starlings, blackbirds and thrushes he will not eat, nor insects such as chatters and others of a similar kind; he will not even look at them. It is not always possible to procure birds and mice for him; then he will content himself with tender, lean beef, quite fresh. He is so particular in that matter, though, that he will not eat fresh pork. He seldom drinks water, and never uses it for the purpose of washing, preferring to roll and scratch about in a lump of drift sand like a domestic fowl. In fine feather he now is, and he keeps himself beautifully clean! His legs are long, and he uses his toes and claws with the dexterity of a monkey; in fact, when at his little games he is more like a little monkey than an owl.

His conversation, kept up continually, is a croon and chatter, and when in high glee he will puff the feathers of his throat out and look intently at me with his bright yellow eyes and treat us with a solo sounding like the gobble of some unfortunate turkey. If I ask him as a particular favor to change that tune, he will give a succession of shrill barks like a terrier. He roars like a tiger when his dignity is ruffled, and squeaks like a pig. This does not occur very often, and when it does the fault is my own. It generally happens when he is introduced to strangers, which he hates. As a rule he is most amiable. If I wanted to cure a man of melancholy and never-smiling grief I would present him with a little owl, the Punchinello of his tribe.—Cornhill Magazine.

—It is stated that the smallest steam engine ever made was recently completed, after two years of labor, for the Paris exhibition. It is composed of 180 pieces of metal, is a shade under three-fifths of an inch in height, and weighs less than one-ninth of an ounce. A watchmaker made it.

DEVELOPMENT OF AFRICA.

How England Is Forcing a Large Trade—The Slave Traffic.

American schemes for the extension of trade with Africa have not met with that degree of success which the most sanguine had hoped for. Not many years ago a prominent New York merchant became quite enthusiastic respecting the prospects of Liberia, sending out sugar mills, encouraging coffee culture, and aiding in the deportation of American negroes, but the so-called "republic" now exists scarcely in name. In like manner a steamship project which for a time engaged the fostering interest of several New York gentlemen philanthropically inclined never took a tangible form and passed out of mind. But a line of sailing vessels from New York to Liberia has been maintained, and American exports of manufactured cotton to Africa through various channels form a considerable item. Meanwhile England is building up a flourishing trade on both sides of the continent, on the west coast and at Zanzibar. Trade with the colony of Lagos for the year 1887 amounted to $4,500,000, and it is calculated that the entire trade of great Britain with the west coast last year amounted to the approximate value of $25,000,000 of imports and $13,000,000 of exports, comparing well with some portions of India. At Zanzibar, up to the recent breaking out of hostilities, the whole coast was a continuous line of British Indian trading stations, and trading increased rapidly to $10,000,000, the greater part of this being in the hands of British subjects. "Unfortunately," as we are told by Archbishop Farrar, "this property attracted the greed of certain German adventurers," who made "bogus treaties," claimed vast tracts of country, and proceeded to take possession, despite the remonstrances of the Sultan. Furthermore, according to the authority just quoted, "the whole trade of the coast is in the hands of some 10,000 British subjects from India, including the ivory trade, copra, gum opal, india rubber, hide and grain trades. These British Indians have lent large sums of money to the Arab ivory caravans. They have also invested their profits in mortgages on the houses and plantations of the Arabs, feeling quite secure under the shadow of English justice. The British Indians have £500,000 of floating capital employed at this time in the ivory trade in the far interior, and unless some decisive measures are undertaken by the English Government this large sum must inevitably be lost." England appears to have become inextricably involved by joining in an agreement with Germany to maintain a blockade "to put down the slave trade," a feat somewhat difficult of accomplishment where every African and Arab trader is a slaveholder either in will or deed. Clearly enough, it would now appear the "development of Africa," whatever this may mean, has received a check from which there will be tardy recovery. It is surmised, however, that traders in Zanzibar, while postponing indefinitely the realization of hopes for the commercial subjugation of the interior lake regions accessible from this point may give a new impetus to the Congo Free State and to efforts to penetrate tropical Africa through the Soudan. The marvelous achievements of Livingstone's successor, Henry M. Stanley, of whom full advices have just come to hand, invest the subject with a new interest.—Iron Age.

HANNAH SNELL'S STORY.

A Soldier and a Marine and Never Discovered to Be a Woman.

Hannah Snell flourished in the reign of George II. Her grandfather was a soldier who fought at Malplaquet; she married early, her husband being a Dutch sailor, who maltreated and deserted her, leaving her with a baby, which died, whereupon Hannah appropriated a suit of her brother-in-law's clothes, and assuming his name, which was Thomas Grey, enlisting in General Gurse's regiment. After awhile she deserted, but subsequently re-enlisted in the navy as a marine, in which capacity she served in the East and West Indies. From her dexterity in washing and mending for the men, and from her being beardless, she acquired the nickname of "Miss Mollie;" but her bravery in action eventually caused her to be invested with the more honorable cognomen of "Hearty Jenny."

Being at last discharged from the service, during all which time her sex was undiscovered, Hannah Snell went on the stage, and appeared with much applause as Bill Bobstay, a sailor, and as Firelock, a grenadier. In consideration of the hardships she had undergone in the service of her country—which hardships comprised, among other tribulations, five hundred lashes that she got at the halberts, and an almost equally barbarous scourging at the gangway on board ship—Government awarded Hannah a pension of £20 ($100) a year, on the strength of which she took a public house in London, with the appropriate sign of "The Widow in Masquerade; or the Female Warrior.—From "Modern Amazons."

—An "Emperor William clock" has been made in Berlin. The case represents the old Emperor's palace. When the hour strikes the palace guard marches past, and William I., with his first great-grandson, now the little Crown Prince, appears at the historic corner window where he so often showed himself to his people.

ABOUT RATTLE-WEED.

The True Properties of the Plant Described by a Man of Experience.

I have been reading, with some degree of interest, the several articles which have appeared of late in regard to rattle-weed, and in some of them the writers seem to be very skeptical as regards its true properties, and although it may be a hopeless task to undertake to convince them to the contrary, I for one can say without hesitation that I am positively certain as to its effects on stock. I have had more or less experience with it for the last twenty-eight years, with sheep, cattle and horses, some of which I gave eight or ten years since. I still have plenty of it, but I have learned by experience how to manage it, and while we are at it I will give you my rules for pasturing where it abounds.

First—Do not turn stock in when the feed is poor.

Second—Do not leave them in after the feed begins to dry up in the spring.

Third—Watch them closely during the time when they are in, and when you see an animal leaving the band and feeding around alone, take him out right away and you may save him if he is not too far gone, as when they begin to eat it they will eat nothing else and will leave the other stock to hunt for the weed. At first they fatten up, but a reaction soon sets in, and then they soon show the effects of the weed.

I have a theory in regard to the way that stock get to eating it first, and that is this: The stock, in feeding among it while the feed is good, will eat the grass all around it, and when the feed begins to get a little scarce or dry they will nibble the grass that has been left untouched in among the rattle-weed, and in so doing will get a stalk of rattle-weed now and then, and as it remains green nearly all the year they soon get to eating it and will eat nothing else. I have not had an animal hurt for several years, but it is because, as I have said before, I have found out how to manage it.

I would also like to state that the water in my pasture is pure spring water and plenty of it, as I see some think water the cause. Others say they are overworked, starved, beat around and in fact never had any sense in the first place and were natural fools out and out. Now this in my opinion is all a mistake. Of course, there may be differences in horses and they may not all act just the same, but this much I will say, that if you want to make a horse, cow or sheep crazy give them plenty of rattle-weed.

I will now give you one case that came under my notice. I turned my colts into a pasture adjoining mine in which there was one patch of rattle-weed. The feed was not very good generally, but along the gulches and in places where it was sheltered it was fair. I did not dream that they would trouble the weed, and as I was busy I did not pay much attention to them. Now, there was among the colts an old American mare that had crossed the plains. She was a family nag; any one could drive her and she would work any time and anywhere, and I thought she had plenty of good horse sense. Well, I went over one day, and there was the old mare and a two-year-old colt up on that hill busy at work eating the rattle-weed. They had even pawed up the ground and were trying to eat up the roots, and they were good and crazy, and no mistake. The other colts were all right. I then took the colt and old mare out and put the colt up and fed him awhile, and then I sent him away to pasture where there was no weed, and in the fall he seemed to have recovered from the effects. I then brought him home and turned him out among the other horses in the stubble. In this stubble-field there was a hill, and on it some rattle-weed. I did not think he would leave good feed and the rest of the stock, so I paid no attention to him. I then went away to work and did not come home for two weeks, and found my colt up on the hill busy at the rattleweed and as crazy as a bedbug. He was a total wreck, he could not walk straight nor go down hill without turning round and round. Of course I saw he was done for, and let him die, which he did in a short time. I have other cases equally convincing, but think I will not burden you with too much at once.—Cor. Rural Press.

Curious Condensations from the Journals of Both Hemispheres.

A Venetian manufacturer is making and selling thousands of glass bonnets.

It is said that there is just $5,000,000 invested in special cars in the United States.

The purest kaolin in America has just been found in great quantity in Ebert County, Ga.

By breathing hot air about 212 deg. for two hours daily it is said that consumption can be radically cured.

The root of the garden poppy is now largely used in France to bind the earth of railway embankments.

A mountain of nearly pure iron has just been discovered near Lewisburg, in Greenbrier County, W. Va.

England has 500,000 velocipedists, among whom must be reckoned the Prince of Wales and his daughters.

The finest olive-oil in the world now comes from California, and is so highly appreciated that the crop is bought two years ahead.

Owners of the pine straw patent intend to establish five mills, each guaranteed to turn out 2,000,000 yards of bagging in time to wrap the bales of this year's cotton crop.

Big beds of asphaltum sandstone, from which can be made the best asphalt pavement in the world, have just been discovered along the new railway lines of Western Kentucky.—Chicago News.

JAPANESE SUPERSTITIONS.

Some of the Strange Fancies of Those Gentle Orientals.

The household superstitions of Japan are very numerous. They are harmless, often exciting laughter; yet so entrenched are they in the household that religion, argument, even ridicule can not destroy them. Some of these superstitions have a moral or educational purpose, inculcating lessons of benevolence, neatness and habits of cleanliness. A room is never swept immediately after the departure of the inmate for fear of sweeping out the luck. At a marriage ceremony neither the bride nor the groom wears any clothing of purple color lest their marriage be soon dissolved, purple being a color most liable to fade. If the cup of medicine is upset by accident during the illness of a person it is a sure sign of his recovery. This looks as if the Japanese had faith in our proverb, "Throw physic to the dogs." There are some curious ideas in regard to the finger nails. They must not be cut before starting on a journey lest disgrace fall upon the person at his destination. Neither should they be cut at night, lest cat's claws should grow out. Children who throw the parings of the nails into the fire are in danger of some great calamity. If a piece should fly into the fire while cutting the person will soon die.

The howling of a dog portends death. If a woman steps over an egg-shell she will go mad; if over a razor it will become dull; if over a whetstone it will break. If a man should set his hair on fire he will go mad. Children are told if they tell a lie an oni (imp) will pull out their tongues. The wholesome terror of the oni, standing ready to run away with his tongue, has caused many a Japanese youth to speak the truth.

The Japanese have a horror of the darkness; they always keep a light burning to ward off ghosts. The junkmen believe in a ghost who comes to them and politely asks to borrow a dipper. The answer decides the fate of the junkman. If a dipper with a bottom is bestowed upon the ghost, he uses it to bail water enough to swamp the junk, but if the bottom can be knocked out and thrown at him he disappears. In this last case, the act must be accompanied by an incantation, or the ghost turns into a sea cappa—a many-clawed monster—who will drag the junk to the bottom.

The Japanese are a gentle, sensitive race, very much under the influence of their emotions. Love with them is a serious matter, often one of life or death. Disappointment in love or desertion frequently ends in suicide. Sometimes the girl becomes an avenger, and implores the gods to curse or visit with death the destroyer of her peace. The passions which thrill and torment the human soul are as intense in far-away heathen Japan as in those lands which boast a higher civilization.—Philadelphia Press.

Something About the First Lady Who Handled United States Mail.

She was the widow of Colonel Andrew Balfour, of those revolutionary times in the days of our great and good President Washington. She was a Miss Elizabeth Dayton, of Newport, R. I. Balfour came to America from Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1772, landing at Boston. He was a few years in the North—married Miss Dayton in New York City. His brother had preceded him to Charleston, S. C. In 1777 he sailed for Charleston, but the distracted state of the country induced him to leave his wife and her children with relations in New England until he could prepare a Southern home for them; but soon after this the tide of war turned South and rolled its wave over the Carolinas, and her husband cast in his lot with the defenders of the home of his adoption (North Carolina); but he soon fell a victim to the barbarity of a party of royalists led by Colonel Fannin, a British officer, who murdered Balfour in his house in the presence of a sister and his eldest child, recently come from Edinburgh. They were with him to nurse and comfort him in his illness, caused by exposure and fatigue in military service.

Soon as Mrs. Balfour heard of her husband's tragic death she hastened South, coming in care of General Greene, who landed at Washington; from thence it was a tedious trip through the country to the home in Randolph County, where her noble husband was murdered on the holy Sabbath, the 10th of March, 1782. She visited the spot where he was so hastily interred, for it was unsafe for his sister and child to remain long there, as Fannin threatened to return and burn the dwelling and take away the negroes. As the country was still unsafe, Mrs. Balfour deemed it improper to live upon the plantation. With sorrow she turned away from his lonely resting-place, and went to Salisbury until she could return to the spot so dear to her.

While residing in Salisbury President Washington appointed her postmistress, which position was filled with entire satisfaction, and when her accounts were audited she was only one-half a cent behind. When the country was peaceful she returned to the home provided for her by her noble but lost husband. She lived under the protective love of her only son.

After a long life of good deeds she rests beside him who was murdered because of his devotion to Carolina's freedom and to the American cause in the days that "tried men's souls," and principles, too.—Sunny South.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

Mulholland & Mack
EDITORS & PROPRIETORS.
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL
SATURDAY AUGUST 3 1889

It is estimated that the wheat crop of Colusa County this year will be ten millions of busheis. Commenting on this the Colusa SUN says:

Think of that! One county of 16,000 inhabitants produring one-fiftieth of the wheat of the United States!

These figures will do to brag about in one view of the case. It shows the remarkable droductiveness of our soil. But what else have we to brag of in connection with this remarkable production? We produce more than the average of the counties of California with all the States and Territories thrown in to help up the average! But notwithstanding this, we have less improvements than the average county, and less than one fourth the population of the average county! Nor are we increasing in population! The big fish are eating up the little ones, and every improvement in machinery sools the doom of other holders of small tracts of land. School children are decreasing, school houses are going to decay; and yet it is the richest county in the United States. It can not only produce more wheat, but more of any given commodity than any other county! And yet we have not one school child to the square mile of tillable land in our country districts! Think of filling 15,000 cars, or a train nearly 150 miles long and putting the school children on all this land into 25 cars! Strange figures, eh?

It is a fearful curse to any country where the soil is owned by a few great proprietors. When such is the case the people are divided into two classes, Lords and serfs. These names may not be used but the facts are the same. The result of such a condition has never failed to be the destruction of both classes, one by the vices of luxury and sensuality; the other by poverty, ignorance and all the debasement of slavery. History is filled with the records of many great nations destroyed by these causes. If the people of the United States permit the lands created by Almighty God for the common heritage of all, to pass under the ownership of a class of great landed proprietors, our free institutions will be destroyed, and our Nation will perish, as other great Nations have perished before.

During the past year ot two a number of so-called loan and building associations have been started in this State. The head quarters of these concerns are in other States. The State commissioner of Labor Statistics, John J. Tobin has investigated these concerns and published a report of the proceedings. This report shows that these associations coming from outside our own State are very unsafe. The promises of profits are such as cannot be realized by any ordinary business methods. People of limited means should have nothing to do with these concerns, otherwise they may lose every dollar invested in them. There is no law now in existence in this State for the protection of investors; the money is at the disposal of men living in other States, and they may do as they please with it. What irresponsible men may please to do with the money of other people is seldom pleasing to the owners of the money.

Directors Meeting

The Directors of the 18th District Agricultural Association met at Independence last Saturday.

An agreement was entered into by the Board with Jacob Vagot for a new race track. Mr. Vaght has agreed to make a track on his ranch at Camp Independence. The location is on excellent ground, about two and a half miles out of town.

Changes were made in the speed programme as follows:—The double team trot ordered at a previous meeting was withdrawn.

A purse of $100 is offered for a running race half mile heats, best two in three. A purse of $75 is offered for untried horses, running, half mile dash.

A premium of $25 is offered for the best thoroughbred mare. Arrangements were made for printing and the Board adjourned, subject to call by the President.

Where Honor Is Due.

Now that the sale of the Cerro Gordo mines is consumated, it is due to two men to make public mention of the fact, that but for them the property would still be neglected and the mines idle, as they had been for years. Thos. C. Boland and J. S. Gorman ventured their money in the mines when nobody else would do it, and it is owing to their courage and energy that the mines were got into such condition that capitalists were willing to buy them. The change of ownership will result in a revival of mining industry all over the county; but for this revival Boland and Gorman are the first to deserve thanks.

Syrup of Figs.

Produced from the laxative and nutricious juice of California figs, combined with he medicinal virtues of plants known to be most benificial to the human system, acts gently, on the kidneys. lives and bowels, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds and headaches, and curing habitual constipation.

COURT NOTES.

Superior Court of Inyo County, California, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge.

MONDAY, July 29th.

Swansea Mining Company vs. John Dumphy et. als.—Action dismissed without prejudice to Plaintiff's case.

THURSDAY, July 29th.

Estate of John O'Farrell, deceased.—Final settlement of estate and discharge of administrator.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN HENRY MEYER, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned administrator of the estate of John Henry Meyer, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administrator, at his residence, in Pleasant Valley, Inyo County, California. FRITZ MEYER,

Administrator of the estate of John Henry Meyer, deceased.

Dated June 29th, 1889. o-12

FINAL PRE-EMPT.ON PROOF.

D. S. No. 1312.

LAND OFFICE AT INDEPENDENCE, CAL., JULY 25, 1889.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of this office at Independence, on Septemb 7, 1889, viz: ANGELLO ROSSI, Pre emption D. S. No. 1312, for the S E ¼ of Sec. 8, Tp. 15 S, R. 36 E, M. D. M.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: David S. Wells, John Strohmeyer, Relies Carrasco and Joseph Seely, all of Lone Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, Register.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY, to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
—AND TO—
Cleanse the System Effectually,
—SO THAT—
PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

PIONEER BREWERY
INDEPENDENCE.

BEER ICE COLD.

The Bar is supplied with the Best of all kinds of Liquors and Cigars.

The Coolest Hall in the town. Call in and see what comfort you can have this hot weather.

PHILIP GEHRIG, PROPRIETOR

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO., Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

ANTONS SALOON
KEELER, CAL.

BEER, WINES, LIQUORS and CIGARS.

All kinds of Fancy Drinks, including pure water. A comfortable and pleasant Hall.

JOHN C. ANTON Prop.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experiment. Address, d-15tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

THIRD
ANNUAL FAIR
Agricultural District
No. 18.
STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Composed Of the Counties of

ALPINE, MONO & INYO.

TO BE HELD AT

Independence

Commencing Tuesday, September 24th, and Continuing Four Days.

A. R. CONKLIN.....President.
C. MULHOLLAND.....Secretary.
O. I. MAIRS.....Treasurer.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

A. R. CONKLIN, JOHN SHEPHERD,
A. W. EIBESHUTZ, F. McIVER,
W. K. MILLER, E. ROBINSON,
J. S. GORMAN, W. S. ENOS.

First Department.

In this department the same animal shall not be entered more than once, except in sweepstakes or as a member of a family exhibited with its sire or dam. Any stallion, mare, gelding or colt competing in a race will not be excluded from competing for premiums in their respective classes.

CLASS I.
THOROUGHBRED HORSES.

Best stallion	$25 00
Second best stallion	20 00

CLASS II.
STANDARD TROTTERS.

Best Stallion, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Stallion, 2 year old	15 00
Best Stallion, 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt under 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and colt	15 00

CLASS III.
ROADSTERS.

Best Roadster, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Roadster, 2 year old	15 00
Best roadster team driven to buggy	25 00

Will have to be shown to harness.

CLASS IV.
HORSES OF ALL WORK.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best stallion 2 years old	15 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt	10 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upwards	20 00
Best mare, 2 years old	15 00
Best mare, 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and family, not less than three colts	25 00

CLASS V.
DRAFT HORSES.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	$25 00
Best stallion 2 years old	20 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best mare and colt	20 00
Best matched team	20 00
Best mare and 3 colts	20 00

CLASS V.
TEAMS.

Best matched carriage team	20 00
Best matched buggy team	20 00

CLASS VII.
SADDLE ANIMALS.

Best, any age	20 00
Second best	15 00

CLASS VIII.
SWEEPSTAKES.

Best stallion, any breed or age	25 00
Best mare, any breed or age	25 00

CLASS IX.
JACKS.

Best Jack, 2 years old and upward	25 00
Best Jack 1 year old	15 00

CLASS X.
MULES.

Best span owned by one person, 3 years or over	15 00
Best span under 3 years	10 00

CLASS XI.
CATTLE—BULLS.

Best bull, any breed 3 years old and upward	30 00
Best bull, any breed, 2 years old	25 00
Best bull, any breed, 1 year old	20 00

CLASS XII.
COWS.

Best cow, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best cow, 2 years old	15 00
Best cow and calf	15 00
Best cow and 2 calves	15 00
Best milch cow, quart and pint of milk	20 00

CLASS XIII.
SHEEP.

Best display of sheep	15 00

CLASS XIV.
GOATS.

Best display of Angora goats	20 00

CLASS XV.
SWINE.

Best display of hogs	15 00
Best sow and litter of four pigs	10 00

CLASS XVI.
POULTRY ETC.

Best display of fowls, any age or breed	10 00
Second best	8 00
Best pair of bronze turkeys	5 00

Second Department.

All products exhibited in this Department must have been produced in Nevada, or in California east of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and by the exhibitor

CLASS I.
AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best 100 pounds of flour	$ 5 00
Best 100 pounds of wheat	5 00
Best 100 pounds of barley	5 00
Best 100 pounds of oats	5 00
Best 100 pounds of rye	5 00
Best 100 pounds of corn shelled	5 00
Best 50 pounds of alfalfa seed	5 00
Best bale of timothy hay	5 00
Best bale of alfalfa hay	5 00
Display of Agricultural Products	20 00
Second Best	15 00

CLASS II.
VEGETABLES, ROOTS, ETC.

Best 10 pounds of sweet potatoes	2 50
50 pounds of Early Rose potatoes	2 50
100 pounds any variety of potatoes	3 00
20 pounds of parsnips	2 50
20 pounds of carrots	2 50
20 pounds of turnips	2 50
20 pounds of beets, any variety	2 50
20 pounds of tomatoes, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cabbage, any variety	2 50
50 pounds of onions, any variety	2 50
1 doz. squash, any variety	2 50
sample of peppers; any variety	2 50
½ doz. watermelons, any variety	2 50
1 doz. cucumbers, any variety	2 50
½ doz. cantaloupes, any variety	2 50
10 pounds of white beans	2 50
10 pounds of pink beans	2 50
10 pounds garden peas, any variety	2 50
Display of vegetables in one lot	5 00

CLASS III.
DAIRY AND FARM PRODUCE.

Best 10 pounds of butter in rolls	$ 3 00
Second best	2 00
Best jar of butter, 20 pounds, 3 months old	5 00
single cheese, any weight	5 00
10 pounds of lard	2 00
display of honey	5 00
Apiary display	10 00
display of bread, Chinaman made excluded	3 00
display of cakes	5 00
variety of fruit in jars	10 00
Second best	5 00
Best variety of jellies	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of preserves	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of pickles	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best Sample of 50 lbs. each of hams and bacon	10 00

Third Department.

CLASS I.
HORTICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best display of apples	$ 7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display pears	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display peaches	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of plums	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of quinces	5 00
display of grapes of different varieties	5 00
½ dozen bottles of wine	5 00
display of wine grapes	5 00
display of raisin grapes	5 00
display of raisins made in the District	7 50
display of prunes	5 00
display of dried fruits	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of grapes and wine made from the same grapes, in variety	10 00
display of all kinds of fruit—a collection	20 00

Fourth Department,

CLASS I.
ARTISTIC.

Best oil painting done by resident of district	10 00
Second best	7 50
Best crayon drawing	10 00
On satin and Japanese panels	10 00
Collection of paintings by any Artist	10 00

Fifth Department,

CLASS I.
NEEDLE AND OTHER WORK.

Handsomest pillow shams, $5 00
Best and handsomest patchwork quilt, $5 00
Best crochet Worked quilt, $5 00
Handsomest crazy quilt, $5 00
Handsomest knitted quilt, $5 00
Handsomest sofa cushion, $5 00
Handsomest set of tidies for sofa, $5 00
Best embroidered lady's dress, $5 00
child's dress, $5 00
ottoman cover $5 00
table cover, 4 corners $5 00
scarf two ends, $5 00
pair lambrequins, $5 00
wall pancl, or banner, $5 00
silk or flannel $5 00
on linen, $5 00
Kensington crewel or wool $5 00
toilet set, three or more pieces, $5
lace work, hand made, $5 darned net, three or more pieces, $5
crochet shawl, $5
hand painted table scarf, $5
hearth rug, $3
Handsomest and best made dress for lady, $5
Best display hand knit work $5
Best display of fancy articles, $10
display of Spanish needle work, $5
Best and greatest variety of crochet work, $10
hand knit stockings, $3

JUVENILE.

calico dress made by girl under 14, $5
hand sewing, not less than 4 pieces, by girl under sixteen $5
crochet work by girl under 14, $5
patchwork quilt by girl under 14 $5
hand made shirt by girl under 14, $3
display of hair work, $5

Sixth Department.

CLASS I.
MINERALS.

Best Cabinet of minerals	$ 15
Collection of curios from District	15
display of silver ore	10
gold ore	10
silver lead ore	10
nugget of gold	5

In all exhibits of animals for premiums, other things being equal, blooded stock will be preferred.

All articles included in the above list—except the first department—to be on exhibition at the Pavilion on the second day and remain during the fair.

Special premiums will be offered for articles exhibited which are not included in the above List.

All entries to be made not later than 6 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding their exhibition. All stock and articles to be exhibited must be on the ground at 9:30 a. m. on the day intended for their exhibition. No animal to leave its stall between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. of the day of exhibition without permission of the Park Director. Exhibition will take place at 10 a. m. of each day and close at 4 p. m., with an intermission for lunch.

Speed Programme.

TUESDAY.

TROTTING—Free for all, mile, 2 in 3, mile heats. Purse, $200.

WEDNESDAY.

RUNNING—For untried horses, ½ mile dash. Purse, $75.

THURSDAY.

RUNNING—One mile, 2 in 3, free for all. Purse, $200.

FRIDAY.

RUNNING—Free for all, ½ mile and repeat. Purse, $100.

In all the above races three to enter and two to start. Entrance, 10 per cent of purse.

All entries for races must be made on or before 12 o'clock M. of the day preceding the race. This rule will be strictly adhered to. No exception will be made.

Other races will be given by the citizens under the control and management of the Association, of which notice will be given.

All exhibitions of stock will take place on the race track at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

California State Agricultural Society rules to govern running races; National Trotting Association rules to govern trotting races.

ADMISSION:

To stock ground and pavilion, each	$ 50
Single Season Ticket	2 50
Membership Ticket, admitting member, wife and minor children	5 00
Life membership	30 00

A. R. CONKLIN, President.
C. MULHOLLAND, Secretary.

MISCELLANEOUS.

J. R. ELDRED,
Sheriff and Tax Collector,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. H. MACK,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

GEO. M. GILL,
District Attorney,
INYO CO., CAL.

J. J. MOORE,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—

The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.

All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
C. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

A. R. CONKLIN,
Attorney-at-Law,
Independence, Cal.

Will practice in all the Courts of the States of California and Nevada.

JOHN W. P. LAIRD,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Independence, Cal.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.

Office and residence at the Reddy place, Independence.

W. H. GEORGE, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
Bishop Creek, Cal.,

Offers his professional services to the people of Bishop Creek and vicinity. Office and residence opposite Andrew Clark's.

F. E. Bunting, M. D.
Physician & Surgeon
LONE PINE, CAL.
OFFICE IN GELCICH BUILDING
All calls attended to immediately.

I. O. O. F.

REGULAR MEETINGS OF INYO Lodge, No. 301, I. O. O. F., are held at the Masonic Hall every Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. All members of the Order in good standing are invited to attend.

J. W. MURPHY, N. G.
B. RHINE, R. S.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1889, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 12th
"	February 9th
"	March 16th
"	April 13st
"	May 11th
"	June 8th
"	July 12th
"	August 10th
"	September 7th
"	October 5th
"	November 2nd
"	December 7th

JOHN W. P. LAIRD, W. M.
J. J. MOORE, Sec.

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

S. H. BIGLAND,
—DEALER IN—
Owens Valley Lands
39 SUTTER STREET.
SAN FRANCISCO.
1-26

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler,
LONE PINE, CAL.

Time pieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.

All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics' Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURKHARDT.

MISCELLANEOUS

EDWARD CHENOT,
Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDIS

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAI
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC

Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 29, 1884.
n476tf

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - - Cal.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.

First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

Independence Hotel.

Independence - - Cal.

V. G. THOMPSON, Lessee.

FIRST CLASS HOTEL
DINING ROOM.
APARTMENTS.
—AND—
—THE BAR—
Will be found acceptable to all patrons.

Daily Bus To and From The Cars.

M. A. NEWMARK & Co.

SUCCESSORS TO B. NEWMARK & CO.
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE GROCERS,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
S. F. OFFICE, 214 CALIFORNIA ST.

E. H. Edwards,
—DEALER IN—
General Merchandise,
LONE PINE,
INYO COUNTY - - - CALIFORNIA.

A NEW DEAL!

BISHOP CREEK
Livery. Feed & Sale Stable.
ROBERT O'NEIL, Prop'r.

Horses are boarded by the day, week or month. Stock bought and sold.
Bishop Creek, Cal., Nov. 20, 1883.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, May 1tOh, 1889.

STATIONS.		From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House		11 00 a. m		5 50 p. m
Dayton		11 30 a. m.		5 10 p. m.
Wabuska		1 25 a. m		3 10 p. m
Hawthorne		5 05 p. m.		11:25 a. m.
Gunting		6:25 p. m.		10:00 a. m.
Soda Springs		7:35 p. m.		9:00 a. m
Belleville		8 45 p. m.		7:45a. m.
Candelaria	Ar.	9:20 p. m	Lv.	7:10a. m.
		No. 3.		No. 4.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Belleville		8 10 a. m.		5:25 p. m.
Benton		11:40 a m		1:35 p. m
Bishop Creek		1 50p. m.		11:00 a. m.
Alvord		2. 5 p. m.		10 00 a. m.
Independence		4 10 p. m.		8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine		5 00 p. m.		7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar	5:45 p. m.	Lv.	7.00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R R, which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (37 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LANDING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

J. FORBES. W. D. TOBEY.

FORBES & TOBEY,

HAWTHORNE, NEV.,

—DEALERS IN—

LUMBER

OF ALL KINDS.

DOORS.

SHINGLES,

SASH AND BLINDS.

LATH,

RUSTIC

MOULDINGS,

DRESSED LUMBER.

Matched and Dressed Flooring.

sept 11-tf

LUMBER. LUMBER.

SPRATT & CREASER,
BIG PINE.
—DEALERS IN—
ALL KINDS OF LUMBER.

Square timber of all dimensions for buildings and bridges.

CEILING,
FLOORING,
FENCING,
RUSTIC.

All kinds of tongued and grooved lumber.

Surfaced lumber of all kinds.

All orders filled promptly. Lumber delivered on board the cars at Alvord.

SPRATT & CREASER,
sept-tf Big Pine, Inyo Co., Cal.

R. J. WHITTAKER
—PAINTER,—
BIG PINE, - - - - CAL.

HOUSE PAINTING,
SIGN WRITING,
PAPER HANGING,
GRAINING,
GILDING ON WOOD AND GLASS.

Wagons Painted

The best of materials used and satisfaction guaranteed.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 3 1889

Mr. J. S. Collins of Warm Springs was in town last Saturday.

Mr. C. H. McConnell has returned to Independence from San Francisco.

Mr. J. Powell of Hawthorne has been in town most of the week. He is looking after mining interests.

Mr. N. Rhine has got back to Independence after a visit of two or three months at San Francisco.

Mr. Warren A. Delano has been in the Valley during the week looking for land. He came here from Fresno County.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaw and their daughter Miss Margie Shaw, of Bishop, were at Independence a few days this week.

Mr. W. P. Yaney has been appointed Under-Sheriff in place of Mr. Ben. T. Williams. The change was made last Tuesday morning.

Rev. E. McEvers will preach at Lone Pine to-morrow—Sunday—a. 11 o'clock a. m. and at Independence at 7:30 o'clock evening.

Miss Annie Kohler has been engaged to teach the next term of school at Independence. Miss Kohler taught last Winter at Camp Independence.

Mrs. A. M. Loomis, of El Paso, Texas, arrived at Independence last Monday, on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Irwin. Mrs. Loomis is accompanied by her daughter.

Mr. John E. Jones, of Round Valley, was at Independence during the week. He brought his daughter, Miss Jones, with him, who is now visiting friends in this neighborhood.

There is some probability that an experimental vineyard for raisin grapes will be planted near Warm Springs between Laws and Alvord. Parties from Kansas are taking steps toward setting out one hundred acres with vines.

Senator Stewart wishes very much that miners would carefully study the bill he intends to introduce at the next session of Congress. He will gladly make any changes in the bill that may be shown to be beneficial to the mining interest.

The Standard-Bulwer mining suit at Bridgeport resulted in a verdict for the Standard. Hon. P. Reddy was counsel for the successful party in the contest. The jury awarded the Standard $3,000 damages; the amount asked for was $20,000.

The first new wheat of the season taken to Bell's mill was by Benigno Aguierre. It is fine grain. Mr. Bell has been making repairs upon the mill, for some weeks past, and will be ready to begin grinding in a few days.

Thos. R. Frazer, a former resident of Virginia City, committed suicide near Stockton last Saturday. He was aged about 54 years. He killed himself with a rifle, the ball passing through his brain. No cause is known why he should have killed himself.

Ben. T. Williams ex-Under-Sheriff, leaves to-day for his home at Bishop. While at Independence Ben. made many friends and strengthened old friendships and it is with regret that the majority of the people here look upon his departure.

Dumphy & O'Keefe have run a tunnel into their ledge, at Cerro Gordo. The tunnel cuts the ledge at a depth of between two and three hundred feet below any former workings, and the ore vein is as big as where opened higher up. It appears to go down undiminished in size below the tunnel. This proves that the ore body is extensive.

One young fool at Chico murdered another young fool and then killed himself. The girl whose levity caused this bloody tragedy lives, and the chances are that within a year or two she will be married and laugh as gaily as if no such crime and sorrow had been caused by her want of sense and feeling. The young man Bierce, who was jilted, instead of committing murder and suicide, ought to have thanked God that he escaped being the husband of such a heartless flirt.

Mr. T. D. Gaman and Mr. A. J. Lyon arrived at Independence last Monday from San Francisco. They are real estate agents, and have been concerned in extensive improvements in Sutter County and elsewhere. They picked up a good deal of information about Owens Valley, and say there are resources enough to invite capital for their development. They left for San Francisco on Thursday morning; they expressed an intention of returning here again.

Gus. McGovern got in last Monday from Mojave with a big load of freight. He lost a fine horse on the trip in a singular way. He had camped at Indian Wells; the horse was tied to one of the wagons and in the night got his head jammed between a wheel and the body of the wagon; he had evidently made but one struggle to get clear and in the effort his neck was broken. Mr. McGovern was sleeping within fifteen feet of the horse, but heard no sound. When he got up next morning the horse was dead and cold. The head of the horse had to be cut off to get the body clear from the wagon.

Academy Directors

According to the charter of the Inyo Academy at Bishop, the Methodist Conference has the right to recommend eight of the Board of Directors for election At the recent meeting of the conference the following were recommended: Robert W. Ford, Rev. Andrew Clark, and Samuel Hall of Bishop; I. J. Woodin M. D. and C. Mullholland, Independence; J. C. Crocker, Big Pine; Rev. E. McEvers and Rev. J. H. De La Matyr.

Inyo Will Be Considered.

The Committee appointed by the State Board of Trade to confer with the Senatorial Committee on Arid Lands, have prepared a report. Among the subjects treated of in the report are the following: "The physical condition of California and its adaptability to irrigation," "Results of irrigation in California," "Necessity for irrigation in portions of Northern California," "Owens Valley and Inyo County," Irrigation in Los Angeles and Orange Counties," and "Irrigation and storage reservoirs in San Bernardino and San Diego Counties." The Senatorial Committee of which Senator W. M. Stewart of Nevada is chairman, will arrive in Los Angeles about the 25th of August.

A pamphlet written and published by the Editor of the "INYO INDEPENDENT" and many articles published in the paper, gave the facts and information on which the report on Owens Valley and Inyo County is based. Inyo County will not be overlooked in the work of the Senate Committee.

NEW MINING BILL.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, is desirous of amending the United States mining laws, and to that end will endeavor to have a bill passed at the next session of Congress. From the private secretary of the Senator we have received a copy of the bill with a request that the attention of miners be called to its provisions.

A Bill to amend chapter six of title thirty-two of the Revised Statutes relating to mineral lands and mining resources.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

That section twenty-three hundred and nineteen of the Revised Statutes be amended by adding thereto the following: "But no person shall acquire by location more than fifteen hundred feet in length on the same vein, nor shall any person locate a claim which he has previously located."

SEC. 2. That section twenty-three hundred and twenty-four of the Revised Statutes be amended so as to read:

SEC. 2324. The miners of each mining district may make regulations, not in conflict with the laws of the United States, or with the laws of the State or Territory in which the district is situated, governing the location, manner of recording amount of work necessary to hold possession of a mining claim, subject to the following requirements: The location must be distinctly marked on the ground by posts or monuments, so that its boundaries may be readily traced. All records of mining claims hereafter made shall contain the name or names of the locators, the date of the location, and such a description of the claim or claims located as will identify the claim. On each claim located after the 10th day of May, 1872, and until payment of the purchase money and a certificate of entry has been issued therefor, not less than one hundred dollars' worth of labor shall be performed or improvements made during each year. On all claims located prior to the 10th day of May, 1872, ten dollars' worth of labor shall be performed or improvements made during each year for each 100 feet in length along the vein until payment of the purchase money and a certificate of entry has been issued therefor; and for each 20 acres of placer claims, and for each subdivision thereof less than 20 acres, twenty-five dollars' worth of labor shall be performed or improvements made during each year until payment of the purchase money and a certificate of entry shall be issued therefor. But where several adjoing claims, not exceeding five, whether the same be lode or placer claims, are owned are held by the same person, association or corporation, and the sum of five thousand dollars or more is expended in any one year in good faith for the development of all the claims so owned, or held, not exceeding five, there shall be no requirement for separate labor or improvements to be performed or made on the several claims so owned or held during such year. The year within which the annual labor or improvements required to be performed or made by this section shall commence at 12 o'clock m. on the 1st day of October of each year: Provided, That upon claims located previous to the 1st day of March of any year the annual labor or improvements shall be performed or made upon such claim for that year prior to 12 o'clock m. of the 1st day of October next succeeding; and upon claims located after the last day of February and prior to 12 o'clock m. of the 1st day of October in any year the annual labor or improvements required shall be performed or made prior to to 12 o'clock m. of the 1st day of the next following October. And provided further, That only one-half of the annual labor or improvements required by this act shall be necessary to be performed or made prior to 12 o'clock m. of the 1st day of October, in the year 1889, on claims upon which the annual labor or improvements were performed or made in the year 1888; but after the 1st day of October, in the year 1889, the full amount of labor or improvements required by this act shall be performed or made upon such claims as in all other cases during each year prior to 12 o'clock m. of the 1st day of October. In case the 1st day of October falls on Sunday or any holiday the following secular day shall be construed as the 1st day of October within the meaning of this act. When the labor required by this act shall have been performed or the improvements made an affidavit shall be filed within thirty days after the time limited for performing such labor or making such improvements with the recorder of the mining district in which such claims are situated, and if there be none then with the recorder of deeds of the county in which the claim or mine is situated, particularly describing the labor performed and improvements made, and the value thereof, which affidavit shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. And upon a failure to comply with these conditions, the claim or mine upon which such failure occurred shall be open to relocation in the same manner as if no location of the same had ever been made: Provided, That the original locators, their heirs, assigns, or legal representatives do not resume work upon the claim after such failure and before such location, and continue the same with reasonable diligence until the required amount of labor shall have been performed or improvements made. Upon the failure of any one of several co-owners to contribute his proportion of the expenditures required hereby, the co-owners who have performed the labor or made the improvement may, at the expiration of the year, give such delinquent co-owner notice in writing or notice by publication in the newspaper published nearest the claim, for at least once a week for ninety days, and if after the expiration of ninety days after such notice in writing or by publication such delinquent shall fail or refuse to contribute his portion of the expenditure required by this section, his interest in the claim shall become the property of his co-owners who have made the required expenditures, upon recording a copy of such notice, together with an affidavit showing personal service or publication, as the case may be, of such notice with the recorder of the mining district in which such claim is situated, and if there be no such officer, then with the recorder of deeds of the county in which such mining claim is situated. When any person or company has developed and exposed a lode and expended one hundred dollar's worth of labor thereon, said person or company may run a tunnel for the purpose of developing such lode owned by said person or company, and the money so expended in said tunnel shall be considered as expended on said lode, and such person or company shall not thereafter be required to perform labor or make improvements on the surface of said lode in order to hold the same, so long as work is continued on such tunnels.'

SEC. 3. That section twenty-three hundred and twenty-five be amended so as to read:

"SEC. 2325. A patent for any land claimed and located for valuable deposits may be obtained in the following manner: Any person, association, or corporation authorized to locate a claim under this chapter, having claimed and located a piece of land for such purposes, who has, or have, complied with the terms of this chapter, may file in the proper land office an application for a patent, under oath, showing such compliance, together with a plat and field notes of the claim or claims in common, made by or under the direction of the United States surveyor-general, showing accurately the boundaries of the claim or claims, which shall be distinctly marked by monuments on the ground, and shall post a copy of such plat, together with a notice of such an application for a patent, in a conspicuous place on the land embraced in such plat previous to the filing of the application for a patent, and shall file an affidavit that such plat and notice have been duly posted, and shall also file a copy of the notice in such land office, and shall thereupon be entitled to a patent for the land, in the manner following: The Register of the land-office, upon the filing of such application, plat, field notes, notices, and affidavits, shall publish a notice that such application has been made, for the period of sixty days, in a newspaper to be by him designated as published nearest to such claim; and he shall also post such notice in his office for the same period. The claimant at the time of filing his application, or at any time thereafter during the sixty days of publication, shall file with the register a certificate of the United States surveyor-general that five hundred dollars' worth of labor has been expended or improvements made upon the claim by himself or grantors; that the plat is correct, with such further description by such reference to natural objects or permanent monuments as shall identify the claim, and furnish an accurate description, to be incorporated in the patent. At the expiration of the sixty days of publication the claimant shall file his affidavit, showing that the plat and notice have been posted in a conspicuous place on the claim during such period of publication. If no adverse claim shall have been filed with the register and receiver of the proper land-office at the expiration of the sixty days of publication, it shall be assumed that the applicant is entitled to a patent, and that no adverse claim exists, and upon the payment to the proper officer of five dollars per acre he shall receive a certificate of entry; and thereafter no objections from third parties to the issuance of a patent shall be heard except it be shown that the applicant has failey to comply with the terms of this chapter. But no more than three thousand feet in length along the vein of claims located prior to the 10th day of May, 1872, and not more than the extent of one claim fifteen hundred feet in length by six hundred feet width located after said date shall be included in the same application for a patent, and not more than eighty acres of placer ground shall be included in the same application for a patent."

SEC. 4. That section twenty-three hundred and thirty-four of the Revisised Statutes of the United States be amended by adding thereto the following:

"And the surveyors appointed under the provisions of this section shall have power to administer oaths to their assistants."

SEC. 5. That section twenty-three hundred and thirty-five of the Revised Statutes be amended so as to read:

"SEC. 2335. All affidavits required to be made under this chapter may be verified before any person authorized to administer oaths in any State or Territory of the United States or in the District of Columbia, and all testimony and proofs may be taken before any such officer, and when duly certified by the officer taking the same shall have the same force and effect as if taken before the register and receiver of the land-office. In cases of contest as to the mineral or agricultural character of the land, the testimony and proofs may be taken, under such conditions as the Commissioner of the General Land Office may prescribe: Provided, That the presence of rock in place bearing gold, silver, cinnabar, or other valuable metal, shall be regarded as prima facie evidence that the land bearing same is mineral in character; and veins of rock in place bearing such minerals and appearing on the surface of the ground, or in excavations made thereon, shall be regarded within the meaning of section 2333 of the Revised Statutes, as veins or lodes known to exist."

SEC. 6 Amend section twenty-three hundred and thirty-eight of the Revised Statutes so as to read:

"SEC. 2338. As a condition of sale each patent shall reserve the right of way through or over any mining claim for roads, ditches, canals, cuts, tunnels, and other easements, for the purpose of working other mines: Provided, That any damages occasioned thereby shall be assessed and paid in the manner provided by the laws of the State or Territory in which such mine is situated for assessments and payments for land taken for public use under the right of eminent domain. And the rights and easements heretofore reserved under the provisions of this section [2338 of the Revised Statutes] in patents heretofore issued shall be regulated and made available as herein prescribed."

An Indian Murdered.

An Indian known as Bronco Jim was murdered by other Indians at Fish Spring last Wednesday night. Jim was a very intelligent Indian, over six feet tall, straight as an arrow and of very courteous manners. He had given up his tribal relation, located a fine piece of land at Fish Spring, and made a comfortable home for himself and family. He spoke English well and could write his name and read a little. Many of the other Indians hated him bitterly because he tried to acquire civilized habits and urged others to do the same. He was formerly a "medicine man" against his own inclination and common sense; but the custom of his tribe compelled the drawer of the black bean to bow to the inevitable. Several years ago having lost three patients which is the limit, he was required by custom to rally his friends and defend his life, which he refused to do. His enemies have ever since been watching for a chance to assasinate him. They were lead in the conspiracy by two red-handed murderers, named Mose, and Squirrel-eye Charley. These two have been concerned in similar crimes upon several previous occasions; and are considered "Bad Indians" at Big Pine, the scene of most of their crimes. This murder should not be allowed to go unpunished; the real motive for the crime is to discourage the Indians from absolving allegiance to the tribe; abandoning the habits of barbarism and becoming civilized. The white people of the Valley had kindly regard for poor Jim and they should punish his murderers. He was aged about thirty-two years, he had a wife and one child—a boy.

Dr. Woodin made a post mortem examination of Jim. He had been shot through the head from behind. It is alleged that an Indian named Japo is the murderer; Under-Sheriff Yaney went in pursuit of him, he having disappeared from Fish Spring the same evening of the murder.

Coroner Parker held an inquest and the verdict of the Jury was that deceased was murdered by an Indian named Japo.

Endurable.

Not in many years has there been such hot weather for so long a time as we are now having in Owens Valley. A pleasant breeze every day mitigates the heat that would otherwise be oppressive. The canyons of the Sierra Mountains furnish a plentiful supply of snow; this is brought down on pack animals into the towns. The lakes and streams among the mountains give an abundance of the finest trout. So with the cool retreats so near at hand in the mountains; plenty of trout, an abundance of ice and snow, and peaches and cream in unlimited quantity, Owens Valley is not so bad a place to spend the Summer.

Lost His Nose.

A boy named Ewell Hart is minus a nose. He lives near Bishop. Last Sunday he was in Bishop with his brother-in-law, Henry Jackson. Jackson had been drinking, and when getting into his wagon to leave thwn, Hart caught the horses. This made Jackson angry, and seizing a butcher knife that was in the wagon, he made a slash at Hart, cutting off his nose. Such is the report of the affair as given by a citizen of Bishop.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

A. COHN & CO.

—DEALERS IN—

General Merchandise.

—ALL KINDS OF—

Farm Implements

—AND—

--MACHINERY--

Farm Produce

—OF ALL KINDS BOUGHT—

Orders for all kinds of supplies needed in mining camps promptly filled.

W. O. MERONEY

Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Etc., Etc.

—DEALER IN—

Grain, Butter, Eggs & Cheese.

All kinds of supplies needed on farms, in mining and lumbering camps, and by teamsters.

W. O. MERONEY.
Postmaster and Dep. Co. Clerk.

GIVEN & INGALLS.

—DEALERS IN—

FARM PRODUCE.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

H. E. WRIGHT.
DRUGGIST.

Medicines, Drugs, Toilet and Fancy Articles. Physicians' prescriptions carefully and promptly filled. All drugs and medicines fresh and of the best quality. All orders by mail receive immediate attention

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE LARGEST STOCK

Of Farm Machinery, Wagons, Buggies & Carriages in Southern

CALIFORNIA.

MOLINE STEEL PLOWS, WHITELY SOLID STEEL MOWERS,
OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS, CHAMPION STEEL FRAME MOWERS,
FLYING DUTCHMAN AND CASADAY SULKY PLOWS, THOMAS AND ROYAL SULKY RAKES,
HOGUE ORCHARD CULTIVATOR, STICKLE STEEL HEADERS,
LUITWIELER VINEYARD CULTIVATOR, J. I. CASE THRESHERS AND ENGINES,
PLANET JR. HORSE HOES, STUDEBAKER FARM AND SPRING WAGONS,
DRILLS, SEEDERS AND GRINDERS, CARRIAGES, BUGGIES AND BUCKBOARDS,
DISC HARROWS, SCALES, BALING WIRE, BALE TIES, BARBED WIRE, WIRE MESH FENCING.

WRITE FOR CIRCULARS AND PRICES.

S. W. LUITWIELER,
NO. 100 LOS ANGELES ST. Los Angeles, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class Goods and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL

Great Reduction
—IN PRICES OF—
PIANOS & ORGANS

If you think of buying it will pay you to write for particulars to

Charles E. Day,
Los Angeles, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills,

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best.

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING SALOON.

Shaving, Hair-Cutting, etc., done in the best manner.

WM. H. HUFF, Prop'r.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Inyo
Freighting Company.

REGULAR LINE
Mojave To Bishop.

Teams leave Mojave and Bishop weekly. Goods delivered with regularity at all points on the line. Consign goods to the Company at Mojave.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROPRIETOR.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash.
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

LONE PINE
Blacksmith Shop.
R. C. Spear, Prop'r

—ALL WORK ON—
MINING TOOLS,
FARMING IMPLEMENTS & FREIGHTING OUTFITS
—PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO—
HORSE SHOEING,
CARRIAGE WORK,
GENERAL REPAIRING.

All work attended to with neatness and despatch. Prices to suit the times.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Newest Styles
OF
Fashionable Clothing, Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD'S
CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries & canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS,
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

115 CLAY STREET, 117
SMITH'S STORE
The Best Place on the Coast to get Supplies. Wholesale prices to Consumers. Equality to all. No Humbug. No Tricks. A full List of Prices sent free on application.
CASH.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

THIS PAPER IS ON FILE
—AT—
PALMER & REY'S
ADVERTISING BUREAU!
405-7 Sansome St., San Francisco.
—AND AT—
PALMER & REY'S
Pacific States Advertising Bureau
46 Tribune Building,
NEW YORK.
Where Advertising Contracts can be made.

IF YOU WISH A GOOD REVOLVER PURCHASE ONE OF SMITH & WESSON'S

Finest small arms ever manufactured and the first choice of all experts. In calibres 32, 38 and 44-100. Single or double action, Safety Hammerless and Target models. Best quality wrought steel, carefully inspected for workmanship and stock. Unrivaled for finish, durability and accuracy. Do not be deceived by cheap malleable iron imitations often sold for the genuine article. They are unreliable and dangerous. The SMITH & WESSON REVOLVERS are stamped upon the barrels with firm name, address and dates of patents, and are guaranteed perfect. Insist upon having them, and if your dealer cannot supply you, an order sent to address below will receive prompt attention. Descriptive catalogue and prices upon application.
SMITH & WESSON,
Springfield, Mass.

WANTED

About 60 head of young cattle to handle on shares. I have excellent summer range and the best of winter feed. The stock will be well attended to. A graded bull from Mr. Hunter's thoroughbred Durham will be turned with the band. For particulars apply to JAMES JENKINS,
3-2 Lone Pine.

Invention has revolutionized the world during the last half century. Not least among the wonders of invention and progress is a method and system of work that can be performed over the country without separating the workers from their homes. Pay liberal; any one can do the work, either sex, young or old; no especial ability required. Capital not needed; you are started free. Cut this out and return to us and we will send you free, something of great value and importance to you, that will put you in business, which will bring you in more money right away than anything else in the world. Great Outfit Free. Address TRUE & Co., Augusta, Me.

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

PROVISIONS, &c., &c., &c.

Postmaster and Deputy Co. Clerk.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

LIFE IN PETERSBURG.

Graphic Description of a Midwinter Ride with "Troika-Birds."

Large four-seated sleighs are ordered from a job master famous for the swiftness of his horses and the skill of his drivers. The bells of the teams tinkle at the door; the company envelop themselves from head to foot in furs; the women tie Orenburg shawls over their faces. Two couples take their places in each of the vehicles, and, as may be readily conceived, it is not chance that generally presides over this arrangement, but another little god who is less wise than chance. The driver gathers in his hands his bundle of reins, and speaks tenderly to his horses: "Forward, my little pigeons." The three pigeons start at full gallop through the empty streets, twenty degrees below zero, the air still, the sky black as steel, and sparkling with golden spots which glitter over the whiteness of all objects in this limpid atmosphere. The cold freezes the breath as it issues from the lips. In a few minutes the beards are converted into stalactites of ice. The Russian heart bounds with joy. "Quicker! quicker!" cry the women, their voices broken by wild and joyous laughter. The driver, who has previously fortified his stomach with innumerable glasses of brandy, administers stout blows with his knout over the backs of his horses, and yet they are giving the maximum of speed that can be expected from their limbs. They too seem to get intoxicated with their own galloping. The equipage flies along the quays and crosses the river; the mean houses of the faubourgs, with their poor little lights, vanish out of sight behind it like phantoms. Trees take the place of houses the more deeply we penetrate into the islands; now we glide over vacant country in absolute darkness, the tinkling of the bells and the ripples of laughter alone breaking the silence that has gathered over the earth. When the hoofs of the horses strike the pavement beneath the thinner snow, or when they bound over a projecting block of ice on an arm of the Neva, the heavy sleigh jumps and jolts enough to throw the travelers out. Woe be to the one who is talking at this moment: he is sure to bite his tongue cruelly; and then the laughter redoubles at his expense. The combined intoxication of the movement and of the cold is at its height. "Go on more quickly," the voices of women say, nervously; and sometimes a deeper voice murmurs in a lower tone: "Why faster? It would be better that we never arrived at the end."

We do arrive, however. The team, white with foam, stops in front of an isolated tavern. It is Samarcande or Tachkent, one of the inns of the suburbs of Petersburg, famous for the troupes of Bohemians who lodge there. The party hires a room decorated in any thing but a luxurious manner: four smoky walls, a few chairs, and a table. Champagne is brought and the Tsiganes appear. The choir is composed of three or four men and eight or ten women. The men wear on their bronze faces the expression of the tranquil dignity of their race. With their aquiline profiles, their sad and profound eyes, they seem like dispossessed kings of Asia. We would gladly depict the women in some picturesque Eastern costume, but the truth compels us to confess that they are dressed in shabby silk dresses, the cast-off finery of some elegant lady, bought at a second-hand store in the Gostiny Dvor. The olive-colored complexions beneath their painted cheeks, and the fire of their eyes beneath their painted eyebrows, alone betray the Indian origin of these daughters of the Pariahs. The leader of the choir tunes his guitar and strikes up an accompaniment, very slow at first, and then gradually quicker and quicker. The Bohemian girls sing; they are seated in a semi-circle, their bodies and faces motionless. At the beginning the accent is cold and restrained. These women appear indifferent to the sentiment they are interpreting, like sibyls visited by a god whom they do not feel. But little by little their voices become animated, and w m into that guttural trembling which artists of any other race can never succeed in imitating. The demon has taken possession of the singers; they hurry the rhythm with furious alternations; melodies and words are infused with the same excitement, the languor, the despair, and the fire of wild passions. The soul of the old Arays has accumulated in these songs all the wildness and melancholy of its nature comte Eugene Melchior de Vogue, in Harper's Magazine.

A Faithful Illustration.

When a child falls and bumps his head, and mother, running to help him, he immediately concentrates his mental faculties upon his injury, puts his hand up to judge of its size, thinks and feels it into a large and painful protuberance, begins to pity himself, lifts up his voice and weeps. If mother keeps her sympathy to herself, ignores the bump and draws the child's attention to some thing bright and pretty, his mind fastens itself upon the pleasing object to the exclusion of the bump, which, being thus put without the pale of his consciousness, ceases to be a source of pain and is forgotten—the child is spared the exertion of shedding tears and the trouble of drying them. The child but gives a faithful illustration of the effect produced upon human nature by what is commonly termed sympathy.

—A man in Rothschild, Neb., dressed himself in a shroud and laid himself carefully in a coffin which he had purchased. In this position he went to sleep. When his friends discovered him, some hours later, he was dead.

—A boy in Maine tried to kill the hired man by putting paris green in the jug of cider. The man drank every drop in the jug with a "hah!" of satisfaction, and observed that cider seemed to be getting the old-fashioned twang back.

WOODPECKER STORIES.

How the Clever Birds Secure Their Winter's Provisions.

In stripping off the bark of a tree I had felled, says a Canadian lumberman, I observed it perforated with holes larger than those which a musket bullet would make, spaced with most accurate precision, as if bored under the guidance of a rule and compass, and many of them filled most neatly with acorns. Earlier in the season I remarked the holes in most all the softer timber, but imagining they were caused by wood insects, I did not stop to examine or inquire; but now finding them studded with acorns firmly fixed in, which I knew could not have been driven there by the wind, I sought for an explanation, which was practically given me by Captain S——'s pointing out a flock of woodpeckers busily and noisily employed in the provident task of securing their winter's provisions; for it appears that the sagacious bird is not all the time thriftlessly engaged in "tapping the hollow beach tree" for the mere idle purpose of empty sound, but spends its summer season in picking those holes in which it lays its store of food for the winter, where the elements can neither affect nor place it beyond their reach, and it is considered a sure omen that the snowy period is approaching when these birds commence stowing away their acorns, which might otherwise be covered by its fall.

I frequently paused from my chopping to watch them in my neighborhood, with the acorns in their bills, half clawing, half flying round the tree, and admired the adroitness with which they tried it at the different holes, until they found one of its exact calibre; when, inserting the pointed end, they tapped it home most artistically with their beaks, and flew down for another. But their natural instinct is even more remarkable in the choice of the nuts, which you will invariably find sound; whereas it is a matter of impossibility, in selecting them for roasting, for a man to pick up a batch that will not have half of them unfit for use, the most safe and polished-looking frequently containing a large grub generated within. Even the wily Indian, with all his craft and experience, is unable to arrive at any thing like an unerring selection; while in a large bagful that we took from the bark of our log, there was not one containing the slightest germ of decay. They never encroach on their packed stores until all on the surface are covered, when they resort to those in the bark, and peck them of their contents without removing the shell from the holes. —N. Y. Ledger.

CONTAGION OF VENOM.

Frank Buckland's Unpremeditated Experiment With a Snake's Poison.

It is stated that the blood of an animal bitten by a venomous snake assumes poisonous properties. Frank Buckland on one occasion having seen a rat bitten and killed by a cobra, dissected off the skin to examine the wound. Having discovered the two minute punctures made by the poison fangs, he scraped away with his finger-nail the flesh on the inner side of the skin which he had removed. Unfortunately he had shortly before been cleaning his nail with a pen-knife and had slightly separated the nail from the skin beneath. When he had completed his rapid examination of the rat he walked away, characteristically stuffing the skin into his pocket (what strange things, alive and dead, did those pockets often contain!)

He had not walked one hundred yards before, all of a sudden, he felt just as if somebody had come behind him and struck him a severe blow on the head, and at the same time experienceda most acute pain and sense of oppression at the chest—"as though a hot iron had been run in and a one hundred weight put on top of it." He knew instantly from what he had read that he was poisoned. Luckily he obtained ammonia and brandy, but was ill for some days. "How virulent, therefore," he says, "must the poison of a cobra be! It already had been circulated in the body of the rat from which I had imbibed it at second-hand." From the account that he gave, however, it seems at least possible, if not probable, that some of the poison was hanging about the wound unabsorbed, and had thus entered his system directly and not, as he believed, indirectly. —Murray's Magazine.

A Wise Man's Prediction.

"Did you attend Mr. Brown's funeral yesterday, Mrs. Bruce?"

"Yes, and it was the saddest one I ever saw. Mrs. Brown was frantic. She would have leaped into the grave if they hadn't caught her."

"She'll be married inside of six months. I never knew it to fail with a woman like that."—Chicago Herald.

—Transparent paper for supporting the sensitive films used for photographic negatives has not been entirely satisfactory. For several years thin celluloid plates have been tried, and it is stated that during the past year these have been made a perfect light-weight substitute for plates of glass.

—Scalloped Cauliflower: Prepare the cauliflower, and steam or boil until tender. If boiled, use equal quantities of milk and water. Separate into bunches of equal size, place in a pudding-dish, cover with a cream sauce, sprinkle with grated bread crumbs, and brown in the oven.

—The polariscope has recently been applied to a novel use in France in determining the temperature of incandescent iron and other metals.

—A domineering man said to his wife: "Remember, my dear, that you are the weaker vessel." "That may be so," she retorted: "but I'll take good care that you shan't forget that the weaker vessel may have the stronger spirit in it."

—Snaggs—"I see an English physician has a new cure which consists in covering the patient with warm, fresh soil." Jaggs—"I s'pose the beauty of the treatment is that he never has to disinter a subject."—Drake's Magazine.

WEARYIN' FOR YOU.

Jest a-wearyin' for you,
All the time a-feelin' blue;
Wishin' for you, wonderin' when
You'll be comin' home agen;
Restless—don't know what to do,
Jest a-wearyin' for you.

Keep a-mopin' day by day;
Dull—in everybody's way.
Folks they smile and pass along
Wonderin' what on earth is wrong?
'Twou'dn't help 'em if they knew—
Jest a-wearyin' for you.

Room's so lonesome, with your chair
Empty by the fire-place there;
Jest can't stand the sight of it:
Go out doors an' roam a bit.
But the woods is lonesome too.
Jest a-wearyin' for you.

Comes the wind with soft caress
Like the rustlin' of your dress;
Blossoms fallin' to the ground
Softly like your footsteps sound;
Violet-like your eyes so blue,
Jest a-wearyin' for you.

Mornin' comes! The birds awake
(Use to sing so for your sake,)
But there's sadness in the notes
That come thrillin' from their throats!
Seem to feel your absence, too,
Jest a-wearyin' for you.

Evenin' falls: I miss you more
When the dark glooms in the door;
Seems jest like you orter be
There to open it for me!
Latch goes tinklin'—thrills me through,
Sets me wearyin' for you.

Jest a wearyin' for you!
All the time a feelin' blue!
Wishin' for you—wonderin' when
You'll be comin' home agen,
Restless—don't know what to do—
Jest a-wearyin' for you!

—T. L. Stanton, in Courier Journal.

CONCERNING GOURMETS.

The Varieties of Opinion as to the Dishes That Are Toothsome.

The story of Paganni and the turkey was particularly good; but here is one about Brillat Savarin, which I think is better: B. S. was a fugitive in this country three years from the reign of terror in France; he was a fine writer and better cook. "I was on a journey from Paris to Lyons once," he writes, "when I stopped at Sens for dinner. I was as rabid for food as a wolf—and you may imagine my feelings when on my asking the host what there was in his larder, he answered: 'Little enough.' 'Let's see about that,' said I, as I went on to where I perceived spits perfuming the air. What do you think I saw there? Four fat turkeys—actually four—browning to a turn! 'Why,' said I, 'they're good enough for me—one of them, in fact!' But the host said no. They were all bespoken by a gentleman up-stairs. Perdi! thought I; this gentleman up-stairs must be a second Gargantus! I will go up and entreat him for a bird. And I went. And what do you think I found? Who was the glutton but my own son! 'Father,' said he, 'at home you always devour the pope's nose, the choicest tidbit of all the kings' anatomy. I never get one. I was determined that I would have a feast for once so I ordered four turkeys. Now, as I only want my choice morsel, you may have the rest of 'em with pleasure.'"

One of the maxims of Hermion de Ponsey, the greatest magistrate France ever had, was that the man who discovered a new dish is of more importance than the astronomer who discovered a new planet, for the reason that we have planets enough for all practical purposes, while the palate of civilized man is always yearning for the things that make life endurable. Vatel, the maitre d'hotel of Conde, was the greatest cook that ever donned a chef's cap. His suicide, because of the non-arrival of some fish to complete a great supper he was preparing, is charmingly told by Mme. de Sevigne; next to Vatel was Careme, whose memoirs have lately been published. Vatel was born in Rouen, Normandy, as were also Bechamel, Robert and Merilion, whose fame as masters of the culinary art is historical.

A genuine epicure has some peculiar fancy of his own as regards cooking. Sam Ward in his day was the model liner out, and he had his Maryland hams boiled with straw around them. An Episcopal clergyman in Poughkeepsie prefers them boiled in wine. Judge Henry Allen considered a mongrel goose the greatest thing in the eating line, and Congressman Scott, of Pennsylvania, always wants to cook his oysters himself. Secretary Bayard is also a fine cook, and, in fact, a great many statesmen can prepare certain dishes. Dinners in Washington are generally delightful affairs as the public men give much attention to them, and most of the diplomats are good talkers. The first maxim of the diplomats is to keep a good table and cultivate the ladies.

Here in the United States our choice is oysters, terrapin, canvas back duck and turkey. A Greenlander's great luxury is a half putrid whale's tail or a walrus liver; and a trapper in the far north has for a relish beaver tail and bear's paw. They eat their rum and chew their brandy, as everything freezes, and an arctic sandwich is a frozen slice of whisky between two slices of beer. Porpoise meat was once a favored dish with the English nobility, but now "there's no hale like the Hinglish hale, and no beef like the Hinglish beef." A delicious morsel to the Australian is kangaroo and the wild dingo. The Ottomacs in South America eat clay as a luxury, but with some people, even in our own Southern States, it is a necessity. Baked elephant's trunk, palm worms fried in their own fat, roasted spiders and mice are the favorite dainties with the tribes of Africa; and the natives of the West Indies can abide anything but a rabbit stew. In China the diet is shark's fins, bird's nest soup, ducks' tongues and the chrysalis of the silkworm after the silk has been wound from it. And so on throughout the entire world, each nation having its particular specialties. —Hartford Times.

—Mme. Munemitsu Mutsu, wife of the Japanese Minister at Washington, entertains her intimate friends with music on the "koto," the Japanese piano. It is six feet long by about eight inches wide, and the silk strings are drawn lengthwise on the rounded top. Mme. Mutsu is a clever performer on the "koto," and she is especially acceptable when she renders the music of the "Mikado.

FORTUNE'S FAVORITES.

Two Families Made Happy by the Louisiana State Lottery.

"I think you are foolish not to keep at least one whole coupon for yourself," said a friend to James Adams, a well-known hay and grain dealer, who, having purchased half a dozen tickets for the May drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, was engaged in disposing of half-interests in each to some of his acquaintances. "It seems to me," continued the friend, "that you are sacrificing your luck; try for the whole prize."

"I will, for once," laughed Adams; "but I've no luck in that direction, never had."

He did as he said, ensconsed the ticket, a twentieth of 50,416, in an inside corner of his pocket-book and walked off thinking no more of it. May 14th, the day of the drawing came, and with others Mr. Adams pressed up to the bulletin-board whereon the lucky numbers were written. Much to his delight he recognized on the first line the figures of his own ticket, entitling him to the handsome sum of $15,000. Without an instant's delay he placed the lucky coupon with Wells Fargo & Co., for collection, and a few days ago he received his money. Mr. Adams possesses considerable property in various parts of the city, a portion of which was mortgaged. His first application of the windfall was to relieve himself of these incumbrances, and with a portion of the remainder he proposes to take a trip to Europe.

A lottery ticket has often enough enabled two lovers to unite their lives, but one seldom hears of a similar office being performed by the same agency for a married couple. This has been the experience of Mr. Alfred and Mrs. Margaret Friot, who a few days before May 14th, were at daggers drawn. They kept Stall 57, Washington Market, as a cheese and butter stand, and both were so thoroughly dissatisfied with the other that each applied for a divorce. Their applications were denied, strange to say, but they continued to live separate. On the day after the drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery, the two met, and the husband proudly exhibited a coupon numbered 50,416, entitling him to one-twentieth of the capital prize of $300,000—$15,000.

"Come to my arms," said the erstwhile disgruntled wife, and they embraced exuberantly. The next thing was to collect the money, and the pair descended on the Wells, Fargo Bank post-haste; sent their coupon through to New Orleans, and a few days ago they received their prize in gold coin. They are now on their way to Europe, with hearts that once more beat in unison.—San Francisco (Cal.) Call, June 5.

A man knows all about that "all gone" feeling the patent medicine advertisements speak of just after he has lost all his money at poker.

LEND YOUR CONSTITUTION A HAND.

Constitutions are much alike and in nine tenths of us the same causes produce the same effects. Vertigo, dizziness, or pain of any kind, excepting that of an injury, can come only when there is in our bodies some impurity of the blood which we have not sufficient vitality to throw off without help. Therefore, the proper thing to do is to get immediately the necessary help. No aid is so effective as BRANDRETH'S PILLS. When you feel these ills coming on take from three to ten of these pills, according to your weight, and be relieved at once. Never put off the feeling by thinking you will soon be over it. Take the pills and do not rack the constitution.

If a Georgia man wants to marry his mother-in-law, the law will stop him. Such a law may be needed in Georgia.

THE WISEST GIFT.

"I bought my wife a velvet sack."
Thus Proudly boasted Mr. Brown.
"She'll be, with that upon her back,
The best-dressed dame in town."
But velvet sack or diamond ring
Can bring no balm to suffering wife.
Favorite Prescription is the thing
To save her precious life.

The great and sovereign remedy, known the world over, for all female troubles, inflammation, crue backaches, and internal displacements is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is the only guaranteed cure. See guarantee on every bottle-wrapper.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets—gently laxative or actively cathartic according to dose. 25 cents.

Exiles from Chicago will soon be able to drop a nickel in the slot and secure a pardon.

Any man that puts an article in reach of overworked women to lighten her labor is certainly a benefactor. Cragin & Co. surely come under this head in making Dobbins' Electric Soap so cheap that all can use it. You give it a trial.

A Continuation of a Cough for any length of time causes irritation of the lungs, or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effective Cough Remedy. Prices 25 cts. Sold only in boxes.

More awful nepotism—hundreds of red ants in the White House.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully,
T. A. SLOCUM, M. C., 181 Pearl st., New York.

OREGON THE PARADISE OF FARMERS.

Mild, equable climate, certain and abundant crops. Best fruit, grain, grass and stock country in the world. Full information free. Address the Oregon Immigration Board, Portland, Oregon.

DO you smoke a pipe? If you do, take the advice of thousands of old smokers that have tried it, and smoke "Seal of North Carolina" Plug Cut.

YOU will find it the best Smoking Tobacco ever sold on this coast. It is made from three year old Tobacco,—smokes soft and cool, and will last twice as long as the many cheap imitations that are flooding the market.

SMOKE Seal of North Carolina and you at once see why it has the largest sale of any Tobacco on the coast.

 If your dealer does not keep it he will get it for you, if he values your trade.*

MANHOOD! HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Read Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated "Essay on the Radical Cure of Seminal Weakness," induced by early indiscretion and excesses.—The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from 30 years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of said disease may be cured cheaply, privately and radically no matter what the condition of sufferer may be. This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and man. Sent under seal in a plain envelope, post-paid. Free sample of medicine sent on application.

The Culverwell Medicine Co.
Established 1850. Post Office Box 450, New York.

Members of the Italian press in Berlin were banqueted recently.

EVERY SYMPTOM GONE.

Probably no disease inflicts so much continuous pain as Rheumatism. Over no single complaint has Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., won more cures than Rheumatism. By its use the agonized patient can once more use his limbs and feed from past years of pain.

Mr. Frank Strait, a well-known merchant of New Hamburgh, N. Y., says: "I suffered tortures from Sciatic Rheumatism. My case was a very bad one, and none of the means taken gave me relief. I use Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., am entirely rid of every symptom of my trouble. Only three bottles brought about this wonderful result. It has built me up and been of great benefit to me in other ways. I heartily recommend it to other sufferers.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, made at Rondout, N. Y. $1; 6 for $5.

Send for book, how to cure Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders.

Customer—I like this painting. It is well worth $15. Clerk—That price includes a nice frame, madam. The frame alone costs $12.

DISARMING AN UNSEEN FOE.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxilliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defense against which the enemy is powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

"How long do mosquitos live?" asks a correspondent. That depends a good deal on the kind of fellow they light on.

White Elephant of Siam, Lion of England, Dragon of China, Cross of Switzerland, Banner of Persia, Crescent of Egypt, Double Eagle of Russia, Star of Chili, the Circle of Japan, Harp of Erin.

To get these buy a box of the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. We will then mail you the above list with an elegant package of oleographic and chromatic cards. Fleming Bros., Pittburgh, Pa.

Old Lady—I hope, my boy, you don't sell papers Sunday? Small Newsboy, (sadly)—No, mum, I ain't big enough t carry a Sunday edition yet.

The country is flooded with poor imitations of "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut Smoking Tobacco."

Try Germes for Breakfast.

FULL WEIGHT PURE
DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE

Its superior excellence proven in millions of homes for more than a quarter of a century. It is used by the United States Government. Indorsed by the heads of the Great Universities as the Strongest Purest and Most Healthful. Dr. Price's the only Baking Powder that does not contain Ammonia, Lime or Alum. Sold only in Cans.
PRICE BAKING POWDER CO.,
NEW YORK, CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

C. H. WEBB'S HÆMONY.

If you want to be permanently cured of Rheumatism, Gout, or any disease of the blood, try WEBB'S HÆMONY, 40 O Farrell street, San Francisco.

$25 Reward for a Case it won't Cure.

None genuine without my signature on stopper of every bottle.

SEND FOR CIRCULARS

$160 PER MONTH

And expenses to represent the Pacific Land and Loan Co.
In this County. Best of references required. Apply at Home Office.
Flood Building, San Francisco, Cal.

GARMENTS Guaranteed TO FIT PERFECT without trying on.

FREE by return mail, full descriptive circulars of MOODY'S NEW TAILOR SYSTEM OF DRESS CUTTING. Any lady of ordinary intelligence can easily and quickly learn to cut and make any garment, in any style to any measure for lady or child. Address MOODY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued March and Sept., each year. It is an encyclopedia of useful information for all who purchase the luxuries or the necessities of life. We can clothe you and furnish you with all the necessary and unnecessary appliances to ride, walk, dance, sleep, eat, fish, hunt, work, go to church, or stay at home, and in various sizes, styles and quantities. Just figure out what is required to do all these things COMFORTABLY, and you can make a fair estimate of the value of the BUYERS' GUIDE, which will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents to pay postage.
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO
111-114 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

$75.00 TO $250.00 A MONTH can be made working for us. Agents preferred who can furnish a horse and give their whole time to the business. Spare moments may be profitably employed also. A few vacancies in towns and cities. B. F. JOHNSON & CO., 1009 Main St., Richmond, Va. N. B.—Please state age and business experience. Never mind about sending stamp for reply. B. F. J. & Co.

BEST COUGH MEDICINE,
PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.
It has permanently cured THOUSANDS of cases pronounced by doctors hopeless. If you have premonitory symptoms, such as Cough, Difficulty of Breathing, &c., don't delay, but use PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION immediately. By Druggists. 25 cents.

For Cure of SPRAINS & STRAINS use St. Jacobs Oil. Cures PROMPTLY AND PERMANENTLY WITHOUT RETURN OF PAIN. AT DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS EVERYWHERE. THE CHAS. A. VOGELER CO. BALTO. MD.

R. HALL'S PULMONARY BALSAM PRICE 50 CENTS. —FOR— Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Croup, Influenza, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Whooping-Cough, Loss of Voice, Incipient Consumption, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.
J. R. CATES & CO., PROP'S.
117 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

FOR THE BLOOD.

Swift's Specific has cured me of a malignant breaking out on my leg, which caused intolerable pain. It was called Eczema by the doctors—four of whom treated me with no relief. I candidly confess that I owe my present good health to S. S. S., which in my estimation is invaluable as a blood remedy. MISS JULIA DEWITT, 2037 N. 10th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Our baby when two months old was attacked with Scrofula, which for a long time destroyed her eyesight entirely, and caused us to despair of her life. The doctor failed to relieve her, and we gave Swift's Specific, which soon cured her entirely, and she is now hale and hearty. E. V. DEAK, Will's Point, Texas.

Send for book giving history of Blood Diseases and advice to sufferers mailed free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

CALIFORNIA FIREWORKS

We are prepared to supply the trade with a full line of Fireworks, Firecrackers, Flags, Balloons, Toy Pistols, Etc. Illustrated Catalogue furnished on application. A specialty of extra exhibition work. Correspondence solicited with Committees in charge of public celebrations.
CALIFORNIA FIREWORKS CO.,
12 and 14 Pine St., San Francisco, Cal.

CHICHESTER'S ENGLISH PENNYROYAL PILLS
RED CROSS DIAMOND BRAND.

Original, best, only genuine and reliable pill for sale. Never Fail. Ask for Chichester's English Diamond Brand, in red metallic boxes, sealed with blue ribbon. At Druggists. Accept no other. All pills in pasteboard boxes, pink wrappers, are a dangerous counterfeit. Send 4c. (stamps) for particulars and "Relief for Ladies," in letter, by return mail. 10,000 testimonials from LADIES who have used them. Name Paper.
Chichester Chemical Co., Madison Sq., Phila., Pa.

MANLY COURAGE AND VIGOR RESTORED. HOW TO ACT! ADVICE FREE! Men suffering from Lost Vigor, Nervous Debility, Premature Decline, etc., resulting from indiscretions, excesses, etc. cured without Stomach Drugging, by THE MARSTON TREATMENT. Sealed book sent free. Address, THE MARSTON CO., 19 Park Place, New York.

A BIG SHOW

Smith's Cash Store, 416 Front St., S. F., Cal. largest general dealers west of the Mississippi River. Dry Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Underwear; Wall Paper, Stationery; Blankets, Bedding; Boots, and Shoes; Canned Goods, Dry Fruits; Wooden, Tin, Crockery, Glass, Granite and Hardware. Meat, Fish, Provisions, Honey Grain, Feed, Groceries, Pure Spices, Seeds, Beans; Drugs, Medecines; Clocks, Ammunition, Rubber Goods, Tents, and quantities of other goods at lowest prices for Cash only. Send 2c. stamp for full list by first mail, and learn how to live cheap and well at small cost; 32 years in business; Customers in every County west of the Rocky Mountains, and many elsewhere.

ASTHMA CURED
German Asthma Cure never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases, insures comfortable sleep; effects cures where all others fail. A trial convinces the most skeptical. Price 50c. and $1.00, of Druggists or by mail. Sample FREE for stamp. DR. R. SCHIFFMAN, St. Paul, Minn.

ORATORS say Piso's Cure for Consumption is THE BEST for keeping the voice clear. 25 cents.

WELL DRILLS,

FOR ALL PURPOSES.
Have made 2 feet a minute with the
AUSTIN TRIUMPH.
Send 20c for mailing Catalogue.
F. C. AUSTIN M'FG. CO.,
Cor. Carpenter Street and Carroll Avenue, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

SINGERS who have used Piso's Cure for Consumption say it is BEST OF ALL. Sold everywhere. 25c.

$5 to $8 a day. Samples worth $2.15 FREE. Lines not under horses' feet. Write Brewster Safety Rein Holder Co., Holly, Mich.

SURE. SAFE. SPEEDY.
PANAMA SPECIFIC will always relieve ladies. Pleasant to take. Guaranteed to succeed or money refunded. Once tried you will never be without it. By registered mail $1.50. Send postal note to Panama Specific Co. box 328, Oakland, Cal.

STEINWAY. KRANICH, PEASE & BACH, Gabler, Roemish Pianos; Burdett Organs, Band Instruments. Largest stock of Sheet Music and Books. Bands supplied at Eastern Prices. MATTHIAS GRAY CO., 206 Post Street, San Francisco.

BIG G. Cures in 1 TO 5 DAYS. Guaranteed not to cause Stricture. Mfd only by the Evans Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio. Trade Mark. I prescribe and fully endorse Big G as the only specific for the certain cure of this disease. G. H. INGRAHAM, M. D., Amsterdam, N. Y. We have sold Big G for many years, and it has given the best of satisfaction. D. R. DYCHE & CO., Chicago, Ill. $1.00. Sold by Druggists.

I CURE FITS!
I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a free bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Post Office. H. G. ROOT, M. C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

Harvest Hands!
And all other kinds of Help furnished at short notice. Wire, Telephone or Mail your orders to C. R. HANSEN & CO., Employment Agents, 110 Geary St., San Francisco, Cal. Telephone 485.

Smith— "I know 'tis a sin to,
But I'm bent on the notion,
I'll throw myself into
The deep, briny ocean."

Brown—"Fie, fie, my good friend, don't give way to your ailments so easily, and settle down into such gloom and despondency. There's no excuse for such conduct, when it's a well-known fact that all your bad feelings, terrible headaches, poor appetite, sense of fatigue, and lassitude, low-spirits, and hypochondriacal condition are due to torpid liver and consequent indigestion, and debility, which will all give way and disappear, as the dew before the morning sun, if you but make use of that world-famed anti-bilious, tonic medicine known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded. It cured me when I was in a much worse condition than you are, and if you will only try it, you will soon be singing—

"But my spirit shall wander
Through gay coral bowers,
And frisk with the mermaids
It shall, by the Powers!"

Copyright, 1888, by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors.

CATARRH IN THE HEAD, no matter of how long standing, is permanently cured by DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY. 50 cents, by druggists.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
SATURDAY.... AUGUST 10 1889

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXI. NO. 9. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., AUGUST 10, 1889. WHOLE NO. 980.

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

C. MULHOLLAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year (post-paid)	$4 00
Six months	2 50
Three months	1 25
One month	0 50
Single copies	0 10

Not So Bad as All That.

It is well known that fishermen, after getting a fare at the Georges, make haste to get to Boston, as the earliest arrivals get the best prices. A worthy captain who sails out of Boston having been fortunate enough to secure an unusually large quantity of fish crowded on all sail and started for home. A severe storm arose during which three men were washed overboard and lost. One of these was a native of Portugal. The loss was a severe blow to the captain, who had been congratulating himself upon receiving the commendation of the owners of the vessel for the very large fare he had secured. The news of the loss of the men preceded the vessel's arrival, and the owners were aware of it and looked down with very grave faces upon the captain as he sheered alongside of the wharf.

"We've got the biggest fare that's come to this wharf, you bet," said the captain.

"What good is that," said one of the owners, "when you have lost three men?"

"Who says that?" asked the captain.

"Why the tug boat brought in the news."

"That we'd lost three men?"

"Yes."

"Well, it ain't so bad as all that. Only two men and a Portugee."—Boston Courier.

Easily Found.

Aged New Yorker—I've often wondered what became of my playmate, Will Winkel, whose parents removed to Philadelphia while he was very young. Sixty years ago he was an errand boy in a Market street store, but I haven't heard of him since.

Philadelphian (astonished)—Well, why don't you go to the store and inquire? Most likely he is there yet.—New York Weekly.

Only Tempted.

"Boy!" shouted a Michigan avenue grocer, "didn't I see you pocket an apple from that barrel?"

"No, sir."

"Look out! You were acting very suspicious. I was watching you."

"Yes, I knew you were, and that's the reason I didn't make a grab and run for it."—Detroit Free Press.

A Sure Sign.

Merritt—I'm afraid Cora's love for me isn't just what it might be.

Giles—That's nonsense, old boy. She fairly idolizes you.

Merritt—I don't know so much about that. I gave her a costly present last night, and before she thanked me she ran up stairs to show it to her mother.—Judge.

Altogether Too Natural.

Friend—That sun in your last painting is very natural.

Artist—Yes, altogether too natural.

Friend—Why do you say that?

Artist—Because it dries up the water in that pond so fast that I have to paint new water every three or four days.—Judge.

A Subject for Lynching.

"What is the most unlucky part of a cook?" asked old Chestnut.

"Out with it."

"Her hair, of course."

"How's that?"

"Because, you know, it is always falling into the soup."—The Epoch.

Let in for Their Sake.

"Why, there is old Hobbs! How did he get here? He's not one of the Four Hundred."

"No, but his children came of very good family on their mother's side, and he is tolerated for their sake."—Harper's Bazar.

A Brilliant Idea.

Hardware Dealer—Now, Mr. Rusticus, there's what I call a bargain. That stove has a quick oven, and the draught is so arranged that it will save one-half your fuel.

Mrs. R. (who is a student of economics)—La sakes, pa! why not get two, and save all the fuel?—Harper's Bazar.

He Wanted a Show.

"You must stop this smoking during business hours," said the head clerk.

"What's the matter?" inquired one of the boys.

"The boss says he can't appreciate his five cent cigar when you clerks are puffing your Henry Clays."—The Epoch.

How He Made It.

She—Who's that finely dressed gentleman with the immense diamond stud in his shirt bosom?

He—That? Oh, that's one of the fellows who sold Washington medals on the street in New York during the centennial.—Burlington Free Press.

It Would Make No Difference.

A lady, greatly excited, asks to see the editor of a daily paper, and is told that it is impossible, the editor being too busy to speak to any one, no matter who it may be. "Oh, that makes no difference," is her reply, "I shall do all the talking myself."—Paris Figaro.

Polite.

Fannie tried very hard to be polite and speak correctly. At church one day she met a little friend who had been sick for some time. In asking about her affliction Fannie said: "Did you enjoy much pain when you were ill?"—Youth's Companion.

He Changed the Subject.

He—Miss Travis, do you look favorably upon my suit?

She—Certainly; it fits you beautifully.—Burlington Free Press.

Like Every One Else.

A St. Louis man named Pye left a large estate. It turns out that his relatives, like other people, were fond of Pye.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Strange but True.

The moths have strange tastes. They frequently appear in overcoats in summer weather.—Fort Plain Free Press.

Tip to Termagants.

A "sense of humor" is so much depraised
By critics, that one might suppose it raised
To the high rank of a new cardinal virtue.
Well, 'tis a gift that helps and cannot hurt you.
But if you'd cultivate this gift delightful,
You must abandon hate, and cut the spiteful;
For whatsoever angry fools may rumor,
You can't be humorous when you're out of humor!
—London Punch.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

How a Chicago Sleuth Obtained a Clew to a Mysterious Crime.

"I'll follow him to the ends of the earth! He shall not escape me!"

The tall, powerfully-built man, attired in a suit of dark blue, who hissed these words through his set teeth stood in the shadow of a one-story coal house in a dark, noisome, Philadelphia-like alley, and watched with widely-staring eyes a figure moving slowly along down the Hong Kong district of Clark street.

The watcher was wide awake, and the saloons had not yet closed for the night.

It was evident he was not a policeman.

Emerging from the alley he followed stealthily the object of his pursuit, like a sleuth-hound on track of its prey. Moving along in the shadow of the buildings and halting now and then, but never relaxing for one instant his eager watchfulness, he kept his man in sight for nearly an hour.

Down Clark to Harrison, west on Harrison to the river, across the bridge to Canal, up Canal to Monroe, and westward on that street for many and many a weary block moved this singular—or rather plural—procession.

"He little thinks he is followed," muttered the relentless pursuer. "I'll shadow him to his lair now if it takes till the next centennial!"

At last the man whom he was following halted at a modest dwelling, opened the gate that afforded entrance to the little yard in front, and as he turned to close it his face, plainly visible in the glare of a street lamp close by, was for one brief moment exposed to the hawk-like gaze of the mysterious pursuer in the dark blue suit, who had crouched in the shadow of a friendly Indian cigar sign across the way. The next instant he had disappeared within the house.

With a smothered cry of exultation the eager watcher took out a notebook and pencil and jotted down a memorandum. His fingers trembled with excitement.

"I saw his face!" he said, in a hysterical whisper. "I was not mistaken. And now I have his street and number. At last I am on the trail. If he finds out any thing about that mysterious disappearance I'll know just where he goes to get it. Ha! At last! At last!"

* * * * * * *

He was a high-priced detective shadowing a fifteen-dollar a week newspaper reporter to see if he could find some clew to the latest mystery that was baffling the entire force.—Chicago Tribune.

WILLIAM AT HOME.

Like His Grandfather the Young Emperor Loves to Live Simply.

A writer in the Berlin Tageblatt gives some interesting particulars concerning the home life of the Emperior, William II. Like his grandfather, the Emperior loves to live simply, and, when his habits are not interfered with by the presence of distinguished guests at the castle, he rises at seven, breakfasts at 7:30 and dines with the Empress at the unfashionable hour of one. His favorite relaxation is to play with his children.

Every day he receives upon the average about six hundred letters. These are brought to him on a salver as they arive, and he opens those letters which bear a hand-writing, a coat of arms or a postmark which is known to him or excites his curiosity. The rest of the correspondence goes unopened to the Civil Cabinet, the members of which deal with it as may be necessary. The majority of the envelopes contain begging letters or personal petitions. The Emperor has only one body servant at a time in attendance upon him, and this man shaves him, takes care of his wardrobe, and affords him what assistance he requires while dressing.

Much of the Emperor's time is spent in his private library, where he writes much and rapidly. Every new book and every newspaper dealing with military or naval subjects, whether it be in German, French, Russian or English, is seen by him, and besides being a regular bibliomaniac so far as regards books on strategy and military history, he is an enthusiastic collector of portraits and autographs of his more celebrated contemporaries. He leaves the education of his children entirely to the direction of the Empress, who is not only a strict disciplinarian, but also extremely attentive to the religious training of the young Princes. This she at present herself undertakes. The children have various masters and governnesses who visit them; but they have as yet no military governor, or even any personal servants or attendants beyond such a nursery staff as might be found in any well-to-do bourgeois family in Berlin. At the outset of his reign the Emperor rendered himself somewhat notorious by his readiness to speak in public. Curiously enough he has the reputation among his personal friends of being one of the most silent of men, save on the rare occasions when he throws off the monarch and gives reign to his natural high spirits. So much is this the case that in his household the saying is: "The Emperor never speaks: he only orders."

—Fig Cake.—One and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, the whites of four eggs, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking-powder, one cupful of milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour. For filling, cut one dozen figs into small pieces, barely cover with water and let them come to a boil, then remove from the stove immediately. Have ready the whites of four well-beaten eggs; add to these the figs and one cupful of sugar; mix well and spread between the layers.

CURRENT SUPERSTITIONS.

Information Obtained from Old Women in Countries Near and Far.

The funeral procession must not cross a river.

The last name a dying person calls is the next to follow.

A dish-cloth hung on a door-knob is a sign of death in a family.

The corpse must not pass twice over any part of the same road.

To dance on the ground indicates disaster or death within a year.

Whoever works on a sick person's dress he or she will die within a year.

If a hoe be carried through a house some one will die before the year is out.

If thirteen sit at a table the one who rises first will not live through the year.

The person on whom the eyes of a dying person last rest will be the first to die.

Whoever counts the carriages at a passing funeral will die within the year.

To break a looking-glass is a sign of death in the family before the year closes.

If three persons look at the same time into a mirror one will die within the year.

The clock should be stopped at the time of death, as its running will bring ill luck.

If one dies, and no rigor mortis ensues, it indicates a speedy second death in the family.

If a hearse is drawn by two white horses death in the neighborhood will occur in a month.

It is unlucky in a funeral for those present to repass the house where death has occurred.

If rain falls on a new-made grave there will be another death in the family within the year.

If the grave is left open over Sunday another death will occur before the Sunday following.

To keep the corpse in the house over Sunday will bring death in the family before the year is out.

It is unlucky to pass through a funeral, either between the carriages or the files of mourners on foot.

If rain falls into an open grave another burial in the cemetery will occur within three days.

At a funeral entering a church before the mourners means death to some of the entering party.

To put on a bonnet or hat of one in mourning is the sign that you will wear one before the year is out.

If any one comes to a funeral after the procession starts another death will occur in the same house.

In Switzerland, if a grave is left open over Sunday, it is said that within four weeks one of the village will die.

If, during sickness, a pair of shears be dropped in such a manner that the point sticks into the floor, it indicates the death of the sick person.

When a woman who has been sewing puts her thimble on the table as she sits down to eat, it is a sign that she will be left a widow if she marries.

A common saying in England is: "Happy is the corpse the rain falls on." This belief exists also in the United States. Thus it is said that if rain falls at the time of the funeral it is a sign that the dead has gone to Heaven.—Chicago Mail.

THE CARPET MOTH.

Several Methods of Attacking and Destroying This Household Pest.

Where carpets are used and only taken up once a year at "house-cleaning," the conditions are very favorable for the carpet bug's increase, particularly where the house-cleaning is hurriedly done. When a house has once become infested, nothing but the most energetic measures will completely rid it of the pest, and in complete riddance is the only hope, as in a year a very few individuals will so increase as to do great damage. At house-cleaning time then, as many rooms should be bared at once as possible, and the house-keeper should go carefully over the rooms, removing all dust, and with a hand-atomizer charged with benzine should puff the liquid into all the floor cracks and under the base-boards until every crevice has been reached. The carpets themselves, after thorough beating, should be lightly sprayed with the same substance, which will quickly evaporate, leaving no odor after a short time. The inflammability of benzine should be remembered, however, and no light should be brought near it. This done, before relaying the carpets, it will be well to pour into the cracks a moderately thick mixture of plaster of Paris and water, which soon sets and fills them with a solid substance into which the insects will not enter. Then lay around the borders of the room a width of tarred roofing-paper, and afterward relay the carpets. This thorough treatment should answer in the very worst cases, and in a house so cleaned the insect will probably not regain a foothold during the ensuing year. Cloth-covered furniture which may have also become infested should be steamed or also treated with benzine, and chests or drawers in which infested clothing has been stored should be thoroughly sprayed.

Another method of treatment consists in laying a damp cloth (an old towel or a folded sheet will do) smoothly over the suspected part of the carpet, and ironing it with a hot iron. The steam thus generated will pass through the carpet and kill all the insects immediately beneath. If not too laborious, an entire room could be treated to advantage in this way.—Good Housekeeping.

THE DICTIONARY.

Ways in Which Its Pages May Be a Source of Much Pleasure.

A big book is the dictionary. The young people who during the past few weeks have been hunting out the words for the prize contest have had a good chance to find out that it is also an interesting one. How many of our young people are there who have stopped to give a thought to the simplicity yet vastness of scope of our language as exhibited in the dictionary's pages? Open your unabridged and let us for a moment look at this. Between the pages of this one book, many leaved though it be, is found the complete realm of thought. Every idea that has possessed the mind of man is here abstractly represented by the printed word or sign, and from just these words, strung over and over again into simple and stirring sentences, the master minds of the world have formed the great mass of writings. There are upward of 120,000 words in the dictionary, and yet all these words are but varied combinations of twenty-six letters.

Have you ever tried this game? No? Well, suppose then you get out your dictionary and commence. The game is well adapted for two persons, although a larger number may as readily play it. One of you open promiscuously at a page and commence reading off the words. It is the object of your opponent to spell correctly as many words as possible, and also to define or give his idea as to the meaning of the words. Keep on to the end of the page, and when finished let another page be selected and the test applied to you in the same manner.

Whoever gets the greatest number right is, of course, the victor. The only way to realize the sport of this game is to try it. You will be surprised at the number of words you don't know. You will be astonished at the number you do know. You will meet with, probably on every page, words that you never heard of. This is a fascinating game, and one that will increase your stock of knowledge. Try it!

Did you ever go searching for the longest word in the language? Set your friends to work at this and let them bring to you the result. Some one has said in answer to this question that the longest word in the language is "smiles," because there is a mile between the first and last letters. This is witty, but just not to the purpose. The longest word the 8 o'clock man has been able to find is "disproportionableness." This contains twenty-one letters.

Another interesting thing of this kind is to find the largest words whose letters will admit of a complete transposition into another word. For instance, the letters comprising the word "peripatetic" are identical with those of "precipitate," while the letters of "enumeration," are readily transposed into "mountaineer." Can you find any similar eleven letter words?

Despite the many patented poetic appliances of the present day, and in spite of all that is heard of the men who manufacture rhymes for poets, there are a number of words in our language to get a good rhyme for which a writer is often hard pushed. There are some words to which there seem to be no rhyming words. As an illustration see if our readers can find a word to rhyme with the comparatively easy one "silver." It has long been supposed that there is no rhyme to "month." A good authority says there is a rhyme to it—not "onety onth," or any lisping versions of such words as "once," "dunce," etc., but a legitimate word in every day use. Let us see who can guess it. The word "orange" is also mentioned as going begging for rhymes, while the dabbler in amatory verse has ever felt the necessity for more words rhyming with "love."

The genial author of the popular "Pinafore," who has been aptly mentioned as the "master of verbal contortion," has felt the restriction of these limitations, and furnishes some facts from his own experience. "Revenge" and "avenge" have no rhyme but "Penge" and "Stonehenge;" "coif" has no rhyme at all. "Starve" has no rhyme except "carve," "Scarf" has no rhyme, as "laugh" and "half" and "calf" certainly are not admissible. "Scalp" has no rhyme but "alp." "False" has no rhyme; "valse" is near it, but the French accent disqualifies it; "waltz" is near it, but the "t" spoils it. "Babe" has no rhyme but "astrolabe," certain proper names excepted. "Gamboge" has no rhyme but "rogue." "Tube" would be rhymeless save for "cube" and "jujube." "Fugue" has no rhyme at all. "Gulf" rhymes with no English word. We have to fall back on "Cardinal Pandulph" and "Ulf," the minstrel. "Azimuth" has only "doth." "Culm" and "cusp" have no English rhymes.—New York World.

The Inscription.

A young man of Nantucket, becoming engaged recently, was desirous of presenting his intended with a ring appropriately inscribed, but, being at a loss what to have engraved upon it, he called upon his father for advice.

"Well," said the old man, "put on, 'When this you see, remember me.'"

The young lady was much surprised a few days after at receiving a beautiful ring with this inscription:

"When this you see, remember father."

Thomasville's Chicken Trade.

Allie Pringle asked us if we had any idea of the amount of Thomasville's trade in chickens and eggs. We hadn't. He said that it amounted to more than the cotton trade, that they sold, on an average, $10 worth of eggs a day the year round, and that their trade in chickens and eggs alone would amount to over $10,000 a year.—Thomasville, Ga., Times.

Charles Munroe, of Columbus, Ga., has a radish grown on his truck farm which is an exact counterpart of a human hand, having four perfect fingers and a thumb; the wrist and general outline of the forearm was also a fac-simile.

LAST OF HARI-KARI.

An Unexpected Incident Which Will Probably Change the Mikado's Methods.

The ancient Japanese custom of Hari-Kari, or Happy Dispatch, has received its death-blow. For centuries it has been usual for any exalted Japanese dignitary who may have mortally offended his sovereign to receive a polite official intimation to the effect that his suicide will be pleasing to the authorities; and until recently it has been the unvarying practice for the offender to acquiesce resignedly, and, after summoning his relatives around him, to formally disembowel himself in their presence. If the culprit happened to be of exceptionally high rank, the sovereign would, as mark of honor, send him a jeweled sword with which to operate upon himself. But all these things are now of the past. Not long ago the Mikado was grievously hurt by the words and conduct of a high court official. The man was an old and very valued servant of the crown, but his crime was unpardonable. Next day, therefore, an officer brought him the fatal sword, a magnificent weapon, with a blade inlaid with gold and a handle incrusted with diamonds, together with a sympathetic intimation that his early death would be regarded as a benefit to the empire in general and to the Mikado in particular. The culprit received the sword with all proper respect, but as soon as the emissary had departed the wily Japanese—in whose mind European habits of thought had evidently taken firm root—walked down to the quay, went on board a small steamer that was bound for Havre, and upon reaching Paris incontinently sold his sword of honor for £6,000. We never met with a better illustration of the eminently practical nature of the Japanese character. It is exceedingly unlikely that the Mikado will ever again trust one of his subjects to execute himself. Still less will His Majesty be inclined to favor exalted criminals with jeweled swords of honor. The office of a lord high executioner will probably be called into requisition instead, and wicked nobles will, for the future, be saved the trouble and anxiety of having to be their own butchers.—London Globe.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

How to Satisfy the Ever-Growing Demand for Hard Facts.

While we have never insisted that work-benches will be introduced into every district school in our land, we do insist, and have insisted for years, on the introduction of sense-exercises and sensible expressions of sense-exercises in every school, high and low, rich and poor. We are living in an age of realism. Theories are at a discount. Hard facts are in demand. The education that touches the life that is, is highly valued. In this material age of ours we must not lose sight of the spiritual, but we must also not lose sight of the fact that the spiritual of the present largely comes through the material, and that by the material the true spiritual life of an individual becomes practical, earnest and useful. We believe in God, but we also believe in man. We believe in the Kingdom of God, but we believe also that to the kingdom of man He has committed the care of this lower world. Here in the midst of things we fight the battle of life, and it is by means of things that we handle, see, feel, taste and smell; and so become lifted above the materiality of the world, into higher, spiritual, earnest, practical, common-sense religion. The great heart of the world throbs in unison with the working men in it. The time for lazy, dignified do-nothings has passed away, and the time of active, earnest laborers in the shops, on the farms, among the mountains, and in the rooms where the thinking is done, has fully come. We are going to say, over and over again many more times, life is real. Let us make it so in all our schools!—School Journal.

HER ENGAGEMENT RING.

First the Bashful Fiancee Tries to Hide It, But She Soon Grows Bold.

Did you ever have a chance to observe, unobserved, a young woman's conduct toward her newly-acquired engagement ring? It seems so strange upon her hand that she can not refrain examining it a dozen times an hour, always, however, on the sly. On the first night she sits up an hour later than usual to admire it boldly in the seclusion of her own apartment. A frequent kiss is administered to the shining band and its glittering gem, and during the night she dreams that it has fallen into a stream, and awakes, clutching the finger to assure herself that the precious pledge is still secure.

Then, on the following day, she wears it only in secret, taking care to transfer it to her pocket at table and when in the company of intimates, but place her among strangers or among casual acquaintances who can not be inquisitive, and how bravely will she flaunt the token before their eyes as one who should say:

"I may not be the lovliest creature in the world, but you will observe that I get there all the same."

Gradually it assumes its place in her daily life, and her blushes grow less violent with each succeeding explanation of its insignificance and each extravagant description of its donor's attributes. But before it finally becomes a part of herself, as it were, she must, of course, leave it a dozen times at least upon the washstand, and suffer in consequence of a dozen violent attacks of palpatation of the heart until it is recovered.—Washington Post.

MY KINGDOM AND MY QUEEN.

My kingdom has no dazzling throne,
No palace grand upon it,
Yet 'tis as bright as e'er was known,
Or sung in loval sonnet.
I've traveled east, I've traveled west,
'Mid scenes of wealth and splendor,
But this one spot I love the best,
With all its joys so tender;
No place so dear I've ever seen,
For peace reigns here and Love is queen.

Two subjects in my kingdom dwell,
One has an eye of azure,
And smiles upon her fair face tell
Of pure and perfect pleasure;
And one has hair of raven hue
And eyes of hazel beauty,
And whate'er he may strive to do
He always does his duty,
And faithful they have ever been
To her who is my household queen.

And as life yields me newer joy
And hope divine and human,
I see one now no more a boy,
And one almost a woman.
The bright days come, the bright days go,
And each brings some new pleasure,
And no spot on the earth I know
Is richer with heart treasure.
Nor happier subjects ne'er were seen
Than in my home where Love is queen

By no high sounding, royal name
Or title they address her,
As cheerily, their eyes aflame
With love, they kiss and bless her;
But with a voice of gentle tone,
Which joy gives to each other,
They call her by one name alone,
The hallowed name of mother!
The name the sweetest known to man
Since time and love their course began —Caleb Dunn in Youth's Companion

It Came at Last.

"What's the matter with you?" he called across High street yesterday.

"Come over."

"What fur?"

"I want yer to go to the grocery with me."

"Will yer git a cocoanut?" queries the first boy, as he crossed the street.

"Lands, no! I want yer company. Come down while I give the grocer an order."

"You must be crazy."

"Come along and see."

"Ma wants yo to send up," he said, as he met the grocer at the door, "five pounds of granulated sugar, half a poung of your best tea, and about two pounds of"——

"Who's your mother?"

"Mrs. Blank."

"Yes, I thought so. Tell her she owes me $27. I want that settled first."

"That's what I've been looking for these last two weeks," said the second boy, as he was overtaken a block away. "That's why I wanted your company. See anything crazy about me, now?"

"That's awful," replied number one.

"You bet, and it's so early that I don't believe we can get to the sea shore this year. Say, won't you come up and stand behind me while I tell ma that we've got to come right down to hard pan or find another grocery?"—Detroit Free Press.

Uses of Cotton Seed.

Was there ever such a history as that of the cotton seed? For seventy years despised as a nuisance, and burned and dumped as garbage, then discovered to be the very food for which the soil was hungering, and reluctantly admitted to the rank of utilities, shortly afterward found to be nutritious food for beasts, and thereupon treated with something like respect. Once admitted to the circle of farm industries it was found to hold thirty-five gallons of pure oil to the ton, worth in its crude state $14 to the ton, or $40,000,000 for the whole crop of seed. But then a system was devised for refining the oil up to a value of $1 a gallon, and the frugal Italian placed a cask of it at the root of every olive tree, and then defied the borean breath of the Alps. And then experience showed that the ton of cotton seed was a better fertilizer and a better stock food when robbed of its thirty-five gallons of oil than before, that the hulls of the seeds made the best of fuel for feeding the oil mill engine, that the ashes of the hulls scooped from the engine's draught had the highest commercial value as potash, and that the "refuse" of the whole made the best and purest soap stock, to carry to the toilet the perfumes of Lubin or Colgate.—Bankers' Monthly.

Chinese Boots and Shoes.

There are a variety of boots and shoes used in China. The common shoe is made of thick, heavy felt, with a still thicker sole made of woven straw or layers of felt. This sole does not come out to the end of the shoe, but rounds upward at the ball of the foot. This puts the Chinaman on a pair of rockers, as it were, and gives him a rolling gait. Chinese persons of rank wear boots with thick soles and legs of fine cloth or silk that reach half way up to the knee. Among the peasants rude shoes are woven of straw. A wonderful shoe is that worn by a Chinese women of rank.

One of these shown at the National museum is of silk, beautifully embroidered. The general shape of the shoe is more like that of a hoof than anything else. It is less than four inches long. The wearer of this shoe had her feet bandaged in infancy and the bandages were maintained and tightened while she was growing up in order to make her feet small. When she was grown she was a helpless creature, hardly able to hobble across her room. If she wanted to go out shopping she had to be carried in a chair.—Washington Star.

Making Match Boxes.

Few are there who, when traveling in Sweden in the home of the tand stickors, leave the fjords, rocks and firs for a day, and trace the Swedish match back to its source. And yet it would more than repay a day's sojourn at Jonkoping to visit the factory whence proceeds not a small part of the light of the world. The latest novelty is an enormous engine which daily produces 1,000,000 boxes of Swedish matches. This wonderful machine receives the raw material namely, blocks of wood—at one end, and, after a while, gives up at the other the matches neatly arranged in their boxes, ready to be dispatched to the utter most ends of the world.—London Tid Bits

A FEW POINTS OF ETIQUETTE.

Advice Easy to Remember to and Practice in an Emergency.

In the mad whirl of the cotilon, if you wear ready made clothing bought from an irresponsible dealer, and hear a b-z-z-t that don't harmonize with the F string on the bass fiddle, it is entirely correct and proper to not "forward and back" according to the commands of the figure caller, but to back straight ahead without balking until you reach the wall, when a pin neatly utilized may cover your embarrassment and retreat. People who snicker under such circumstances should be put outside the pale of good society.

When invited out to dinner and you inadvertently get a huge mouthful of mince pie that is hot enough to melt the solder off a gas pipe, tangled up in your epiglottis, do not act as if you had the whooping cough, but arise calmly and with a sleight-of-hand movement toss the offending morsel behind the majolica dog in the corner, meantime patting his head as though you thought him alive. This graceful act never fails to win the heart of your hostess, who thinks you intend her faithful friend to partake of the festivities.

Some writer on etiquette, a good many years ago, said that it was perfectly proper to eat fried chicken with the fingers. I have often noticed people seize on a wing and rip it open like they would tear a yard of clothing material off a bolt of calico, and so the cracking of the crazy bone was audible all over the dining room. It is true that some fried chickens require heroic treatment, but when an apprentice in etiquette tries to jerk the goose flesh off the second joint of a Louis XIV hen and squirts a steak of gravy into the eye of his neighbor, it does seem that a new code regarding the best manner of shattering the remains of a hard boiled fowl should be introduced.

When the sheriff of the county serves a subpoena on you, it is considered in good taste to attend his reception without further invitation on his part. Some sticklers on politeness, however, who find that it will prevent their witnessing a ball game, go to the extreme of sending around a physician's certificate to the effect that they are indisposed from the influence of the sportive element.

Don't use snuff if your false teeth are not strictly adhesive. I once heard of a case where this rule was not observed, when the transgressor, in a thoughtless moment, nearly knocked the eye out of a $25 King Charles spaniel.

No one but a boor will snore in the Volapux language in a church where a sermon is being delivered in English. Observance of the harmonies is one of the greatest traits of the true gentleman. People who have enlarged Romanesque nasal chords will be interested in an invention which a friend of mine is getting up, which he calls the "Sure Snore Killer." It is a phonetic arrangement connected with a pillow sham holder, and when the air vibrations are four lines below the clef, to use a musical term, the holder drops and hits the sleeper across the bridge of the nose. Four caveats and a number of legal retainers have already been filed.

Don't play practical jokes on a spitz dog whose tail is done up like the letter Q.

When you order meat from your butcher don't ever use the term "limb of mutton." He will think that you never intend paying for it.

In all cases of doubt about the minor points of etiquette a strong bluff on a weak hand will almost always win.—Rochester Union.

The Most Enterprising Crow on Record.

Farmer Crowder had finished planting his corn, but his heart was heavy. He knew the crows were whetting their bills to pull up the corn as soon as it appeared above the surface.

"I can tell you how to get away with the crows," said Neighbor Stokes.

"How?"

"Get you a gallon of mean whisky and soak some corn in it till it gets full of the stuff, and then scatter it broadcast in the field. The black rascals will eat it and get drunk, and then you can catch 'em and pull their heads off. That beats pizen or shootin'."

In a few days Farmer Crowder met his friend Stokes.

"Well, how's the craps?" queried Stokes.

"My corn's bodaciously ruint," replied Crowder, dolefully. "I tried that 'er scheme o' yourn, and it's a humbug. I soaked the corn and scattered it one day, and next mornin' I went to the new groun' to see how it'd worked."

"Found 'em drunk, eh?"

"Found nothin'. I hearn a devil of a fuss down nigh the branch, and went to see what it was; there was a dad blasted old crow what had gathered up all the whisky corn an' had it on stump, an' he was retailin' it 'out to the others, givin' 'em one grain o' that sort fur three grains o' my planted corn, and dinged ef they hadn't clawed up that field by sections."—Atlanta Journal.

Slaves to Habit.

According to the general idea of slaves to habit or taste, the morphine fiend is one of, if not the worst. We're bad enough, I'll admit that, but there are others that are just as bad, and of whom the public knows nothing. Now, for instance, I know of one man who takes quinine as if it was flour, and he couldn't possibly get along without it. He is a man who drinks regularly, taking probably a dozen glasses of whisky, often more, a day. With every drink of whisky he takes a spoonful of quinine. It is kept at the bar for him at all times, and is handed out to him like a piece of loaf sugar would be to another man. Another fiend is the one who habitually takes antipyrine. He is really one of the worst. When this drug gets a good hold on a person there is really no getting away from it, and its effect is extremely bad.—Interview in St. Louis Globe Democrat.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

County Official Paper.

Mulholland & Mack
EDITORS & PROPRIETORS
PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL

SATURDAY AUGUST 10 1889

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY, August 5th.

The Hon. Board of Supervisors of Inyo county met in regular session at 5 o'clock p. m. Present Supervisors Harger, Sneden, Robinson and Stewart. Absent, J. C. Eddy. Minutes of last day's regular session read and approved.

Whereupon the Board adjourned until 10 o'clock a. m. of Tuesday.

TUESDAY, August 6th.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment at 10 o'clock a. m., same members present. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

The following bills were allowed:

J. W. Murphy, labor on jail	$ 8 50
O. I. Mairs, Sunds	13 00
A. W. Sheets, labor on Court house	4 00
W. T. Bunney, J. P. fees	9 00
Thos. Crough, Constable fees	40 50
Thos. Parker, Coroners fees	14 20
J. R. Eldred, sunds	11 50
I. J. Woodin, medical services	156 00
" " post mortem	45 00
J. J. Moore, sunds	2 80
A. W. Eibeshutz, sunds	75 55
H. Levy, boarding prisoners etc	62 30
Independence Water Co	12 00
G. M. Gill, traveling expenses	12 50
W. H. Graham, conveying Jury	10 00
J. H. Shannon, expenses	22 00

The Board adjourned until 2 o'clock p. m., at which hour it reassembled, the same members present.

Bill of Chas. Robinson rejected.

Bill of P. A. Chalfant for $326 05 was allowed in sum of $276 05.

S. G. Sneden allowed $2 60 for fare advanced hospital patient.

O. Hampton was allowed $50 on Bridge fund.

The claim of C. S. Swan was allowed in sum of $29 45.

Whereupon the Board adjourned until 10 o'clock a. m. of Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY, August 7th.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment at 10 o'clock a. m., same members present. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

The following bills were allowed.

L. Wood, sunds	$ 9 80
C. Mulholland, printing	83 41
Mrs. M. Lewis, care indigent sick	125 00
S. J. Murry, Road Dist. No. 4	58 36
W. James, " " " 5	90 30
M. S. McLeod " " " 3	91 00
G. H. Palmer " " " 6	60 00
W. H. Powers " " " 2	108 00
H. Evans " " " 1	25 00

The reports of foregoing road overseers accepted and approved.

Ordered that the sum of $146 13 be transferred from the General Road fund to the various road district funds to complete deficits therein.

Claim of Edward Schober allowed on Road Dist. No. 3 fund in sum of $16.

Claim of J. R. Eldred for sums expended in the collection of sheep licenses allowed in sum of $236.

Whereupon the Board adjourned until 2 o'clock p. m., at which hour it reassembled, the same members present.

Petition for road in Third District was granted.

Reports of surveyor and road viewers in Dist. No. 3 accepted and approved.

Claim of S. P. McKnight for surveying road in Dist. No. 3 allowed, $30.

Bill of J. M. Horton as road viewer was allowed, $9.

Bill of Enoch Enloe as road viewer allowed in sum of $11 50.

Resignation of Thos. Crough as Constastable in First Township accepted.

Whereupon the Board adjourned until 10 o'clock a. m. of Thursday.

THURSDAY, August 8th.

The Board met at 10 o'clock a. m., same members present. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

The record was amended in the matter of the Big Pine school bonds.

Bill of A. Carlisle & Co., for books etc., $145 11, allowed in sum of $139 11.

Bill of Jesse Fox for labor, $10, laid over till next regular meeting.

A petition was received for a new road in District No. 3. S. P. McKnight, Morton George and Geo. L. Drake were appointed viewers. Bond accepted.

Bill of I. H. Mulholland allowed, $19 50

P. H. Mack, cash etc., allowed, $72 74

Whereupon the Board adjourned until 2 o'clock p. m., at which hour it reconvened, the same members present.

Quarterly reports of Auditor and Treasurer accepted and approved.

The following bills were allowed for per diem and mileage of members of the Board.

J. D. Harger	$38 10
S. G. Sneden	37 80
F. Robinson	24 30
J. J. Stewart	28 80

Whereupon the Board adjourned.

The New Ones Rechristined.

After the enjoyment of a Turkish bath, and when reclining on one of the couches in the cooling room, a few days since, I asked the attendant, who had given me a more than usually good rubbing, what his name was. He replied, "Jim." "Isn't there but one Jim in the place?" "There couldn't be, sir," said he. "But suppose a new man with that name should be employed? Don't such a thing happen occasionally?" "Yes; but we would baptize him and give him another name. A new fellow came on yesterday who said his name was James. We grabbed him, took him over to the big plunge and commenced swinging him back and forward for a good souse. He cried out, 'Don't throw me, for I can't swim.' When he came up out of the hole he had made in the water and was relieved to find that he could touch bottom with his head clear of the surface, he was saluted with, 'Your name is John,' and his name is John here. The next John will have to go through the same process and be baptized something else."—Brooklyn Eagle.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SYRUP of FIGS

Combines the juice of the Blue Figs of California, so laxative and nutritious, with the medicinal virtues of plants known to be most beneficial to the human system, forming the ONLY PERFECT REMEDY to act gently yet promptly on the

KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS

—AND TO—

Cleanse the System Effectually,

—SO THAT—

PURE BLOOD,
REFRESHING SLEEP,
HEALTH and STRENGTH

Naturally follow. Every one is using it and all are delighted with it. Ask your druggist for SYRUP OF FIGS. Manufactured only by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
LOUISVILLE, KY. NEW YORK, N. Y.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of JOHN HENRY MEYER, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by the undersigned administrator of the estate of John Henry Meyer, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said administrator, at his residence, in Pleasant Valley, Inyo County, California. FRITZ MEYER,
Administrator of the estate of John Henry Meyer, deceased.
Dated June 29th 1889. o-12

PIONEER BREWERY
INDEPENDENCE.

BEER ICE COLD.

The Bar is supplied with the Best of all kinds of Liquors and Cigars.

The Coolest Hall in the town. Call in and see what comfort you can have this hot weather.

PHILIP GEHRIG, PROPRIETOR

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,

MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜

☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜

Send orders to
MUNZINGER, PHILLIPPAY & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

ANTONS SALOON
KEELER, CAL.

BEER, WINES, LIQUORS and CIGARS.

All kinds of Fancy Drinks, including pure water. A comfortable and pleasant Hall.

JOHN C. ANTON Prop.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to no one on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

FRUIT TREES AND VINES.

PRUNING, BUDDING, GRAFTING, transplanting and setting out all kinds of fruit trees, vines, shade and ornamental trees. Having many years experience in the best fruit and vine districts of Italy and France, I am familiar with the most successful methods practiced in those countries; methods that are the result of centuries of experience. Address, d45tf ANGELO ROSSI, Lone Pine.

LANDS—MINES

ANSWER TO INQUIRIES, $1.00
REPORT ON ENTRIES, CONTESTS, &c., $3.00
Procuring Land Patents, Filing Arguments, and Conducting Contests, on Moderate Terms. Send for circular to
HENRY N. COPP, ATTORNEY AT LAW,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Every Settler should have Copp's Settler's Guide, 124 pages; price only 25 cents (postage stamps).

THIRD
ANNUAL FAIR
Agricultural District
No. 18.
STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Composed Of the Counties of

ALPINE, MONO & INYO.

TO BE HELD AT

Independence

Commencing Tuesday, September 24th, and Continuing Four Days.

A. R. CONKLIN.....President.
C. MULHOLLAND.....Secretary.
O. I. MAIRS.....Treasurer.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

A. R. CONKLIN, JOHN SHEPHERD,
A. W. EIBESHUTZ, F. McIVER,
W. K. MILLER, E. ROBINSON,
J. S. GORMAN, W. S. ENOS.

First Department.

In this department the same animal shall not be entered more than once, except in sweepstakes or as a member of a family exhibited with its sire or dam. Any stallion, mare, gelding or colt competing in a race will not be excluded from competing for premiums in their respective classes.

CLASS I.
THOROUGHBRED HORSES.

Best stallion	$25 00
Second best stallion	20 00

CLASS II
STANDARD TROTTERS.

Best Stallion, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Stallion, 2 year old	15 00
Best Stallion, 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt under 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and colt	15 00

CLASS III.
ROADSTERS.

Best Roadster, 3 years and upward	20 00
Best Roadster, 2 year old	15 00
Best roadster team driven to buggy	25 00

Will have to be shown to harness.

CLASS IV.
HORSES OF ALL WORK.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	25 00
Best stallion 2 years old	15 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best Colt	10 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upwards	20 00
Best mare, 2 years old	15 00
Best mare, 1 year old	10 00
Best mare and family, not less than three colts	25 00

CLASS V.
DRAFT HORSES.

Best stallion, 3 years old and upward	$25 00
Best stallion 2 years old	20 00
Best stallion 1 year old	15 00
Best mare, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best mare and colt	20 00
Best matched team	20 00
Best mare and 3 colts	20 00

CLASS V.
TEAMS.

Best matched carriage team	20 00
Best matched buggy team	20 00

CLASS VII.
SADDLE ANIMALS.

Best, any age	20 00
Second best	15 00

CLASS VIII
SWEEPSTAKES.

Best stallion, any breed or age	25 00
Best mare, any breed or age	25 00

CLASS IX.
JACKS.

Best Jack, 2 years old and upward	25 00
Best Jack 1 year old	15 00

CLASS X.
MULES.

Best span owned by one person, 3 years or over	15 00
Best span under 3 years	10 00

CLASS XI.
CATTLE—BULLS.

Best bull, any breed 3 years old and upward	30 00
Best bull any breed, 2 years old	25 00
Best bull, any breed, 1 year old	20 00

CLASS XII
COWS.

Best cow, 3 years old and upward	20 00
Best cow, 2 years old	15 00
Best cow and calf	15 00
Best cow and 2 calves	15 00
Best milch cow, quart and pint of milk	20 00

CLASS XIII.
SHEEP.

Best display of sheep	15 00

CLASS XIV.
GOATS.

Best display of Angora goats	20 00

CLASS XV.
SWINE

Best display of hogs	15 00
Best sow and litter of four pigs	10 00

CLASS XVI.
POULTRY ETC.

Best display of fowls, any age or breed	10 00
Second best	8 00
Best pair of bronze turkeys	5 00

Second Department.

All products exhibited in this Department must have been produced in Nevada, or in California east of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and by the exhibitor

CLASS I.
AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best 100 pounds of flour	$ 5 00
Best 100 pounds of wheat	5 00
Best 100 pounds of barley	5 00
Best 100 pounds of oats	5 00
Best 100 pounds of rye	5 00
Best 100 pounds of corn shelled	5 00
Best 50 pounds of alfalfa seed	5 00
Best bale of timothy hay	5 00
Best bale of alfalfa hay	5 00
Display of Agricultural Products	50 00
Second Best	15 00

CLASS II.
VEGETABLES, ROOTS, ETC.

Best 10 pounds of sweet potatoes	2 50
10 pounds of Early Rose potatoes	2 50
100 pounds any variety of potatoes	3 00
20 pounds of parsnips	2 50
20 pounds of carrots	2 50
20 pounds of turnips	2 50
20 pounds of beets, any variety	2 50
20 pounds of tomatoes, any variety	2 50
1 doz cabbage, any variety	2 50
50 pounds of onions, any variety	2 50
1 doz squash, any variety	2 50
sample of peppers; any variety	2 50
½ doz watermelons, any variety	2 50
1 doz cucumbers, any variety	2 50
½ doz cantaloupes, any variety	2 50
10 pounds of white beans	2 50
10 pounds of pink beans	2 50
10 pounds garden peas, any variety	2 50
Display of vegetables in one lot	5 00

CLASS III
DAIRY AND FARM PRODUCE.

Best 10 pounds of butter in rolls	$ 3 00
Second best	2 00
Best jar of butter, 20 pounds 3 months old	5 00
single cheese any weight	5 00
10 pounds of lard	2 00
display of honey	5 00
Apiary display	10 00
display of bread, Chinaman made excluded	3 00
display of cakes	5 00
variety of fruit in jars	10 00
Second best	5 00
Best variety of jellies	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of preserves	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best variety of pickles	5 00
Second best	3 00
Best Sample of 50 lbs. each of ham and bacon	10 00

Third Department.
CLASS I.
HORTICULTURAL PRODUCTS.

Best display of apples	$ 7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display pears	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display peaches	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of plums	7 50
Second best	5 00
Best display of quinces	5 00
display of grapes of different varieties	5 00
½ doz bottles of wine	5 00
display of wine grapes	5 00
display of raisin grapes	5 00
display of raisins made in the District	7 50
display of prunes	5 00
display of dried fruits	7 00
Second best	5 00
Best display of grapes and wine made from the same grapes, to vary	10 00
display of all kinds of fruit—a collection	20 00

Fourth Department.
CLASS I.
ARTISTIC.

Best oil painting done by resident of district	10 00
Second best	7 50
Best crayon drawing	10 00
On satin and Japanese castle	10 00
Collection of paintings by any Artist	10 00

Fifth Department.
CLASS I.
NEEDLE AND OTHER WORK.

Handsomest pillow shams, $5 00
Best and handsomest patchwork quilt, $5 00
Fastest crocheted quilt, $5 00
Handsomest crazy quilt, $5 00
Handsomest knitted quilt, $5 00
Handsomest sofa cushion, $5 00
Handsomest set of ticies for sofa, $5 00
Best embroidered ladies dress $5 00
child's dress, $5 00
ottoman cover, $5 00
table cover, 4 corners, $5 00
scarf, two ends, $5 00
pair lambrequins, $5 00
wall pocket or hanger, $5 00
silk or flannel $5 00
on linen, $5 00
Kensington crewel or wool $5 00
toilet set, three or more pieces, $5
lace work, hand made, $5 darned net, three or more pieces, $5
crochet shawl, $5
hand painted table scarf, $5
bead work, $5
Handsomest and best made dress for lady, $5
Best display hair work, $5
Best display of fancy articles, $10
display of Spanish needle work, $5
Best and greatest variety of crochet work, $10
hand knit stockings, $3
JUVENILE.
calico dress made by girl under 14, $5
hand sewing, not less than 4 pieces, by girl under sixteen, $5
crochet work by girl under 14, $5
patchwork quilt by girl under 14, $5
hand made shirt by girl under 14, $3 display of hair work, $5

